

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

FOUR PLAYS OF MENANDER

CAPPS

~~5312~~
M5312

LELAND STANFORD JUNIOR UNIVERSITY

RECEIVED
JAN 10 1964

THE ST. PETERSBURG FRAGMENT OF THE EPITREPONTES, RECTO (pp. 94 ff.)

COLLEGE SERIES OF GREEK AUTHORS
EDITED UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF
JOHN WILLIAMS WHITE AND CHARLES BURTON GULICK

FOUR PLAYS OF MENANDER

THE HERO, EPITREPONTES, PERICEIROMENE AND SAMIA

EDITED, WITH INTRODUCTIONS, EXPLANATORY NOTES CRITICAL APPENDIX, AND BIBLIOGRAPHY

BY EDWARD CAPPS

PROFESSOR OF CLASSICS IN PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

GINN AND COMPANY

BOSTON · NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON

882.6
JC 249

147036

ENTERED AT STATIONERS' HALL

COPYRIGHT, 1910, BY JOHN WILLIAMS WHITE AND CHARLES BURTON GULICK

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

910.7

Y9A881.1 08078AT2

The Athenaeum Press
GINN AND COMPANY • PROPRIETORS • BOSTON • U.S.A.

TO JOHN WILLIAMS WHITE
δῶρον ἀντὶ μεγάλου σμικρόν

PREFACE

This edition has been prepared in the belief that American college students may now profitably read Menander, the unrivaled master of Plautus and Terence, if the text of the manuscript found at Aphroditopolis in 1905 is made available to them in an edition adapted to their needs. Menander should prove no more difficult to the average college freshman than Terence, and considerably less difficult than Plautus. To those who read Plautus and Terence in our colleges Menander should make a direct and forceful appeal, such is the lucidity and charm of his style, his fidelity to life in the portrayal of character, and the logical simplicity of his plots. Even the young student will be sensible of the difference in atmosphere between the more or less exotic Graeco-Roman comedies and those of the Greek poet, who depicts the men and women of his own day with the skill of one who knew them well and was himself a product of the social conditions in which they lived.

The chief difficulties that confront the editor who sets himself the task of adapting the new plays to the needs of college students arise from the illegibility and mutilation of certain portions of the manuscript and the fragmentary state in which the several plays are preserved. In dealing with mutilated and illegible lines I have generally attempted to supply a text which should duly take into account the preserved traces of writing and the reported extent of the lacunae and at the same time should yield a meaning consistent with the immediate context, with the plot as a whole, and with Menander's known stylistic and metrical usage. I am fully aware of the hazardous nature, in many instances, of such a procedure, and in particular of my own inability to achieve the ideal which Professor John Williams White so justly formulates in his authoritative discussion of the iambic trimeter in Menander: "to restore the mutilated verses of the poet, whenever this can be done, in order that as much as possible of the original language and action of these charming plays may be preserved for the reader; but . . . in such a fashion as nowhere to distract attention from the poet's own manner. The restorer should be content to be commonplace and should impose upon himself the severest limitations of form." To the limitations of form which Professor White prescribes and himself defines, in the article to which reference has just been made, the great majority of restorations admitted into the text of this edition have been made to conform. In exceptional cases, however, a metrical structure which is supported by relatively few examples in the preserved lines has been admitted on what seemed to be the evidence of the manuscript; but attention is usually drawn in the notes to such deviations from the poet's normal usage. How far the restored text conforms in other respects to the above-mentioned criteria the judgment of others must decide. But that the labors of the two score of scholars who have enthusiastically given themselves to the study of these comedies have resulted in the discovery of the poet's own words in many passages, and of the poet's thought, if not his exact words, in many other passages, is shown by the large number of lines in which a consensus of editorial opinion has already been reached. It seemed to me a better plan to present to the student such a restored text, with its inevitable uncertainties, than to permit his attention to be constantly distracted by groups of unorganized letters and by dots and dashes indicating lacunae. While freely adopting the suggestions of others wherever they seemed to satisfy the conditions, I have admitted many suggestions of my own, in the hope that I might here and there contribute something to the constitution of the text or to the understanding of the plays. In order that neither the young student nor the professional scholar may be in doubt as to whether he is reading Menander or the verses of a restorer, all supplements except the slightest and most obvious are inclosed in angles inconspicuously placed above the line.

The complete loss of portions of these four plays can of course be fully repaired only by the fortunate discovery of these portions in other manuscripts. But, with the exception of the first play, of which practically only the prologue is preserved, enough remains, especially of the Epitrepontes and Periceiomene, to enable the reader to follow the plots in their main outlines. By means of explanatory statements inserted in the text at points where considerable portions are missing, and by full notes at these places, I have endeavored to bridge over the lacunae and thus in a measure to restore the continuity of the action. In these notes and explanations, and in the introductions to the several plays, where questions pertaining to the plots and to the rôles sustained by the characters are discussed, I have tried to present the available evidence on matters of plot-construction. The mature student will find his interest in matters of dramatic technique stimulated, and his insight into the processes of the dramatic poet's art quickened, by the independent study of the problems presented by the disiecta membra of these comedies, especially since the position of the manuscript fragments in relation to the whole play has in almost every instance been determined.

Notwithstanding the objections raised by Professor Körte in the preface to his edition, I have acted on my belief that the St. Petersburg parchment fragment 2 belongs to the Epitrepontes and has its place at the end of the third act. As regards papyrus fragment M, which I formerly associated with the quotation 600 K. and assigned to the prologue, I have accepted as conclusive the testimony of M. Seymour di Ricci that it makes a juncture with fragment NT, and at the last moment have made the necessary change in the plates. The quoted fragments of the four plays have been assigned, where possible, to appropriate positions. The papyrus fragments LPS, which scholars now generally agree in attributing to a fifth comedy, and the small papyrus fragments¹ U and V, which have not yet been placed, are not included in this edition.

The published facsimile of the four Leipzig pages of the Periceiomene and of vv. 855 to 887 of the Oxyrhynchus fragment of the same play, and the photograph of the St. Petersburg fragment of the Epitrepontes² kindly furnished me by Director Kobeko of the Imperial Public Library of St. Petersburg, have been of assistance in constituting the text. I have ventured to depend upon these reproductions in a few instances, especially in the mutilated end of the second Leipzig fragment, and to depart from the readings favored by the scholars who have examined the manuscripts directly. The lack of a photographic reproduction of the Cairo manuscript is a serious handicap to every editor and has greatly retarded the work of reconstructing the text. Not only are passages still uncertain which would in all probability have been finally restored, but the wavering and often conflicting testimony of the scholars who have examined the papyrus has led to an unnecessary and unfortunate multiplication of conjectural restorations. And yet, with our present imperfect knowledge of this manuscript, many proposed restorations which will ultimately be discarded have at present a provisional standing in the history of the text and will assist both in the final decipherment of doubtful verses and in the interpretation of hopelessly defective passages. I have therefore thought it desirable to give in the Critical Appendix a full report of the divergent or mutually complementary readings of Lefebvre, Körte, and di Ricci, and also to record rather fully the more notable restorations that have been suggested. It is hoped that the Critical Appendix, in spite of its bulk, will be found useful as a record of the scholarly labor which has been bestowed upon this manuscript since its discovery. It should be added, however, that no such record can do full justice to the contributions of the first editor, M. Lefebvre.

¹ First published by Körte, p. 150 of his edition.

² The photograph of the recto side of this fragment, on which see pp. 34 f. below, is reproduced in this edition.

The commentary is designed to give the college student the help he needs for the understanding of the poet's language and style and of the plays as a whole. At the same time many of the notes are consciously addressed to the maturer student and to the professional scholar. In the present stage of Menandrian studies no apology is needed for the resulting lack of sharp definition,—for the intermingling of notes on elementary matters of style and grammar with statements on technical points of meter or on Hellenistic diction. In the interest of the latter class of students especially I regret that the leisure hours of the year which has been at my disposal for this task have proved too few for the preparation of the comprehensive general introduction which I originally planned. I shall hope to supply this deficiency if a second edition is ever called for.

The manuscript of this edition was sent to the printer in the summer of 1909. During the progress of the book through the press a number of important articles and books have appeared, of which I have been able to avail myself only to a limited extent. Legrand's comprehensive and scholarly treatise on the New Comedy came into my hands too late to be of service. My use of Sudhaus' edition has of necessity been restricted almost wholly to the Critical Appendix. The valuable articles on the Periceiomene by von Arnim, Robert, and Schmidt contributed valuable suggestions, but necessitated no essential modification of my own views, for after the publication of the Leipzig fragments I had independently reached conclusions regarding the plot of this play that in important details coincided with those advanced by one or another of these scholars. Gerhard's article on the same play reaches me as I write this preface. Harmon's ingenious discussion of the title and plot of the play which is currently entitled "Samia" was courteously communicated to me by its author before its publication; but I have been able to make only a passing reference to it in the commentary on this play. The same statement applies also to Rees' analysis of these plays with reference to the number of actors employed. After Körte's edition had reached me I was able to insert in the plates his reading of E. 146, to transfer M to its proper place, and from E. 648 on to adopt the most important contributions to the text communicated in his edition. To all the scholars mentioned in the Bibliography, with the exception of those whose contributions are marked as having been inaccessible to me, I desire to make a general acknowledgment of indebtedness, and more especially to van Leeuwen, Robert, Bodin and Mazon, Croiset, Körte, and Sudhaus for the help derived from their editions, and to these scholars and to von Arnim, Headlam, Hense, Legrand, Leo, Schmidt, White, and Wilamowitz for important suggestions of which I have made use in my commentary.

To Messrs. Ginn and Company and their editorial staff I would express my thanks for the courtesy and liberality with which they have coöperated with me in seeing through the press an unusually difficult piece of work, which has made heavy demands upon their patience by reason of the shifting nature of the subject-matter, and particularly to their accomplished proofreader, Mr. Steven T. Byington, whose scholarly advice and criticism have been of exceptional value.

I count it a high privilege to be permitted to dedicate this volume to my friend Professor John Williams White as a slight token of personal esteem and in recognition of the influence upon my own studies of his high ideals and distinguished achievement in scholarship. For friendly offices most generously given I can never hope to make adequate acknowledgment.

EDWARD CAPPS

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY, March 24, 1910

CONTENTS

| | PAGE |
|-----------------------------|------|
| THE HERO | |
| INTRODUCTION | 3 |
| TEXT AND NOTES | 13 |
| THE EPITREPONTES | |
| INTRODUCTION | 25 |
| TEXT AND NOTES | 47 |
| THE PERICEIROMENE | |
| INTRODUCTION | 131 |
| TEXT AND NOTES | 151 |
| THE SAMIA | |
| INTRODUCTION | 223 |
| TEXT AND NOTES | 237 |
| CRITICAL APPENDIX | 283 |
| BIBLIOGRAPHY | 323 |

HPΩΣ

THE HERO

The fragments of Menander's comedies which have been found in Egypt in recent years have been disconnected scenes or portions of scenes from the inner part of plays. The Georgus alone has brought information regarding Menander's methods of exposition, for which we have hitherto been obliged to depend upon the Latin translations of his plays; and of the Georgus the beginning is missing in the Geneva fragment. We are therefore very fortunate in having, among the leaves of the volume of Menander which M. Lefebvre discovered, two pages from the very beginning of the second of the plays which that volume originally contained. Pages 29 and 30 of the Cairo codex, contained on folio A, give a metrical hypothesis, the cast of characters, and the first 52 verses of a play which cannot be brought into relation with any of the other plays found in this papyrus. The title, however, is lost from the heading over the hypothesis. To judge by the position of the remains of this heading, —ΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ, the title may have been a word of eight letters; or, on the supposition that the initial letters of the title and author's name were twice as large as the rest and that a space of two letters separated the two words, the title may have contained only four letters.¹

The coincidence that Menander wrote a play entitled Ἡρώς, from which nine quotations accompanied by the title survive, and that in the list of characters, after the names of the two slaves who speak the prologue, occurs the name Ἡρώς θεός, led the first editor, M. Lefebvre, to make the happy suggestion that this play was the Hero. After the critical nature of the situation had been expounded in the prologue, the god appeared, like Ἄγροια in the Periceiomene, and set in motion the train of circumstances that led to the dénouement.

¹ A. Körte, Ber. d. sächs. Akad., 1908, p. 138. In the heading over the hypothesis to the Dionysalexandrus of Cratinus, Oz. Pap. IV, p. 69, the initials of title and author are distinguished by lines drawn above and below them. There, however, the author's name is below the title, not in the same line with it, and between the two stands the numeral ῥ.

Inasmuch as no one of the nine quotations to which the title Ἦρω is attached¹ recurs in the 52 lines of the new text, the identification cannot be regarded as certain. And yet it gains in plausibility when we observe that all the certified quotations which are of sufficient extent to suggest to our minds a setting and a context fit admirably into the plot as we know it and can be appropriately assigned to one of the characters. This is especially true of fr. 211, "How sad it is that I alone must bear misfortunes such as pass the mind's belief." The words of the hypothesis, οὐκ εἰδὺν δ' ἡ μήτηρ ἄγαν ἐδυσχέραυνε, read almost as a commentary on this passage.

The small fragment O, which contains four and five broken verses on recto and verso respectively, has been thought by Lefebvre and subsequent editors to be a portion of the Hero. It contains not only the name of Myrrhina (who might be the matron of the Periceiomene) and a reference to the events of "eighteen years ago" which play so important a part in the complication of the plot, but also an allusion to "the shepherd." The triple coincidence makes the identification practically certain.

The Ἦρως θεός who gave the play its title was in all probability, as Legrand and others have suggested, the tutelary genius of the household. The best argument in favor of this view is furnished by Menander himself. In the Aulularia of Plautus, now generally regarded as Menandrian,² the figure of "Lar familiaris" comes from the house of Euclio and speaks the prologue. Hanc domum, he says, iam multos annos est quom possideo et colo. The occasion of his appearance at this time is to bring succor to the girl Phaedra. She is in great trouble. Violated by a young man of the neighborhood who loves her, she is bitterly poor. Her lover, whom she does not know, cannot marry her without a dowry. The time of her confinement approaches. At this juncture the household god intervenes; he causes Euclio to find the treasure, and thus sets in motion the train of events which will bring happiness to his charge. We are again reminded of the rôle of Ἄγνοια, and of that of Auxilium in the Cistellaria of Plautus. But Lar is no such abstraction; he is a real personality, one whose presence and intervention required no justification. We may safely conclude, then, that the intervening god in this play is the household god, the soul of a departed ancestor, whose abode is at the hearth, who watches with loving care over the family,¹ and who has a deep and abiding interest in the welfare of Myrrhina and her daughter.

¹ One quotation unaccompanied by title or author (adesp. 444 K.), one word known to have been used by Menander (1075 K.), and one gloss that is probably derived from Menander (see v. 17) recur in the text.

² See especially Geffken, Studien zu Menander, prog. Hamburg, 1898, pp. 1 ff.

The scene of the Hero is given in v. 22—the Attic deme of Ptelea, "Elmwood," of the tribe Oeneis. This was one of the most insignificant of the demes of Attica. In literature it is mentioned only by geographers and grammarians. No Pteleasian is known to fame, and from the inscriptions Kirchner has gleaned the names of only twenty residents, all ordinary persons. The site of Ptelea is undetermined, but it probably² was situated on the eastern slope of Mt. Aegaleus, the range west of the city, or on the southern end of the Parnes range. This play shows clearly that it was, in fact, one of the upland counties. Its citizens were a pastoral folk; Gorgias tends the flocks of Laches, and his foster-father was a shepherd before him. Elm trees and wild pears grew there, and thither came hunters from the city (fr. Sabb.). In the unconventional society of such a community social distinctions would not be very closely drawn. We can understand how Laches might give his consent to the marriage of Davus the slave to the free-born girl Plangon.

The list of characters, in which the names are arranged in the usual way, according to the order in which the personae first enter the scene, reinforced by the hypothesis and the extant portions of the text, greatly assists our understanding of the plot. These are all typical stage names, familiar in the New Comedy. Laches and Myrrhina are the husband and wife of the play, Gorgias and Plangon the brother and sister, Pheidias is a young man's name; he must be the rich neighbor's son. His father has no part in the play. Sophrona is the name of the old nurse here as in the Epitrepontes, Eunuchus, and Phormio; she is the maid and confidante of Myrrhina. Geta, Davus, and Sangarius are all slave names. Davus is the slave of Laches. Geta, who shows himself quite unfamiliar with the affairs of the household of Laches and of the relations of Plangon with Pheidias, cannot be regarded as the slave of the latter. It is probable that he is not attached to either of the two families with which the plot is concerned, but is brought in as a πρόσωπον ποτατικόν, as is Davus in the Phormio. In this case Sangarius is the slave of Pheidias. This identification of the characters satisfies the conditions of the play, so far as we can make them out, and will be assumed to be correct. The absence of Plangon from the list of characters shows that she does not appear at all as a speaking person.

¹ In the Synephebi Menander referred to the heroes as malignant spirits, more ready to harm than to help; and that was the usual conception of the heroes in Attica. Zenobius 5. 60, who tells us this (v. also under Men. 459 K.), quotes a proverbial expression οὐκ εἰμὶ τούτων τῶν ἡρώων, adding αὐτῇ (i.e. ἡ παροιμία) τέτακται ἐπὶ τῶν βουλομένων εὖ ποιεῖν. It is noticeable that the proverb makes part of a trimeter and that the first person is used. The speaker is himself a hero and of the benevolent kind. The verse comes from such a speech as that of Lar in the Aulularia, who says ego Lar sum familiaris ex hac familia, and either from the original of the Aulularia or from the Hero. See p. 20 infra. In rendering Ἥρω by Lar it was not necessary for the Roman poet to transfer the explanation, for Lar was always a kindly spirit.

² See Löper, Ath. Mitt. XVII, p. 405.

It is noteworthy that no Chorus is mentioned in the list. Possibly the entertainment provided between the acts was of too informal a character to be dignified by the name "chorus." The mention, in one of the fragments, of the visit of a group of hunters from the city suggests that these visitors may have performed this function.

The story that underlies the plot is the familiar ἔρως καὶ διαφθορὰ παρθένου. Since we know the names of the actors in the story and their relations to each other, and are supplied with the leading motive — Davus' love for Plangon — we are able, from our general knowledge of the social conditions which Menander depicted and his manner of creating the complication and of solving it by the device of an ἀναγνώρισις, to reconstruct the story in outline.

Some eighteen years before the action begins (fr. O), Myrrhina, a young girl of good family, was wronged by a young man unknown to her. The occasion was doubtless some festival¹ that Myrrhina attended, at which she became separated from Sophrona her attendant. In due time she became the mother of twins, a boy and a girl. Her nurse, who alone shared the secret, exposed¹ the children, placing with them some tokens, among which was probably a ring or some other object² which had belonged to Myrrhina's lover. The children fall into the hands of a freedman of Laches, an old shepherd Tibeius. He has no knowledge of their parentage, but carefully preserves the tokens and rears Gorgias and Plangon as his own children. Meanwhile Myrrhina marries Laches, to whom she bears no children. Years pass, a famine afflicts the land, and Tibeius, in dire straits, has to borrow money from Laches in order to keep the children alive. When he dies, his foster-son, Gorgias, assumes responsibility for the debt and goes with his sister to the home of Laches to work it off. He serves as a shepherd, Plangon as a housemaid. At this time Gorgias and Plangon were about sixteen years old.

¹ It was on such occasions that a young man could most naturally have a private meeting with a well-bred Athenian girl. It was at a festival of Artemis that Pamphila met Charisius in the Epitrepontes and that Simaetha first saw

So it happens that the two children are servants in the household of their own mother, though nobody suspects the fact. They have been there about a year when the action of the play begins. In this interval a young neighbor of good family, Pheidias by name, sees Plangon and falls in love with her. Her lowly origin and her poverty forbade all thought of marriage between them; a dowerless girl, even if her station in life made her an equal, was not regarded by well-to-do parents as an eligible match for their son.³ The Delphis in Theocr. 2. 65, at a vigil of Ceres that Phaedra met Lyconides in Plaut. Aul. 36, in pervigilio that the girl in Men. Plocium (Aul. Gel. 2. 23. 15) was wronged, at the Dionysia that Alcesimarchus first saw Silenium in Plaut. Cist. 89 and the girl her lover in the unknown play Men. fr. 558 K. A festival is probable in Ter. Adelphi also, but is not expressly mentioned.

¹ This is probable, in spite of ἔδωκε in the hypothesis; for Tibeius has no knowledge of the children's origin, nor Myrrhina and Sophrona of their fate.

² So in the Epitrepontes and in Ter. Adelphi 346. It is the nurse Sophrona who probably exposed the child in the Epitrepontes, as it was a confidential slave in Plaut. Cist. 187, an old Corinthian woman in Ter. Heaut. 629.

³ Plangon in the Samia and Phaedra in Plaut. Aulularia, though well-born, are dowerless, and Phaedra's father finds it hard to credit the good faith of an offer of marriage with waiver of a marriage portion; cf. Aul. II. ii. So in Plaut. Trin. 690 Lesbonicus resents the proposal of Lysiteles to marry his sister without a dowry, as equivalent to a proposal of concubinage.

consequence is that Pheidias and Plangon are secretly united.¹ The time of her confinement is at hand.

At this point the action begins. Davus, the slave of Laches, confides to Geta the fact that he is in love with Plangon and that he has gained his master's consent to marry her, on condition of the approval of Gorgias. But for the past three months Laches has been absent abroad and the arrangement has not been carried out. The acute distress which Davus displays² in the opening scene is not due simply to disappointment of hope deferred; it reveals to us rather the fact that a crisis has arisen as regards Plangon. Davus has in some way³ surprised the secret of her impending trouble, and vehemently hopes for Laches' speedy return, that the marriage may be consummated at once and Plangon saved from disgrace. For he has resolved to take upon himself the responsibility for her condition.

How much of this is brought out in the prologue we can only surmise. But the speech of Ἥρως θεός, which followed the conversation between Davus and Geta, must have apprised the spectators of all the preliminary facts. The household god no doubt desires that the grave confusion which exists in the family of Laches, where due honors are paid to him,⁴ shall at length be brought to an end. Plangon's child is to be born this day,⁵ and to-day Laches is to

¹ It was not, apparently, at the hands of an unknown person that Plangon had suffered violence. Pheidias had seen Plangon and loved her. The serving maid was not protected as a daughter would have been.

² Cf. the distress of the slave in Men. Plocium when he discovers that his master's daughter has borne a child, as related by Aul. Gel. 2. 23. 15: timet, irascitur, suspiciatur, miseretur, dolet. The emotions of Davus are different because he is in love.

³ Possibly by seeing a midwife enter the house, as in Ter. And. III. vii (the same motive in both the Perinthia and the Andria of Menander), or possibly through the gossip of a fellow slave.

⁴ The intervention of Lar in Plaut. Aulularia is due to the piety of Phaedra: ea mihi cottidie aut ture aut vino aut aliqui semper supplicat: dat mihi coronas. eius honoris gratia, etc., 23 ff. It is probably for Myrrhina's sake that he intervenes in the Hero.

⁵ It is possible, of course, that the child was born before the action begins or that it was not born at all within the period covered by the action. But the view here presented seems preferable.

return from his journey. These two events will restore happiness to Myrrhina and their proper station in life to her children.

From this point we cannot follow the plot in detail. But the main outline of events is clear. A child is born to Plangon; Davus takes the blame upon himself and proposes to marry her. But this solution is rendered impossible, probably by Myrrhina's finding in Plangon's possession the tokens with which her own child had been exposed. With the help of Sophrona and a little inquiry she learns that Gorgias and Plangon are her own long-lost children. Her joy at this discovery, however, is mingled with bitterness and sorrow, for Plangon's disgrace becomes her own; and, besides, while it is more important than ever that the secret of her girlhood shall be kept from her husband, it will now be almost impossible to accomplish this. She must bear her grief alone (fr. 210). At this juncture Laches returns and learns what has happened in his absence. The fact is soon disclosed that the tokens by which Myrrhina had discovered her children also prove him to be their father. And finally Pheidias, Plangon's secret lover, when he finds that the obstacle to their marriage is removed, gladly takes her to wife. As for Davus, he probably receives his liberty as the reward of his unselfish love and high-minded devotion.

The plot seems to require the presence of only two houses in the scene, as in the other three plays of the Cairo manuscript. One of these is the house of Laches, the second is that of his young neighbor Pheidias.

ἩΡΩΣ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

[A1]

Ἄρρεν ἔτε θῆλύ θ' ἅμα τεκούσα παρθένος ἔδωκεν ἐπιτρόπῳ τρέφειν· εἰθ' ὕστερον ἔγχευε τὸν φθείραντα· ταῦτα δ' ὑπέθετο ὁ τρέφων πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀγνοῶν. θεράπων δέ τις [5] ἐνέπεισεν εἰς ἔρωτα τῆς νεάνιδος,

The page number ΚΘ shows that one play of 28 pages (ca. 980 lines) preceded the Hero in the codex.

The language of this metrical hypothesis betrays its late origin. The metrical hypotheses of Sulpicius Apollinaris to the plays of Terence also consist of twelve verses. Note that the past tenses are here used in the narrative, as in the metrical hypotheses to Soph. Oedipus Coloneus and Philoctetes; those prefixed to the plays of Aristophanes, Plautus, and Terence employ the present. See Leo, Plaut. Forsch. pp. 20 ff.

1. παρθένος: Myrrhina; her children are Gorgias and Plangon. — The fifth foot is unmetrical in the MS. (the line ends θῆλύ θ' ἅμα), and may have been so originally.

2. ἔδωκεν: in such circumstances the mothers of comedy usually expose their children, and Myrrhina probably did this, through Sophrona. — ἐπιτρόπῳ: overseer or steward, Tibeius, who passed as father of the twins, cf. v. 21.

3. ἔγχευε: for ἐγήματο τῷ φθείραντι. The act. is sometimes used of the woman in jest or in irony, to indicate the wife's superiority in wealth or rank to her husband, as Eur. Med. 606 μῶν γαμοῦσα καὶ προδοῦσά σε; fr. trag. adesp. 194 N. ἐγάμησεν Ἑλένη τὸν θεοῖς στυγούμενον. So the mid. is used of the husband, Anacr. fr. 82 Cr. κεῖνος οὐκ ἔγχευε, ἀλλ' ἐγήματο. Cf. Martial, 8. 12. 2, speaking of a rich woman, uxori nubere nolo meae, I will not be my wife's wife. — τὸν φθείραντα: Laches. — ταῦτα: τὰ τέκνα. — ὑπέθετο: for ὑπέθηκε, gave as a pledge for money borrowed, cf. vv. 28 ff. So in Ter. Heaut. 603 we are told of Antiphila: relicta huic arrabonist pro illo argento. The act. only is used in Attic Greek, the mid. meaning to take as security, Phrynichus ed. Lob., p. 467. The statement of the hypothesis is not accurate; bondage for debt was abolished at Athens by Solon.

4. ὁ τρέφων: inaccurate; it was the son who undertook with his sister to work off the debt, cf. vv. 28 ff. — ἀγνοῶν: i.e. that Laches was the father of the twins. — θεράπων: Davus.

5. νεάνιδος: Plangon.

ὁμόδουλον εἶναι διαλαβών. γείτων δέ τις προηδικήκει μετὰ βίας τὴν μείρακα.
 τὴν αἰτίαν ἐφ' ἑαυτὸν ὁ θεράπων στρέφειν ἐβούλετ'· οὐκ εἰδυῖα δ' ἡ μήτηρ ἄγαν 10 ἐδυσχέρανε. καταφανῶν δὲ γενομένων, εὔρεν μὲν ὁ γέρων τοὺς ἑαυτοῦ γνωρίσας,
 ὁ δ' ἡδικηκὼς ἔλαβε τὴν κόρην θέλων.

[10]

ΤΑ ΤΟΥ ΔΡΑΜΑΤΟΣ ΠΡΟΣΩΠΑ

| | | |
|----|--------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------|
| 15 | Γέτας Δᾶος Ἥρω ^ς θεός Μυρρίνη Φειδίας | Σωφρόνη Σαγγάριος Γοργίας Λάχης |
|----|--------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------|

6. διαλαβών: late for ὑπολαβών in the sense required here, supposing. But the statement is inexact.—γείτων: Pheidias.

9. οὐκ εἰδυῖα: i.e. that Davus was innocent of wrong toward Plangon.

10. ἐδυσχέρανε: cf. fr. 211.

11. γνωρίσας: hints at the usual device of γνωρίσματα, tokens attached to the person of an exposed child. See above, p. 7.

12. Similarly Moschion marries the daughter of Niceratus, also named Plangon, in the Samia.

13. τὰ πρόσωπα: arranged in this list, as is usual in the MSS. of Greek plays, in the order in which they first appear upon the scene.

ΗΡΩΣ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

SCENE: the Attic deme of Ptelea, before the houses of Laches and Pheidias

ACT I — PROLOGUE

SC. 1. GETA, DAVUS

ΓΕΤΑΣ

Κακόν τι, Δᾶέ, μοι δοκεῖς πεποηκέναι [20] παμμέγεθες, εἴτα προσδοκῶν ἀγωνιᾶν ας μυλῶνα στυγῶ καὶ πέδας· εὐδηλος εἶ.
 τί γὰρ σὺ κόπτεις τὴν κεφαλὴν οὕτω πυκνά;
 ὃ τί τὰς τρίχας τίλλεις ἐπιστάς; τί στένεις;

1. Geta and Davus are the names given to the two slaves in the first scene of Ter. Phormio. Davus is there the πρόσωπον προτατικόν. — Geta seizes upon the most obvious explanation of Davus's trouble — the expectation of punishment for wrong-doing. The accusation serves to elicit a denial of the charge and thus to bring out an avowal of the true situation. — πεποηκέναι: in Menander's time ο was regularly written for αι in this verb before ε-sounds, but in the imperial period the diphthongal spelling was revived. A scribe, therefore, is responsible for πεποίηκεν in S. 450, where a short syllable is required. In H. 34 ποιήσας and S. 355 ποιεῖ, αι is required. Sometimes ο is found before ο-sounds, contrary to the usage of the inscriptions of Menander's time, e.g. E. 302, P. 54, 187, where a long syllable would be admissible; but in P. 870 ποῶν the meter demands a short. See Kretschmar, De Men. reliquiis, p. 26.

2. παμμέγεθες: -μεγας and -μεγέθης existed side by side in composition with παν-, εὐ-, ισο-. The longer form, which is also the stronger, suits the tone of comic exaggeration. — προσδοκῶν: often of dread, as Soph. Phil. 784 καὶ τι προσδοκῶ νέον, I look for worse to come (Jebb), Alexis 288 K. προσδοκᾷ δὲ τι δεῖ, cf. Ter. Phor. 193 magnum . . . exspecto malum.

3. Verberas compedes, molae . . . haec pretia sunt ignaviae, as the slave Messenio says in Plaut. Men. 974. Cf. P. 157. — εὐδηλος εἶ: sc. πεποηκώς καὶ προσδοκῶν, etc. Cf. P. 286.

4 f. Similar signs of grief in E. 271, 674, 678.

5. ἐπιστάς: Davus frequently halts in his walk. — Menander does not avoid οἴμοι.

ΔΑΟΣ

ΓΕΤΑΣ

τοιούτ' ἔστιν, ὦ ποιηρὲ σύ.

[28]

εἴτ' οὐκ ἐχρήν, κερμάτιον εἰ συνηγμένον

[σοι τυγχάνει τι, τοῦτ' ἐμοὶ δοῦναι τέως,

[μὴ πλείον' ἔλκης ἐπὶ σεαυτὸν πράγματα;

10 [οὐ φῆς σύ γ'; εἰκότως συνάχθομαί γέ σοι.

[αἰεὶ γὰρ εἰ φθονερός].

ΔΑΟΣ

σὺ μὰ Δί' οὐκ οἶδ' ὅ τι

[30]

[ληρεῖς· κακῶ γὰρ ἐμπέπλεγμαι πράγματι.

[λύπη τε δεινῇ πάνυ διέφθαρμαι, Γέτα.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

[κάκιστ' ἀπόλοιο]—

ΔΑΟΣ

μὴ καταρῶ, πρὸς τῶν θεῶν,

15 [βέλτιστ', ἐρῶντι.]

ΓΕΤΑΣ

τί σὺ λέγεις; ἐρᾷς;

the middle caesura, with or without a pause in the sense; e.g., in this play, vv. 19, 34, 41. See White, Cl. Phil. IV, p. 156, and for tragedy, where the bisected trimeter is not uncommon, Goodell, ibid. I, p. 145 ff.

6. Geta interprets the groan as confirming his suspicion.

7. κερμάτιον: the slave's meager savings, which Geta slyly hints would best be left with him for safe keeping; cf. Ter. Phor. 37, 48f., apud me reliquom pauxillulum nummorum . . . quod ille (Geta) unciatim vix de demenso suo suom defrudans genium compersit miser.—A dactyl that overlaps the following foot (κερμάτιον) is almost always in Menander "contained in a quadrisyllabic word of which the accent corresponds with the ictus," White, p. 148. So παμμέγεθες in v. 2. But see on v. 19.

9. Cf. the proverb κακὰ ἔλκων ἐφ' αὐτὸν ὥστε καικίας (N.W. wind) νέφη, fr. trag. adesp. 75 N.

12. ἐμπέπλεγμαι: involved in, cf. Plut. Mor. 787 F πολιτεῖαν . . . πράγμασιν ἐμπεπλεγμένην.

13. Cf. Eur. Orest. 398 λύπη μάλιστά γ' ἡ διαφθείρουσά με.

14. Cf. Aristoph. Pac. 1288 κάκιστ' ἀπόλοιο, παιδάριον.—καταρῶ: ἄρ always in Attic; hence the article, often omitted, is required with θεῶν.

ΔΑΟΣ

ἐρῶ.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

ἵπλεον δυοῖν σοι ἰχοινίκων ὁ δεσπότης Ad. 444 K. [35]
παρέχει. πονηρόν, Δᾶ. ὑπερδαιπνεῖς ἴσως. [A2]

ΔΑΟΣ

πέπονθα τὴν ψυχὴν τι παιδίσκην ὁρῶν συντρεφομένην, ἄκακον, κατ' ἐμαυτόν, ὦ Γέτα.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

20 δούλη ἵστίν;

ΔΑΟΣ

οὕτως ἡσυχῇ, τρόπον τινά.
ποιμὴν γὰρ ἦν Τίβειος οἰκῶν ἐνθαδὶ [40]

16 f. A choenix of wheat (about a quart) was a day's portion for a man, Diog. Laert. 8. 18 ἡ γὰρ χοῖνιξ ἡμερησία τροφή. Herod. 7. 187 makes this ration the basis of his estimate of the supplies needed for the army of Xerxes. Geta again in v. 53 refers to this brutal theory, that the tender passion is the result of high living; cf. also fr. trag. adesp. 186 N. πλήρει γὰρ ὄγκῳ γαστρὸς αἰξεται Κύπρις, fr. com. adesp. 238 K. ἔρωτα λύει λιμός, ἀν δὲ μή, βρόχος, Eur. fr. 896 N., and Ter. Eun. 732 sine Cerere et Libero friget Venus.

17. ὑπερδαιπνεῖς: = ὑπερτροφῆς, Hesychnus, probably with reference to this passage.

18. πέπονθά . . . τι: my heart is dead within me. So often without a qualifying adj., cf. Plut. Mor. 1101 A διὸ πάσχειν τι βέλτιον εἶναι καὶ λυπεῖσθαι. — παιδίσκη: may be used of a girl of free birth, as Men. 102 K. Hence Geta's question in v. 20.

19. κατ' ἐμαυτόν: in my station, i.e. ὡσεὶ δούλην. Const. as pred. with συν-τρεφομένην.—The dactyl in the first foot forms an exception to the rule, see note on v. 7; cf. also E. 234, 255 (both proper names), 235, 3. 440.

20. οὕτως: of qualified assent, like οὕτως πως, sic fere, in this sense only, followed by the qualifying adverbs ἡσυχῇ slightly, τρόπον τινά in a fashion, both in apposition to οὕτως. Ye-es, in this way,—a little bit, after a fashion. Cf. Ter. Phor. 145, quid rei gerit? —sic tenuiter. For ἡσυχῇ in this meaning cf. the reference to Alexander in Plut. Vit. Alex. 4 τοῦ αὐχένος εἰς εὐνυμον ἡσυχῇ κεκλιμένον. Davus goes on to explain that, though she is not exactly a slave, she is in a slave's position.

21. Τίβειος: an ethnic slave name, Steph. Byz. s. Τίβειον· τόπος Φρυγίας . . . ἐκ τούτου καὶ Τιβέιους τοὺς δούλους καλοῦσι (Kock, C.A.F., I, p. 705), schol. Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 1. Menander uses the name elsewhere, e.g. in the Perinthia, Ox. Pap. VI, no. 855, and in frr. 231, 1075, and possibly 330 (ἀλλ οὐ Τιβέλου Headlam). — οἰκῶν: the legal Πτελέασι, γεγονὼς οἰκέτης νέος ὦν ποτε.

ἐγένετο τοῦτῳ δίδυμα ταῦτα παιδία, ὡς ἔλεγεν αὐτός, ἧ τε Πλαγγών, ἧς ἑρῶ,—

ΓΕΤΑΣ

25 νῦν μανθάνω.

ΔΑΟΣ

τὸ μειράκιόν θ', ὁ Γοργίας.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

ὁ τῶν προβατίων ἐνθάδ' ἐπιμελούμενος [45]
νυνὶ παρ' ἡμῖν;

ΔΑΟΣ

οὗτος. ὦν ἤδη γέρων
ὁ Τίβειος ὁ πατήρ εἰς τροφήν γε λαμβάνει τούτοις παρὰ τοῦ 'μοῦ δεσπότης μνᾶν, καὶ πάλιν—30 λιμὸς γὰρ ἦν — μνᾶν, εἴτ' ἀπέσκλη.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

τὴν τρίτην

ὡς οὐκ ἀπεδίδου τυχὸν ὁ δεσπότης ὁ σός; [50]

status of the emancipated slave was similar to that of the metic. The phrase Τίβειος ἐν Πτελέασι οἰκῶν would be the regular formula for designating a metic's residence. The citizen would be simply Πτελέας. The κύριος of a liberatus was his former master, in whose service he often remained, as did the old nurse in the Samia, cf. v. 22, and Tibeius here.

22. Ptelea, a deme of the tribe Oeneis. On its site see above, p. 5. This passage fixes the scene of the play, cf. also fr. Sabb., below, p. 21.

24. Plangon is a good Attic name for a free-born woman, v. Kirchner, Prosop. Att. It recurs in S. 458.

27. παρ' ἡμῖν: i.e. at Ptelea, equivalent to ἐνθαδὶ in v. 21.

28. λαμβάνει: i.e. δανείζεται.

30. ἀπέσκλη: rare, for ἀπεξηράνθη, schol. Aristoph. Vesp. 160; cf. Luc. Dial. mort. 27. 7 λιμῷ ὁ ἄθλιος ἐλέγετο ἀπεσκληκέναι. — τὴν τρίτην, etc.: Geta continues to play the rôle of wag.

31. οὐκ ἀπεδίδου: would not give, the negative impf. of "resistance to pressure," Gildersleeve, Syn. 217. — τυχόν: acc. abs., often used in post-classical Greek as adv., in place of the earlier ἵσως, τάχα, or τάχ' ἄν. First found in Xen. Anab. 6. 1. 20.

32. προσλαβών: λαβών (from Laches) πρὸς ταῖς δύο μναῖς.

ΔΑΟΣ

ἴσως. τελευτήσαντα δ' αὐτόν, προσλαβὼν ὁ Γοργίας τι κερμάτιον, ἔθαψε καὶ τὰ νόμιμα ποιήσας πρὸς ἡμᾶς ἐνθάδε 35 ἔλθων ἀγαγὼν τε τὴν ἀδελφὴν ἐπιμένει τὸ χρέος ἀπεργαζόμενος.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

ἡ Πλαγγὼν δέ τί;

[88]

ΔΑΟΣ

μετὰ τῆς ἐμῆς κεκτημένης ἐργάζεται ἔρια διακονεῖ τε.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

παιδίσκη;

ΔΑΟΣ

πάνυ —

Γέτα, καταγελάς;

ΓΕΤΑΣ

μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω.

34. τὰ νόμιμα: including the funeral feast, sacrifice, tombstone, etc. See I. von Müller, Gr. Privatalt., p. 219 ff.

35. The dactyl in the fifth foot is frequently so formed in Menander that the verse ends in a tetrasyllabic word υ υ υ υ.

36. ἀπεργαζόμενος: ἀποδιδὸς ἐξ ὧν ἐργάσατο, Suid. and Hesych., citing Isaeus. L. and S. fail to record this meaning. The noun is used in the law of Andania in prescribing the punishment of slaves fined for theft, Ditt. Syl.² 653. 77 ἀν δὲ μὴ ἐκτίνει παραχρῆμα, παραδόντω ὁ κύριος τὸν οἰκέταν τῷ ἀδικηθέντι εἰς ἀπεργασίαν, i.e. to work off the fine.

37. κεκτημένης: cf. schol. Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 1 ὡς ἐπίπαν Ἀττικοὶ ἐπὶ τῶν δεσποινῶν οὕτω κέχρηται τῷ 'κεκτημένη', σπανιώτερον δὲ τῷ 'δέσποινα'. The participial force is no longer felt. The usage goes back to the fifth century, but is especially common in the New Comedy. δέσποινα is used in H. fr. 209 and in E., fr. M, p. 94.

38. παιδίσκη: sc. τις. Spoken in a tone of mock sympathy, a girl does such things?

39. Geta's amusement is caused by the tragic seriousness with which Davus recites the trivial hardships of Plangon. Davus has not yet disclosed the true reason for his present distress; see p. 8, above.

ΔΑΟΣ

πάνυ, Γέτα,

40 ἐλευθέριος καὶ κοσμία.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

τί οὖν σύ; τί

πράττεῖς ὑπὲρ σαντοῦ;

ΔΑΟΣ

λάθρα μὲν, Ἡράκλεις,

[60]

οὐδ' ἐγκεχείρηκ', ἀλλὰ τῷ μῶ δεσπότη εἶρηχ', ὑπέσχηταί τ' ἐμοὶ σὺννοικεῖν αὐτήν, διαλεχθεὶς πρὸς τὸν ἀδελφόν.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

πῶς ἄρ' εἴ

45 πενθηρός;

ΔΑΟΣ

ἀποδημεῖ τρίμηνος ἐπὶ τινα

πράξιν ἰδίαν εἰς Λημόνον. ἦκοι γ' ἀσφαλῶς.

[65]

41. Ἡράκλεις: the most common oath in comedy. It does not occur in tragedy.

43. Not a legal marriage, since one party to it was a slave, but contubernium. συννοικίζειν, and, of the parties themselves, συννοικεῖν, may be used of either relationship.

44. πῶς ἄρα: how comes it, then, that, like πῶς δῆτα, cf. Hom. Od. 3. 22 πῶς τ' ἄρ' ἔω; Soph. Phil. 690 πῶς ἄρα . . . βιοτὰν κατέσχεν;

45. πενθηρός: used by Anaxilas 34 K. of a garment worn in mourning. — The supplements from here on are very uncertain, but may suggest the tenor of the conversation. — ἀποδημεῖ: i.e. Laches, whose return will bring matters to a crisis. Gorgias is at home, v. 27. — τρίμηνος: the length of Laches' absence helps to explain the present despair of Davus. If he does not speedily return, Davus' plan on behalf of Plangon will be frustrated; see p. 8 above. On the adj. cf. Diphilus 43. 18 K. εἰσπέπλευκεν . . . τριταῖος. — ἐπὶ τινα πράξιν: cf. Men. Georg., fr. Gen., v. 6 ἀπόδημον εἰς Κόρινθον ἐπὶ πράξιν τινα, and Colax, Ox. Pap. III, no. 409, v. 4 ἐπὶ πράξεις τινάς, Plat. Gorg. 484 D εἰς τινα ἰδίαν ἢ πολιτικὴν πράξιν. Such business trips furnished a common motive in comedy, see Knapp, Cl. Phil. II, pp. 197 ff.

46. An Attic colony was established at Lemnos and many Athenian citizens had business interests there. So Chremes in Ter. Phor. 66. Diniarchus in Plaut. Truc. 91 is there on public business. — ἦκοι: return, cf. E. 245, Eur. Bacch. 968 φερόμενος ἦξαι. Generally with πάλιν.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

ἐχόμεθα τῆς αὐτῆς ἐπιθυμίας· πάλιν σφύζοιτο.

ΔΑΟΣ

χρηστὸν τοῖς θεοῖς θύσαι· τάχ' ἂν ὄνησις εἴη.

ΓΕΤΑΣ

πολὺν πρεπόντως καὶ καλῶς 50 φρονεῖς. ἐγὼ γὰρ καὶ πένης ὦν σφόδρ' ἂν ἐρῶν θύσαιμ' ἄλις, νῆ τὸν Πόσειδῶ, τοῖς θεοῖς. [70] ὦ ξυλοφόρ', εἰς θυσίαν σὺ δεῦρο φέρε ταχὺ πλήθος ξύλων.

ΔΑΟΣ

οὐπόποτ' ἡράσθης, Γέτα; Fr. 345

ΓΕΤΑΣ

οὐ γὰρ ἐνεπλήσθην.

47. ἐχόμεθα: cling to, cf. Thuc. 1. 140 τῆς μὲν γνώμης, ὡς Ἀθηναῖοι, αἰετὶ τῆς αὐτῆς ἐχομαι, Plat. Legg. 893B ἐχόμενοι δὲ ὡς τινος ἀσφαλοῦς πείσματος. — πάλιν: = οὕτω, cf. Plat. Theaet. 142C ἀπὸ πάλιν.

48. σφύζοιτο: often implies motion, when the goal is expressed in the predicate (here πάλιν), as in Soph. Trach. 610 εἰ ποτ' αὐτὸν ἐς δόμους ἴδοιμι σωθέντα, Xen. Anab. 6. 6. 18 σώξοισθέ τε ἀσφαλῶς ὅποι θέλει ἕκαστος, cf. Thuc. 7. 70. 7 περὶ τῆς ἐς τὴν πατρίδα σωτηρίας. — χρηστὸν: sc. ἐστι, = βέλτιστον. Cf. Aristoph. Eccl. 219 εἰ ποῦ τι χρηστῶς εἶχεν. The word is rather formal here, it were an excellent plan.

49. Cf. Eur. Bacch. 473 ἔχει δ' ὄνησιν τοῖσι θύουσιν τίνα; and P. 705.

50. ἐρῶν: if I were in love.

51. ἄλις: implying abundance, like δαψιλῶς. So Od. 16. 231 χρυσὸν τε ἄλις, and Eur. Med. 1107 ἄλις βλοτὸν θ' ἡῆρον, and ἐξαρκούντως in Aristoph. Ran. 377.

52. Geta pretends to call a wood-carrier from among the spectators, in order that the idea of Davus may be put into effect at once. When a sacrifice is actually to be performed in sight of the spectators some one is usually asked to fetch firewood from within the house, as in Aristoph. Thesm. 726 ff. ἐκφέρειν τῶν ξύλων, and Men. Perinthia, Ox. Pap. VI, no. 855, v. 8 — in both cases a human sacrifice. For the sacrifice in Aristoph. Pac. 1023 ff. the fagots are already at hand. Addresses to the spectators are not uncommon in the New Comedy, see on P. 51.

53 f. If the quotation belongs in this immediate context, the question of Davus must have been suggested by the light-hearted way in which Geta treats his passion (cf. ἐρῶν). “Can it be,

OTHER FRAGMENTS

ZENOBIOUS 5. 60

ΗΡΩΣ ΘΕΟΣ

οὐκ εἰμὶ τούτων τῶν ὠρώων κακῶν

FR. 209

ΔΑΟΣ

δέσποιν', Ἐρωτος οὐδὲν ἰσχύει πλέον, οὐδ' αὐτὸς ὁ κρατῶν τῶν ἐν οὐρανῷ θεῶν
Ζεὺς, ἀλλ' ἐκείνῳ πάντ' ἀναγκασθεὶς ποιεῖ.

FR. 210

ΔΑΟΣ

ἐχρῆν γὰρ εἶναι τὸ καλὸν εὐγενέστατον, τοῦλεύθερον δὲ πανταχοῦ φρονεῖν μέγα.

FR. 211

MTPPINH

ὥς οἰκτρόν, ἣ τοιαῦτα δυστυχῶ μόνη, ἃ μὴδὲ πιθανὰς τὰς ὑπερβολὰς ἔχει.

Geta, that you never were in love? "No, for I never had a full belly." The οὐ in the answer carries with it the πώποτε of the question. On the sentiment cf. v. 17. The love-sick reaper in Theocr. 10. 7 similarly asks his mocking companion οὐδαμὰ τοι συνέβα ποθέσαι τὰ τῶν ἀπεινῶν;

Zen. 5.60. For the proverb quoted by Zenobius, with a reference to Menander (459 K.), see above, p. 5, note. Cf. the prologue of Elenchus (Men. 545 K.), which probably began Ἐλεγχέος εἰμ' ἐγώ, ὁ φίλος Ἀληθεία τε καὶ Παρρησία.

FR. 209. Davus seems to be pleading the cause of Plangon before Myrrhina. — πάντα: anything and everything, cf. Soph. O.C. 761 ὃ πάντα τολμῶν. The notorious weakness of Zeus furnishes a standing excuse for erring lovers both in tragedy and in comedy, cf. S. 418 ff.

FR. 210. εὐγενέστατον: the supreme quality of noble birth is τὸ καλόν. No-blesse oblige. The words are those of a slave, see Geffken, Stud. z. Men., p. 17.

FR. 211. οἰκτρόν: sc. ἐστι. — ἣ: that I, cf. Men. 100 K. γέλοιον, ὅς . . . σιωπᾶς. Probably the words of Myrrhina after her discovery that Gorgias and Plangon are her children and that Plangon is in trouble, cf. ἐδυσχέρανε of the πεφαρμάκευσαι, γλυκύτατ', ἀναλυθείς μόλις.

FR. 213

FR. SABBAITICUM

ΓΟΡΓΙΑΣ

νυνὶ δὲ τοῖς ἐξ ἄστεως κυνηγέταις ἤκουσι περιηγήσομαι τὰς ἀχράδας.

PAPYRUS FR. O

SOPHRONA, MYRRHINA, LACHES (?)

ΣΟΦΡΟΝΗ

ἔτη ᾧ σὲ ὀκτὼ καὶ δέκ'.

MTPPINH

οὐ μὲν οὖν σαφῶς οἶσθας σὺ τοῦτ', ἔστω δὲ τῷδ' αὐτῷ λέγειν ὅπως τὸ πρᾶγμα γίγνεται.

O¹

— ιος ὧν οὐ πῶς — — —

[Lacuna of ca. 31 vv.]

PHEIDIAS, MYRRHINA

ΦΕΙΔΙΑΣ

ταύτης ἔρως γε, νῆ Δί', ὦ γύναι, μ' ἔτι.
ἄπιστος οὐστ' ἔστηκας;

O²

hypothesis and see p. 4 above. All this had to be kept secret from Laches (μύρη).

FR. 213. These words may be addressed by Sangarius to his master Pheidias. — ἀναλυθείς: a medical term, purged. The figure in πεφαρμάκευσαι is of a love potion. You are under the spell of love again, though scarce purged of the malady. The gloss recurs in the Berlin Photius.

FR. SABB. Quoted in the Lexicon Sabbaiticum (St. Petersburg, 1892), p. 4. Gorgias seems to be speaking.

Pap. fr. O. This seems to be a portion of a conversation from the last act

ΜΤΡΡΙΝΗ

οἶα γὰρ λέγεις·

ἄυτὴν γαμεῖς;

ΦΕΙΔΙΑΣ

γῆμαι δέδοκταί μοι πάλαι.

ἤμῖν δὲ πίπτει, νῆ Δί', εὖ γ', ὦ Μυρρίνη·

— — — — — τὸν ποιμέν', ὃς βληχώμενον

FR. 212

χοῦς κεκραμένου

οἴνου· λαβὼν ἔκπιθι τοῦτον.

FR. 214

εὖ ἴσθι, καὶ γὰρ τοῦτο συγχωρήσομαι.

FR. 215

τῶν ἑδὲ παιδισκῶν τινι

δούς.

FR. 216

ὦ δυστυχής, εἰ μὴ βαδιεῖ.

of the play, in which it is disclosed that the man at whose hands Myrrhina had suffered violence eighteen years ago is none other than Laches himself. In this case the third person present would be Laches.

The speakers on the verso seem to be Pheidias and Myrrhina. Pheidias avows his constancy to Plangon and his purpose to marry her, now that the obstacles of her supposed humble birth and poverty are removed.

ΕΠΙΤΡΕΠΟΝΤΕΣ

THE EPITREPONTES

Fourteen of the thirty-two pages of the Cairo papyrus belong to a comedy which was readily recognized by M. Lefebvre as the Epitrepontes of Menander, through the recurrence of quotations in the text. The list of characters, the hypothesis, and the initial scenes of exposition are lost, as well as considerable portions from the middle of the play; but so much remains that we are able in the main to identify the characters, to determine their relations to each other and the situation in which each one finds himself, and to follow the outlines of the plot from the beginning to the end. We miss, of course, many passages of Menander's inimitable dialogue and monologue, and can only guess at several important details of the technique of complication and dénouement; but, thanks to the poet's skill in weaving the strands of the plot into the texture of the whole play, the extant portions contain a sufficient number of allusions to the lost scenes to enable us to gain a fair understanding of the whole.

The title is not in any sense descriptive of the play as a whole, but is derived from a particular scene which the poet elaborated apparently with especial satisfaction. The "arbitrants" are two slaves, Davus and Syrisus, who chance to meet each other and become engaged in a violent dispute. It appears that Davus, a shepherd (v. 39), had found an exposed infant a month before, and trinkets, ἀναγνώσματα, that its unknown mother had caused to be placed with it. The day following his discovery he had met Syrisus, a charcoal burner (v. 40), to whom he had related the finding of the child, but had not mentioned the trinkets. The child was given over to Syrisus, at his own request, to rear as his own. After a time Syrisus learned about the trinkets and felt that Davus had defrauded him by retaining them. So when they meet on the present occasion Syrisus demands them as rightfully his property. Davus repudiates the claim. A proposal is made to submit the matter to arbitration. Like the two herdsmen in Theocritus (5.64) they call upon the first man they see to adjudge their dispute. First one and then the other pleads his cause, as if disputants before an Athenian judge. The judge decides that the trinkets go with the child, and that, since Davus had attempted to defraud it of its property, he had forfeited his claim to both the child and the trinkets.

By this device the trinkets, by means of which the child's parents are to be discovered, are brought into the possession of Syriacus. His presence on the scene at this time also naturally brings him into relation with Onesimus, the slave of the child's father.¹ While Syriacus and his wife are examining the contents of the wallet, Onesimus, who happens to be near, recognizes a ring that his master Charisius had lost ten months before under suspicious circumstances. Now Onesimus has a passion for knowing everything (see fr. 850, p. 118) that pertains to his master. His interest in ferreting out the history of this ring leads at first to the discovery that complicates still more his master's situation, and later to the disclosure that brings happiness to his master and mistress. The arbitration scene is thus of capital significance in preparing the way for all that is to follow. Though the two disputants are of little importance in the sequel (Davus disappears from view entirely), Menander showed the true poet's instinct in naming his comedy from the distinctive prelude. The scene was justly celebrated in antiquity.²

The leading persons in the drama and their traits are readily discerned. A preliminary survey of these chief characters will assist us in our study of the plot.

Davus is a rustic whose first instinct is to look well to his own rights, but withal so stupid as not at first to see the danger of committing his case, with its moral implications, into the hands of an impartial arbitrator. His character as a sullen, unenlightened bumpkin is fully revealed in the moment of his defeat. His rôle in the play is similar to that of a πρόσωπον προτακτόν, in that he has no connection with any of the chief actors and that he disappears after the arbitration scene. But as the original possessor of the infant and the present possessor of the γνωρίσματα he assumes for the moment an important position. And if, as seems probable, he participated in the exposition scene at the beginning of the play, the poet, by making the foil to Onesimus in that scene one of the leading characters in the arbitration scene that followed, not only avoided the rather mechanical device of a πρόσωπον προτακτικόν, which he seems to have employed but rarely (Geta in the Hero is the only known instance in Menander), but also through him knit the prologue closely to the second act. A-411

¹ The fact that the arbitrator is the child's own grandfather is of no importance for the plot; but it is a neat instance of comic irony to cause the disagreeable Smicrines to assist in this way at his own discomfiture.

² See the references in Kock, C.A.F., III, p. 50.

Syriscus is in the service of Chaerestratus, who owns one of the houses represented on the scene. This connection is serviceable only in furnishing a plausible motive for his meeting with Davus in this place, and in bringing the trinkets and the baby to the scene of action. Although Syriscus is of little consequence in the plot after the baby and the ring have for the moment passed into the sphere of influence of the other actors, the poet contrives that he shall remain as long as necessary by delaying the arrival of Chaerestratus, to whom Syriscus is to make his monthly settlement (v. 163). This errand is probably not accomplished within the time of action of the play; in that case Syriscus disappears from view after v. 246. The personal qualities of Syriscus are adequately sketched by the poet. He is a straightforward and honest sort of man. He took the child without counting the cost of its maintenance as Davus had done. He has the child's interests in view when he lays claim to the trinkets, but we also feel that he has not lost sight of their possible intrinsic value. A plausible talker, he is clearly proud of his gift of speech. The patronizing air with which he appeals to precedents in tragedy (vv. 108 ff.) is amusing. He is also a cheerful litigant. An arbitration is an opportunity to display his skill in argument, and he is ready to arbitrate every question against all comers, naïvely confident of the outcome (v. 201).

Onesimus is the slave of Charisius, his young master (v. 176). His importance in the plot is thereby determined, but the direction which his activity takes depends upon his personal characteristics. They are, in the main, an insatiable curiosity (v. 170, fr. 850, p. 118) and an irresistible tendency to meddle in other people's affairs (vv. 211, 356). His loyalty to his master (fr. 581, p. 99; v. 772) relieves his meddlesomeness of the motive of malice.¹ He does not intend to make mischief, and when mischief results he is sorry. But, after all, his regret is caused chiefly by his fear of the consequences to himself (vv. 205, 356). It was through his curiosity that he discovered the secret of his mistress. By thoughtlessly revealing this to Charisius he destroys the happiness of the household. He is not so much concerned to right this wrong as to save his skin (vv. 212, 686). Though he is not without sympathy for his mistress (v. 350), he is afraid of a reconciliation between her and Charisius, lest he, the cause of the trouble, shall suffer for his tattling (v. 208). He loves intrigue (v. 250 ff.), but lacks the courage and the brains to frame up a plot and carry it through. Hence his dependence upon Habrotonon, on whose adroitness is staked all his hope of success. And yet he cannot rid himself of suspicion of her (v. 323). When success finally crowns her efforts, his boldness and self-confidence are restored. Toward Smicrines, whom he has feared so long as the outcome was in doubt (v. 363), he now becomes insolent (vv. 866 ff.). In short, in the character of Onesimus we have a notable creation of the poet. Unlike the depraved, cunning, complaisant, and wholly selfish slave with which Plautus and Terence have made us familiar, we have in him a natural person of ordinarily decent instincts and of ordinary weaknesses, whose good and bad qualities, both of the every-day sort, are brought out logically and naturally in situations that are never strained or overwrought. Onesimus is a person to be scolded and then forgiven — a thoroughly life-like character.

The character of Smicrines, the father of Pamphila and father-in-law of Charisius, is disclosed by his name, which in the New Comedy and in the literature based upon it (see Kock, C.A.F. III, pp. 25, 37, 50) stands for an old man δύστροπος καὶ δύσκολος by disposition (Aleichr. Ep. 3. 7 Sch.). Menander gave the name to the leading person in his Dyscolus, probably the original of Plautus' Aulularia.² In the Epitrepontes, as in the Dyscolus, Smicrines is not only a mean, grouchy, and disagreeable person; he is also a miser, φιλάργυρος. The two traits, meanness and miserliness, naturally go together. Menedemus, the self-tormenter in Terence's Heauton, is described (v. 526) as pater avidus misere atque aridus (cf. Plaut. Aul. 297, of Euclio, pumex non aequus aridus atque hic est senex). The σμικρόλογος ἀνὴρ is selfish as well as petty. We are told (schol. ad Hom. Od. 7. 225) that Smicrines in the Epitrepontes is like Odysseus when he expresses his longing for "possessions and household," προτάσσει τῶν φιλάτων τὴν κτῆσιν. The reference is to Smicrines' willingness to sacrifice his daughter's happiness to a merely pecuniary consideration, the recovery of her dowry. This end can be attained only by her leaving her husband, and when she refuses, Smicrines plans to take her home by force. The gibes of Onesimus at the old man's mean (χαλεπός, v. 867) and calculating (λογιστικός, v. 869) disposition and at his eagerness to get back the dowry (v. 867, cf. v. 853) leave no room for doubt that from his first appearance in the first act Smicrines had harped upon the extravagance of his son-in-law, and upon his own fear, not of the moral downfall of the young man, but of the dissipation of the marriage portion. His surly nature is seen even in the arbitration scene. Nobody likes him, and his utter discomfiture in the last act stirs no feeling of sympathy for him.

¹ The πρεπύρος of Theophrastus Char. 13 speaks and acts μετ' εὐνοίας.

² Geffken, Stud. zu Men., pp. 1 ff. The miserly Smicrines to whom Choricus refers in Apol. mim., ed. Graux, Rev. de Phil. 1877, p. 288, is the character in the Dyscolus.

It may no longer be regarded as doubtful that Chaerestratus, whom Syrus in v. 190 speaks of as his master, has a speaking rôle in the play. The name is restored with certainty in v. 770, where he is addressed as present. He was apparently a minor rôle, but he appeared in at least two scenes, as will be seen below. Is he the father of Charisius, as Robert and van Leeuwen assume, or simply a friend, as Legrand and Croiset believe? It has seemed to those who support the latter view that if Chaerestratus is the father, his slave Syrus should have recognized in Onesimus a fellow slave (v. 174). But Syrus is employed as a charcoal burner in the forest, whence he comes once a month to the village to pay his dues, while Onesimus, who is attached to the person of his young master, Charisius, is a member of another household. It is not strange that they do not know one another. It is true that Syrus and Onesimus stay at the same house, which belongs to Chaerestratus (v. 194), but this house, as we shall see, is not the domicile of Chaerestratus, who lives in the city. The conditions are better satisfied if Chaerestratus is the father of Charisius. Onesimus constantly refers to Charisius as τρόφιμος, erilis filius. In vv. 770 ff. he pleads with Chaerestratus to reward Habrotonon; it would naturally be the father of Charisius who would be expected to give the money with which she should buy her freedom. The glimpses which we have of his rôle in the play suggest the indulgent father, a proper foil to Smigrines.

Her (no) ... (The music girl Habrotonon¹ is one of Menander's most attractive characters. In her we see, not one of the depraved and heartless courtesans of the New Comedy, but a still unperverted slave girl, who less than a year before was innocent of all thought of wrong (v. 261). Her owner has now driven her to a life of shame, and though her native delicacy has suffered by the associations into which she has been thrown, a kind fortune has kept her from degradation.² Her heart is now set on winning her freedom (v. 324), and with this end in view she employs all her powers of cunning and persuasion, so that in the end it can be said that she is chiefly responsible for the happy outcome (v. 774). Though she is willing to deceive Charisius in order to learn the truth, she declines, on the basis of a mere suspicion, to involve the honor of the girl whose guilty secret she may betray by a premature step (vv. 283 ff.). For Charisius she is heartily sorry (v. 220). Toward the helpless baby her heart goes out in genuine tenderness (vv. 249, 638). Her first instinct is to save the child from a slavery to which it was not born; the reward which may possibly be hers if she finds its parents comes to her mind as a secondary consideration. All in all, Habrotonon stands out as one of the few genuine women of the better sort portrayed in Greek comedy.

Charisius is portrayed as a young man of high principles and of exemplary life (vv. 693 ff.), except for his lapse from virtue the year before — an episode which he seems strangely to have forgotten until he is confronted by the evidence of his error in the person of his child. He has rather prided himself hitherto upon his blameless character. His superior bearing has made him offensive to his mean father-in-law, who calls him "that lofty fellow" (v. 528). When he discovers the secret of his young wife, whose innocence of intentional wrong he knows, he finds it impossible to live with her longer. At this point Menander differentiates Charisius from the ordinary run of young men in comedy. Charisius adopts the usual course, it is true, of resorting to wine and women. He summons a number of boon companions, with whom he spends his days and nights in riotous living. He engages the company of an expensive music-girl. His goings-on are soon the talk of the community. But this proves to be the very object which he has in view — wide-spread gossip. His is no moral breakdown. His distress is genuine, as his love of Pamphila is sincere. He is not trying to drown his sorrow in wine, nor γυναῖκα γυναῖκα ἐξελαίνειν, but rather to gain such notoriety for the extravagance of his life that his avaricious father-in-law will be eager to have his daughter take the step that will dissolve the union and rescue the imperiled dowry. But why does Charisius, with his severe standards of conduct, find it necessary to embark upon such a course? In the first place because of his love and respect for his wife; he would spare her, if possible, the shame of a public repudiation. He prefers to give her cause for divorcing him rather than to expose her before the world. In the second place, he has no doubt given her his word not to reveal her secret, as Pamphilus in the Hecyra of Terence in a similar situation promised Philumena's mother:¹ pollicitus sum et servare in eo certumst quod dixi fidem (v. 402). But, since it seems to him impossible in the future to live with her as his wife, he lays his plans to bring about a separation in another way. Pamphila, he knows, will cling to him, will accept any humiliation rather than leave him. He therefore depends upon the avarice of Smicrines to force her to this course. In the end, though his pride is crushed by the humiliating disclosure of his own greater sin, his generous consideration of his wife in this respect is unexpectedly rewarded by their reconciliation.

¹ It is a class-name. No decent Athenian would name his daughter Habrotonon.

² Her relations with Charisius, of only two days' duration, have been pure (v. 228). Menander may have made it clear somewhere that this is the first time her owner has made such a disposition of her (cf. v. 848).

¹ Pamphilus reports her entreaty (vv. 387 ff.): "te obsecramus ambae, si ius, si fas est, uti advorsa eius per te tecta tacitaque apud omnis sient." So Charisius probably reported somewhere his promise to Pamphila.

Like Philumena in the Hecyra and Plangon in the Hero, Pamphila, the wife of Charisius, seems to have had no speaking part in the play. And yet her character stands out clearly. The innocent victim of a cruel outrage, her happiness seemed assured by marriage to a man whom she fondly loved and who loved her in turn, and fortune at first favored her in that her husband was absent from home when the child of her shame was born. Then the meddling slave discovered and betrayed her secret. She tries to win her husband back by patiently enduring his apparent unfaithfulness. She stubbornly resists her father's demand that she leave him and save the dowry. So sordid a motive made no appeal to her. The keynote to her character is found in her noble answer to her father, which filled Charisius with shame and remorse when he overheard it: "I came to him the partner of his life; in truth I cannot now consent myself to flee the sorrow that has come."

Sophrona is a useful but not an important character. As the confidential maid of Pamphila, who had accompanied her at the Tauropolia and had assisted at the birth and exposure of the child, she is the link between the past and the present. She is therefore essential to the discovery by Habrotonon that Pamphila was the victim of the violence of Charisius the year before, and now is the mother of his child. (The part of the Cook is almost entirely lost from our present text. There is evidence of his participation in only one scene (vv. 393 ff.), though it is extremely probable that he appeared in a later scene also. The cook's rôle in the Middle and New Comedy, so far as we may judge from the fragments and from Plautus, was always a subordinate one. His presence merely afforded a diversion. We have the testimony of Athenaeus (659 B) that in the Epitrepontes, as in most plays, the cook was introduced as a fun-maker, σκώπτικός. The reference can hardly be to the short scene, of probably less than thirty lines, in the third act, where some one seems to berate the cook for his tardiness in keeping his engagement.¹ The object of the scene seems rather to be so to enrage

¹ Some have supposed that the Cook was one of the interlocutors in the prologue, but this can hardly have been the case. To judge by the general

Smicrines, who witnesses the interview, by the ocular demonstration of the extravagance of his son-in-law's course of life, that he will be more disposed than ever to bring about a separation. According to this view the scene of the jesting cook to which Athenaeus alludes was reserved for the early part of the fourth act. The three extant quotations are to be assigned to this scene. In it the cook comes out of the house and gives an amusing account of the confusion that reigns within.

Between the second and the third acts (after v. 201) the papyrus indicates by the word $\chi\omicron\rho\omicron\upsilon$ a performance by a chorus. The personnel of this chorus is indicated a few lines before (v. 195), where we are told that the guests are arriving at the house in which Charisius is about to give a banquet. It is probably these guests who annoy Habrotonon when she is about to leave the house (v. 213). Later in the play, if the St. Petersburg parchment fragment is rightly assigned to the Epitrepontes, the chorus is further designated as a crowd of drunken youth, and $\chi\omicron\rho\omicron\upsilon$ is written after the third act. It is probable that the chorus gave performances of singing and dancing after the second, third, and fourth acts, withdrawing into the house at the conclusion of each performance. Its members take no part in the dialogue or in the action.

The view that is here advanced as to the characters and the motives which actuate them is derived chiefly from the Cairo papyrus. But one element in the plot, and that the most striking one, — the chivalrous nature of the conduct of Charisius toward his wife and the real reason of his present apparently dissipated life, — is directly suggested, not by the papyrus fragments, but by an interesting parchment fragment of Menander which the present editor characteristics of the type, he would have been a very unsuitable person to elicit from Onesimus a recital of the situation in the household of Charisius. The cook, wherever he appears, dominates the scene with his own professional concerns, except in subordinate scenes in which his person is of minor interest. He has curiosity, indeed, but only about the details of the entertainment for which he is to cater, never about a purely domestic situation. In Plautus the cook never appears in the exposition scenes. It is better therefore to infer from v. 165 that the dramatic motive for the appearance of Onesimus in the prologue was the need of summoning a cook from the city, and that the cook was very tardy in arriving.

believes to belong to the Epitrepontes and has incorporated in the text (pp. 94 ff.). An account of this fragment must be given to justify the interpretation here adopted.¹

In the year 1855 a Russian palaeographer and collector, Bishop Porfiri Uspenski, found somewhere in the Orient three strips of parchment covered with Greek writing that had once been used in the binding of a book. They were shown in 1862 to Tischendorf, who copied the recto of two of them and sent copies to Cobet, who recognized in the writing verses of Menander. On the death of the Bishop the strips were deposited in the Imperial Public Library of St. Petersburg, where they lay unnoticed until 1891, when Jernstedt published the writing on their verso side and republished that on the recto. It has since been shown that both sides of one of the strips contain lines from Menander's Phasma and that the third strip is from his Canephorus. As to the interpretation and assignment of the recto of the strip in which we are at present interested (2a, p. 94 below) there has been much dispute, although Cobet's judgment that the verses are Menander's has found general acceptance. The verso, however, which Jernstedt published, seemed to van Leeuwen in his second edition of the Cairo Menander to contain verses from the Epitrepontes, and he printed it as a portion of the first act. It is highly probable that if the verso contains verses from this play the recto does also.

Six different persons are indicated in this fragment. First of all there is the speaker of vv. 1-15, 19 f., and 24 b ff., and then the person whom he is denouncing. The latter is wasting money in drink and on a music-girl; he is living apart from his wife, who brought him a large dowry. The description fits Charisius, who is mentioned by name in v. 32. The ψάλτρια would be Habrotonon. The speaker would be Smicrines, whose mean and calculating disposition is accurately portrayed throughout, and especially in the allusions to the dowry and in the calculation of the other's extravagance. In v. 17 he is referred to as the father of a certain woman, and in v. 26 he himself alludes to his daughter, whom he is about to see in order to take measures against the offending person. This daughter would be the neglected wife Pamphila. In v. 16 another person is addressed as Chaerestratus.¹ It is he who participates in the following dialogue. We see in v. 31 that he is the owner of one of the houses in the scene, precisely as is Chaerestratus in the Epitrepontes. He is also concerned in protecting Charisius against his denouncer. The fifth person accompanies Chaerestratus when he enters and when he departs to see Charisius. The familiarity with which he addresses Chaerestratus suggests the slave, and in vv. 36 ff., after the choral interlude, a slave avows his loyalty to his master. The character fits Onesimus. Lastly, the chorus of drunken youth (vv. 33 ff.) is consistent with the crowd of banqueters which is gathering as guests of Charisius in v. 195. All these seven characters coincide perfectly with the corresponding characters in the Epitrepontes, both as to the traits which distinguish them, so far as they are revealed in the parchment, and as to the situations in which they are placed with reference to each other; and the two proper names that are mentioned also coincide. The correspondences are striking and seem to be too numerous to be put aside as mere coincidences.

¹ For a full discussion of the plot, with reference to the parchment, see Am. Jour. Phil. xxix (1908), pp. 410 ff.; and, with reference to the text, ibid. xxx (1909), pp. 25 ff.

If then the St. Petersburg parchment contains portions of the Epitrepontes, from what part of the play does it come? It cannot be from the first act, for in the middle of the second act (v. 161) Chaerestratus has not arrived, and the chorus of drunken youth, if they were the guests of Charisius, are spoken of in v. 196 as arriving or about to arrive. The state of rage in which we find Smicrines points rather to the end of the third act, after he has heard in the city further details about the conduct of Charisius. Onesimus expressly says of him in v. 361 that he is in a very agitated state of mind.

Among the papyrus fragments which M. Lefebvre found are two shreds, R and M, which contain meager portions from the beginnings and ends of verses. R is certainly from the Epitrepontes, for it contains part of a certified quotation. In this edition it has been placed near the beginning of the fourth act.¹ Smicrines must have appeared early in the fourth act, and in a state of mind similar to that in which we find him at the end of the third act. He comes from his interview with Pamphila, in which she absolutely refused to obey his command to leave her husband and demand the return of the dowry. When he takes his leave, it is with the determination to return and carry Pamphila home by force (cf. τὸ ἄρπασμα, v. 870). The case of M is less certain. A number of isolated words strongly suggest situations in the Epitrepontes, but the remains are too meager alone to constitute proof of identity. But among the quotations from Menander is one which contains the names of Onesimus and Habrotonon; it certainly came from the prologue of this play, as Croiset saw. Now the ends of two verses in M² seem to coincide with the line-ends of this quotation. In the quotation, it is true, we have the accusative ψάλτριν, in the papyrus the genitive -τρίας. But the verse is not quite correctly quoted (it is metrically faulty), and the most obvious restoration of the verse restores the genitive.² If a reëxamination of the papyrus reveals nothing that forbids the identification, M is to be assigned to the prologue of the Epitrepontes.

¹ Tischendorf's copy gave χαίρω, which has caused much trouble. But the photograph shows clearly the inner curve of an ε or an ο after ρ on the very edge of a hole in the parchment.

* We are now prepared to consider the plot of the play. Ten months before the action of the play begins, Pamphila, the daughter of a rich Athenian, Smicrines, took part in the celebration of the Tauropolia, an all-night festival for women in honor of Artemis. Her maid Sophrona accompanied her. During the evening she strayed from the crowd, was seized and violated by a young man unknown to her. In the struggle she drew a seal-ring from his finger.³ A lute-girl, Habrotonon, who was playing as the girls danced, noticed Pamphila when she returned to the company disheveled and in distress; but she did not know who the girl was, and at the time did not interpret the incident. Four months later Pamphila was given in marriage, with a generous portion, to Charisius, the son of a rich Athenian, Chaerestratus. They went to the country to live. The two were devotedly attached to each other. Five months after their marriage (v. 904), presumably during an absence of Charisius, a child was born to Pamphila. It was given to somebody, doubtless Sophrona, to expose, and with it was laid a wallet of trinkets, including the seal-ring of its father. The child was found by Davus and by him given, as we have seen, to Syrus, but without the trinkets.

¹ I formerly brought R into connection with the St. Petersburg fragment, because in R Smicrines seems to be fully aware of the conduct of Charisius and rages against him as in that passage. But the space between the recto and verso of the St. Petersburg fragment is barely sufficient to admit R; and a long tirade by Smicrines before he has had confirmation of the report which he had received about Charisius, and especially before he has interviewed Pamphila, would seem less appropriate than after Pamphila has rejected his advice.

² See note on fr. 600, p. 47. For a full discussion of the question see Am. Jour. Phil. xxix (1908), p. 426.

³ Cf. Ter. Hec. 829, (Pamphilus) dicitque sese illi anulum, dum luctat, detraxisse.

In some way¹ Onesimus discovered the secret of his mistress, and on the return of Charisius about a month afterward (v. 26) promptly betrayed it to him. We can imagine the grief and anger of Charisius. Pamphila no doubt explained the circumstances of her betrayal at sufficient length to prove her innocence. However this may be, nothing was said that suggested to him the possibility of his own responsibility for his wife's trouble.² Though he felt that he could not overlook the matter nor live with her longer, he decided not to repudiate her. It is probable that he requested her to leave him and that she refused to do so; and also that he agreed not to divulge her misfortune to others.

The action begins on the third day (v. 223) after this disclosure. We find Charisius living apart from his wife (p. 95, v. 10), in a house next door to his own (p. 98, v. 31). He has secured from a leno an expensive music girl, Habrotonon, with whom he is ostentatiously living. There too he is carrying on a series of lavish entertainments. Yesterday he gave a banquet (v. 166), and another is being arranged for to-day. Onesimus, who has just been to the city³ to engage a cook, meets Davus. The conversation which ensues between the two slaves serves as the exposition. The action is set in motion by the arrival of Smicrines from the city soon after the departure thither of Davus. Though Smicrines has knowledge of the excesses of Charisius, he has not yet wrought himself into a rage about them, but speaks as if there were a prospect of a reconciliation between his daughter and her husband (M¹, v. 11). This is the motive of his presence now. After a conversation with Onesimus he enters his daughter's house, Onesimus that in which his master was staying. Then comes the arbitration scene at the beginning of the second act.

¹ By noticing the visit of the midwife, as in the Andria of Terence, or by hearing the cries of travail, as in the Hecyra?

² In the Hecyra Pamphilus is told only this much (v. 383): nam vitiumst oblatum virgini olim ab nescio quo improbo. Any further details would have aroused his suspicions.

³ Or was he on his way to the city? If so, he returns thence at v. 165. But it seems more probable that at the close of the first act he enters the house of Chaerestratus, from which he reappears at v. 165 complaining about the tardiness of the cook.

By the decision of the arbitrator the trinkets are given over to Syrisus. As he looks them over Onesimus appears, recognizes the ring as that of Charisius, and takes possession of it. The wife of Syrisus meanwhile withdraws with the baby into the house. Onesimus is at a loss to know what to do with the ring. His master is already angry with him for his meddling. To show him the ring, he later explains to Syrisus, before knowing the mother of the child, would be to cast upon him, without adequate proof, suspicion of being the child's father. Habrotonon chances to overhear this conversation. She calls to mind the girl whom she had seen in distress at the last Taupolia. Perhaps this girl was the mother, Charisius the father. But before attempting to find the mother Habrotonon must be certain that the ring came into the possession of the child's mother directly from Charisius. She proposes, therefore, first to learn from the wife of Syrisus where she got the child, and then to wear the ring in the presence of Charisius. When he questions her, she will tell the story of the episode at the Taupolia as if she herself were the wronged girl. Having thus drawn from Charisius an admission of the truth, she will show him the child. Of course he will believe her to be its mother, but she promises to undertake a search for the true mother as soon as she is sure that the time and place and circumstances all point to the girl whom she had noticed at the festival. The reward for which she hopes is her freedom. When Habrotonon goes in to talk to the wife of Syrisus, Smicrines arrives in a towering passion. He has heard in the city the whole truth about the extravagant life of Charisius, and he now sees with his own eyes the elaborate preparations which are making for the day's entertainment. He is resolved to put an end to such a waste of money by taking his daughter home and demanding the return of the dowry. Chaerestratus protests in vain.

We have reached the crisis in the action. Charisius seems almost to have succeeded in his object, namely, by a lavish waste of money to cause Smicrines to second his own efforts to induce Pamphila to leave him, since she will not go of her own accord. Habrotonon, on the other hand, is following out a plan which, if successful, will convict Charisius of a fault far more serious than that which he lays at the door of Pamphila, but which, nevertheless, will restore Pamphila to him. If Smicrines, on the other hand, succeeds in his plan, Habrotonon's discovery of the mother of the child will come too late to bring happiness to the household.

Two questions arise at this point which our fragmentary text does not explicitly answer. Does Smicrines know that his daughter has borne a bastard? It seems hardly possible, else he would not be so arrogant in his attitude toward Charisius. Philumena's father in the Hecyra is for a long time kept in ignorance of the fact that his daughter has borne a child, and then is led to believe that her child is the acknowledged son of Pamphilus. The second question is: Do Smicrines and Pamphila, at the time of their interview, know Charisius to be the father of a child? It has been generally assumed that they do, and Pamphila's conduct has been interpreted accordingly. But the sequence of events, as made clear by the extant text, renders this assumption impossible. At the end of the third act no one knows the fact, though Habrotonon and Onesimus suspect it. Smicrines goes into one house to see his daughter, Habrotonon into the other to see first the wife of Syriacus and then Charisius himself. The former interview is protracted beyond the time required by Habrotonon for her two errands, for Charisius is able, after seeing her, to catch the last part of Pamphila's reply to her father. There is no possibility of there having been any communication between Habrotonon and Charisius (who alone are enlightened) on the one hand, and Smicrines and Pamphila on the other, before the conversation between the last two is over. Onesimus is in the house with Charisius until v. 663; Sophrona is with her mistress as long as Smicrines is with her. The first person, other than Charisius and Habrotonon, to learn that Charisius is the father of a child is Onesimus, and he overhears the confession from his master's lips while still within the house (v. 681); and Sophrona is told by Habrotonon in the extant scene (v. 656).

The doubt has been caused, in the lack of the text of the early scenes of the fourth act, by the poet's very ingenious method of narrating simultaneous events. When the fourth act opens, both interviews which are to determine the course of the plot and counterplot are taking place. This was doubtless explained to the audience in the opening monologue of Onesimus. Then there is a period of suspense during the scene that introduces the Cook. In a few moments Smicrines, knowing only that his daughter will not accept his guidance, comes from his visit with her and departs for his home. Sophrona soon comes from her mistress weeping. Through her the spectators are informed of the stormy interview, from Pamphila's point of view; for no doubt Smicrines had avowed his intention of returning to take her home by force. Habrotonon has already had her talk with Charisius, and in a brief scene with Sophrona completes the circle of evidence. We next learn, first from Onesimus and then from Charisius, further details of the conversation, which had ended some time before, between Pamphila and her father, this time from the point of view of Charisius. At the time he overheard the last portion of it he was aware of his own guilt, but Smicrines and Pamphila were debating the divorce without that knowledge. The ἀντίχημα of which Pamphila speaks in v. 706 (the Latin equivalent in Hec. 388 is advorsa eius) is her own shame, not that of Charisius. The situation is made clear by the use of the future tense in the self-denunciation of Charisius vv. 701 ff. He conceives of Fate as saying to him: "Your wife's unwitting fault you do not brook; but I shall prove thee guilty of like sin. And then all gently will she thee entreat, while thou," etc.

The plot now proceeds rapidly to its dénouement. By the discovery that the child is his own Charisius is placed in a most humiliating and embarrassing position, from which he is soon rescued by Habrotonon, who bluntly tells him, as he is angrily rebuking Onesimus for his interference, that Pamphila is the child's mother. Charisius thereupon returns to his own house and is reconciled with his wife.

The distribution of rewards begins (vv. 769 ff.). Habrotonon of course gets the money to buy her freedom from her owner. Onesimus is forgiven for his meddling, perhaps even rewarded by his freedom and by the hand of Habrotonon in marriage.¹ As for Smicrines, who comes from the city in what is probably the final scene, prepared to take his daughter away by force, he is mercilessly flouted by Onesimus. He is the last to learn the truth, and his enlightenment comes at the moment of his greatest arrogance.

The motives which govern the conduct of Charisius and Smicrines are more intelligible when we consider them in the light of the provisions of the Attic law concerning divorce. If a husband desired to put away his wife he had simply to send her away (ἀποπέμπειν) in the presence of witnesses. The witnesses would naturally be informed of the alleged grounds for the action. In all cases of ἀπόπεμψις the legal representative of the woman recovered the dowry, except, possibly, when the charge was infidelity or, as in the present instance, unchastity before marriage. On this point there is lack of evidence for the classical period, and a difference of opinion among modern authorities²; but it was the practice of other peoples and of the Greeks of Homeric and post-classical times that in such cases the dowry might be retained by the wronged husband. The wife who desired a separation from her husband, on the other hand, was obliged to appear in person before the archon and to file with him a notification of ἀπόλειψις, giving her reasons. Whatever the grounds she cited, if the divorce was granted the dowry went back to her legal representative. In the Epitrepontes, Smicrines is concerned only with recovering the dowry. That he may legally demand it his daughter must first leave her husband's house (ἀπολείπειν). Smicrines' anxiety that the initiative shall proceed from her may be due either to the imminent danger that, if she refuses or delays, the dowry will be dissipated by Charisius, or to the fear that Charisius may take the first step by sending Pamphila away for unchastity and thus retain his legal right to the dowry. It seems probable that both motives are at play; but in our ignorance of the legal status of the dowry in such a case, and in default of any explicit allusions in the extant text, the former motive may be accepted as sufficient. Charisius, as we have seen, does not send his wife away, but himself leaves the home. His motive must be sought in the sincerity of his love for her and his desire to spare her the shame and reproach which attached to the wife who had been repudiated for the gravest cause.¹

¹ The insistence upon the purity of Habrotonon (vv. 223, 261) seems to prepare the way for such an outcome. Onesimus stoutly defends her character (v. 772) and admires her cleverness (vv. 308 ff., 340). She has promised to reward him if successful (v. 326).

² On the subject in general see Meier-Schömann-Lipsius, Att. Proc. II, pp. 519 ff.; and Caillemer in Daremberg-Saglio s. Divortium. Menander is cited by the grammarians for his use of the terms ἀποπέμπειν and ἀπολείπειν in their technical legal sense. It seems likely that the source of the citation was this play, for ἀποπέμπειν occurs in M², v. 10, and ἀπολείπειν in v. 354. The motive of ἀπόλειψις was used in the plays entitled Ἀπολείπουσα by Apollodorus of Carystus and Crobylus, and in the Hecyra of Terence (cf. v. 502).

2.2 In the preceding discussion of the plot of the Epitrepontes frequent reference has been made to the Hecyra of Terence, the original of which was written by Apollodorus of Carystus, one of the famous poets of the New Comedy, whose active career began a few years after Menander's death. The similarity in the plots of the two plays was remarked by a Latin poet of the fifth century, Apollinaris Sidonius, in one of his letters (4.12); and indeed the resemblance is so great that one cannot escape the conviction that the younger poet had the Epitrepontes in mind when he framed his plot. Philumena had suffered outrage at the hands of her future husband. On the birth of her child, which she tries in vain to keep from her husband's knowledge, the latter resolves not to live with her again, in spite of his deep affection for her. A ring in the hands of the meretrix Bacchis, with whom Pamphilus had lived, leads to the discovery that Pamphilus is the father of the child. There are many minor resemblances. The words of Bacchis after her discovery (vv. 816 ff.) could with little change be transferred to the mouth of Habrotonon.²

¹ A repudiated wife in a play by Anaxandrides (56 K.) says: χαλεπή, λέγω σοι, καὶ προσάντης, ὃ τέκνον, ὁδὸς ἐστίν, ὡς τὸν πατέρ' ἀπελθεῖν οἰκάδε παρὰ τάνδρος, ἥτις ἐστὶ κοσμία γυνή.

² Compare v. 818, gnatum ei restituo, paene qui harum ipsiusque opera periit, with the list of Habrotonon's services enumerated in E. 770 ff., esp. v. 774, *σπουδῇ δὲ καὶ παιδάριον ἐξέβηκέ σοι.*⁷

In the management of the plot, so far as this portion of the story is concerned, other points of similarity are probable, although they are not directly evidenced in the present text of the Epitrepontes. For example, Charisius, like Pamphilus, probably agreed to keep the birth of the child a secret, to spare his wife the shame; and Smicrines, like Phidippus, probably was kept in ignorance of the real cause of the difference between his daughter and her husband. But here the resemblance ends. Philumena leaves her husband's house before his return from his journey. Sostrata makes every effort to bring her daughter-in-law back to Pamphilus, Smicrines to separate Pamphila from his son-in-law. Pamphilus is a reformed rake, Charisius a model youth apparently gone wrong. The ring was taken by Pamphilus from Philumena and by him given to Bacchis, and Bacchis quite by accident discovers the secret which brings happiness to her former lover. We see that the close literary relationship between the two plays is illustrated by the points of intentional difference no less than by the points of conscious similarity. Menander composed a comedy to which he might have given the name of "Father-in-law"; Apollodorus took almost the same set of characters situated in similar circumstances, substituted Sostrata for Sophrona and Phidippus for Smicrines, and made of it a "Mother-in-law." But except for the character of Sostrata in the Hecyra, which is quite as successful in its way as that of Smicrines in the Epitrepontes and probably a more original conception, (the characters in the play of Menander are much finer and much more skillfully drawn than those in the play of his imitator.)

The scene of the Epitrepontes is laid in a country deme, not far from Athens (vv. 25, 245, 361). Two houses are represented in the scene. The first is that of Charisius. Pamphila is living there, with Sophrona, but not with her husband (p. 95, v. 10, cf. on v. 354). It is there that Smicrines visits her (p. 97, v. 26). Charisius does not enter this house until the end of the fourth act, when he has learned the truth (after v. 742). Onesimus is once more installed there in the fifth act, when Smicrines makes his last visit to his daughter (vv. 866 ff.). The second house belongs to Chaerestratus. It is referred to (p. 98, v. 31) as "next door" to the other and as his. Chaerestratus, however, seems not to reside there. At any rate Syricus comes to this house to wait for his arrival, as if by previous appointment (v. 161), and with wife and child expects to spend the night there (vv. 195, 197). From v. 194 we learn that Onesimus also is staying at this house; this implies Charisius and Habrotonon as well, and the guests whom Charisius is entertaining (v. 195). From another set of passages it would seem that Charisius has betaken himself to the house of the leno who owns Habrotonon. It is in such a house, we are told (v. 529), that he is wasting his substance. It was not the practice of wild Athenian youth to introduce their mistresses into their homes, but to visit them at the house of the leno. When Habrotonon makes her first appearance a number of young men, evidently the guests of Charisius, torment her and try to detain her (vv. 213 ff.). Such a scene would hardly be conceivable in a respectable house. Finally, Onesimus wishes bad luck to the house of Chaerestratus (p. 98, v. 30). His motive is clear if it is there that his young master is making his name notorious. From this evidence it would seem that the second house in the scene belongs to Chaerestratus, but has been rented by the leno who owns Habrotonon.

Between these two houses there was some sort of communication. Charisius "crouching at the door within" overhears the conversation of Smicrines and Pamphila (v. 679). The door was probably in the division wall that was supposed to separate the gardens back of the two houses. This arrangement is often referred to in Plautus, cf. Stich. 614 per hortum transibo, Merc. 1008, Cas. 612, etc.

The papyrus fragments of this play were contained in three different quaternions, which are here and in the margin of the text designated as x, y, and z respectively. The accompanying table will show how the extant portions of the text were distributed among these three quires. The number of pages between the several continuous portions of text may be regarded as certain; but the amount of text lost at the beginning and end of the play is merely estimated. The second act, which began with the meeting of Davus and Syrus, can hardly have extended back more than half a page beyond D¹. The first act probably filled, in addition to the first one and one-half pages of quaternion y, some three pages of the preceding quaternion x, making altogether about 157 lines. The title, hypothesis, and list of characters would have filled all but about sixteen lines of the third page. At the end of the play probably not more than a single page is lost. The length of the Epitrepontes, according to this estimate, was something like thirty-one papyrus pages or about 1100 verses.

| QUATERNION X | | QUATERNION Y | | QUATERNION Z | |
|-------------------|------------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------|-------------------|------------------------------|
| Quat. page | Pap. page | Quat. page | Pap. page | Quat. page | Pap. page |
| 1 | ----- | 1 | lost | 1 | R ¹ (last 11 ll.) |
| 2 | ----- | 2 | lost | 2 | R ² (last 12 ll.) |
| 3 | ----- | 3 | D ¹ | 3 | lost |
| 4 | ----- | 4 | D ² | 4 | lost |
| 5 | ----- | 5 | C ¹ | 5 | H ¹ |
| 6 | ----- | 6 | C ² | 6 | H ² |
| 7 | ----- | 7 | B ¹ | 7 | Q ² (last 9 ll.) |
| 8 | ----- | 8 | B ² | 8 | Q ¹ (last 9 ll.) |
| 9 | ----- | 9 | B ³ | 9 | lost |
| 10 | ----- | 10 | B ⁴ | 10 | lost |
| 11 | ----- | 11 | C ³ | 11 | H ³ |
| 12 | ----- | 12 | C ⁴ | 12 | H ⁴ |
| 13 | ----- | 13 | NT ¹ , M ¹ (26 ll.) | 13 | lost |
| 14 | lost | 14 | NT ² , M ² (26 ll.) | 14 | ----- |
| 15 | lost | 15 | } Pet. fr. | 15 | ----- |
| 16 | lost | 16 | | 16 | ----- |

ἙΠΙΤΡΕΠΟΝΤΕΣ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

ΤΑ ΤΟΥ ΔΡΑΜΑΤΟΣ ΠΡΟΣΩΠΑ

| | |
|-----------|--------------|
| Ὀνήσιμος | Μάγειρος |
| Δᾶος | Χαιρέστρατος |
| Σμικρίνης | Σωφρόνη |
| Σύρισκος | Χαρίσιος |
| Ἀβρότονον | |

Χορὸς συμποτῶν

Κωφά: Γύνῃ Συρίσκου καὶ τὸ παιδίον· ὑπηρετᾷ τοῦ Μαγείρου· Παμφίλῃ.

ΕΠΙΤΡΕΠΟΝΤΕΣ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

SCENE: A deme of Attica, before the house of Chaerestratus, which is occupied by Habrotonon and Charisius, and that of Charisius, in which his wife Pamphila still lives. The highway leads to Athens.

ACT I

SC. 1. ONESIMUS, DAVUS

Onesimus, returning from his errand in the city, meets Davus, who is on his way thither. The conversation turns upon the domestic affairs of Charisius. Three verses from the prologue are preserved in a quotation:

ΔΑΟΣ

οὐχ ὁ τρόφίμός σου, πρὸς θεῶν, Ὀνήσιμε, 600 K.
ὁ νῦν ἔχων τὴν Ἀβρότονον τὴν ψάλτριαν, ἔγμ' ἑναγχος;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

πάνν μὲν οὔν.

After Davus has gone on his way, Smicrines enters, coming from the city (cf. v. 360). He has probably heard of the estrangement of Charisius and Pamphila

FR. 600. On the speakers in the exposition scene, see above, pp. 27, 32 note, 37. These verses are quoted by rhetorical writers to illustrate the effect of an answer following quickly upon the question. The second verse is quoted in an unmetrical form; τὴν has been added to supply the defect. But the art. is not needed, and perhaps ἐρασθῆις was originally written and intentionally altered in quoting.—τρόφίμος: Photius defines as ὁ νεώτερος οἰκοδεσπότης, της, and the Latin poets translate by erilis filius (Ter. Eun. 289 and Donatus' note ad loc.) or eris minor (Plaut. Merc. 112). The word, frequently used in the New Comedy, properly implies that the eris maior (Plaut. Truc. 307) is still alive. See on v. 160. Onesimus himself refers to Charisius as δεσπότης.—ἑναγχος: a distinctly conversational word, not employed by the tragic poets, who use ἀγρίως or νεωστῆ.

and comes to inquire concerning the cause of the trouble. At the close of the scene, probably after a conversation with Onesimus, he goes into the house of Charisius, and Onesimus, probably after a monologue, enters the house of Chaerestratus.

ACT II

Quat. y, p. 2

Sc. 1. SYRISCUS, DAVUS

Syriscus enters from the country, accompanied by his wife, who carries a baby in her arms. Davus, on his way back from the city, meets them. Syriscus has just demanded of Davus (vv. 58 ff.) the trinkets which he has heard were found with the child (v. 84), and Davus has refused to give them up. We find them here in the midst of their altercation.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

φεύγεις τὸ δίκαιον.

D¹, quat. y, p. 3

ΔΛΟΣ

συκοφαντεῖς, δυστυχής.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

οὐ δέ σ' ἔχειν τὰ μὴ σ'.

Bodin and Mazon, Extraits de Ménandre, p. 21, and Fischel, Hermes XLIII (1908), p. 311, have drawn attention to the striking similarity between the following scene and the situation which Euripides dramatized in the Alope, as reported by Hyginus 187. Alope, daughter of King Cercyon, bore a child to Poseidon and exposed it. A shepherd vidit infantem atque eum sustulit. qui veste regia indutum cum in casam tulisset, alter compastor rogavit ut sibi eum infantem donaret. ille ei donavit sine veste. cum autem inter eos jurgium esset, quod qui puerum acceperat insignia ingenuitatis reposceret, ille autem non daret, contententes ad regem Cercyonem venerunt et contendere cooperunt. ille autem qui infantem donatum acceperat repeteret insignia coepit. Observe that the arbitrator in the Alope, as in the Epitrepontes, proves to be the child's grandfather.

1. τὸ δίκαιον: the claim which Syriscus has urged as just, viz., that the trinkets should go with the child. φεύγεις is conative.—συκοφαντεῖς: without the old literal implication of blackmail and false-witness, but with reference to the sycophant's tricky and sophistical methods: this is pure chicanery, cf. P. 258.—δυστυχής: miserable, a post-classical usage. Menander's vocabulary is rich in abusive epithets of this kind,— words that have lost their original moral or physical connotation, e.g. πονηρός, ἀθλιος, κακοδαίμων, λερόσυλος, etc. The vocative δυστυχής is attested for Menander by the ancient grammarians (fr. 216 K.); cf. Soph. Phil. 827 ὕπν', οἰόμενος ἀδάης.

ΔΑΟΣ

ἐπιτρεπτόν τινί

183 K.

ἐστι περὶ τούτων.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

βούλομαι.

ΔΑΟΣ

κρινώμεθα.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

τίς οὖν;

ΔΑΟΣ

ἐμοὶ μὲν πᾶς ἱκανός. δίκαια δὲ

ἅ πάσχω; τί γάρ σοι μετεδίδουν;

Enter Smicrines from the house of Charisius.

SC. 2. SYRISCUS, DAVUS, SMICRINES

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

τούτον λαβεῖν

βούλει κριτήν;

ΔΑΟΣ

ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ.

2. ἐπιτρεπτόν: i.e. ὥστε κρίναι (schol. Aristoph. Ach. 1115), the technical term for committing a case to arbitration, δαιτηγὰς αἰρεῖσθαι (Harp.). The extensive use which the Athenians made of arbitration as a legal process made this a most natural suggestion. In Plaut. Rud. 1002 Trachalio proposes to Gripus that the dispute as to the ownership of the casket shall be so decided: vide, sis, quous arbi- tratu facere nos vis? The phrase often comes to mean a mere challenge, as in Aristoph. Ran. 528 ταῦτ' ἐγὼ μαρ- τύρομαι καὶ τοῖς θεοῖσιν ἐπιτρέπω, cf. Ter. Ad. 123.

4 f. τίς οὖν: cf. Theocr. 5. 61 ἀλλὰ τίς ἄμμε, τίς κρινεῖ; — πᾶς: anybody. — δίκαια δὲ πάσχω: if affirmative, but I've nothing to complain of; in that case, however, we should expect γάρ instead of δέ. But Davus pretends not to fear the result of an arbitration. The γάρ in the following sentence shows that he has just uttered a complaint, But is this fair treatment of one who has shared his find with you? Cf. Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 4 δίκαια πέπονθα, I've got my deserts, and δεινὰ πάσχειν in v. 61.

6. ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ: the old formula placed at the head of Athenian decrees implied a confident wish, may good fortune attend. Here the phrase is weakened to an expression of acquiescence, Very well, so be it. It seems to betray a certain inquietude on the part of Davus; see Bodin on S. 85.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ (to Smicrines)

πρὸς τῶν θεῶν.

βέλτιστε, μικρὸν ἂν σχολάσαις ἡμῖν χρόνον:

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ὕμιν; περὶ τίνος;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

ἀντιλέγομεν πρᾶγμα τι.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

τί οὖν ἐμοὶ μέλει;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

κριτὴν τούτου τινα

10 ζητούμεν ἴσον· εἰ δὴ σε μηδὲν κωλύει, διάλυσον ἡμᾶς.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ὦ κάκιστ' ἀπολούμενοι, δίκας λέγοντες περιπατεῖτε, διφθέρας ἔχοντες;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

ἀλλ' ὅμως — τὸ πρᾶγμ' ἐστὶν βραχὺ καὶ ῥᾶδιον μαθεῖν, πάτερ, — δὸς τὴν χάριν.

8. A tribrach such as that in the second foot, with word-division after the second short syllable, occurs only ten times in Menander in the first two feet and is excluded from the other feet. The first two syllables consist of an unmelided dissyllable word in common use. White, p. 145. A tribrach like that in the fourth foot, contained in a word that overlaps both ways, is found in the fourth foot also in E. 288, 300.

9. Note the sullen and overbearing nature of Smicrines, cf. vv. 11, 31, 140.

10. κωλύει: the υ in this word, always long in anapestic and dactylic rhythms, is short in iambic and trochaic. (Cf. v. 22.)

11. διάλυσον: the act. of the person who effects a reconciliation, the mid. of disputants who "make up." Smicrines will soon be engaged in a business of this kind, see M¹, v. 11, p. 91. — ἀπολούμενοι: you miserable scoundrels, lit. doomed to utter destruction, the familiar abusive address of the Old Comedy. The future implies a wish.

12. διφθέρας: the garb of rustics, cf. Strepesides' words in Aristoph. Nub. 72 ὅταν μὲν οὖν τὰς αἰγὰς ἐκ τοῦ Φελλέως, ὥσπερ ὁ πατήρ σου, διφθέραν ἐνημμένους. In enumerating the costumes of comedy Pollux 4. 119 says πήρα, βακτηρία, διφθέρα ἐπὶ τῶν ἀγροικῶν. It had a hood, id. 7. 70.

15 μὴ καταφρονήσῃς, πρὸς θεῶν. ἐν παντὶ δεῖ 173 K.
 καιρῷ τὸ δίκαιον ἐπικρατεῖν ἀπανταχοῦ, καὶ τὸν παρατυγχάνοντα τούτου τοῦ μέρους ἔχειν πρόνοιαν· κοινόν ἐστι τῷ βίῳ πάντων.

ΔΑΟΣ (aside)

μετρίῳ γε συμπέπλεγμαι ῥήτορι.
 20 τί γὰρ μετεδίδουν;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἐμμενεῖτ' οὖν, εἰπέ μοι, οἷς ἂν δικάσω;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

πάντως.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἀκούσομαι· τί γὰρ
 τὸ κωλύον; σὺ πρότερος, ὁ σιωπῶν, λέγε.

15 ff. These four verses are quoted in Orion's Anthology, but πρὸς has been lost in transmission, giving a totally different meaning to the excerpt. — ἐν παντὶ καιρῷ: on every occasion.

17. τούτου τοῦ μέρους: this part or consideration, viz. τοῦ ἐπικρατεῖν ἀπανταχοῦ τὸ δίκαιον. The phrase is little more than a rhetorically amplified huius rei. μέρος, part, portion, lot, rôle, concern; cf. the phrase τὸ ἐμὸν μέρος, for my part, so far as I am concerned. The passer-by (i.e. any one who chances upon an issue where justice is involved) should give good heed that justice prevails. The grandiloquence is characteristic of Syriacus.

18. κοινόν: subj. ἔχειν πρόνοιαν, κτέ. Of common interest, and so here an obligation (from δεῖ above). Cf. Eur. Suppl. 538 πάσης Ἑλλάδος κοινὸν τόδε, εἰ τοὺς θανόντας . . . ἀτάφους τις ἔξει. — τῷ βίῳ πάντων: rhetorical amplification for πᾶσι.

19. μετρίῳ γε: a fair sort of, litotes. Cf. P. 389. — συμπέπλεγμαι: a figure derived from wrestling, cf. Eur. Bacch. 800 ἀπὸρῳ γε τῷδε συμπέπλεγμαθα ξένῳ.

20. τί γὰρ μετεδίδουν: cf. v. 5. — ἐμμενεῖτε: the usual agreement of arbitrants, cf. Dem. 33. 15 οἷς οἱ δύο γνώσαν, τοῖσις ἐπ' ἀναγκῇ εἶναι ἐμμένειν.

21. οἷς: cognate obj., cf. Plat. Crit. 50 c ὡμολόγητο . . . ἐμμένειν ταῖς δίκαις αἷς ἂν ἡ πόλις δικάζῃ;

22. In the Cairo text only one instance (S. 466) of an anapaest contained in three words occurs in the first foot, and but three elsewhere in the verse. Hence the με which the MS. gives after κωλύον, making the verse unmetrical, is rather to be deleted than transferred to the first foot. — τὸ κωλύον: cf. Dem. 1. 12 τί τὸ κωλύον ἔτ' αὐτὸν ἐστὶ βαδίζειν; — ὁ σιωπῶν: an arbitrary

ΔΑΟΣ

μικρόν γ' ἄνωθεν, οὐ τὰ πρὸς τούτον μόνον πραχθένθ', ἵν' ᾗ σοι καὶ σαφῇ τὰ πράγματα — 25 ἐν τῷ δάσει τῷ πλησίον τῶν χωρίων τούτων ἐποίμεινον τριακοστὴν ἴσως, βέλτιστε, ταύτην ἡμέραν αὐτὸς μόνος, κακκέιμενον παιδάριον εὖρον νήπιον, procedure on the part of Smicrines, for the plaintiff had the right to speak first. But Menander prefers that the party who is to win shall speak last. The poets of the Old Comedy follow this principle in the "debate" or ἀγών.

23 ff. An ancient rhetorician (Spengel I, p. 359. 16) remarked with approval that the speeches of the litigants in this scene were without prooemia and that the effect was realistic: τὴν δίκην ἀνευ προοιμίων πεποίηκεν· οὐδὲν δὲ διαφέρει ἢ ἐνταῦθα οὕτως αὐτὰ κείσθαι ἢ ἐν δικαστηρίοις λέγεσθαι. Cf. the praise of Quintilian (10. 1. 70): sed mihi longe magis orator probari in opere suo videtur (Menander), nisi forte aut illa mala (sunt) iudicia quae Epitrepontes, Epicleros, Locroe habent, aut meditationes in Psophodee, Nomothete, Hypobolimaee non omnibus oratoris numeris sunt absolutae. — μικρόν γε . . . πράγματα: the broken sentence reproduces the colloquial manner. A partic. is to be supplied with each of the first two clauses, and a predicate, e.g. διηγέσσομαι, with the whole. — ἄνωθεν: sc. ἀρχόμενος, cf. Plat. Phil. 44 D ἀρχομένους ποθὲν ἄνωθεν. The partic. is often omitted with ἄνωθεν, as in Dem. 59. 74 βούλομαι . . . περὶ αὐτῶν ἄνωθεν διηγέσασθαι. — οὐ τὰ . . .

πραχθέντα: sc. διεξελθόν, cf. Dem. 44. 6 ἀναγκαῖον . . . μικρῷ ἄνωθεν τὰ περὶ τοῦ γένους ὑμῖν διεξελθεῖν. — ἵνα . . . καὶ σαφῇ: the καὶ is intensive, quite clear; often, as here, in purpose clauses, but generally modifying the verb, as Plat. Gorg. 407 C ἵνα καὶ εἰδῶ δ τι λέγεις.

26. τούτων: shows that the scene of the action is in the country; cf. v. 361. — τριακοστὴν: a month has passed since the birth of the child. For another indication of the time see v. 904.

27. ἡμέραν: acc. of duration. The ordinal numbers are usual when the point of time reached ("ago") is expressed. The article does not accompany the ordinal in these phrases, cf. Aeschin. 3. 77 ἐβδόμην δ' ἡμέραν . . . τετελευτηκυίας, Lys. 24. 6 τρίτον ἔτος τοῦτ' ἐ.

28. The exposure of children was not forbidden by law in Athens (Meier-Schömann-Lipsius, Att. Proc., p. 528 n.), but the extent of the practice is by no means to be inferred from the use made of the motive, with its romantic possibilities, by the dramatic poets. There was little public sentiment against the exposure of deformed children (Arist. Pol. 1335 B 20), though the custom was peculiarly Spartan. The reasons for exposure in the poets are: to conceal the mother's shame (Hero, Epitr.); the father's refusal to recognize the child as his own; poverty ἔχον δέραια καὶ τοιουτονί τινα 30 κόσμον.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

περὶ τούτων ἐστίν.

ΔΑΟΣ

οὐκ ἔᾶ λέγειν.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἐὰν λαλῆς μεταξύ, τῇ βακτηρίᾳ καθίξομαί σου.

(Peric.); the fact that the child is a girl (Ter. Heaut. 627). A girl was regarded as a heavy burden, Men. 18 K. χαλεπὸν γε θυγάτηρ κτῆμα καὶ δυσδιάθετον, Poseid. 11 K. υἱὸν τρέφει πᾶς κἂν πένης τις ὦν τύχῃ, θυγατέρα δ' ἐκτίθησι κἂν ἢ πλούσιος.

29. δέραια: objects hung about the neck as a sort of necklace, in Eur. Ion two serpents of gold δέραια παιδί νεογόνῳ φέρειν (v. 1431), here the ring and other things enumerated in vv. 168 ff. Other objects (κοσμός, cf. P. 694) were attached to the child in a wallet (πηρίδιον, v. 114) or laid beside it in a chest (ζυγαστρίον P. 693, κιστίς P. 633, cistella cum crepundiis Plaut. Cist. 655, Rud. 389, Ter. Eun. 753). These things and the clothes which the child wore are often referred to as γνωρίσματα (vv. 86, 114). The Greek mother who exposed her child to a possible death was moved by a curious scruple to provide a means of identification in case the child was found and grew to maturity. Cf. the sentiment expressed by Sostrata in Ter. Heaut. 649 ut stultae et misere omnes sumus religiosae, quom exponendam do illi, de digito anulum detraho et eum dico ut una cum puella exponeret: si moreretur, ne expers partis esset de nostris bonis. The tokens were carefully preserved by the foster-parents and later by the foundling (in an ἄγγος in Eur. Ion 1412) in the hope that by means of them the parents might be discovered. The dramatic poets made extensive use of such tokens in working out recognition scenes; they play a part in the first three comedies in this edition. For examples from tragedy see vv. 108 ff. Among the various methods of ἀναγνώρισις Aristotle Poet. 1454 b 20 considers ἡ διὰ σημείων as ἀτεχνότατη, though most frequently employed, mentioning περιδέραια among the σήμεια. — Note that this verse consists of six iambs. Pure iambic verses are more common in Menander than in Aristophanes, but less common than in Euripides. The first diphthong in τοιούτος is measured either long or short in Menander, as in his predecessors.

30. ἐστίν: sc. ὁ ἄγων.

31. λαλῆς μεταξύ: = μεταξὺ ὑπολάβῃς λαλῶν, cf. Xen. Anab. 3. 1. 27.

32. καθίξομαι: come down upon, cf. Luc. Symp. 16 τάχα δ' ἂν τιὼς καθίκετο καὶ δικαίως.

ΔΑΟΣ

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

λέγε.

ΔΑΟΣ λέγω.

ἄνειλόμην. ἀπῆλθον οἴκαδ' αὐτ' ἔχων.

ἤρρεφειν ἔμελλον· ταῦτ' ἔδοξέ μοι τότε.

33 ἐν νυκτὶ βουλήν δ', ὅπερ ἅπασιν γίγνεται, 733 K.

διδούς ἐμαυτῷ, διελογιζόμεν. "ἐμοὶ τί παιδοτροφίας καὶ κακῶν; πόθεν δ' ἐγὼ D², quat. γ, p. 4 τοσαῦτ' ἀναλώσω; τί φροντίδων ἐμοί;"

τοιουτοσί τις ἦν. ἐποίμεινον πάλιν

40 ἔωθεν. ἦλθεν οὗτος — ἔστι δ' ἀνθρακεύς — εἰς τὸν τόπον τὸν αὐτὸν ἐκπρίσων ἐκεῖ στελέχη. πρότερον δέ μοι συνήθης ἐγεγόνει.

ἐλαλοῦμεν ἀλλήλοις. σκυθρωπὸν ὄντα με ἰδὼν "τί σύννους," φησί, "Δᾶος;" "τί γάρ;" ἐγώ, τῇ βακτηρίᾳ. In this meaning always w. gen., in the meaning reach w. acc.

33. Asyndeton is characteristic of Menander's style, especially in narrative passages.

35. A new turn to the proverbial expression ἐν νυκτὶ βουλή (or νύξ καὶ βουλή), on which see Kock on Men. fr. 733. Herodotus 7. 12 says of Xerxes νυκτὶ δὲ βουλήν διδοῖς. — γίγνεται: the Cairo MS. consistently gives the forms in γιν-, but the inscriptions show that the short forms did not come into use until after 292 B.C., Meisterhans-Schwyzler, Gramm. d. Att. Inschr., p. 177.

36. ἐμοί: sc. δεῖ, on which the genitives in vv. 37, 38 depend, cf. Eur. Med. 565 σοὶ τε γὰρ παίδων τί δεῖ;

37. The tribrach contained in a single word which overlaps the preceding and the following foot is found in the second foot also in v. 358 and in v. 648 (proper name).

39. τοιουτοσί τις: such a one = in such a mood, cf. Theocr. 13. 64: as a lion is aroused by the voice of the fawn, Ἡρακλῆς τοιοῦτος . . . δεδόνητο, Eur. Orest. 1680 κἀγὼ τοιοῦτος.

43. ἐλαλοῦμεν: descriptive impf., we fell to talking, Gildersleeve, Syn. § 207. The description passes from the aor. ἦλθεν first to the impf. and then to the historical present. — σκυθρωπὸν . . . σύννους: cf. Plat. Alc. II 138 A φαίει γέ τοι ἐσκυθρωπακέναι . . . ὥς τι ξυννοούμενος (Croiset).

- 45 "περίεργός εἰμι." καὶ τὸ πρᾶγμ' αὐτῷ λέγω, ὡς εὖρον, ὡς ἀνειλόμην. ὁ δὲ τότε μὲν εὐθύς, πρὶν εἰπεῖν πάντ', ἐδεῖθ'. "οὕτω τί σοι ἀγαθὸν γένοιτο, Δᾶε," παρ' ἑκαστον λέγων,
"ἐμοὶ τὸ παιδίον δός· οὕτως εὐτυχής, 50 οὕτως ἐλεύθερος. γυναῖκα," φησί, "γὰρ
ἔχω. τεκούσῃ δ' ἀπέθανεν τὸ παιδίον"— ταύτην λέγων, ἣ νῦν ἔχει τὸ παιδίον —

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἐδέου' σὺ ταῦτ' ;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

εὖ ἴσθ'.

ΔΑΟΣ.

ὅλην τὴν ἡμέραν

45. περίεργός εἰμι : = περιεργάζομαι, i.e. in assuming a responsibility that does not belong to me. Cf. Plat. Apol. 19B Σωκράτης . . . περιεργάζεται ζητῶν τὰ τε ὑπὸ γῆς καὶ οὐράνια.

46. εὖρον : the augment in ην- began to disappear as early as 321 B.C. and is not found in inscriptions after 300. — A tribrach composed of three words occurs in the fifth foot also in E. 676 and P. 1. Aristophanes admits it here only four times. The arsis of a tribrach so formed is elsewhere (excluding one in the first foot) almost always the final syllable of a word of two or more syllables; but three times (E. 46, 291, 298) the tribrach is composed of two monosyllables and the first syllable of the following word, and once (H. 11) of three monosyllables. White, p. 146.

47. πρὶν εἰπεῖν : the meter did not admit με, which is grammatically necessary. — οἶτω, κτέ. : a common formula introducing an entreaty, as here, or a positive asseveration, promise, or threat. With an entreaty a blessing is called down upon the person supplicated; σοι characterizes this usage, while μοι is used when the phrase backs up a promise, assertion, or threat. Cf. vv. 145, 858, Plaut. Stich. 754 ita me diamant. Other forms of the same habit of speech are innumerable, cf. Aristoph. Thesm. 469 οὕτως ὀναιμην τῶν τέκνων and Hor. Od. 1. 3 sic te diva potens Cypri . . . regat.

48. παρ' ἑκαστον : cf. Plat. Prot. 325 D παρ' ἑκαστον καὶ ἔργον καὶ λόγον διδάσκοντες (Leeu.).

49. οὕτως : sc. γένωτο.

50. φησί, γάρ : the position of γάρ, crowded from its natural position by the interjected φησί, is probably characteristic of informal colloquial speech, cf. v. 859.

53. The verse is corrupt in the MS., which makes Smicrines address κατέτριψε. λιπαροῦντι καὶ πείθοντί με 55 ὑπεσχόμην. ἔδωκ'. ἀπῆλθεν, μυρία εὐχόμενος ἀγαθά. λαμβάνων μου κατεφίλει τὰς χεῖρας.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἐπόεις ταῦτ' ;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

ἐπόουν.

ΔΑΟΣ ἀπηλλάγη.

μετὰ τῆς γυναικὸς περιτυχὼν μοι νῦν, ἄφνω τὰ τότε συνεκτεθέντα τούτῳ — μικρὰ δὲ 60 ἦν ταῦτα καὶ λῆρός τις, οὐθέν — ἀξιοῖ ἀπολαμβάνειν, καὶ δεινὰ πάσχειν φῆσ' ὅτι οὐκ ἀποδίδωμ', αὐτὸς δ' ἔχειν ταῦτ' ἀξιώ.
 ἐγὼ δέ γ' αὐτόν φημι δεῖν ἔχειν χάριν οὗ μετέλαβεν δεόμενος· εἰ μὴ πάντα δὲ

Syriscus by name. But they do not know each other. The name was probably written above the line as a note on σύ. See Crit. Ap.

54 ff. The narrative takes on a brisker tone with the aorists. These are interrupted by the descriptive imperf., κατεφίλει. The leisurely pres. is resumed in v. 60. — κατέτριψε: sc. δεόμενος.

57. ἀπηλλάγη: of his final departure. ἀπῆλθεν above means he set off.

60. Cf. Plaut. Cist. 732 (Halisca, speaking of the cistella) non edepol praeda magna. . . . crepundia una. — λῆρός τις: a mere trifle, cf. Luc. Lex. ὁ λῆρόν (trumpery) τινα ἐκρότουν . . . τῇ θυγατρὶ τῇ ἐμῇ, whence the lexicographers, misled by the context, invented ληρός (Lat. le ría, Fest.) as an article of woman's dress, see schol. ad

Luc. l.c., Poll. 5. 101. — οὐθέν: οὐδεὶς began to supplant οὐδεὶς as early as 378 B.C. in the inscriptions, and prevailed after ca. 330, Meisterhans-Schwyzler, Gramm. d. Att. Inschr., p. 258. The earlier form was revived in the imperial period (cf. ποιεῖν, see on H. 1). On the spelling found in MSS. of Menander see Kretschmar, De Men. Rell., p. 87 n.

62. οὐκ ἀποδίδωμι: do not, i.e. will not, restore. This modal force of the neg. is common with the impf.

63. ἐγὼ δέ γε = ἐγώ γε δέ. δέ regularly separates γε from the word which it modifies if that is first in the clause.

64. οὗ: the regular assimilation of the relative to the case of its omitted antecedent. — Note the position of δέ, due to the exigencies of the verse. — Menander allows in the third foot a 65 τούτῳ δίδωμ', οὐκ ἔξετασθῆναί με δεῖ.

 εἰ καὶ βαδίζων εὗρεν ἄμ' ἐμοὶ ταῦτα καὶ ἦν κοινὸς Ἑρμῆς, τὸ μὲν ἂν οὗτος ἐλάβε δῆ,⁷ τὸ δ' ἐγὼ· μόνου δ' εὐρόντος, οὐ παρῶν· σύ γε ἅπαντ' ἔχειν οἶε σε δεῖν, ἐμὲ δ' οὐδὲ ἔν; 70 τὸ πέρας· δέδωκά σοί τι τῶν ἐμῶν ἑκῶν.⁷ εἰ τοῦτ' ἀρεστόν ἐστί σοι, καὶ νῦν ἔχε· εἰ δ' οὐκ ἀρέσκει, μετανοεῖς δ', ἀπόδος πάλιν,⁷ καὶ μηδὲν ἀδίκει μηδ' ἐλαττοῦ. πάντα δέ, tribrach contained in a word that overlaps the following foot. The word is always a quadrisyllable whose accent coincides with the ictus. See vv. 80, 194, P. 25, 48, 366, S. 415, 420. Aristophanes does not admit this tribrach, owing to his preference for the penthemimeral caesura. White, p. 144.

65. ἔξετασθῆναι: be called to account, = λόγον ὑπέχειν, cf. Arist. Rhet. 1354 A 4 καὶ ἐξετάζειν καὶ ὑπέχειν λόγον. The word savors of the official language of Athens; all public officials had to submit their accounts to the Logistae (elsewhere called ἔξετασται) at the end of their term of office.

67. κοινὸς Ἑρμῆς: a proverbial expression meaning "Good luck's to be shared." Davus, by implying that one had no claim to shares in a discovery unless present when it was made, gives a new turn to the proverb, which Syrus could properly have quoted in support of his claim. Davus says: Had it been a case of κοινὸς Ἑρμῆς, i.e. "common finding." Hermes, says Aristotle Rhet. 1401 A 20, is κοινωνικὸν μάλιστα τῶν θεῶν. The right application is made, in the advice given to one who has discovered a source of wealth, in Luc. Nav. 12 κοινὸς Ἑρμῆς, φασί, καὶ ἐς μέσον κατατίθει φέρων τὸν πλοῦτον. It is characteristic of the greedy man of Theoph. Char. 30.7 τῶν εὐρισκομένων χαλκῶν ὑπὸ τῶν οἰκετῶν ἐν ταῖς ὁδοῖς ἀπαιτησαί τὸ μέρος, κοινὸν εἶναι φήσας τὸν Ἑρμῆν.

68. εὐρόντος: sc. ἐμοῦ.

69. οὐδὲ ἔν: the masc. and neut. forms οὐδὲ εἰς and οὐδὲ ἔν, divided after the analogy of the fem., are very common in Menander, especially at the end of the verse; and οὐδὲ is never elided. Only six instances are found in Aristophanes, of which four are in the Plutus. But in the inscriptions they are not unusual throughout the classical period. See Sachtschal, De com. Graec. sermone metro accomodato, p. 4; Meisterhans-Schwyzler, Gramm. d. Att. Inschr., p. 105.

70. τὸ πέρας: cf. vv. 316, 676.

72. εἰ δ' οὐκ: οὐ instead of μή in view of the fact, which Davus knows, that the supposition is correct. Cf. v. 131 and see Kühner-Gerth § 511.4b. In v. 129, where these same words are quoted by Syrus, but with μή, the protasis is a pure hypothesis.

73. The imperatives, induced by ἀπόδος, express the result of the suggested act. The thought is ὥστε μηδὲν ἀδίκειν μηδ' ἐλαττοῦσθαι.

τὰ μὲν παρ' ἐκόντος, τὰ δὲ κατισχύσαντά με, C¹, quat. y, p. 5 75 οὐ δέ σ' ἔχειν. εἶρηκα τόν γ' ἐμὸν λόγον.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

εἶρηκεν;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

οὐκ ἤκουσας; εἶρηκεν.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

καλῶς.

οὐκοῦν ἐγὼ μετὰ ταῦτα· μόνος εὖρ' οὔτοσιν τὸ παιδίον, καὶ πάντα ταῦθ' ἃ νῦν λέγει ὀρθῶς λέγει, καὶ γέγονεν οὕτως, ὦ πάτερ.
80 οὐκ ἀντιλέγω. δεόμενος, ἱκετεύων ἐγὼ ἔλαβον παρ' αὐτοῦ τοῦτ'· ἀληθὴ γὰρ λέγει.
ποιμὴν τις ἐξήγγειλέ μοι, πρὸς ὃν οὔτοσιν ἐλάλησε, τῶν τούτῳ συνέργων, ἅμα τινα κόσμον συνευρεῖν αὐτόν. ἐπὶ τούτον, πάτερ, 85 αὐτὸς πάρεστιν οὔτοσί.—τὸ παίδιδόν δός μοι, γύναι.—

Takes the child from his wife's arms.

74. κατισχύσαντα: subj. σε in next verse. Equivalent to ἐμοῦ βίβ.

75. εἶρηκα: such formal declarations at the close of speeches are common, cf. Eur. Orest. 1203 εἶρηται λόγος, Cic. Verr. 1.56 dixi, and the like.

76. εἶρηκεν; the threat of Smicrines in v. 31 has made Syrisus cautious.

77. ἐγὼ μετὰ ταῦτα: sc. ἐρῶ.—οὔτοσί: cf. iste, of one's opponent in a lawsuit.

80. The verse contains no iambus in the first five feet. The Cairo Menander contains only five such verses, E. 241, 298, P. 392, S. 173.

82. πρὸς ὃν οὔτοσί: the anapaest contained in three words is not common in Menander; White, p. 154.

Note that a pause in the sense precedes.

84. ἐπὶ: after, to get, cf. Aristoph. Ran. 1418 κατῆλθον ἐπὶ ποιητήν.

85. αὐτὸς πάρεστιν: Syrisus adopts the notorious practice of defendants before Athenian juries, παιδία ἀναβιβασάμενος ἵνα ὅτι μάλιστα ἐλεηθείη (Plat. Apol. 34c), cf. Lys. 20.34 ἐάν τις παῖδας αὐτοῦ ἀναβιβασάμενος κλαίη καὶ ὀλοφύρηται. The practice is parodied in Aristoph. Vesp. 976, where the spokesman for the defendant dog Labes says: ποῦ τὰ παιδία; ἀναβαίνειτ', ὦ πόνηρα, καὶ κινυζόμενα αἰτεῖτε κἀντιβόλειτε καὶ δακρύετε. It must be acknowledged that Syrisus uses this method of arousing pity with exceptional restraint and dignity.

τὰ δέραια καὶ γνωρίσματα
 οὗτός σ' ἀπαιτεῖ, Δᾶ'. ἐαντῷ φησι γὰρ ταῦτ' ἐπιτεθῆναι κόσμον, οὐ σοὶ διατροφήν.
 κἀγὼ συναπαιτῶ, κύριος γεγεννημένος 90 τούτου· σὺ δ' ἐπόησάς με δούς. Restores the child to his wife.

νῦν γνωστέον, βέλτιστέ, σοι ταῦτ' ἐστίν, ὥς ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ· τὰ χρυσί' ἢ ταῦθ' ὃ' τί ποτ' ἐστί, πότερα δεῖ κατὰ τὴν δόσιν τῆς μητρός, ἥτις ἦν ποτε, τῷ παιδίῳ τηρεῖσθ', ἕως ἂν ἐκτραφῇ, 95 ἢ τὸν λελωποδυτηκότ' αὐτὸν ταῦτ' ἔχειν, εἰ πρῶτος εὔρε, τὰλλότρια. τί οὖν τότε, ὅτ' ἐλάμβανον τοῦτ', οὐκ ἀπῆτουν ταῦτά σε;
 οὐπω παρ' ἐμοὶ τότ' ἦν ὑπὲρ τούτου λέγειν.
 ἦκα δὲ καὶ νῦν οὐκ ἐμαντοῦ' σ' οὐδὲ ἐν

86. καὶ γνωρίσματα: equivalent to καὶ τὰ ἄλλα γνωρίσματα, for Davus has admitted (v. 35) that he found other objects besides the δέραια.

87. ἐαντῷ: construe with κόσμον, which is in predicate apposition to ταῦτα, as is διατροφήν also.

90. ἐπόησάς με: sc. κύριον τούτου.

91. ταῦτα: for τάδε, looking forward to what is to follow, because the matter referred to has already been thought of or expressed by the speaker; see Kühner-Gerth § 467.7, Xen. Mem. 1.2.61 Δίχας . . . ὀνομαστός ἐπὶ τούτῳ γέγονε. The structure of the sentence is colloquially irregular.

92. τὰ χρυσία: proleptic subj. of τηρεῖσθαι. As Davus v. 60 depreciates his find, so Syricus hints at its possible value. — δ τι: the MS. gives δ τι, an exceptional dialect form of the indef. rel. found only in the Law of Gortyn. The common Attic form ἄρτα, which some editors adopt, gives a highly objectionable anapaest (+ υ, υ, — +) in the fourth foot; see White, p. 157.

95. Note the doubly overlapping anapaest in the third foot.

96. εἰ . . . εὔρε: Syricus does not doubt the fact, but states the whole point at issue as an hypothesis: whether the man should keep these things, another's property, if he found them first. The speaker incidentally tries to prejudice the judge by characterizing the finder as a "petty thief." — τὰλλότρια: reserved to the end for greater emphasis. — τί οὖν: cur tandem, an assumed question by Davus.

98. Syricus' answer to the assumed question. — παρ' ἐμοὶ ἦν: in my power, = παρῇν μοι. He did not then know, he means, of the existence of the tokens. — τούτου: the child.

99. καὶ νῦν: even now not for myself. — σε: cf. v. 87.

- 100 ἴδιον ἀπαιτῶν. "κοινὸς Ἑρμῆς." μὴδὲ ἐν
 "εὐρίσχ'" ὅπου πρόσεστι σῶμ' ἀδικοῦμενον.
 "οὐχ" εὐρησις τοῦτ' ἔστιν, ἀλλ' ἀφαίρεσις.
 βλέψον δὲ κακεῖ, πάτερ· ἴσως ἔσθ' οὐτοσὶ γεγῶς ὑπὲρ ἡμᾶς, καὶ τραφεῖς ἐν ἐργάταις 105 ὑπερόψεται ταῦτ', εἰς δὲ τὴν αὐτοῦ φύσιν ἄρας ἐλεύθερόν τι τολμήσει ποεῖν — θῆρᾶν λέοντας, ὅπλα βαστάζειν, τρέχειν ἐν ἁγῶσι. τεθέασαι τραγῳδοὺς, οἶδ' ὅτι, καὶ ταῦτα κατέχεις πάντα. Νηλέα τινὰ

180 K.

722 K.

100. κοινὸς Ἑρμῆς: sarcastic allusion to the argument of Davus in v. 67. — μὴδὲ ἐν εὐρίσκει: do no 'finding,' i.e. talk not of 'finding.'

101. ὅπου πρόσεστι: when it's a question of, etc.

103. βλέψον δὲ κακεῖ: just look at this point also. Cf. Eur. Orest. 1181 καὶ σὺ δεῦρο νοῦν ἔχε.

104. τραφεῖς: concessive.

105. ταῦτα: all this, spoken with a gesture that embraced the ἐργαταί present.—εἰς . . . φύσιν: cf. Hippocr. De nat. hom., Kühn XV, p. 53, καὶ πάλιν γε ἀνάγκη ἀποχωρεῖν εἰς τὴν ἑωυτοῦ φύσιν ἑκαστον.

106. ἄρας: rising. The intr. use of the simple verbal αἴρω is rare, but is clearly discerned in a few passages: Soph. Phil. 1330 ἔως ἂν αὐτὸς ἥλιος ταύτῃ μὲν αἴρῃ, τῇδε δ' αὖ δύνῃ πάλιν, Plat. Phaedr. 247 κ ἡ δὲ (ψυχὴ) τότε μὲν ἦρε, τότε δ' ἔδυν, Arist. Part. nat. 475 λ 8 τῷ ἐμφύτῳ πνεύματι αἴροντι καὶ συνίζοντι, ibid. 479 λ 26 διὰ τὸ μὴ δύνασθαι τὸν πνεῦμονα μακρὰν αἴρειν ἄνω καὶ συνίζειν. Most of the compounds of αἴρω show intr. meanings. The image of 'rising' was probably suggested by ὑπὲρ ἡμᾶς (Heidel). — ἐλεύθερόν: befitting his free birth.

107. The chase, warfare, and athletics, to the rustic the distinguishing occupations of the high-born as contrasted with the slave. The countryman witnessed athletic contests occasionally, and, as guide to "hunters from the city" (like Gorgias in the Iliad), heard them relate their exploits in hunting and fighting in the East. Note the tragic style (βαστάζειν) and meter (δπλα — ∪).

108 ff. Classic illustrations from tragedy of the good fortune which had come to foundlings through the safe-keeping of their γνωρίσματα. The poet can confidently appeal to the spectator's acquaintance with the myths of tragedy, and even with the lines, at least of Euripides; cf. E. 911, S. 387, Plaut. Rud. 86. — τραγῳδοὺς: tragic performers, for performances; practically interchangeable in certain uses with τραγῳδίας.

109. Neleus and Pelias were secretly born to Poseidon by Tyro, whoseet themadrifting in a boat. Found and reared to manhood, they were recognized by their mother and became kings at Pylos and Iolcus. The myth was used by Sophocles, Carcinus, and Astydamas the younger, in plays entitled Tyro.

- 110 Περίαν τ' ἐκείνους εὔρε πρεσβύτης ἀνὴρ αἰπόλος, ἔχων οἶαν ἐγὼ νῦν διφθέραν. C², quat. y, p. 6 ὡς δ' ἦσθετ' αὐτοὺς ὄντας αὐτοῦ κρείττονας, λέγει τὸ πρᾶγμ', ὡς εὔρεν, ὡς ἀνείλετο, ἔδωκε δ' αὐτοῖς πηρίδιον γνωρισμάτων, 115 ἐξ οὗ μαθόντες πάντα τὰ καθ' αὐτοὺς σαφῶς ἐγένοντο βασιλεῖς οἱ τότε ὄντες αἰπόλοι. adesp. 488 εἰ δ' ἐκλαβὼν ἐκείνα Δᾶος ἀπέδοτο, αὐτὸς ἵνα κερδάνειε δραχμὰς δώδεκα, ἀγνώτες ἂν τὸν πάντα διετέλουν χρόνον 120 οἱ τηλικούτοι καὶ τοιοῦτοι τῷ γένει. 181 K.
οὐ δὴ καλῶς ἔχει τὸ μὲν σῶμ' ἐκτρέφειν ἐμὲ τοῦτο, τὴν αὐτοῦ δὲ τῆς σωτηρίας ἐλπίδα λαβόντα Δᾶον ἀφανίσαι, πάτερ.
γαμῶν ἀδελφήν τις διὰ γνωρίσματα

Presumably the poet has in mind the play by Sophocles, the recognition scene in which was famous. See Nauck, T.G.F., p. 272.

111. αἰπόλος: Apollodorus Bibl. 1. 9. 8 calls him a groom, ἵπποφορβός.

114. πηρίδιον: according to Arist. Poet. 1454 b 25 the recognition was effected διὰ τῆς σκάφης. The story of the two young men about their exposure in a boat may have first aroused the suspicion of Tyro, and the tokens brought confirmation. — The anapaest contained in the last three syllables of a word which begins in the preceding foot is used freely by Menander, as by Aristophanes, in the fourth foot, seldom in the third, and but once (E. 341) in the fifth. White, p. 152.

117. Δᾶος: i.e., Δᾶός τις, instead of the kind goatherd. Possibly we should read ἐκείν', ᾧ Δᾶος, sc. ἐξέλαβε. — ἀπέδοτο: sold.

118. δραχμὰς: the first syllable is treated as either long or short by the comic poets; Menander usually puts the word in the odd feet. — δώδεκα: a petty sum, contemptuously mentioned as the price of the children's heritage.

122. τὴν αὐτοῦ δέ: the attrib. position of the poss. pron. is due to the presence of τῆς σωτηρίας, a second attribute of ἐλπίδα. Otherwise the order would have been τὴν ἐλπίδα αὐτοῦ. See Kühner-Gerth § 464. 4.

124 ff. Other instances from tragedy. The allusions are too vague for identification. The motive γαμῶν ἀδελφὴν ἔπεσχε is unknown to us in any tragedy, but is found in Menander's Pericciromene and the Epidicus of Plautus. A mother is rescued by her long-lost sons in Euripides' Antiope, Hypsipyle, and Melanippe. A brother is saved by his sister in Euripides' Iphigeneia in Tauris.

- 125 ἐπέσχε, μητέρ' ἐντυχὼν ἐρρύσατο, ἔσωσ' ἀδελφόν. ὄντ' ἐπισφαλῇ φύσει τὸν βίον ἀπάντων τῇ προνοίᾳ δεῖ, πάτερ, τηρεῖν, πρὸ πολλοῦ ταῦθ' ὀρώντ' ἐξ ὧν ἐνι.
 "ἀλλ' ἀπόδος, εἰ μή," φησ', "ἀρέσκει." τοῦτο γὰρ 130 ἰσχυρὸν οἶεται τι πρὸς τὸ πρᾶγμ' ἔχειν.
 οὐκ ἔστι δίκαιον. εἴ τι τῶν τούτου σε δεῖ ἀποδιδόναι, καὶ τοῦτο πρὸς ζητεῖς λαβεῖν;
 ἢ' ἀσφαλέστερον πονηρεύσῃ πάλιν,

125. ἐρρύσατο: another word not used in comic dialogue nor in prose; cf. v. 107.

126 f. ἐπισφαλῇ, κτέ.: cf. Pet. fr. v. 36, p. 99.

128. πρὸ πολλοῦ: explaining προνοία. It must be construed with ὀρώντα, not with τηρεῖν, otherwise προορώντα would have been necessary. — ταῦτα . . . ἐξ ὧν ἐνι: sc. τηρεῖν, with what means we may. ταῦτα, obj. of ὀρώντα, refers to contingencies such as have been illustrated above, by which good fortune may be secured to foundlings.

129. Cf. v. 72. — The MS. reading φησὶν gives in the fourth foot an objectionable anapaest, which begins with an unelided word of two or more syllables. Three of the five instances (cf. also P. 363) which occur in the Cairo MS. are clearly to be eliminated by emendation (E. 239, P. 397, 405), a fourth may be admissible (E. 131). The correction here is easy; the papyrus offers a number of instances of failure to elide (e.g. S. 398). But see White, p. 156.

130. ἰσχυρὸν: in predicate apposition to τοῦτο.

131. οὐκ ἔστι δίκαιον: it isn't fair, referring to the proposal just quoted. — εἰ, κτέ.: assuming that. The question represents the second of the alternatives which are presented if the principle is accepted that the trinkets go with the child: (1) that Davus shall give the trinkets to Syrisus, who now has the child, or (2) that Syrisus shall give back the child to Davus, who has the trinkets. Syrisus speaks as if the principle were conceded. εἰ is therefore almost equivalent to ἐπεὶ. It is possible, however, to construe εἰ τι, κτέ. down to ἡ τύχη v. 134 with οὐκ ἔστι δίκαιον, regarding the whole as a loose-jointed assertion, — a sort of breathless πνίγος at the end of an otherwise well-ordered speech. In this case ζητεῖς is embraced in the protasis, εἰ . . . σε δεῖ, καὶ (εἰ) . . . ζητεῖς. — On the anapaest in the second foot, with word-division ∪, ∪ —, the first syllable being the final syllable of an unelided word, see White, pp. 155 f. It is admitted by Aristophanes in the second and fourth feet and apparently not excluded by Menander from the second foot. See on P. 363.

132. καὶ τοῦτο: the child too, Davus already having the trinkets. — πρὸς: adv., strengthening the καί.

133. A scornful question, responding to a nod on the part of Davus to the preceding question. — ἀσφαλέστερον:

εἰ νῦν τι τῶν τούτου σέσωκεν ἢ τύχη;
 135 εἶρηκα· κρῖνον ὃ τι δίκαιον νενόμικας.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἀλλ' εὔκριτ' ἐστί· πάντα τὰ συνεκκείμενα τοῦ παιδίου 'στί· τοῦτο γιγνώσκω.

ΔΑΟΣ

καλῶς·

τὸ παιδίον δ'·

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

οὐ γνῶσομ' εἶναι, μὰ Δί', ἐγώ τοῦ νῦν ἀδικούντος, τοῦ βοηθοῦντος δὲ καὶ 140 ἐπεξιόντος τῷ ἀδικεῖν μέλλοντί σοι.

ΣΥΡΙΣΚΟΣ

πόλλ' ἀγαθὰ σοι γένοιτο.

ΔΑΟΣ

δεινὴ γ' ἢ κρίσις, νῆ τὸν Δία τὸν σωτήρ· ἅπανθ' εὐρὼν μόνος ἅπαντα περιέσπασμ', ὃ δ' οὐχ εὐρὼν ἔχει.
 οὐκοῦν ἀποδιδῶ;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

φημί.

since nobody would be in a position to call Davus to account for the property. — πονηρεύσῃ πάλιν: play the knave once more. Syrisus has in mind his selling the tokens.

134. εἰ νῦν τι: si quid nunc. The condition again expresses a fact.

137. γιγνώσκω: vox propria for a legal decision, cf. Arist. Resp. Ath. 48. ὃ δ' τι ἂν γνῶσιν οἱ δικασταί, τοῦτο κύριον ἐστίν. The decision agrees with the principle for which Syrisus has contended, but is also consistent with the alternative proposed by Davus. The spelling γιγνώσκω is post-Menandrian; see on γίνομαι v. 35.

139. ἀδικούντος: sc. αὐτό.

140. τῷ ἀδικεῖν: Menander is rather conservative in his use of crasis. — σοι: reserved to the end for emphasis.

141. δεινὴ γι: outrageous.

144. οὐκοῦν: really then?

ΔΑΟΣ

δεινή γ' ἢ κρίσις,

145 ἢ μηθὲν ἀγαθὸν μοι γένοιτο.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

φέρε ταχύ.

ΔΑΟΣ

ὦ Ἡράκλεις, ἃ πέπονθα.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

τὴν πήραν χάλα

καὶ δεῖξον· ἐν ταύτῃ περιφέρεις γάρ.

(To Smicrines, who is about to leave) βράχυν

πρόσμεινον, ἱκετεύω σ', ἵν' ἀποδῶ.

B¹, quat. γ, p. 7

ΔΑΟΣ

τί γὰρ ἐγὼ

ἐπέτρεψα τούτῳ;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

δός ποτ', ἐργαστήριον.

ΔΑΟΣ (handing the wallet to Syrisus)

150 αἰσχρά γ' ἃ πέπονθα.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ (to Syrisus)

πάντ' ἔχεις;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

οἴμαί γε δή.

146. δ = οἷα, cf. Aesch. Prom. 92 οἷα πρὸς θεῶν πάσχω θεός.—πήραν χάλα: open up, cf. Plaut. Rud. 1141 solve vidulum ergo.

148. τί γάρ, κτέ.: cf. vv. 5, 20. Davus repeats himself in a helpless sort of way.

149. ἐργαστήριον: new as a term of abuse, probably meaning ἐργασόμενος ἐν μυλῶνι, or the like. Cf. Cat. 42. 13 o lutum, o lupanar, aut si perditius potest quid esse (Mazon), Ter. Ad. 373 ain tamen, carcer? Cf. Eng. "you tank."

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἔἴ μὴ τι καταπέπωκε τὴν δίκην ἐμοῦ λέγοντος, ὡς ἡλίσκετ'.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

οὐκ ἂν φόμην.

ἀλλ' εὐτύχει, βέλτιστε· τοιούτους ἔδει θᾶπτον δικάζειν πάντας.

Exit Smicrines to the city.

ΔΑΟΣ

ἄδικόν πράγματος, 155 ὦ Ἡράκλεις. οὐ γέγονε δεινὴ γ' ἡ κρίσις;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

πονηρὸς ἦσθας.

ΔΑΟΣ

ὦ πονήρ', ὅπως σὺ νῦν τούτῳ φυλάξεις αὐτὰ σώσεις τ' ἀσφαλῶς, εὖ ἴσθι, τηρήσω σε πάντα τὸν χρόνον.

151. When Syrisus answers as if in doubt, Smicrines reassures him. Before εἰ μὴ sc. ἔχει πάντα. — τὴν δίκην: the verdict, which the ὡς-clause summarizes.

152. οὐκ ἂν φόμην: sc. αὐτὸν καταπεπώκεναι. Syrisus has taken the jest seriously.

153. ἔδει: contrary to the fact, would God that, lit. it ought to be that.

154. θᾶπτον: here in the sense of μάλλον. — δικάζειν: sit in judgment. — πάντας: without exception, emphatic by position. — These last words are spoken as Smicrines is taking his departure to the city, whence he returns in v. 360. — ἀδικόν πράγματος: the genitive of exclamation, cf. v. 889. It is more frequent with an interjection

(e.g. ὦ, αἰμοί) or an exclamation, as in v. 179.

156. The second-person forms ἦσθα or ἦσθας, οἶσθα or οἶσθας, are attested by the ancient grammarians as "Hellenic" and are occasionally found in classical Attic, Kühner-Blass § 209. 3, Crönert, Memoria Graeca Herculanensis, p. 270. — ὅπως, κτέ.: the const. is τηρήσω σε ὅπως, κτέ., cf. Arist. Pol. 1309b16 τηρεῖν ὅπως κρεῖττον ἔσται τὸ . . . πλῆθος, Isoc. 7. 30.

157. σώσεις: cf. vv. 191, 180.

158. εὖ ἴσθι: hiatus is regularly admitted in the trimeters of both the tragic and the comic poets after εἰ, τί, and περί, and in comedy after ὦ and in the combination οὐδέ εἰς and its forms. Kühner-Blass § 48. 3.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

οὔμωζε καὶ βάδιζε.

Exit Davus to the country.

σὺ δὲ ταυτί, γύναι,

160 λαβούσα πρὸς τὸν τρόφιμον ἐνθάδ' εἰσφέρει.

Χαιρέστρατον νῦν γὰρ μενούμεν ἐνθάδε, εἰς αὐριον δ' ἐπ' ἔργον ἐξορμήσομεν

τὴν ἀποφορὰν ἀποδόντες. ἀλλὰ ταυτά μοι πρῶτ' ἀπαριθμῆσαι καθ' ἑν. ἔχεις κοιτίδα τινά;

165 βάλλ' εἰς τὸ προκόλπιον.

While Syricus opens the wallet his wife holds out the fold of her dress.

At this moment Onesimus comes out of the house of Chaerestratus.

160. τρόφιμον: the allusion may be to Charisius, whose relationship to Chaerestratus (see p. 29) the spectators already know, or to Chaerestratus himself. The word properly means erilis filius (see on fr. 600, p. 47); if it has that meaning here, however, we must assume that Syricus has learned that Charisius is not living in his own house (cf. v. 194). The second alternative is therefore more probable. τρόφιμος may mean simply δεσπότης according to the scholiast to Aristid., p. 53 Dind., though in the passage which he cites (fr. 600) it = erilis filius.

161. The explanation is obviously for the benefit of the spectators. Syricus expects to do an errand in the city before Chaerestratus arrives (v. 245).

163. ἀποφοράν: a monthly payment made to their masters by slaves who worked out for hire (οἰκοῦντες χωρὶς). Instead of having the money brought to him in the city Chaerestratus goes to his country home to receive it. In Andoc. Myst. 38 a slave-owner goes out to Laurium on the first of the month (πανσέληνον) to collect from his slave resident there. In Aeschin. 1. 97 the payment amounted to two obols a day. The author of [Xen.] Resp. Ath. 1. 11 complains that this system produced a class of rich and impudent slaves.

164. ἀπαριθμῆσαι: inv. inf., count over, cf. Xen. Oec. 9. 10 ἀπαριθμήσαντες καὶ γραψάμενοι ἕκαστα.—κοιτίδα: prob. basket here. κοίτης = μικρὰ κίστη acc. to Suidas and schol. Luc. Epist. Sat. 21. — Menander admits a trisyllabic dactyl in the fifth foot only here and in S. 94; and in the third foot not at all, contrary to the practice of Aristophanes (8 instances). White, p. 148.

165. Since his wife has no basket, as she indicates by a negative gesture, the fold of her himation will serve. The προκόλπιον was the loose part of the robe in front of the breast, formed by the corner of the himation that passed from the right shoulder to the left. By simply extending the right arm a receptacle could be made of the fold. The niggardly man in Theoph. Char. 22. 8 carries home in this receptacle the vegetables which he has bought at the market. Cf. also for this practice id. 6. 4 and Men. fr. 201 K.

SC. 3. SYRISCUS, ONESIMUS

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ (to himself)

μάγειρον βραδύτερον οὐδεὶς ἑώρακε. τηνικαὺτ' ἐχθρὲς πάλοι ἔπινον

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

οὔτοσὶ μὲν εἶναι φαίνεται ἀλεκτρυὼν τις καὶ μάλα στριφνός· λαβέ.

τουτὶ δὲ διάλιθόν τι. πέλεκυς οὔτοσί.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ (aside, noticing Syrisus)

170 τί ταῦθ' ;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

ὑπόχρυσος δακτύλιός τις οὔτοσί,

— At his entrance in the opening scene Onesimus was probably returning from the city, whither he had gone to hire a cook for the day's banquet (see p. 37). At the close of the first act he retired into the house in which Charisius was staying. — βραδύτερον: slower, i.e. at arriving, tardier. He does not arrive until about v. 375. The same motive of a tardy cook is found in Plautus' Mercator: in v. 578 it is proposed to hire a cook and give a dinner; in v. 697 Lysimachus says egomet conduxi coquom, sed eum demiror non venire ut iusseram; the cook finally arrives in v. 741. For βραδύς tardy cf. Thuc. 7. 43. 5 ὅπως . . . τοῦ περαινέσθαι ὧν ἕνεκα ἦλθον μὴ βραδεὶς γέγωνται, and the vb. βραδύνειν loiter.

166. τηνικαῦτα: cf. Plat. Phaedo 76 ἑαυριον τηνικάδε. The day before, the cook was on time; the meal (v. 394) was by this time long since over, and the symposium under way. It is now already afternoon. Cf. Aristoph. fr. 347

K. ἀλλ' ἐστίν, ὦ πάτερ, κομιδῇ μεσημβρία, ἥνικα γε τοὺς νεωτέρους δειπνεῖν χρεών.

168. Cf. the enumeration of γνωρίσματα in the recognition scene P. 646 ff. and note ad loc. — στριφνός: a Hellenistic by-form of στιφρός (Moeris), firm, of flesh, = στερεός (Hesych.). Syrisus pinches the toy rooster, which was made of clay or metal, as market-ers squeezed birds before buying (Aristoph. Av. 530 οἱ δ' ὠνοῦνται βλιμάζοντες), and declares it "tough." The noun στρίφνος is used in the Septuagint, Job 20. 18, of a tough piece of meat that cannot be masticated or swallowed: ὥσπερ στρίφνος ἀμάσητος, ἀκατάποτος.

169. διάλιθόν τι: something set with stones. The adj. is used of a pitcher in Men. fr. 503 K., and of a cup and necklace in the Athenian and Delian temple inventories, *Ditt. Syl.*² 586. 63 and 588. 184, 198. — πέλεκυς: cf. Plaut. Rud. 1158 securicula ancipes, item aurea.

170. ὑπόχρυσος: gilded, a meaning attested by the temple inventories of αὐτὸς σιδηροῦς. γλύμμα ταῦρος ἢ ἱράγος — οὐκ ἂν διαγνοίην — Κλεόστρατος δέ τις ἔστιν ὁ ποήσας, ὡς λέγει τὰ γράμματα.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ (to Syrisus)

ἄγε, δεῖξον.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ (handing him the ring)

ἦν. σὺ δ' εἶ τις;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

αὐτός ἐστι.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

τίς;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

175 ὁ δακτύλιος.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

ὁ ποῖος; οὐ γὰρ μανθάνω.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τοῦ δεσπότου τοῦμοῦ Χαρισίου —

Delos, Ditt. Syl.² 588.15 δακτύλιοι σιδηροῖ ὑποκεχρυσωμένοι. Such compounds of ὑπο- usually give the material which underlies the plating.

171. σιδηροῦς: He tests its weight; or perhaps the gilding was worn off on the edges. — γλύμμα: = σήμειον. It was a seal-ring with an intaglio cut in a stone setting. The device was indistinct, as that on the ring of Demus in Aristoph. Eq. 954 (θρίον, λάρος); cf. P. 847, where the object thought to be a goat or an ox proves to be a deer. Or is this a jest at the expense of a contemporary artist Cleostratus? He is otherwise unknown.

173. Artists' signatures have rarely been found on ancient seal-rings.

174. The detailed description of the ring attracts the attention of Ones-

mus. — ἦν: like ἰδοῦ, is often used by one who complies with a request. — αὐτός ἐστι: it's the very one. The assertion startles Syrisus, who has no idea what Onesimus is talking about, and naturally supposes that αὐτός refers to a person.

175. ὁ ποῖος: ring? What ring? The question betrays the confusion of Syrisus, who cannot yet understand how Onesimus can speak of the ring as "the very one." ποῖος preceded by the art. generally repeats a word which the speaker slyly pretends not to understand, e.g. Aristoph. Ach. 963 ὁ ποῖος οὗτος Λάμαχος; who is this Lamachus, anyway? Nub. 1270 τὰ ποῖα ταῦτα χρήματα; the money? Just what money do you mean? This usage is to be distinguished from ποῖος without the art.,

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

χολᾶς.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ῥὸν ἀπώλεσεν.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

τὸν δακτύλιον θές, ἄθλιε.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ῥὸν ἡμέτερόν σοι θῶ; πόθεν δ' αὐτὸν λαβὼν ἔχεις;

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

Ἄπολλον καὶ θεοί, δεινοῦ κακοῦ.

- 180 ῥοῖον τὸ σῶσαι χρήματ' ἐστὶν ὀρφανοῦ παῖδός. ὁ προσελθὼν εὐθὺς ἀρπάζειν βλέπει.
ῥὸν δακτύλιον θές, φημί. προσπαίξεις ἐμοί;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τοῦ δεσπότου ᾽στὶ, νῆ τὸν Ἀπόλλω καὶ θεούς. B², quat. y, p. 8

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

ἀποσφαγεῖν πρότερον ἂν δήπουθεν ἦ

- 185 τούτῳ τι καθυφεῖμην. ἄραρε, δικάσομαι

the colloquial Attic idiom in which the speaker repeats in a tone of scornful dissent or ridicule a word just used by the preceding speaker, e.g. Aristoph. Ach. 761 οὐδὲ σκόροδα; — ποῖα σκόροδα; garlic indeed!

176. χολᾶς = μάλιν, cf. S. 204, E. 665.

177. θές: put down, = θές κάτω or κατὰθες. The omission of the adverbial element gives to the command a peremptory tone.

178. ἡμέτερον: slaves regularly use the plural of the first personal pronoun (ἡμεῖς) to indicate their masters; the plural possessive pronoun, of that which belongs to them. Cf. v. 905.

181. ὁ προσελθὼν: the art. with the partic. often generalizes, and is almost equivalent to ὁ πᾶς, cf. ὁ παρατηχών v. 17, ὁ βουλόμενος, etc. — ἀρπάζειν βλέπει: looks larceny, a locution for which there are many parallels in tragedy and in comedy, e.g. Aristoph.

Ach. 376 οὐδὲν βλέπουσιν ἄλλο πλὴν ψήφω δακεῖν, Ran. 603 βλέποντ' ὀρίγανον.
Kühner-Gerth § 410. 3c.

185. καθυφεῖμην: give in, by making terms; used especially of compromising a case out of court. Demosthenes Meid. 151 says that a proposal was made to him by friends of Meidias καθυφεῖναι τὸν ἀγῶνα. When a low fine was assessed against Verres, Cicero was criticized ὡς ἐπ' ἀργυρίῳ τὸ τίμημα καθυφεμένως, Plut. Cic. 8. The judicial sense here is made clear by δικάσομαι.
— ἄραρε: it's settled, = κέκριται, βεβαίως ἅπασι καθ' ἓνα. παῖδιόν 'στίν, οὐκ ἐμά.

Proceeds with the examination of the wallet.

στρεπτόν τι τουτί· λαβὲ σύ. πορφυρᾷ πτέρυξ.
εἴσω δὲ πάραγε.

His wife, with the child and the tokens, departs into the house of Chaerestratus.

(To Onesimus) ἴσὺ δὲ τί μοι λέγεις;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ἐγώ;

Χαρισίου 'στὶν οὔτοσί· τοῦτόν ποτε

190 μέθύων ἀπώλεσ', ὡς ἔφη.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

Χαιρεστράτου

εἰμ' οἰκέτης. ἡ σῶζε τοῦτον ἀσφαλῶς ἦ μοι δὸς αὐτῷ.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τί γάρ; ἔχω σῶν. βούλομαι αὐτὸς φυλάττειν.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

οὐδὲ ἔν μοι διαφέρει.

οὕτως ἔχει καὶ ἀμετακινήτως (Suidas), cf. Eur. Or. 1330, Med. 322 μὴ λόγους λέγε, ὡς ταῦτ' ἄραρε.

187. στρεπτόν τι: probably a twisted metal collar, such as the Persians wore, represented on the Alexander mosaic of the battle of Issus; cf. Plut. Mor. 808 f, of Themistocles, ἰδὼν νεκρὸν στρεπτά χρυσά . . . περιεμένον, αὐτὸς μὲν παρήλθεν. The neuter as noun is found also in the temple inventories of Athens and Delos, Ditt. Syl.² 586. 28 στρεπτόν περίχρυσον ὑπάργυρον, 588. 34. — πτέρυξ: τὸ ἥμισυ τοῦ χιτωνίσκου Poll. 7. 82, one of the two sides of the chiton which the child's mother had worn (see v. 272). The trinkets laid with the child were wrapped in it. For this meaning see Aristoph. fr. 325 K. τὴν πτέρυγα παραλόσσα τοῦ χιτωνίου. Such a piece assisted in the recognition in the comedy from Ghorân, fr. I, col. i (B. C. H. XXX, p. 111), πτέρυξ χιτωνίσκου γυναικείου (also of purple, v. 5), and in Eur. Alope (above, p. 50) cum adlata essent (insignia) et agnosceret Cercyon ea esse ex veste scissa filiae suae.

188. εἴσω πάραγε: intr., pass in, cf. Euphron 10. 15 K.

192. αὐτῷ. τί γάρ; ἔχω: see Crit. Ap. The crasis involved in the reading αὐτῷ ἵνα παρέχω is very harsh. It has been removed from v. 118. — ἔχω σῶν: cf. Xen. Anab. 7. 6. 32 ἐκείνο σῶν ἔχετε.

εἰς ταῦτό γὰρ παράγομεν, ὥς ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ, 195 δεῦρ' ἀμφοτέρω.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

νυνὶ μὲν οὖν συνάγουσι καὶ οὐκ ἔστιν εὐκαιρον τὸ μηνύειν ἴσως αὐτῷ περὶ τούτων· αὐρίον δέ.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

καταμενῶ, αὐρίον ὅτῳ βούλεσθ' ἐπιτρέπειν ἐνὶ λόγῳ ἔτοιμος.

Exit Onesimus into the house of Chaerestratus.

οὐδὲ νῦν κακῶς ἀπήλλαχα.

194. παράγομεν: this verb in its intransitive meanings, which are rarely found in classical Greek, signifies simply pass along; οἱ παράγοντες, the passers-by, CIG. 2129. The direction must be indicated by an adverb or preposition: pass in (= παρίεσθαι) παράγειν εἰς, ἐπὶ, εἰσω, etc., cf. Polyb. 4. 44. 3 παράγουσιν ἐπὶ τὴν Βοῦν, pass out παράγειν ἐκ, ἔξω, etc., cf. Polyb. 5. 18. 4 θεωροῦντες ἐκ τῆς πόλεως παράγουσαν τὴν δύναμιν. — Syrisus is probably led to the conjecture (δοκεῖ) that Onesimus is about to enter the same house by some motion in that direction on the latter's part. There is no indication that he knows that Charisius is the son of his master; nor, if he had that knowledge, would he be aware that Charisius is not living in his own house.

195. συνάγουσι: intrans., they're getting together, i.e. for entertainment, cf. the definition in Athen. 365 c ἐλεγον δὲ συνάγειν καὶ τὸ μετ' ἀλλήλων πίνειν, καὶ συναγώγιον τὸ συμπόσιον, quoting Menander (158 K.). Athenaeus conjectures that the verb in this meaning implies a banquet ἀπὸ συμβολῶν. The usage seems to be characteristic of Hellenistic and late Greek, cf. Euphron 1. 10 K., Diph. 43. 28 K., Sophilus 4 K. ἡδὺ γε μετ' ἀνδρῶν ἔστιν Ἑλλήνων αἰεὶ συνάγειν, Athen. 142 c, 420 e, οἱ δὲ νῦν συνάγοντες ἐπὶ τὰ δεῖπνα. The verb is sometimes used transitively in the meaning get (guests) together, cf. P. 55 συνηγμένοι οἱ συνηθείς and fr. 450 K. ἀστείον τὸ μὴ συνάγειν γυναῖκας μηδὲ δειπνίζειν δῆλον (at a wedding). The object may be a collective noun, e.g. συναγαγεῖν συμπόσιον, Poll. 6. 8.

196 f. τὸ μηνύειν: the art. particularizes. The thought of telling was in both their minds. — αὐτῷ: ipsi. For the dat. see on v. 284.

198. βούλεσθε: you and Charisius. — ἐπιτρέπειν: see on v. 2. — ἐνὶ λόγῳ: constr. with ἔτοιμος, I'm ready, in a word. Cf. Arist. Eth. Nic. 1103 b 21 ἐνὶ δὴ λόγῳ.

199. ἔτοιμος: sc. ᾧ. — οὐδὲ νῦν: not this time, either, referring to his debate with Davus. He is confident of success.

200 πάντων δ' ἀμελήσανθ', ὡς ἔοικεν, δεῖ δίκας μελετᾶν· διὰ τοῦτ' πάντα νυνὶ σφύζεται.

Exit through one of the parodoi.

A group of revelers enter, probably from the city, and give a performance. At the close of the performance they retire into the house of Chaerestratus.

ΧΟΡΟΙ

ACT III

Enter Onesimus from the house of Chaerestratus

Sc. 1. ONESIMUS alone

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τὸν δακτύλιον ὥρμηκα πλεῖν ἢ πεντάκις τῷ δεσπότῃ δεῖξαι προσελθών, καὶ σφόδρα ὦν ἐγγὺς ἤδη καὶ πρὸς αὐτῷ παντελῶς 205 ἀναδύομαι. καὶ τῶν πρότερόν μοι μεταμέλει μηνυμάτων. λέγει γὰρ ἐπιεικῶς πυκνά· “ὡς τὸν φράσαντα ταῦτά μοι κακὸν κακῶς”

201. νυνί: nowadays. It would seem from this that the Athenians in Menander's day were no less litigious than at the time of Aristophanes' Wasps.

χοροῦ: on the chorus see above, p. 33, and cf. on P. 146, S. 413. No considerable interval of time is supposed to elapse during this intermission. The “to-morrow” of v. 198 does not fall within the time covered by the action of the play.

202. πλεῖν: a shortened form of πλεον, like οἶμαι for ολομαι. Kühner-Blass § 50, n. 11. It is used only by Attic writers, and by them only before numerical expressions. It does not occur at all in inscriptions of the classical period.

204. ἐγγὺς: sc. αὐτοῦ. — καὶ πρὸς αὐτῷ παντελῶς: in fact, right in his presence. καὶ corrects σφόδρα ὦν ἐγγὺς by substituting for it the more precise παντελῶς πρὸς αὐτῷ. Cf. Plat. Apol. 23A δλίγον τι πρὸς ἀξία ἐστὶ καὶ (or rather) οὐδένος, Phaedo 58D παρήσαν τινες καὶ πολλοί γε, and atque in Cic. Legg. 3. 14. 32 pauci atque admodum pauci. For πρὸς meaning close to cf. Soph. O.T. 1169 πρὸς αὐτῷ γ' εἰμὶ τῷ δεινῷ λέγειν, on the dreaded brink of speech (Jebb).

205. ἀναδύομαι: cf. Aristoph. Ran. 860 ἔτοιμός εἰμ' ἔγωγε, κοῦκ ἀναδύομαι, δάκνειν δάκνεσθαι.

206. ἐπιεικῶς: like satis and Eng. moderately, tolerably, rather, with diminishing effect on the following word. The frequency with which Charisius utters the sentiment of the next verse causes Onesimus apprehension.

207. ὡς: cf. Hom. Od. 1. 47 ὡς ἀπολοιτο καὶ ἄλλος, Eur. Hipp. 407 ὡς δλοῖτο παγκάκως, ἥτις, κτέ. ὡς for εἴθε or εἰ γάρ is confined to the poets. — ταῦτα:

ὁ Ζεὺς ἀπολέσαι.” μὴ με δὴ διαλλαγεῖς⁷
 πρὸς τὴν γυναικα τὸν φράσαντα ταῦτα καὶ⁷ 210 συνειδὸτ’ ἀφανίσῃ λαβών. καλῶς δ’ ἔχει⁷ ἕτερόν τι πρὸς τούτοις κυκᾶν. καίτοι γ’ ἐμοὶ⁷ κἀνταῦθα κακὸν ἔνεστιν ἐπεικῶς μέγα.”

Habrotonon comes hurriedly out of the house of Chaerestratus, angrily addressing some young men who try to hold her at the door.

SC. 2. ONESIMUS, HABROTONON

HABROTONON

ἐὰτέ μ’, ἱκετεύω σε, καὶ μὴ μοι κακὰ παρέχετ’. (To herself) ἐμαυτήν, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἀθλία,⁷ 215 λέληθα χλευάζουσ’. ἐρᾶσθαι προσεδόκων,⁷ θεῖον δὲ μισεῖ μῖσος ἀνθρωπὸς μέ τι.

B³, quat. γ, p. 6

Onesimus had told his master of the birth of the child, and Charisius had learned from Pamphila that she had been the victim of misfortune. The regret of Charisius that he had learned the truth marks the first stage in his change of attitude toward his wife.

208 ff. μὴ . . . ἀφανίσῃ: a construction common in Homer, revived by Euripides and Plato. GMT. § 264. — ἀφανίσῃ: annihilate, cf. ἀστυν in Aesch. Prom. 151.

211. κυκᾶν: cf. v. 356. — καίτοι γε: introducing a grave objection to the plan ἕτερόν τι κυκᾶν. Cf. Aristoph. Ach. 611, Xen. Mem. 1. 2. 3. Three courses lie open to Onesimus: he may (1) show the ring, prove Charisius to be the father of a child, possibly cause him to be reconciled with his wife, and — be annihilated himself (vv. 231 ff. compared with vv. 686 ff.); (2) he may stir up some new complication and thus divert his master's attention from his former fault; or (3) he may give the ring back to Syrisus (v. 219). Habrotonon settles the question in favor of the second course. While pondering upon the situation Onesimus does not at first see Habrotonon.

212. Cf. Aristoph. Plut. 348 ἐνὶ γὰρ τις ἐν κίνδυνος ἐν τῷ πράγματι.

213. She addresses the revelers in general, but in particular the one (σε) who was annoying her most. On these revelers and the chorus see p. 33.

214 f. ἐμαυτήν χλευάζουσα: made myself a butt of mockery, explained by the following. When the young men saw that Charisius did not treat her with affection they thought that they could take liberties with her. — προσεδόκων: cf. Anax. 22. 29 K. οἱ δ’ ἐρᾶσθαι προσδοκῶντες.

216. θεῖον: i.e. ἔσχατον. With the phrase cf. LXX, Ps. 139. 22 τέλειον μῖσος ἐμίσουν αὐτούς. — ἀνθρωπός: indignantly, the man, cf. Pet. fr. v. 1, p. 94.

οὐκέτι μ' ἐᾷ γὰρ οὐδὲ κατακεῖσθαι, τάλαν, παρ' αὐτόν, ἀλλὰ χωρίς.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ (to himself, not seeing Habrotonon)

ἀλλ' ἀποδῶ πάλιν

παρ' οὐ παρέλαβον ἀρτίως; ἄτοπον.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ (to herself)

τάλας

220 οὗτος, τί τοσοῦτον ἀργύριον ἀπολλύει; ἐπεὶ τό γ' ἐπὶ τούτῳ τὸ τῆς θεοῦ φέρειν κανοῦν ἔμοιγ' οἶόν τε νῦν ἐστ', ὦ τάλαν· ἀγνὴ γάμων γάρ, φασίν, ἡμέραν τρίτην ἤδη κάθημαι.

Diogen. 2. 46

920 K.

217. κατακεῖσθαι : = κατακλίνεσθαι. Two persons reclined on each couch at an Athenian banquet, cf. Plat. Symp. 175 A, E. Respectable women always sat.

218. χωρίς : i.e. at another table, cf. Herod. 9. 16 καὶ σφεων οὐ χωρίς ἐκατέρους κλίνειν, ἀλλὰ Πέρσῃ τε καὶ Θηβαίων ἐν κλινῇ ἐκάστη. The idea of compulsion (e.g. κελεύει, ἀναγκάζει) is derived from the negative οὐκ ἐᾷ. Cf. Dem. 19. 82 μὴ δὴ ταῦτα λέγειν αὐτὸν ἔατε, ἀλλὰ . . . δεικνύναι, Herod. 9. 2.

219. ἄτοπον : sc. ἂν εἴη.

220. τί ἀπολλύει : why does he waste on me. The amount was twelve drachmae a day, see Pet. fr. v. 11, p. 95. Menander prefers the ω-conjugation of this verb.

221. τό γ' ἐπὶ τούτῳ : so far as it lies with him, = τούτου γ' ἔνεκα. Cf. Xen. Anab. 6. 6. 23 τὸ ἐπὶ τούτῳ ἀπολώλαμεν. — φέρειν κανοῦν : only girls of good family and of irreproachable reputation were chosen to carry the baskets of offerings in the great religious processions. The action of Hipparchus in sending away the sister of Harmodius as "unworthy" was a deadly insult (Thuc. 6. 56. 1). The Panathenaic festival is probably meant here.

223. ἀγνὴ γάμων : a formal phrase that had come to be proverbial (φασίν); Diogenian. 2. 46, referring to this proverb, explains : ἐπὶ τῶν σωφρόνων γυναικῶν, εἰρωνικῶς δὲ καὶ ἐπὶ τῶν μὴ σωφρόνων. In the ancient oath which the women swore who took part in the ceremony of the ἱερὸς γάμος is the phrase εἰμι καθαρὰ καὶ ἀγνὴ ἀπὸ τε τῶν ἄλλων τῶν οὐ καθαρῶν καὶ ἀπ' ἀνδρὸς συνουσίας, [Dem.] 59. 78. — τὴν τρίτην : cf. Eur. Hipp. 135 and schol. We may infer from this statement that Charisius had learned of his wife's secret only the day before yesterday. His purpose in taking Habrotonon was, not to forget his trouble, but to create a certain impression. See above, p. 31.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ (to himself)

πῶς ἂν οὖν, πρὸς τῶν θεῶν,

225 πῶς ἂν, ἱκετεύω —

Enter Syrisus through one of the parodoi. Habrotonon stands aside until his departure.

SC. 3. ONESIMUS, HABROTONON, SYRISCUS

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

τοῦ 'στῖν ὃν ζῆτῶν ἐγὼ περιέρχομ'; Sees Onesimus in the vestibule, about to enter the house.

οὗτος ἔνδον. ἁπόδος, ὦγαθέ, τὸν δακτύλιον τ' δεῖξον ᾧ μέλλεις ποτέ.

κρινώμεθ'. ἐλθεῖν δεῖ μέ ποι.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τοιουτονί

ἐστὶν τὸ πρᾶγμ', ἄνθρωπε· τοῦ μὲν δεσπότου

230 ἔστ', οἷδ' ἀκριβῶς, οὐτοσὶ Χαρίσιον, ὁκνῶ δὲ δεῖξαι· πατέρα γὰρ τοῦ παιδίου αὐτὸν ποῶ σχεδόν τι τοῦτον προσφέρων, μεθ' οὗ συνεξέκειτο.

224 f. πῶς ἂν οὖν, κτέ. : Onesimus is still thinking aloud; ἱκετεύω, pray, addresses no one in particular. His thought probably was: "How, then, if I am not going to give back the ring nor show it to Charisius, am I to get rid of Syrisus?" At this moment Syrisus returns.

226. περιέρχομαι: the vb. shows that Syrisus comes not from the house but from the side entrance. He sees Onesimus standing in the πρόθυρον of the house of Chaerestratus, and therefore can speak of him as ἔνδον. Extensive use was made of the vestibule in the New Comedy in representing indoor scenes. See on S. 193.

227. ποτέ: with the impv., as well as in questions, ποτέ expresses impatience, Lat. tandem. Construe with δεῖξον.

232. ποῶ: the pres. is more positive than the fut. would have been. The assertion is modified by σχεδόν τι, practically, almost certainly. Of course Syrisus does not understand this until he is told of the circumstances in which the ring was lost.

233. μεθ' οὗ: the antec. is τοῦτον, the ring. — συνεξέκειτο: subj. τὸ παιδίον. —

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

πῶς, ἀβέλτερε;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

Ταυροπολίοις ἀπώλεσεν τοῦτόν ποτε, 235 παννυχίδος οὔσης καὶ γυναικῶν· κατὰ λόγον ἐστὶν βιασμὸν τοῦτον εἶναι παρθένου, ἣ δ' ἔτεκε τοῦτο καζέθηκε δηλαδή.
 εἰ μὲν τις οὖν εὐρὼν ἐκείνην προσφέρει τοῦτον, σαφὲς ἄν' τι δεικνύοι τεκμήριον.
 240 νυνὶ δ' ὑπόνοια καὶ ταραχὴν ἔχει.

ἀβέλτερε: stupid, an abusive epithet of which the comic poets were fond; see Blaydes on Aristoph. Nub. 1201, and cf. Men. 393 K. ἐπαβελτερώσας τὸν πάλαι γ' ἀβέλτερον, of a slave who makes a still greater ass of his master.

234. Ταυροπολίοις: a festival in honor of Artemis Tauropolus, celebrated in the deme of Ilalae Araphenides on the east coast of Attica, north of Brauron, cf. Strabo 9. 1. 22 'Αλαὶ Ἀραφηνίδες, ὅπου τὸ τῆς Ταυροπόλου. Our first knowledge of the festival, except the mere name (Hesychius), is derived from this play. We learn that it was a pervigilium celebrated by the women. Men were excluded, but the occasion naturally attracted some as loiterers on the outskirts, men who got drunk and invaded the privacy of the women if opportunity offered. With the case of Charisius cf. Aristoph. Pac. 873 f. ἦν (Θεωρίαν) ἡμεῖς ποτε ἐπαλομεν Βραυρωνιάδ' ὑποπεπυκότες; The dances of the girls (v. 200) may have been a part of the ritual, for Artemis delighted in φάρμαγγές τε χοροὶ τε (Hom. Hymn. Aphr. 19) and such dances were customary at her festivals (Wernicke in Pauly-Wissowa Realencycl. II, col. 1353). Helen was taking part in such a dance at the festival of Artemis Orthia at Sparta when Theseus carried her away (Plut. Vit. Thes. 31.3). — Note in the first foot an exception to the rule (see on H. 7) that the dactyl which overlaps the following foot is generally contained in a quadrisyllabic word whose accent corresponds with the ictus. Two of the five exceptions in this text (here and v. 255) are proper names; the other three are II. 19, E. 235, S. 440. White, p. 148.

235. παννυχίδος, κτέ.: hendiadys for γυναικῶν παννυχίζουσῶν. — On the dactyl in the first foot see preceding note.

236. τοῦτον: subj. of εἶναι, for τοῦτο (= τὸ γεγονός), attracted to the gender of its predicate βιασμὸν.

239. τοῦτον: τὸν δακτύλιον. — The displacement of τι in the MS. gave in the fifth foot a forbidden anapaest, beginning with a monosyllabic enclitic. See Crit. Ap.

240. νυνὶ: as the case stands, the mother being unknown. — ὑπόνοια: mere suspicion without proof. — ἔχει:

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

ΣΚΟΠΕΙ

αὐτὸς περὶ τούτων. εἰ δ' ἀνασεΐεις, ἀπολαβεῖν Hesych.
τὸν δακτύλιόν με βουλόμενος δοῦναί τέ σοι μικρόν τι, ληρεῖς· οὐκ ἔνεστιν οὐδὲ εἰς παρ' ἔμοι μερισμός.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

οὐδὲ δέομαι ταῦτα ἤδη.

ΣΤΡΙΣΚΟΣ

245 ἤξω διαδραμών — εἰς πόλιν γὰρ ἔρχομαι ἔννι — περὶ τούτων εἰσόμενος τί δεῖ ποεῖν.

Exit Syrisus to the city. Habrotonon approaches Onesimus.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

τὸ παιδάριον, ὃ νῦν τιθηνεῖθ' ἢ γυνή, Ὀνήσιμ', ἔνδον, οὗτος εἶρεν ἀνθρακεύς; involves, subj. τὸ προσφέρειν. Cf. the demand of Syrisus in v. 227.

241. ἀνασεΐεις: lit. brandish with the intention of frightening, terrorize with, cf. Dem. 25. 47 τὴν . . . εἰσαγγελλαν ἀνασεΐσας ποῖ ἔτρεψεν; where Harpocration renders the partic. by ἀπειλησάμενος. The definition of Hesychius, ἀνασεΐεις· ἀναπειθεῖς, ἀνερρεθίζεις (cf. Bekk. Anec. 79. 11 and Suid.), though doubtless a gloss on this passage, does not bring out the full meaning, which is like that of μορμολύττεσθαι, cf. Aristoph. Av. 1245 ταυτὶ λέγουσα μορμολύττεσθαι δοκεῖς; The pres. is conative, If you are trying to bulldoze (me). Syrisus suggests that Onesimus is attempting petty blackmail.

243 f. οὐδε εἰς . . . μερισμός: there's no going-shares in this business with me! — οὐδε δέομαι: I don't want it, either. οὐ (οὐδὲν) δέομαι τινος or τι is very common in this colloquial meaning, implying aversion to a thing or scornful rejection of a proposal, I've no use for, cf. Aristoph. Eq. 673 οὐ δεόμεθα σπονδῶν and the examples collected by Shorey in Cl. Jour. II, pp. 171 ff.

245. ἤξω: return, cf. Aesch. Cho. 3 ἤκω γὰρ εἰς γῆν καὶ κατέρχομαι and H. 46. — διαδραμών: after I've run about, cf. S. 181 and note, Aristoph. Pac. 536 γυναικῶν διατρεχουσῶν εἰς ἀγρόν, Alciph. Ep. 4. 9. 2 Sch. θεραπευίδων διαδρομαί. Syrisus has several errands in town. The same force of δια-, here and there, is seen in such compounds as διαπέμπειν, διαγγέλλειν, and the like.

We see nothing more of Syrisus after this; the action of the play is over before night, and as the plot thickens he and his petty concerns are lost sight of. But he may have appeared for a moment near the end of the play, see on v. 848.

248. ἐνδον: Habrotonon had seen the wife of Syrisus suckling the child in the house of Chaerestratus.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ὥς φησιν.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

ὥς κομψόν, τάλαν.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

καὶ τουτονὶ

250 τὸν δακτύλιον ἐπόντα τοῦμοῦ δεσπότη.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

αἶ, δύσμορ', εἴτ', εἰ τρόφιμος ὄντως ἐστὶ σου, B⁴, quat. γ, p. 10 τρεφόμενον ὅψει τοῦτον ἐν δούλου μέρει;
 κοῦκ ἂν δικαίως ἀποθάνοις;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ὅπερ λέγω,

τὴν μητέρ' οὐδεὶς οἶδεν.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

ἀπέβαλεν δέ, φῆς,

255 Ταυροπολίοις αὐτόν;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

παραινῶν γ', ὥς ἐμοὶ

τὸ παιδάριον εἶφ', ἀκόλουθος.

249. κομψόν: dainty. See above, p. 30.

251. αἶ: hie, Lat. vae, cf. Aristoph. Plut. 706 αἶ, τάλαν. A rare interjection. — εἴτα: so then, explained by the following ei-clause, cf. Batou 5.5 K. εἴτ', εἰ μεμάθηκε, δέσποτα, ζῆν, ἐγκαλεῖς; adesp. 116 K. But perhaps we should read εἴτ', which would better suit the indignant tone of the question. — τρόφιμος: your young master, i.e. the son of your master Charisius; see on v. 1, fr. 600, p. 47. — ἐστὶ: subj. τὸ παιδίον.

252. τρεφόμενον: the pass. is contrasted with τρόφιμος, a cognate of act. meaning. — ὅψει: = περιψέει. Cf. Aristoph. Thesm. 698 τέκνον με περιψέσθ' ἀποστερουμένην;

253. ὅπερ λέγω: as I was saying, i.e. when you interrupted me. For this use of the pres. cf. v. 284.

254. If the child's mother was a slave, he suggests, the child also would be.

256. Athenians of good family were attended in public by one or more servants, cf. Plat. Symp. 217^Α (Alcibiades), Plut. Vit. Phoc. 19 (Phocion's wife), Dem. 21. 158 (Meidias), Aristoph. Av. 73 (Epps).

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

δηλαδή

εἰς τὰς γυναῖκας παννυχιζούσας μόνος ἐνέπεσε· κάμοῦ γὰρ παρούσης ἐγένετο τοιούτον ἕτερον.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

σοῦ παρούσης;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

πέρυσι, ναί,

260 Ταυροπόλοις· παῖσιν γὰρ ἔβαλλον κόραις, αὕτη θ' ὁμοῦ συνέπαιζεν, οὐδ' ἐγὼ τότε — οὐπω γὰρ ἄνδρ' ἦδειν τί ἐστι, καὶ μάλα, μὰ τὴν Ἀφροδίτην —

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τὴν δὲ παῖδ' ἥτις ποτ' ἦν

οἷσθας;

257. μόνος: i.e. without his companions; cf. μόνη v. 270.

258. κάμοῦ: the preceding train of thought — the occasion (v. 255), and the probable circumstances of the adventure of Charisius — now recalls to her mind a similar incident in her own experience.

259. τοιούτον ἕτερον: cf. Alex. 40K. γεγένηται δ', ὡς λέγουσι, κὰν Σάμψ τοιούτου ἕτερον. The neuter forms in -ον of τοιούτος and τοσούτος are distinctly preferred by Attic writers and are alone found in the inscriptions. — πέρυσι: another coincidence: the last Tauropolia had been celebrated ten months before; the child is one month old.

260. παῖσιν κόραις: cf. Aristoph. Lys. 595 παῖδα κόρην γεγάμηκεν, Theophilus 12K. κωθαριστρίας ἐρώων, παιδὸς κόρης, Alex. 162K. παῖς υἱός, 112K. κόραι θυγατέρες.

261. συνέπαιζεν: the question of Onesimus in v. 263 implies that Habrotonon has made some reference to the girl in the case. If we retain the first pers. συνέπαιζον (with αὐτή) we not only miss this allusion but also have to assume that Habrotonon, a slave-girl who had been hired to play the lute for the dance, participated in the play (dance) of the others. See Crit. Ap. — οὐδ' ἐγὼ τότε: she was about to say, for example, ὕπενόησα κακὸν τι εἶναι, referring to τοιούτον ἕτερον.

262. This hint at Habrotonon's recent innocence is an important clue to her character; see above, p. 30, and on v. 848. — καὶ μάλα: in response to a gesture of incredulity on the part of Onesimus.

263. τὴν δὲ παῖδα: he recalls her to the matter in hand.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

πυθοίμην ἄν· παρ' αἷς γὰρ ἦν ἐγὼ 265 γυναιξί, τούτων ἦν φίλη.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

πατὴρ τίνος

ἤκουσας;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

οὐδὲν οἶδα, πλὴν ἰδοῦσά γε γνοίην ἂν αὐτήν. εὐπρεπής τις, ὧ θεοί, καὶ πλουσίαν ἔφασάν τιν'.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

αὐτὴ 'στιν τυχόν.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

οὐκ οἶδ'· ἐπλανήθη γάρ μεθ' ἡμῶν οὖς' ἐκεῖ, 270 εἶπ' ἑξαπίνης κλάουσα προστρέχει μόνη, τίλλουσ' ἑαυτῆς τὰς τρίχας, καλὸν πάνυ καὶ λεπτόν, ὧ θεοί, ταρατῖνον σφόδρα

264. πυθοίμην ἄν: potential, I could find out. — παρ' αἷς: i.e. the members of the party by which she had been engaged. As stated above, the girl had joined this party.

265. τίνος: sc. εἴη. τις is often used instead of ὅστις in indir. questions. Cf. πότεν v. 299 for ὅπόθεν and many similar instances.

266. πλὴν γε: although, introduces a correction of the too sweeping assertion οὐδὲν οἶδα. Cf. Aristoph. Lys. 5 οὐδεμία πάρεστιν. . . πλὴν ἢ γ' ἐμὴ κωμῆ- τις ἢδ' ἐξέρχεται. πλὴν is often used for πλὴν οὖν.

268. αὐτὴ: ἢ αὐτή. The girl whom Habrotonon remembers may be the same, he thinks, as the mother of the child. αὐτὴ would mean the very one whom we wish to find, αὐτή this girl of whom you speak (is she whom we seek). All three interpretations have their adherents. See on v. 645. αὐτὴ in the sense of my mistress is not to be thought of, for Onesimus has as yet no suspicion of this possibility. — τυχόν: see on II. 31.

272. ταρατῖνον: woven from the silky byssus of the pinna shell and named from Tarentum, the place of manufacture; cf. "cambric." Defined by Photius and Suidas as λεπτὸν καὶ διαφανὲς ἱμάτιον, οὐ πάντως πορφυροῦν, ὥς τινες ὑπέλαβον, by Hesychius as ἱμάτιον γυναικίον λεπτὸν κρόσσους (fringes) ἔχον ἐκ τοῦ ἐνὸς μέρους. In spite of these ἀπολωλεκῦν· ὅλον γὰρ ἐγεγόνει ῥάκος.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

καὶ τοῦτον εἶχεν;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

εἶχ' ἴσως, ἀλλ' οὐκ ἐμοὶ

275 ἔδειξεν· οὐ γὰρ ψεύσομαι.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τί χρὴ ποεῖν

ἐμὲ νῦν;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

ὄρα σὺ τοῦτ'· ἐὰν δὲ νοῦν ἔχῃς ἐμοί τε πείθῃ, τοῦτο πρὸς τὸν δεσπότην φανερὸν ποιήσεις. εἰ γὰρ ἐστ' ἐλευθέρᾳς¹ παιδός, τί τοῦτον λανθάνειν δεῖ τὸ γεγονός²; statements, however, it is probable that this diaphanous stuff, which revealed the outlines of the body (Aristaen. Ep. 1. 25), was more often used for the chiton or chemise than for the himation. The Dorian chiton was fastened at each shoulder by a brooch (περόνη) and was open on the right side; the Ionic was sewn down the right side and did not need pins at the shoulders. Both, however, were girt at the waist. Now the ταραντίνα mentioned in a Theban inscription (Collitz SGD. 714. 3) are both open (σιφνά) and sewn (ράμματ' ἔχοντα), and therefore chitons. A ταραντίνον παραπόρφυρον ράμματ' ἔχον is mentioned along with a χιτῶν παραπόρφυρος: the difference is in the material. The ταραντινίδιον is called a θέριστρον by schol. Luc. De cal. 16 and Dial. meretr. 7. 2, and the θερίστρον worn by Praxinoa in Theocr. 15. 69 seems to be identical with her περονατρίς in v. 21, i.e. her chiton worn over a chemise, but under the ἀμπέχορον or himation. The ταραντίνον worn by the ithyphalli according to Semus (apud Athen. 622c) was girt, hence not a himation. So in schol. Aristoph. Lys. 45 it is called an ἐνδυμα, not an ἐπίβλημα. The πορφυρὰ πτέρυξ of v. 187, presumably a piece of this garment, was, as we have seen, torn from a chiton.

273. Cf. [Theocr.] 27. 57 τάμπέχορον ποίησας ἐμόν (ὅλον coni. Ahrens) ράκος.

274. τοῦτον: τὸν δακτύλιον.

277. τοῦτο: τὸ πῶγμα. — πρὸς . . . φανερὸν: cf. μηνύειν πρὸς τινα, v. 284. The const. with πρὸς is not quite equivalent to that with the dat. πρὸς is used of the judge or magistrate, v. 857. The difference is about that between before (acc.) and to (dat.).

279. παιδός: referring to the mother, cf. v. 263. The subj. of ἐστὶ is τὸ παιδίον. — τί, κτέ.: i.e. he will be free then to marry the girl, and that will end the

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

280 πρότερον ἐκείνην ἥτις ἐστίν, Ἀβρότονον, εὐρώμεν· ἐπὶ τούτῳ δ' ἐμοὶ σὺ νῦν φράσσον.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

οὐκ ἂν δυναίμην, τὸν ἀδικοῦντα πρὶν σαφῶς τίς ἐστίν εἰδέναι. φοβοῦμαι τοῦτ' ἐγώ, μάτην τι μηνύειν πρὸς ἐκείνας ἃς λέγω.
285 τίς οἶδεν εἰ καί, τούτον ἐνέχυρον λαβὼν τότε τις παρ' αὐτοῦ τῶν παρόντων, ἀπέβαλεν C², quat. γ, p. 11 ἕτερος κυβεύων; τυχὸν ἴσως εἰς συμβολὰς ὑπόθημ' ἔδωκ', ἣ συντιθέμενος περὶ τινος present situation. Habrotonon is gradually thinking out her plan.

280. ἥτις: the indef. rel. is normally used to introduce the indir. question when the dir. question would be introduced by τίς, cf. v. 283; but see on v. 265.

281. ἐπὶ τούτῳ: with this end in view, cf. v. 912, P. 895 παιδων ἐπ' ἀρότῳ. — φράσσον: give counsel, cf. Aeschin. 1. 129 Ἡσίοδος . . . πάντ' σαφῶς φράζων.

282. τὸν ἀδικοῦντα: Habrotonon knows that the guilty man is the last possessor of the ring, but so long as she is not sure that this is Charisius she fears to lay doubtful information before the women (ἐκείνας) for whom she played at the festival. All uncertainties as to the man must be eliminated before she involves the girl.

284. ἃς λέγω: v. 264. On the pres. cf. vv. 253, 657.

285. καί: construe εἰ καὶ ἕτερος (sc. καὶ μὴ Χαρίσσιος) ἀπέβαλεν, a const. made easier by the strong penthemimeral caesura. The intervening clause explains how this other person may have got the ring; the partic. κυβεύων, added as an afterthought, how he may have lost it. On this use of καί see Kühner-Gerth § 524. 2 and 3. The affirmative form of τίς οἶδεν εἰ would be ἴσως.

287 f. εἰς συμβολὰς ὑπόθημα: as a pledge toward a subscription dinner. — συμβολάς: lit. contributions toward a common meal, then the meal itself, as in Xen. Symp. 1. 16 θαρρεῖν, ὅτι ἔσονται συμβολαί. — ὑπόθημα: pledge, security, here only in this meaning, instead of ὑποθήκη. For the practice cf. Ter. Eun. 539 ff. heri aliquot adulescenti coimus in Piraeo, in hunc diem ut de symbolis essemus. Chaeream ei rei prae-fecimus; dati annuli, etc. — ἔδωκε: subj. Charisius.

288. ἣ: a third possibility. — συντιθέμενος: making a wager, a rare meaning found in Plut. Vit. Alcib. 8. 1 Ἰπποκρίῳ . . . ἐνέτριψε κόνδυλον, οὐχ ὑπ' ὀργῆς . . . ἀλλ' ἐπὶ γέλῳτι συνθέμενος πρὸς τοὺς ἐταίρους. Only the idea making an agreement resides in the vb., περὶ indicating the stake on which one agrees.

περιείχετ', εἴτ' ἔδωκεν. ἕτερα μυρία 290 ἐν τοῖς πότοις τοιαῦτα γίγνεσθαι φιλεῖ.
 πρὶν εἶδέναι δὲ τὸν ἀδικοῦντ' οὐ βούλομαι ζητεῖν ἐκείνην οὐδὲ μηνύειν ἐγὼ τοιοῦτον οὐδέν.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

οὐτ' ἀκῶς μέντοι λέγεις.

τί οὖν ποιήσει τις;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

θέασ', Ὀνήσιμε, 295 ἂν συναρέσῃ σοι τοῦμόν' ἐνθύμημ' ἄρα· ἐμὸν ποιήσομαι τὸ πρᾶγμα τούτ' ἐγώ, τὸν δακτύλιον λαβοῦσα τ' εἴσω τουτονὶ εἴσειμι πρὸς ἐκείνον.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

λέγ' ὃ λέγεις· ἄρτι γὰρ

182 K.

νοῶ.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

κατιδὼν μ' ἔχουσαν ἀνακρινεῖ πόθεν 300 εἴληφα. φήσω· “Ταυροπολίοις παρθένος ἔτ' οὔσα” —τά τ' ἐκείνη γενόμενα πάντ' ἐμὰ ποουμένη· τὰ πλείστα δ' αὐτῶν οἶδ' ἐγώ.

289. περιείχετο: probably a military figure originally, encompassed, besieged, cf. Xen. Cyrop. 7. 1. 24 τὸ Κύρου στράτευμα παντόθεν περιείχετο ὑπὸ τῶν πολεμίων. If for the personal agent we substitute circumstances, πράγμασι, we arrive at the meaning required here, embarrassed. The vb. seems not to occur elsewhere in this absolute meaning. — ἔδωκεν: i.e. the ring instead of the money which he had lost on the wager.

291. On the unusual tribrach in the third foot see note on v. 46.

293. μέντοι: in positive affirma-tions, certainly, cf. Plat. Symp. 176B τοῦτο μέντοι εἰ λέγεις.

294 f. ποιήσει: deliberative fut. — θέασαι, κτέ.: cf. Plaut. Trin. 763 sed vide consilium si placet. — ἐνθύμημα: idea, plan, used by Xenophon in this sense, e.g. Anab. 3. 5. 12 τὸ μὲν ἐνθύμημα χαρίεν ἐδόκει εἶναι, but rarely by others.

296. ποιήσομαι: assume as my own. — τὸ πρᾶγμα τούτο: τὰ ἐκείνη γενόμενα of v. 301 and the present circumstances.

298. On the tribrach in the fourth foot see note on v. 46 and cf. v. 291.

299. ἔχουσαν: sc. τὸν δακτύλιον.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ἄριστά γ' ἀνθρώπων.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

ἐὰν δ' οἰκείον ᾗ
αὐτῷ τὸ πρᾶγμ', εὖ ἴσθ' ἐπάξει φερόμενος 303 ἐπὶ τὸν ἔλεγχον, καὶ μεθύων γε νῦν ἐρεῖ πρότερος ἅπαντα καὶ προπετῶς· ἃ δ' ἂν λέγῃ προσομολογήσω, τοῦ διαμαρτεῖν μηδὲ ἐν προτέρα λέγουσ'.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ὑπέρευγε, νῆ τὸν Ἥλιον.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

τὰ κοινὰ ταυτὶ δ' ἀκκιούμαι τῷ λόγῳ,

303. ἄριστά γ': sc. ἐνθυμεί.—ἀνθρώπων: like πάντων, enhances the superlative, as often, cf. Plat. Theaet. 148ⁿ ἄριστά γ' ἀνθρώπων, ὦ παῖδες. Cf. Plaut. Mil. 245 immo ut optume and note on v. 311.

304. ἐπάξει: cf. Eur. Ion 327 οὐδ' ἤξας εἰς ἔρευναν ἐξευρεῖν γονάς; but see Crit. App.—φερόμενος: cf. Lyc. Leocr. 59 ἤξει δ' ἴσως ἐπ' ἐκείνον τὸν λόγον φερόμενος (Hense), P. 158.

305 f. μεθύων γε: he has been drinking with his guests before luncheon, πότους ἐωθινοὺς πίνει, Baton 5.3 K.—ἐρεῖ . . . προπετῶς: will blurt out the whole story first.

307. προσομολογήσω: besides (προσ-) what she is already aware of by her own knowledge, cf. v. 302.—τοῦ διαμαρτεῖν: the gen. of the inf. to express purpose, instead of the more common const. τοῦ . . . ἕνεκα. Generally negative, as here and in v. 310, but in P. 56 the positive const. See GMT. § 798 and Kühner-Gerth § 478. 4 c.

308. προτέρα λέγουσα: by speaking first.

309. τὰ κοινὰ ταυτί: cf. Ter. Hec. 117 et haec communia omnium quae sunt patrum. Note the late position of δέ.—ἀκκιούμαι, κτέ.: Ἰ' ὧ dissemble and talk only in common-places, thus. This vb. is not trans.; ταῦτα is cognate acc. The ancient lexicographers are in essential agreement as to the meaning of ἀκκίεσθαι. The same definition is found in Suidas, Photius (Berl.), and Bekk. Anec., p. 364: θρυπτόμενος (om. Suid.), προσποιούμενος, γυναικίζόμενος· ἢ μωραίων. . . σημαίνει δὲ καὶ τὸν θέλοντα μὲν (Phot., τὸ ἐθέλοντά τι Suid., λέγοντα θέλοντα Bekk.) προσποιούμενον δὲ (-εῖσθαι Suid.) μὴ θέλειν. Cf. schol. Plat. Gorg. 497 A, schol. Luc. De merc. cond. 14. Et. Mag. gives simply τὸ μωραίνειν ἢ προσποιεῖσθαι εὐήθειαν. In all the passages where it occurs there is the underlying meaning of affectation, gen. of a woman (Philippides 5 K., Ael. Ep. 9 ἀκκίζονται 310 τοῦ μὴ διαμαρτεῖν· “ὡς ἀναιδῆς ἦσθα καὶ ἰταμός τις.”

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

εὖγε.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

“κατέβαλες δέ μ’ ὡς σφόδρα, ἱμάτια δ’ οἷ’ ἀπώλεσ’ ἢ τάλαιν’ ἐγώ,” ῥῆσω. πρὸ τούτου δ’ ἔνδον αὐτὸ βούλομαι λάβουσα κλαῦσαι καὶ φιλῆσαι καὶ πόθεν

315 ἔλαβεν ἐρωτᾶν τὴν ἔχουσιν.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

Ἡράκλεις.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

τὸ πέρας δὲ πάντων, “παιδίον τοῖνυν,” ἐρῶ, ἤδη γεγονός σοι,” — καὶ τὸ νῦν εὐρημένον δείξω.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

πανούργως καὶ κακοήθως, Ἀβρότονον.

καὶ θρόπτονται), cf. Philem. 4 K. οὐδὲ εἰς ἀκκισμὸς οὐδὲ λῆρος (as usual with hetaerae). In Plat. Gorg. 497 A it is used of affected ignorance; of mere pretense and affectation in Luc. De merc. cond. 14 and Cic. Ad Att. 2. 19. 5.

310. See Crit. App.

311. εὖγε: compare the comments of Onesimus in vv. 303, 308, 311, with those of Periplectomenus on the scheme of Palaestrio in Plaut. Mil. 241 euge, euge, lepide, laudo commentum tuum.

312. ἱμάτια . . . ἀπέλεσα: Habrotonon is now on safe ground, cf. v. 272 f. ἱμάτια is general, clothes, cf. Herod. 1. 9 τῶν ἱματίων κατὰ ἐν ἑκαστον ἐκδύνουσα.

313. αὐτό: i.e. τὸ παιδίον.

314 f. πόθεν λαβέν: she must know the time and circumstances of the child's exposure in order to trace its mother, after Charisius has acknowledged his guilt. She will fondle the child to ingratiate herself with its foster-mother, from whom she intends to borrow it.

316. τὸ πέρας: const. as adv. with ἐρῶ. This will be the climax. Cf. vv. 70, 676.

318. πανούργως καὶ κακοήθως: like a true rogue and spitefully, a compliment from one of the same stripe. Cf. Plut. Mor. 28 A μηδὲν οὖν τούτων κομψὸν (smart) ἡγεῖσθαι καὶ πανούργον (clever) ὁ ποὺς ἐθίξεω, Plaut. Epid. 546 muliebris adhibenda mihi malitia nunc est.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

ἂν δ' ἐξετασθῇ ταῦτα καὶ φανῇ πατὴρ 320 ὦν οὗτος αὐτοῦ, τὴν κόρην ζητήσομεν κατὰ σχολήν.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ἐκεῖνο δ' οὐ λέγεις, ὅτι ἐλευθέρα γίγναι σύ· τοῦ γὰρ παιδίου μητέρα σε νομίσας λύσεται εὐθὺς δηλαδὴ.

C⁴, quat. y, p. 12

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

οὐκ οἶδα· βουλοίμην δ' ἄν.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

οὐ γὰρ οἶσθα σύ;
 325 ἀλλ' οὐ χάρις τις, Ἀβρότονον, τούτων ἐμοί;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

νὴ τὼ θεῶ· πάντων γ' ἐμαυτῇ σ' αἴτιον ἡγήσομαι τούτων.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

εἰδὲν δὲ μηκέτι
 ζητῆς ἐκείνην ἐξεπίτηδες, ἀλλ' ἐᾷς, παρακρουσαμένη με, πῶς τὸ τοιοῦθ' ἔξει;

319. φανῇ: shall be shown.

321. ἐκεῖνο: looks forward, as does ἐκεῖ in v. 103.

322. γίγναι: prophetic pres., stand to become, cf. Thuc. 1. 121. 4 μᾶτε νικῶ ναυμαχίας κατὰ τὸ εἶδος ἀλίσκονται. The MS. gives γίγη. For γίγη- and γίγη- see on v. 35. The endings -ει and -η were merely different ways of representing the same sound from near the beginning of the fourth century on, but the practice of Menander's time strongly favored -ει. See Kühner-Blass § 211. 3.

323. λύσεται: from the leno, cf.
 Pet. fr. v. 10, p. 95.

324. οὐ γάρ, κτέ.: what, you don't know?

325. χάρις τις: sc. ἐστὶ. He forgets that he was in a helpless quandary when Habrotonon took hold.

326. πάντων, κτέ.: a generous reply, but spoken with a touch of playful sarcasm. It is important, besides, for Habrotonon to have the full confidence of Onesimus, for he has not yet intrusted her with the ring.

327 f. μηκέτι ζητῆς: don't go on to seek, i.e. give up your idea of seeking.
 ζητῆς is often so used with verbs expressing an action not yet undertaken. —

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

τάλαν,

330 τίνος ἔνεκεν; παίδων ἐπιθυμεῖν σοι δοκῶ;
 ἔλευθέρα μόνον γενοίμην. ὦ θεοί, τοῦτον λάβοιμι μισθὸν ἐκ τούτων.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

λάβοις.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

οὐκοῦν συναρέσκει σοι;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

συναρέσκει διαφόρως.

ἀν γὰρ κακοθεύσῃ, μαχοῦμαί σοι τότε.
 335 δυνήσομαι γάρ. ἐν δὲ τῷ παρόντι νῦν ἴδωμεν εἰ τοῦτ' ἔστιν.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

οὐκοῦν συνδοκεῖ;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

μάλιστα.

ἔες: sc. τὸ ζητεῖν or possibly ἐκείνην, like ἔας χαίρειν, cf. Eur. fr. 491.5 N. οὐ χρὴ μάχεσθαι πρὸς τὸ θεῖον, ἀλλ' ἔαν.

330. τίμος ἔνεκεν: sc. τοῦτο ποήσαιμ' ἄν. — παίδων, κτέ.: cf. Luc. Dial.
 meretr. 2.1 παιδοτροφεῖν . . . πρᾶγμα ἑταῖρα βαρύντατον.

334. κακοθεύσῃ: play me false, lit.
exhibit κακότης, bad disposition. The
 vb. is late and rare, used by schol.
 Aristoph. Lys. 313 in the meaning here required, and in the late medical writers (e.g. Galen, Aetius) of malignant wounds. Cf. κακοθήνυμα, a scoundrelly trick, Plut. Vit. Pomp. 37. 3, and κακοθήθως v. 318. — μαχοῦμαι, κτέ.: I'll have it out with you then. Cf. v. 736.

335. δυνήσομαι γάρ: since he will know that she has duped Charisius. — ἐν τῷ παρόντι νῦν: a common redundant locution, cf. Plat. Phaedo 67c ἐν τῷ νῦν παρόντι, Thuc. 1. 95. 7 ἐν τῷ τότε παρόντι.

336. τοῦτο: i.e. the present plan, which he has suspected her of intending not to carry out, εὐρεῖν τὴν παῖδα.
 — His delay in handing over the ring, after having given his consent to the plan, causes Habrotonon to repeat her question, οὐκοῦν συνδοκεῖ;

ABPOTONON

τὸν δακτύλιον ἀποδίδου ταχύ.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

λάμβανε.

ABPOTONON (taking the ring)

φίλη Πειθοί, παρούσα σύμμαχος

981 K.
Aristaen. 2. 1

πόει κατορθοῦν τοὺς λόγους οὓς ἂν λέγω.

Exit Habrotonon into the house of Chaerestratus.

SC. 4. ONESIMUS alone

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

340 τό γ' ἀστικόν. τὸ γύναιον ὡς ἤσθηθ' ὅτι κατὰ τὸν ἔρωτ' οὐκ ἔστ' ἐλευθερίας τυχεῖν, ἄλλως δ' ἀλύει, τὴν ἑτέραν πορεύεται ὁδόν. ἀλλ' ἐγὼ τὸν πάντα δουλεύσω χρόνον, Aristaen. 1. 19

337 f. ἀποδίδου, λάμβανε: note the pres. imperatives. The first conveys a tone of impatience, as if Habrotonon had already demanded the ring by ἀπόδος and is now interested in the performance of the act more than in the result of it, proceed to hand me. Cf. the Irish locution be after handing. The present is repeated by Onesimus with mocking effect, proceed to take it.

338. φίλη Πειθοί, κτέ.: diction and meter betray the tragic style. Aristaenetus begins one of his letters, (2. 1, a petition) with a paraphrase of these lines: ἄλλ', ὦ φίλη Πειθοί, παρούσα συνεργὸς ποίει κατορθοῦν ἀνσίμως οὓς ἂν λέγω λόγους (Körte). Habrotonon is not thinking of Aphrodite's handmaid, but of the goddess who bestows the power of convincing speech, the Persuasion of whom Antigone (Eur. fr. 170 N.) says: οὐκ ἔστι Πειθοῦς ἱερὸν ἄλλο πλὴν λόγος, καὶ βωμὸς αὐτῆς ἔστ' ἐν ἀνθρώπου φύσει.

340. τό γ' ἀστικόν: the cleverness of her! Sc. πᾶγμα or χρήμα, cf. S. 178. For the position of γέ, whose effect is really with the adj., cf. Soph. O.C. 977 πῶς ἂν τό γ' ἄκον πᾶγμ' ἂν εἰκότως ψέγοις; — ὡς ἤσθητο: cf. v. 112.

341. κατὰ τὸν ἔρωτα: in accordance with (i.e. by means of) love, cf. Aesch. Prom. 212 οὐ κατ' ἰσχὺν . . . δόλω δέ . . . κρατεῖν. — The Cairo Menander has but three instances of an anapaest in the fifth foot contained in a word which begins in the fourth foot: here, P. 5 (proper name), S. 39. White, p. 152.

342. ἄλλως ἀλύει: was wasting her pains. Photius (Berl.) defines the vb. as = τὸ μηδὲν πράττειν, a meaning which suits this passage, but see note on the fr. cited by him (below, p. 100). The original meaning wander, be off the track, is still felt, cf. ὁδόν. — τὴν ἑτέραν ὁδόν: i.e. δόλω πράττειν, contrasted with κατὰ τὸν ἔρωτα above.

- λέμφος, ἀπόπληκτος, οὐδαμῶς προνοητικὸς 345 τὰ τοιαῦτα. παρὰ ταύτης δ' ἴσως τι λήψομαι, ἂν ἐπιτύχη· καὶ γὰρ δίκαιον. — ὡς κενὰ καὶ διαλογίζομ', ὁ κακοδαίμων, προσδοκῶν 564 K.
 χάριν κομιεῖσθαι παρὰ γυναικός. μὴ μόνον κακόν τι προσλάβοιμι. νῦν ἐπισφαλῇ 350 τὰ πράγματ' ἔστι τὰ περὶ τὴν κεκτημένην ταχέως· ἔαν γὰρ εὐρεθῇ πατρὸς κόρη ἐλευθέρου μήτηρ τε τοῦ νῦν παιδίου γεγονυῖ, ἐκείνην λήψεται, ταύτης πατήρ εἴτ' εὐχερῶς αὐτὴν ἀπολείπειν πείσεται.
 355 καὶ νῦν χαριέντως ἐκνευκέναι δοκῶν τὸ μὴ δι' ἐμοῦ ταυτὶ κυκᾶσθαι. χαιρέτω τὸ μ' ἄλλα πράττειν. ἂν δέ τις λάβῃ μ' ἔτι

344. λέμφος: sniveling, lit. dirty-nosed, a word from the vulgar speech. Also in 493 K. — ἀπόπληκτος: doddering, lit. stricken (in mind), stupid. Cf. schol. Luc. Lex. 18 ἀποπλήκτους καὶ λεμπώδεις.

345. τοιαῦτα: οἷα μ' ἐλευθερῶσαι.

346. ἐπιτύχη: used absolutely, succeeds, also in P. 252.

347 ff. καὶ ... προσλάβοιμι: quoted by Stobaeus, but with καίτοι for καὶ δια-

348. κομιεῖσθαι: the fut. is exceptional with verbs of expecting, hoping, etc. Here the future idea is given especial prominence. See v. 215, and GMT. § 113.

349. προσλάβοιμι: he is fearful of getting into further (προσ-) trouble, as before, v. 212. — ἐπισφαλῇ: cf. v. 126, and Pet. fr., v. 36, p. 99.

350. κεκτημένην: see on H. 37.

351. ταχέως: const. with ἐστὶ, and that right soon. The adv. is reserved to the end of the sentence for emphasis. — εὐρεθῇ: complement γεγονυῖα. The subj. is (ἡ) κόρη. The art. is omitted metri causa, as often, cf. Aristoph. Lys. 101 πάσαισιν ὑμῖν ἐστὶν ἀποδημῶν ἀνὴρ. A full collection of instances in Sachtschal, De com. Graec. serm. metro accom., p. 27.

354. εἴτ' εὐχερῶς: i.e. there will be no need of arguments then. — ἀπολείπειν: on the legal meaning see note on v. 410. Cf. abire in Ter. Hec. 156. The text here is very uncertain.

355. ἐκνευκέναι: ducked out of, dodged, a figure from boxing. ἐκνευσίς is the bending aside of the head to avoid a blow.

356. τὸ μὴ ... κυκᾶσθαι: the negative is due to the idea of avoiding in ἐκνευκέναι, see GMT. § 811. With ταυτὶ κυκᾶσθαι cf. ἕτερόν τι κυκᾶν, v. 211. Another complication has been concocted, but Onesimus thinks he cannot be held responsible for the result.

357. τὸ μ' ἄλλα πράττειν: all other projects, lit. my engaging in still other περιεργασάμενόν ᾗ λαλήσαντ', ἐκτεμεῖν NT¹, quat. γ, p. 13 δίδωμ' ἑμαντοῦ τοὺς — ὀδόντας.

Sees Smicrines approaching from the city.

ἀλλ' ὀδί'

360 τίς ἐσθ' ὁ προσιών; Σμικρίνης ἀναστρέφει ἐξ ἄστεως πάλιν, ταράκτικῶς ἔχων αὖθις. πέπυσται τὰς ἀληθεῖς αἰτίας παρὰ τινος οὗτος; ἐκποδὼν δὲ βούλομαι ποεῖν ἑμαντόν. τυχὸν ἴσως, ἐμοὶ δόκεῖν, 365 πρόσέρχεται ἐπὶ τὴν θυγατέρ'. ἀλλὰ νῦν με δεῖ

. ρ

υ

MT¹

Enter Smicrines; exit Onesimus in the opposite direction.

SC. 5. SMICRINES alone

367 ἐξη - - - - - ἄσωτος - - - - -

intrigues. πράττειν = intrigue is common.

359. ὀδόντας: to avoid completing the vulgar colloquial expression with δρχεις, the word ὀδόντας is substituted παρὰ προσδοκίαν. Cf. the similar adjuration in Plaut. Aul. 250: si hercle ego (Euclio) te (Staphylam) non elinguandam dederō usque ab radicibus, impero auctorque ego sum, ut tu me quōi vis castrandum loces. The latter punishment, for men, Plaut. Mil. 1409, 1420, 1426; the former, for talkative women, Herond. β. 40 ἐγὼ δὲ τούτων αἰτίη λαλεῦσ' εἰμὶ. ἡ πολλὰ τὴν μεν γλώσσαν ἐκτεμεῖν δέεται. Cf. Eur. Cycl. 644 τοὺς ὀδόντας ἐκβαλεῖν οὐ βούλομαι τυπτόμενος. — ἀλλ' ὀδί: ἀλλ' οὐτοσί MS. Cf. Aristoph. Ach. 122 ὀδί δὲ τίς ποτ' ἐστίν; The conj. is needed to make the transition.

361. ἐξ ἄστεως: he had departed thither at the end of the arbitration scene, v. 154. — ταράκτικῶς ἔχων: in a mood to cause disturbance. Onesimus judges by his manner.

362. αὖθις: const. with the preceding words, not with πάλιν. Smicrines is bent on making trouble wherever we see him except in the arbitration scene. — πέπυσται: Onesimus is now assuming a probable reason for Smicrines' return. — τὰς ἀληθεῖς αἰτίας: the true reasons for the quarrel between Pamphila and Charisius, namely, the birth of the child. But we shall see that Onesimus is wrong in this conjecture.

363. παρὰ τινος: possibly Davus, with whom Onesimus has gossiped freely (first scene of first act), had spread abroad the report of the doings of Charisius so that it had come to the ears of Smicrines. The rest of the text here is highly conjectural.

367 ff. Smicrines probably explains why he has come back from the city.

- ὅλη γ - - - - - 370 εὐθὺς - - - - - σαφῶς - - - - - πίνειν - - - - - τοῦνομα^α - - - - - ζῆν αὐτὸν^α - - - - - 375 πλέον ἡμέρων^α - - - - - αὐτὸν διαλῦσαι^α - - - - - οἶμοι, τάλας^α - - - - - κοινωνός^α - - - - - προσῆλθ - - - - - 380 ὅτε τὴν - - - - - πυνθανόμενος^α - - - - - φίλοι, - - - - - ἐναγ - - - - -

[Lacuna of ca. 9 verses to NT².]

Smicrines sees a Cook approaching from the city, accompanied by his assistants. Somebody, probably Charisius, comes out of the house of Chaerestratus and accosts the Cook. Smicrines withdraws to one side and overhears the conversation.

SC. 6. SMICRINES, COOK, CHARISIUS

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

392 - - - - - οὐ γὰρ μαγείρων ἐστὶ δὴ^α

We can see that he has learned things about the conduct of Charisius (cf. ἄσωτος, πίνειν, ζῆν αὐτόν) that he apparently did not know before, and that he is in a bad frame of mind. The first word of his speech may have been ἐξηπατήθην.

368. ἄσωτος: prodigal, in reference to Charisius. In Men. 618 K. a person describes himself as εὐτελής ὑπερβολῇ and another as ἄσωτος, πολυτελής, θρασὺς σφόδρα.

372. πίνειν: for Smicrines' views on drinking see Pet. fr., vv. 1 ff., p. 94.

375. πλέον ἡμερών: possibly a reference to the fact that Charisius has for some days (see on v. 223) been living apart from Pamphila.

376. διαλῦσαι: see on v. 11. Perhaps the thought was περάσω δὲ νῦν | αὐτὸν διαλῦσαι πρὸς γυναῖκα; Whatever the present intention of Smicrines, he soon gives up all thought of bringing about a reconciliation.

378. κοινωνός: cf. Pamphila's words to Smicrines in v. 705.

382. φίλοι: apparently an appeal to the spectators, as in v. 672, S. 57, 117.

οὐδείς, σφάψως οἶδ', ἐχθρὸς ὑμῖν.

NT², quat. γ, p. 14

ΧΑΡΙΣΙΟΣ

ποικίλον

ἄριστον ἀριστῶμεν. ὦ τριθάβλιος

395 ἐγὼ κατὰ πολλά. νῦν μὲν οὖν οὐκ οἶδ' ὅπως

διασκεδᾶν σ' ἀπρακτὸς· ἀλλ' ἐὰν πάλιν

393 ff. The exact purport of these broken lines is not easy to divine. It seems probable, however, that the Cook is being berated for his delay in keeping his engagement. He was summoned by Onesimus just before the action of the play began; he had not yet arrived in v. 166, where we are told that the time for the meal was long past. The guests have long been in the house with Charisius (v. 213) whiling away the time in drink (Pet. fr., v. 34, p. 99). The present scene is very brief, some 15 to 20 verses. The Cook reappears later on, early in the next act. The brief cook-scene in S. 71 ff. forms a similar intermezzo.

The person who here talks to the Cook can hardly have been Onesimus, who has just quit the scene in order to avoid meeting Smicrines. When he returns he accompanies Chaerestratus (Pet. fr., v. 16, p. 96), who enters through one of the parodoi. Nor can the interlocutor be Smicrines, who is not concerned with the failure or success of the entertainment. There remains Charisius. Up to this time he has been in the house with his guests (v. 217).

Accepting this view, the poet's motive in devising this scene is clear. Smicrines is to see with his own eyes — he has hitherto known only through gossip (v. 362) — to what lengths his son-in-law goes in his extravagance. The Cook with his retinue of assistants bearing provisions for an elaborate luncheon gave him striking testimony to the daily waste of money in the household.

393. ὑμῖν: dependents regularly use the pl. in reference to a gentleman's household, cf. vv. 178, 195. — ποικίλον: apparently dainty, elegant, said sarcastically. Cf. Plut. Mor. 129 τρυφαῖς (foods) κεχηρμένους . . . ποικίλως. Lit. diversified, complex.

394. ἄριστον: luncheon, in Homeric times breakfast. In the time of the New Comedy it had become a sumptuous entertainment, given about noon and followed by a symposium; see on v. 166.

395 f. νῦν μὲν οὖν: contrasted with ἀλλὰ πάλιν. — οὐκ οἶδ' ὅπως, κτέ.: the text is very obscure, but the remains point possibly to διασκεδᾶν σ' ἀπρακτος, dependent upon οὐκ οἶδ' ὅπως, I'm to dismiss you before I've accomplished anything (i.e. in giving my guests a luncheon). Charisius seems to be constrained to overlook the Cook's shortcomings this time. On the inf. instead of the fut. ind. see Kühner-Gerth § 552, Anm. 7, and cf. Xen. Hell. 6. 2. 32 ἤνπερ ὅπως μήτε . . . εἶναι. It is a mixed const., a blending of οὐκ οἶδα διασκεδᾶν and οὐκ οἶδ' ὅπως διασκεδῶ. — ἀλλ' ἐὰν πάλιν: the menacing tone is unmistakable.

ῥοεῖς τι τοιοῦτον, ὦ μάγειρ', οὐ τίς τύχη ῥώσει σ'.

Exit Charisius into the house of Chaerestratus.

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

ἀπειλεῖς ἐμέ; βαλεῖτ' εἰς μακαρίας;

Sc. 7. SMICRINES alone

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ (aside)

----- Σ ΤΙΝΟΣ

[Lacuna of 1 v. to M².]

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ (?)

402 ----- ν
 ----- κη
 ----- εν
 ----- ἀπαξ
 405 ----- εν ὁ δὲ
 ----- ψάλτριάς
 ----- ωσι καὶ
 ----- μίαν γὰρ
 ----- πολλὰ χροῦ. τί δὲ
 410 ----- πέμπειν ἵνα

M²

398. βαλεῖτ' εἰς μακαρίας: cf. Plat. Hipp. mai. 293 A τί τοῦτο; βάλλ' εἰς μακαρίας, Aristoph. Eq. 1151 ἀπαγ' εἰς μακαρίας ἐκποδῶν, Antiph. 245 K. εἰς μακαρίαν τὸ λουτρόν, and the similar expressions βάλλ' εἰς κόρακας, εἰς φθόρον, and the like. Explanations of the phrase are given by scholl. Aristoph. Eq. 1151 (ἀντὶ τοῦ 'εἰς θάλασσαν' κατ' εὐφημισμὸν, ἐπεὶ καὶ οἱ τεθνεῶτες 'μακαρίζονται' λέγονται, κτέ.), Plut. 782, Plat. Hipp. mai. 293 A, Photius, Suidas, and the paroemiographi (Apost. 4. 72, Diogenian. 2. 4, Zenob. 2. 61). The pl. μακαρίας seems not to occur elsewhere and should perhaps be changed.

401 ff. If the Cook continues to speak after the departure of Charisius, as seems probable, these fragmentary lines give at least a hint as to the tenor of his remarks. He refers to Habrotonon (v. 406), to the possible repudiation of Pamphila by Charisius (v. 410), and to the money which Charisius is spending (v. 411). Since all this is said in the hearing of Smicrines, the speech contributes something to the latter's knowledge of the situation and serves to exasperate him still more against Charisius.

406. ψάλτριάς: Habrotonon, cf. fr. 600, p. 47, and Pet. fr., v. 19, p. 96.

410. πέμπειν: probably ἀποπέμπειν, the legal word for the formal act of

- - - - - τὰ χρήματα
 - - - - - ν' ἡλίκη
 - - - - - ἔβουλομαι
 - - - - - ἔδ' εἰποιν' οἰκίας.
 415 - - - - - Σιμμία
 - - - - - νῆ τὸν Ἥλιον
 - - - - - ταύτην ἐγὼ
 - - - - - τὰς ὀφρῦς

At the close of his speech exit the Cook into the house of Chaerestratus.

A lacuna of ca. 104 verses from M² to R¹. In this interval, and at no considerable distance from M², falls the St. Petersburg fragment. In the opening lines Smicrines continues his monologue.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

- - - - - ἔπινει δὲ τιμωτάτον
 1 ἄνθρωπος οἶνον· αὐτὸ τοῦτ' ἐκπλήττομαι ἄδесп. 105 = Pet. 2a ἔγωγ'. ὑπὲρ δὲ τοῦ μεθύσκεσθ' οὐ λέγω.
 ἀπιστία γάρ ἐσθ' ὅμοιον τοῦτό γε, repudiation of a wife by her husband, as ἀπολείπειν is for the divorce of a husband by the wife. See above, p. 41, and note on v. 354.

411. τὰ χρήματα: probably a reference to the large dowry of Pamphila, see Pet. fr., v. 8, p. 95, and note.

415. Σιμμία: the Cook seems to refer to himself by name, as does the slave Parmenon in S. 475 ff. Simmias is the name of the cook in Menander's Pseudheracles 578. 5 K., according to the probable conjecture of Dindorf, παράθεσ, Σιμία (σημιαν MSS. Athen.). Meineke, Men. et Phil., p. xvi, prefers the spelling Σιμίας.

1. On the St. Petersburg fragment and the reasons for assigning it to this context see above, p. 34. Smicrines, still further enraged against Charisius, continues to inveigh against him. — πίνει δὲ τιμωτάτον: since Smicrines goes on to say that he is not shocked at plain drunkenness, it would appear that the thought to be supplied must relate, not to excess, but to extravagance, in drinking. — ἄνθρωπος: see on v. 216. — αὐτὸ τοῦτ' ἐκπλήττομαι: it's just this that I'm beside myself about, i.e. with indignation. τοῦτο is cogn. obj., frequent after vbs. expressing emotion. Cf. Dem. 18. 202 ταῦτά λυπεῖσθαι καὶ ταῦτά χαίρειν, Herod. 9. 82 ἐκπλαγέντα τὰ προκειμένα ἀγαθὰ.

3. ἀπιστία . . . ὅμοιον: is well-nigh incredible, lit. touches on (is like) incredibility. ἀπιστία is often used for the astonishment due to doubt or incredulity,

- εἰ καὶ βιάζεται κοτύλην τις τοῦβολοῦ⁷ 5 ὠνούμενος πίνειν ἑαυτόν. τοῦτ' ἔγω' προσέμενον· οὗτος ἐμπεσὼν διασκέδᾳ⁸ τὸν ἔρωτα. 'τί δ' ἐμοὶ τοῦτο'; πάλιν οἰμώζεται.⁹ προῖκα δὲ λαβὼν τάλαντα τέτταρ' ἀργύρου,¹⁰ οὐ τῆς γυναικὸς νένομιχ' αὐτὸν οἰκέτην.¹¹ 10 ἀπόκοιτός ἐστι. πορνοβοσκῶ δώδεκα τῆς ἡμέρας δραχμὰς δίδωσι, δώδεκα.
 'ἐπίστατ' ἀκριβῶς οὐτοσὶ τὰ πράγματα.

but for its meaning here as the equivalent of ἀπιστόν τι no parallel has been found. Wilamowitz has plausibly suggested ἀπληστία, like gluttony, assuming textual corruption. The two words are thus confounded in the MSS. of Dio Chrys. 43. 15 τρυφῆς καὶ ἀπιστίας or ἀπληστίας. — τοῦτό γε: τὸ μεθύσκεσθαι.

4. εἰ καί, κτέ.: though a fellow does force himself to drink cheap wine. — κοτύλην τοῦβολοῦ: to the stingy Smicrines it would seem extravagant to drink any wine, even the cheapest. In 328 B.C. wine was furnished to laborers at Eleusis for the celebration of the Choes at a cost to the state of .66 obol per κοτύλη, — a very low rate, — IG. II 834 b ii. 68 (Ditt. Syl.² 587, 205). On the low cost of wine at Athens see Böckh-Fränkl, Staatshaushaltung I, p. 123. The art. is regularly used with the gen. of price to indicate the rate.

5 f. τοῦτο . . . προσέμενον: this is just what I was waiting for. τοῦτο seems to refer to what follows; see on v. 91.

6. ἐμπεσὼν: recklessly. This absolute sense is found, e.g., in Herod. 3. 81 ὥθεις τε ἐμπεσὼν τὰ πρήγματα ἀνευ νόου. — διασκέδᾳ, κτέ.: he'll scatter affection to the winds, i.e. his wife's love. Perhaps the pres. διασπαθῆ was written, he squanders his love. But the figure involved in the phrase διασκέδᾳ (or διασπαθῆ) τὸν ἔρωτα seems not to occur elsewhere. Possibly τὸν ἔρωτα is a corruption of τὰ πατρώα, cf. Diph. 43. 27 K. τὰ πατρώα βρῦκει καὶ σπαθῆ, and v. 529.

7. τί δ' ἐμοὶ τοῦτο: but what's that to me, you say? Smicrines introduces an objection from an imaginary interlocutor, as again in vv. 850 ff. — πάλιν: again I say, cf. αἶθις in Aesch. Ag. 1345 ὦμοι, πέπληγμαι . . . ὦμοι μάλ' αἶθις, δευτέραν πέπληγμένος. He has apparently previously used the expression, which is often on his lips, cf. v. 24 of this fragment and vv. 528, 559, 856.

8. προῖκα: the dowry is Smicrines' chief concern, cf. vv. 853, 867.

9. οἰκέτην: a husband's subservency to a richly-dowered wife is a favorite topic of the comic poets, cf. Men. 583 K. αὐτὸν δίδωσι, οὐκ ἐκείνην λαμβάνει, Anax. 52 K. πένης ὦν τὴν γυναῖκα χρήματα λαβὼν ἔχει δέσποιναν, οὐ γυναῖκ' ἔτι· ἥς ἐστι δούλος, and Antiph. 329 K.

10. ἀπόκοιτός: cf. Luc. Dial. meretr. 10. 2 μηδέποτε ἀπόκοιτός μου γενόμενος. For other indications that Charisius is not living at home see above, p. 41.

12. ἀκριβῶς: sarcastic. — τὰ πράγματα: affairs of business.

τί δ' εἰς διατροφήν ἀνδρὶ καὶ πρὸς ἡμέρων ἀρκεῖν λελόγισται; δὴ ὁβολοὺς τῆς ἡμέρας.

15 τελεῖν πλεῶ πεινῶντι τίς λόγος ποτέ;

Chaerestratus and Onesimus approach, coming from the country. Smicrines does not at first see them.

SC. 8. SMICRINES, CHAERESTRATUS, ONESIMUS

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ὁρῶ τιν' ὅς σε προσμένει, Χαιρέστρατε.

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

τίς ὁδ' ἐστὶ δῆ, γλυκύταθ';

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ὁ τῆς νύμφης πατήρ, καταλοιδορῶν ὡς ἄθλιός τις τῆς τύχης.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ (to himself at first) καλὴν ἄρ' ἔλαβ', ὁ τρισκακοδαίμων, ψάλτριαν,

13. καὶ πρὸς ἡμέρων: sc. ἀνδρῶν, even by humane men. Cf. Dem. 21. 49 εἰσὶν Ἕλληνες τινες ἀνθρώποι οὕτως ἡμεροὶ καὶ φιλάνθρωποι τοὺς τρόπους, Plat. Legg. 885 E παρὰ δὲ δὴ νομοθετῶν φασκόντων εἶναι μὴ ἀγρίων ἀλλὰ ἡμέρων. Smicrines makes a pretense of adopting a high standard.

14. λελόγισται: Smicrines is a calculating man, λογιστικός, v. 869. — δ' ὁβολοὺς: cf. Theop. 55 K. καίτοι τίς οὐκ ἂν οἶκος εἴ πράττοι τετραβολίζων, εἰ νῦν γε διώβολον φέρων ἀήρ τρέφει γυναῖκα; The dole of two obols (διωβολία) that was distributed to Athenian citizens during the period of greatest distress in the Peloponnesian War was at least enough to keep a man and his wife alive. According to Smicrines' calculation Charisius was spending, for Habrotonon alone, enough to support 36 men.

15. τελεῖν: the regular vb. with μισθόν and the like. — πλεῶ: sc. χρήματα. On the form in Attic see Kühner-Blass § 156. 3. — πεινῶντι: who perforce must accept the pittance. — λόγος: sc. ἐστί. The thought is: κατὰ τίνα λόγον τελοῖ ἂν τις πλεῶ πεινῶντι; λόγος on account of λελόγισται; but τίς νόμος; (= τί δεῖ;) also is possible.

16. Onesimus, who had fled at Smicrines' approach v. 363, has fallen in with Chaerestratus, who comes from the other direction, i.e. from the country.

17. ὁ τῆς νύμφης πατήρ: cf. v. 670.

19. καλὴν: cf. v. 530. — ἔρα: it seems. — ὁ τρισκακοδαίμων: so Charisius characterizes himself in v. 698. — ψάλτριαν: cf. fr. 600, p. 47 above.

20 ἤν δ' οὐδὲν ἀδικούσαν γυναῖκα βούλεται

----- ιοι

----- S

Lacuna of ca. 15 verses to the verso of the St. Petersburg fragment. A continuation of the same scene.

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

οὕτως ἀγαθόν τι σοι γένοιτο.

Pet. 2b

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

μὴ λέγε

ἢ μὴδὲν σύγ'. οὐκ εἰς κόρακας; οἰμῶξει μακρά.

25 ἄλλ' εἴμι νῦν εἴσω, σαφῶς τε πυθόμενος ὅπως ἔχει τὰ τῆς θυγατρὸς, βουλευέσομαι ὅντινα τρόπον πρὸς τοῦτον ἤδη προσβαλῶ.

Exit Smicrines into the house of Charisius.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

βούλει μὲν αὐτῷ τοῦτον ἤκοντ' ἐνθάδε φράσωμεν;

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

οἶον κίναδος, οἰκίαν ποιεῖ

30 ἀνάστατον.

23. οὕτως, κτέ.: see on v. 47. When μοί is used in this formula the main sentence is a positive asseveration, promise, or threat. σοί, however, accompanies an entreaty. Chaerestratus has just been pleading on behalf of Charisius.

27. ὅντινα: see on vv. 265, 280. — τοῦτον: Charisius. — προσβαλῶ πρὸς: a military expression, assault, cf. Xen. Anab. 6. 3. 6 προσέβαλλον πρὸς τοὺς ὁπλίτας.

28. βούλει . . . φράσωμεν: cf. Aristoph. Eq. 36 βούλει τὸ πρᾶγμα τοῖς θεαταῖσιν φράσω; and GMT. § 287. — τοῦτον:

Smicrines. — ἤκοντα: partic. in ind. disc., as often with ἀγγέλλειν, cf. Eur. I. T. 802 τίς ἂν φράσειε . . . τὸν Πηλέως ζητούντά νυν παῖδα; GMT. § 904.

29 f. κίναδος: fox, as a term of reproach, crafty rascal, cf. Soph. Aj. 103 τοῦ(π)τριπτον κίναδος (Odysseus), Dem. 18. 242 τοῦτο δὲ (Aeschines) καὶ φύσει κίναδος τὰνθρώπιόν ἐστι, Aristoph. Av. 430 πυκνότερον κίναδος. — οἰκίαν: familia. On the omission of the art. see note on v. 351. He means, of course, the household of his son Charisius. — ποιεῖ ἀνάστατον: is ruining, cf. Men. Colax 56 (Ox. Pap. III, no. 409) δσας πολλὰς ἐβουλόμην ἄμα.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

ῥτί λέγεις;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

μίαν μὲν τὴν ἐφεξῆς.

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

τὴν ἐμήν;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τὴν σὴν γ'. ἴωμεν δεῦρο πρὸς Χαρίσιον.

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

ἴωμεν, ὥς καὶ μειρακυλλίων ὄχλος ἀναστάτους πόλεις ἐόρακας. Photius (Berl.) attests the use of the expression by Menander. Lit. cause the inhabitants to leave, of a city or country captured by the enemy. — ἐβουλόμην: sc. αὐτὸν ποιεῖν ἀναστάτους. ἐβουλόμην without ἀν is used with the inf. to express a wish for something not realized, with ἀν a hopeless wish, GMT. §§ 426, 427; Gildersleeve, Syn. § 367.

31. τὴν ἐφεξῆς: the one next door. This allusion to the house of Chaerestratus gives a valuable hint as to the scenery of the play; see above, p. 40. — The motive for Onesimus' wish for bad luck upon this house is apparently that it is occupied by the leno who owns Habrotonon. It is therefore in a way responsible for the present conduct of Charisius. So the slave Palinurus in Plaut. Cure. 39 f., in response to the remark by Phaedromus: lenonis hae sunt aedes, says male istis eveniat. Ph. qui? Pa. quia scelestam servitutem serviunt. The slave in Plaut. Poen. 870 has another reason, his bad treatment by the leno, for exclaiming ut ego hanc familiam (the leno's) interire cupio.

33 f. ὄχλος... ἔρχεται: M. Croiset well compares this incursion of boisterous revelers with the κῶμος of Alcibiades and his friends described by Plato in Symp. 212 c. If the crowd of drunken youth are the guests of Charisius, as is probable, they come from the house. A prepositional prefix (ἐξ- out, εἰς-, πρὸς-, παρ-έρχεται in) usually indicates the direction from which arriving characters come. If the chorus here is composed of the same persons as before (after v. 201), we can account for their being drunk, cf. vv. 213, 305. — μὴ νοχλεῖν: cf. S. 383.

During the intermission and until the next appearance of Smicrines and Chaerestratus upon the scene, the former is supposed to be engaged in his interview with Pamphila (v. 26 ἔἰς τὸν τόπον τις ἔρχεθ' ὑποβεβρεγμένων, 35 οἷς μὴ νοχλεῖν εὐκαιρον εἶναι μοι δοκεῖ.

Exeunt into the house of Chaerestratus. A group of revelers enter and give a performance.

ΧΟΡΟΨ

ACT IV

Enter Onesimus from the house of Chaerestratus.

SC. 1. ONESIMUS alone

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ἐπισφαλὴ μὲν πάντα τάνθρώπων· ἐμοί, οἴμαί, πόλις ἐστὶ καὶ καταφυγὴ καὶ νόμος 581 K.
καὶ τοῦ δίκαιου τοῦ τ' ἀδίκου παντὸς κριτὴς
ὁ δεσπότης· πρὸς τοῦτον ἔνα δεῖ ζῆν ἐμέ.
40 ὁ γέρων δ' ἐκεῖνος ὁ κατάρματος Σμικρίνης οὐδὲ λόγον ἡμῶν οὐδ' ἐπιστροφὴν ἔχων 836 K.
* * * * *

above) in one house, while, in the other, first Chaerestratus sees Charisius (v. 32 above), then Habrotonon plays out her little comedy with him. Several scenes in the fourth act are required to bring before the spectators the outcome of these interviews from the point of view of the various persons concerned in them.

36. Onesimus introduces a summary of the present situation by an aphorism on human affairs. Such sentiments are frequently used in tragedy at the beginning of speeches in which the περίπτεια is announced. The tragic tone of these verses is unmistakable. The dénouement is at hand.—ἐπισφαλὴ: cf. v. 349. First the generalization, then the specific instance (v. 40), which Onesimus evidently fears will be the triumph of Smicrines at the expense of Charisius.—τάνθρώπων: cf. Alex. 219. 9 K. μανιώδη πάντα τάνθρώπων δλωι.

37–39. Quoted by Stobaeus, who, however, begins the quotation with ἐμοί (from v. 36) instead of οἴμαι, simply to give a neater form to the sentiment.

37. πόλις: cf. Antiph. 265 K. δούλω γάρ, οἴμαι, πατρίδος ἐστερημένω χρηστὸς γενόμενός ἐστι δεσπότης πατρίς, Theophrastus 1 K. τὸν ἀγαπητὸν δεσπότην, . . . δι' ὃν εἶδον νόμους Ἑλλήνας.

39. πρὸς τοῦτον: according to his pleasure, cf. Arist. Rhet. 1367^a 32 ἐλευθέρου γάρ (ἐστὶ) τὸ μὴ πρὸς ἄλλον ζῆν, Plat. Phaedr. 257^b ἀπλῶς πρὸς Ἐρωτα . . . τὸν βίον (ποιεῖν), and P. 194.

41. λόγον: defined in Et. Mag., where the verse is quoted, as = φροντίς. —ἐπιστροφὴν: heed, cf. Eur. I.T. 671 ἴσασι πάντες, ὧν ἐπιστροφή (attention) τις ἦν.

To the last portion of the first part of the fourth act belong, apparently, several passages which have been preserved in quotations, which may be assigned to the several scenes as follows:

Enter the Cook from the house of Chaerestratus.

Sc. 2. ONESIMUS, COOK

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τί δ' οὐ ποεῖς

Phot. s. δλυσ

ἄριστον; ὃ δ' ἀλύνει πάλαι κατακείμενος.

* * * * *

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

ἀργὸς δ' ὑγιαίνων τοῦ πυρέττοντος πολὺ

175 K.

ἐστ' ἀθλιώτερος· διπλάσια γοῦν μάτην

᾿πίνει κατ'εσθίει ᾿τε.

* * * * *

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

ἐπὶ πᾶσ' ᾿ω

178 K.

ἐπὶ τὸ τάριχος ἄλας, ᾿ἂν οὕτω τύχη.

* * * * *

At the end of this scene Onesimus and the Cook withdraw into the house of Chaerestratus, from which Chaerestratus enters.

Sc. 2. A brief diversion is here introduced, both to relieve the tension and for the sake of verisimilitude, — since the interview of Smicrines with Pamphila and that of Habrotonon with Charisius must be supposed to be protracted, — by the scene of Onesimus and the Cook. The Cook showed himself a witty fellow, according to Athenæus 659 B. — ἄριστον: see on v. 394. Considered as an entertainment the luncheon was certainly a failure, for the guests are already drunk and the food is not yet in sight. — ὃ δέ: the master. — ἀλύνει: is fretful. The definition of Photius (Berl., s.v. δλυσ), μηδὲν πράττειν, is better suited to the former passage v. 342 than to this, for which, however, the other definition given by Photius and other lexicographers (s.v. δλύνειν) is appropriate, ἀδημονεῖν, δυσχεραίνειν, ἀθυμεῖν, ἀπορεῖν. The Cook, in his reply to Onesimus in the next quotation, sees both meanings in the word, ἀργός = μηδὲν πράττων, ἀθλιός = ἀδημονῶν. The idle man in health is far more unhappy than he who is sick of a fever. The medical writers used the term for fretfulness or nervousness, cf. Galen. ad Hipp. Aphor. 7. 56 (XVIII. i, p. 167 Kühn) ἀλύνει μὲν οὖν λέγουσιν ἐκείνου τῶν ὑγιαίνόντων δοσιτερ ἂν δὲ τοῖς παρὰ τοὺς δυσχεραίνοντες ἄλλοτε εἰς ἄλλα μεταβαλόνουσι πράγματά τε καὶ πράξεις. — γοῦν: at any rate, introducing a partial proof of the assertion. — μάτην: to no purpose.

Sc. 3. CHAERESTRATUS

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

ἐλευθέρῳ τὸ καταγελαῖσθαι μὲν πολὺ 176 K.
αἰσχιστόν ἐστι· τὸ δ' ὀδυνᾶσθ' ἀνθρώπινον.

* * * * *

Enter Smicrines from the house of Charisius.

Sc. 4. CHAERESTRATUS, SMICRINES

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

οὐθὲν πέπονθας δεινόν, ἂν μὴ προσποῇ. 179 K.

* * * * *

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

αυ - - - - - R¹, quat. z, p. 1, l. 25

ἀλλ' - - - - - ἅπα - - - - - οὐδ' αρ - - - - -

525 μέρος τ - - - - -

— In the third quotation the Cook tells how he intends to prepare the viands.

— ἐὰν οὕτω τύχη: a colloquial idiom, equivalent in tone to our if I feel like it.

Sc. 3. During his brief stay in the house Chaerestratus has warned his son of the presence of Smicrines (v. 28, p. 97) and has learned from him his present trouble and how he proposes to mend it. During the monologue of Chaerestratus, Habrotonon within is supposed to be proving to Charisius that the child is his and that she is its mother, while Smicrines is supposed to be urging his daughter to go home with him.

— The next quotation seems to come from the monologue. The thought is probably suggested by the unhappy plight of Charisius: For a freeborn man ridicule is most shameful; but sorrow is the lot of man. It would be better for Charisius to endure his misfortune than to continue to make himself ridiculous.

Sc. 4. Smicrines comes from his daughter thwarted in his plan to induce her to leave Charisius and yet determined to have his way. He has of course not yet learned that Charisius is responsible for a νόθος, for as yet only Habrotonon and Charisius are aware of this fact; nor does he know that his daughter has borne a child in secret (see above, p. 39). In one quotation and in the papyrus fragment R a portion of the dialogue between the two fathers is preserved. — οὐδὲν . . . προσποῇ: you've suffered no outrage if you'll only pretend you've not. For this meaning of μὴ προσποιεῖσθαι cf. Philem. 23 K. ὁ λοιδορῶν γάρ, ἂν ὁ λοιδορούμενος μὴ προσποιῇται, λοιδορεῖται λοιδορῶν.

The reasons for the assignment of R to this context are given above, p. 36.

ἡ μή με - - - - - ᾿τί
 ἡμῖν κεκήδευκας; ᾿ — —

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

᾿φαίνεται ὑψηλὸς ὢν τις ᾿οὔτος. ᾿ οὐκ οἰμώζεται, καταφθαρεῖς τ' ἔν ματρυλείῳ τὸν βίον 530 μετὰ τῆς καλῆς ᾿πόρνης ἔπειτ' οὐχ ἡδέως βιώσεθ'; ἡμᾶς δ' οὐκέτι λυπήσει τότε.

177 K.

[Lacuna of ca. 24 verses to R².]

Exit Chaerestratus to the city.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

556 - - - - - τις R², quat. z, p. 2, l. 24
 - - - - - θω
 - - - - - καὶ μάλα
 - - - - - οὐκ οἰμώζεται;
 560 - - - - - τοῦ βίου
 - - - - - τοῦ δυστυχούς.
 - - - - - τὸν δυστυχῆ.
 - - - - - ν· ἀλλ' ἴσως ἐγὼ
 - - - - - ἐγὼ τε ᾿πράττω τῶν ἐμῶν

527. κεκήδευκας, κτέ.: allied yourself with us, by giving Pamphila in marriage to Charisius. Cf. [Dem.] 59.81 καὶ (δτι) διὰ τοῦτο κηδεύσειεν αὐτῷ.

528 f. ὑψηλός: a contemptuous allusion to the proud and haughty bearing of Charisius. So Phaedra in Eur. Hipp. 729 says that by her death she will teach Hippolytus μὴ ᾿πὶ τοῖς ἐμοῖς κακοῖς ὑψηλὸς εἶναι. See v. 707. — οὐκ . . . βίον: quoted by lexicographers, as from this play, in a gloss on ματρυλείων, but without τε. — καταφθαρεῖς: when he's gone to ruin. — ματρυλείω: cf. ἀπόκοιτος in fr. Pet. v. 10, p. 95. — τὸν βίον: construe with βιώσεται.

556 ff. Chaerestratus seems to have taken his leave. He is to return later, see v. 769. Before departing for his home in the city Smicrines probably announces his intention (v. 565) to return prepared to take his daughter away by force — the ἄρπασμα of v. 870. On v. 565 cf. v. 867.

Sc. 5. In the interval between R² and H¹ Habrotonon, in a monologue, tells the result of her interview with Charisius. Everything has happened according to her program (vv. 296–321). He has acknowledged himself the father of the child and believes her to be his mother, accepting her

565 - - - - - ἁπάγειν τὴν θυγατέρα
 - - - - - εἶσω καὶ σκέδον
 - - - - - νει ιπ . .

[Lacuna of ca. 70 verses to H¹.]

Exit Smicrines to the city. Enter Habrotonon from the house of Chaerestratus.

Sc. 5. HABROTONON alone

* * * * *

Enter Sophrona from the house of Charisius, accompanied to the door by Pamphila. She does not at first see Habrotonon, who, however, sees and recognizes Pamphila. Habrotonon conceals herself.

Sc. 6. HABROTONON, SOPHRONA

ΣΟΦΡΟΝΗ (to herself)

ἐξετύφην μὲν οὖν 184 K.

κλάουσα.

* * * * *

story. It remains for her now to find the mother. She will visit the women by whom she had been employed at the Tauropolia and will make inquiry of them, for the unknown girl was a friend of theirs (vv. 265, 284). She has no suspicion as to who the girl may be.

Sc. 6. Before Habrotonon has left the scene Sophrona comes from the house of her mistress. Pamphila comes to the door with her. Habrotonon, hearing the door creak, quickly looks around. She sees the face of Pamphila for a moment as, standing in the πρόθυρον, she exchanges a few words with her maid (cf. P. 61 ff.), and recognizes her as the girl of the Tauropolia. She cannot see the face of Sophrona, however, whose back is turned toward her. Instead of going on with her original plan, Habrotonon quickly forms a new one. She conceals herself from Sophrona's view and overhears what she says, standing, probably, in the πρόθυρον of the house of Chaerestratus. Doubtless Sophrona refers freely, since she believes herself to be alone, to the misfortune of her wretched mistress, and a reference by her to the child, whose birth has been kept a secret from all but Onesimus and Charisius, would add one more link to the chain of evidence which Habrotonon is forging.

Frr. 184, 566. Sophrona depicts the plight in which Pamphila now finds herself by relating the conversation which Pamphila has just had with Smicrines, — or rather the first part of it, for the latter part is overheard by Charisius; Sophrona's narrative is supplemented in vv. 670 ff. and 705 ff. Two fragments of Sophrona's speech are preserved in quotations, the first from the early part of it, the second from her account of Smicrines' stormy interview with his daughter. — ἐξετύφην: apparently ἴλέγει μὲν αὐτῇ ταῦτα· ἡ χαλεπόν, Παμφίλη, 566 K.

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ (to herself)

 ἐλευθέρα γυναικὶ πρὸς πόρνην μάχη.
 πλείονα κακουργεῖ, πλείον' οἶδ', αἰσχύνεται οὐδέν, κολακεύει μᾶλλον.”

* * * * *

Habrotonon comes forward with the child in her arms.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

----- ἡ τὸ παιδίον ἡ

638 ἔξειμ' ἔχουσα.

She approaches Sophrona, whose back is turned to her.

κλαυμυρίζεται, τάλαν· H¹, quat. z, p. 5

my eyes are burned out with weeping. The vb. is rare and somewhat obscure in meaning.—χαλεπόν, κτέ.: one of Smicrines' arguments intended to induce Pamphila to leave her husband. Sophrona quotes the very words of Smicrines, as Charisius (vv. 705 ff.) later quotes those of Pamphila.—κακουργεῖ: sc. ἡ πόρνη.

638 ff. When Sophrona has finished her story, Habrotonon comes from her place of concealment, the baby in her arms. She already suspects that the old nurse whom she had seen talking with Pamphila in the doorway is the woman who had been in charge of the young girl at the festival (cf. v. 905). She must first get a clear view of this woman's face, and then, if her suspicion proves true, will test her conjecture, now almost a certainty, that Pamphila is the mother, by surprising Sophrona into a betrayal of her mistress' secret. For this the baby will be necessary. We must assume, therefore, that Habrotonon has quickly gone into the house and got the baby. By acting at first as if the child were her own (in v. 652 she acknowledges the pretense),—for a time pretending to be unconscious of the other woman's presence,—and then, when sure of the nurse's identity, displaying the trinkets which were hung about the child's neck so that Sophrona could not fail to see them (she calls Sophrona's attention to them in v. 650), she would draw from Sophrona full confirmation of her own suspicions. We see Habrotonon beginning this pretty comedy when the papyrus text is resumed with H¹. From v. 638 to v. 643 she devotes herself rather ostentatiously to the baby.

638. ἔξειμ' ἔχουσα: I'll go out now with the baby. "I come from the house" would be ἐξέρχομαι. Habrotonon explains to the audience the motive for her reappearance. After this explanation she sets the baby to howling lustily, and, for the benefit of Sophrona, makes a great exhibition of tenderness toward it.—κλαυμυρίζεται: keeps crying. The form, in place of κλαυθυμυρίζεται, is attested by Photius.

πάλαι γὰρ οὐκ οἶδ' ὅ τι κακὸν πέπονθέ μοι.

ΣΟΦΡΟΝΗ (to herself)

640 τίς ἂν θεῶν τάλαιναν ἐλεήσειέ με;

[360]

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ (to the child)

ὦ φίλτατ', οἰκτίρουσά σ' ἔξειμι¹ σφόδρα.

καίπερ² μὲν ἀσθενής, ὅμως³ πορεύσομαι.

Accosting Sophrona, who is about to depart without turning her head.

ῥ' μικρόν, γύναι, πρόσμεινον⁴ ἐμέ. καλῶς σ' ἐγὼ εὕρηκα.

639. πάλαι: const. with πέπονθε. — γάρ: and it well may, for. — οὐκ οἶδ' ὅ τι κακόν: nescio quid malum. — μοι: ethical dat., expressing a mother's solicitude. The whole v. may be rendered: For something or other has ailed it, poor little thing (μοι), ever so long.

640. τίς ἂν, κτέ.: utinam misereatur mei aliquis deorum. Sophrona has not yet seen Habrotonon. The latter makes clear in v. 650 that she hears these words (as in fact she has heard everything Sophrona has said), but for the time being she continues to ignore Sophrona's presence.

641-648. The text of these eight verses is badly broken and the letters that can be discerned are very dim. Only the drift of the passage can be divined. The alternation of speakers, however, is fairly certain, thanks to the indications in the MS. Habrotonon certainly speaks v. 641 and either two or three verses following. Sophrona certainly speaks v. 649, possibly a portion of v. 648; Habrotonon the first part at least of 648 and perhaps the end of v. 647; Sophrona the first part at least of v. 647; Habrotonon, accordingly, vv. 645-646. Since, then, Habrotonon is the speaker of v. 641 and at least two of the three following verses, and speaks again, after an interruption, in v. 645, the intervening verse 644 must be assigned to Sophrona, though no indication is preserved in the MS. of a change of speakers after v. 643. Assuming this distribution of the lines to be essentially correct, as well as the view of this scene presented above, the general course of this part of the action can be followed.

641. φίλτατε: she seems to address the child throughout vv. 641-642. In trying to draw Sophrona's attention so as to get a better view of her face, Habrotonon pretends to be anxious about the baby, whom we must suppose to be still crying vigorously. — σφόδρα: construe with οἰκτίρουσα.

642. ἀσθενής: i.e. εἰς ἀφέλειαν, helpless, sc. οὐσα. It is of course impossible to determine just what the context was. — πορεύσομαι: cf. P. 178. She will go for help.

643 f. πρόσμεινον ἐμέ: these words were addressed to Sophrona, and were probably accompanied by a voc., e.g. γύναι, to draw Sophrona's attention sharply to the speaker. But the remaining

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ (turning and addressing Habrotonon)

πῶς φής; τίνα καλεῖν δοκεῖς, γύναι;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ (to herself)

645 αὐτὴ 'στι, νῦν ἐγώ'δα. (To Sophrona) χαῖρε, φιλότατη γύναι, βλέψ' ὦδε· δέῃρό μοι τὸν νοῦν ἔχε.

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ

λέγ' ἐμοί, τί λέγεις;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

πέρνυσσι διεγνώσθης ἐμοὶ τοῖς Ταυροπολίοις, εἴπερ εὖ μέμνημ' ἐγώ.

traces of the letters do not permit a restoration. Habrotonon has evidently not yet succeeded, for all her tactics, in causing Sophrona to turn her face towards her, and the latter is on the point of withdrawing.—καλῶς, κτέ.: cf. Eur. I.A. 1107 ἐν κάλῳ σ' ἔξω δόμων ἤρηκα.—τίνα καλεῖν δοκεῖς: cf. Soph. Trach. 402 πρὸς τίν' ἐννέπειν δοκεῖς; P. 267 πρὸς τίν' οἴεσθ', εἰπέ μοι, παῖζειν; The text assumes that Sophrona is surprised and somewhat resentful that the other woman accosts her in this way.

645. As she had expected, Habrotonon finds that the nurse is the woman whom she had seen at the festival (v. 655). Her task is now easier and she will have a double proof that in Pamphila she has found the mother.—αὐτὴ: or αὐτή, see on v. 268.

646. Now more confident of success, Habrotonon drops her caution and proceeds directly to her purpose—to secure from Sophrona an admission that it was really she who accompanied Pamphila at the Tauropolia, and to force her to identify the trinkets.—βλέψ' ὦδε: cf. Soph. Trach. 402 οὗτος, βλέψ' ὦδε.—τὸν νοῦν ἔχε: cf. Eur. Orest. 1181 ἄκουε δὴ νῦν καὶ σὺ δέῃρο νοῦν ἔχε. Possibly the verse ends with τὴν σὴν δίδου. In this case a word "face" stood after γύναι.

647. A pause is almost invariable before an anapaest that begins with the monosyllabic forms of the interr. pron. or with the rel.; hence τί is preferable to δ (δ?), which is read by most editors, at the beginning of the second foot. White, p. 154. If πέρνυσιν is read and if the next letter is a consonant, the verse begins with three anapaests. But only three such trimeters occur in all Greek comedy. On the other hand, with πέρνυσσι we have a trisyllabic tribrach in the third foot, which is found nowhere else in Menander (though Aristophanes admits it eight times). White, pp. 143, 159.—διεγνώσθης ἐμοί: your features were distinguished by me, = "I saw your face clearly."

ΣΟΦΡΟΝΗ

γύναι, πόθεν ἔχεις, εἰπέ μοι, τὸν παῖδα σὺ 650 λαβοῦς; [370]

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

ὀρᾶς τι, φιλτάτη, σοι γνώριμον;
Holds up before her the child with the tokens.
᾿πως τοῦτ' ἔχει; μηδέν με δείσης, ᾧ γύναι.

ΣΟΦΡΟΝΗ

οὐκ ἔτεκες αὐτὴ τοῦτο;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

προσεποησάμην,
οὐχ ἴν' ἀδικήσω τὴν τεκοῦσαν, ἀλλ' ἵνα κατὰ σχολὴν εὔροιμι. νῦν δ' εὔρηκά — σε.
655 ὀρῶ γὰρ ἦν καὶ τότε. [375]

ΣΟΦΡΟΝΗ

τίνος δ' ἐστὶν πατρός;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

Χαρισίου.

ΣΟΦΡΟΝΗ

τοῦτ' οἶσθ' ἀκριβῶς, φιλτάτη;

648. Habrotonon has so held the child that Sophrona could not help noticing the trinkets about its neck. Sophrona is so absorbed in what she sees that she pays no attention to Habrotonon's remark, but at once questions her about the child.

651. πῶς τοῦτ' ἔχει: Habrotonon holds up the necklace (τὸ δέρας, v. 29) before the eyes of Sophrona, who shrinks back, startled and frightened.

652. οὐκ ἔτεκες αὐτή: Sophrona has recognized the necklace, but of course does not recognize the child. — προσεποησάμην: referring to her manner and words in vv. 638 ff. Sophrona could not know that Habrotonon had made Charisius believe that she was the child's mother.

653. Note the two final clauses with ἵνα, the one aor. subjv., the other aor. opt. GMT. §321. Probably no distinction was felt.

654. εὔρηκά σε: she states her conclusion with such positiveness that Sophrona, who realizes that she has betrayed the secret by her actions, attempts no denial, but asks for information about the child's father.

656. τοῦτ' οἶσθ' ἀκριβῶς: Sophrona realizes at once what this, if true, means to her mistress.

ABPOTONON (showing the ring)

τὸνδ' οἶσθα τοῦδ' ὄνθ' οὐ γὰρ τὴν νύμφην ὀρώ, τὴν ἔνδον οὖσαν;

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ

ναίχι.

ABPOTONON

μακαρία γύναι,

θεῶν τις ὑμᾶς ἡλέησε. τὴν θύραν

660 τῶν γειτόνων τις ἐψόφηκεν ἐξιών.

[380]

εἴσω λαβοῦσά μ' ὥς σεαυτὴν εἴσαγε, ἵνα καὶ τὰ λοιπὰ πάντα μου πύθη σαφῶς.

Exeunt into the house of Charisius. Enter Onesimus from the house of Chaerestratus.

657. The ring had convinced Charisius; it would obviously be the most convincing proof to Sophrona also, next to a confession by Charisius himself. It is probable, therefore, that Habrotonon now shows the ring. But the exact words of the text may not have been found. — ὀρώ: I have just seen, cf. ὅπερ λέγω in v. 253 and ἄς λέγω in v. 284. ἀρτίως or a similar word often accompanies the pres. referring to "the past of recent experience," e.g. Soph. Elec. 347 ἥτις λέγεις μὲν ἀρτίως. See Kühner-Gerth § 382. 4. The explicit reference to Pamphila, τὴν ἔνδον οὖσαν, distinctly implies that she is not now visible. A demonstrative would have been used if she were. Habrotonon had seen her for a moment at the door when Sophrona came out. Cf. the similar scene in P. 61 ff., of which there are many examples in Plautus and Terence.

659. Sophrona's prayer (v. 640) has been answered. — ὑμᾶς: i.e. your household. See on v. 393.

660. τῶν γειτόνων τις: one of your neighbors. This must mean somebody in the neighboring house, i.e. that of Chaerestratus. — ἐψόφηκεν: rattled. ψοφεῖν is used of one coming out, κόπτειν (pultare) of one about to enter; schol. Aristoph. Nub. 132, who quotes Menander for both phrases. ψοφεῖν, like crepare, is used both transitively, as here (and 196, 885, S. 467), and intransitively, as S. 395. The door, which opened on the πρόθυρον (see on v. 226), was made to grate on the sill or creak on its hinges by the person who opened it.

661. By thus bringing Habrotonon into the same house with Pamphila, the poet avoids the necessity (inevitable in the case of Charisius, cf. vv. 734 ff.) of having the latter enlightened before the spectators. Pamphila already knows the truth when Charisius returns to his home to beg her forgiveness (after v. 742). The baby is of course delivered over to its mother. — Habrotonon quietly enters the house of her rival to make such disclosures to her as will restore her husband to her. Terence employed a similar situation in the Hecyra (vv. 727 ff.): Bacchis, the former

Sc. 7. ONESIMUS alone

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ὑπομαίνεθ' οὗτος, νῆ τὸν Ἀπόλλω, μαίνεται, ἐμάνη γ' ἀληθῶς, μαίνεται, νῆ τοὺς θεοὺς.
 666 τὸν δεσπότην λέγω, Χαρίσιον. χολή [385] μέλαινα προσπέτωκεν ἡ τοιοῦτό 'τι·
 'τί γὰρ ἂν τις εἰκάσειεν ἄλλο γεγόνεναί·;
 πρὸς ταῖς θύραις γὰρ ἔνδον ἀρτίως πολὺν mistress of Pamphilus, visits Philumena, his wife, in order to testify to the good conduct of Pamphilus since his marriage. The ring which she wears, given her once by Pamphilus, is recognized by Philumena as the one she had worn at the time of an unfortunate adventure. The reconciliation of Pamphilus and Philumena follows. The Bacchis of Terence, unlike Habrotonon, dilates upon her own generous conduct: solam fecisse id quod aliae meretrices facere fugitant (v. 776, cf. 756). A girl like Habrotonon must, of course, have felt the delicacy of such an interview as keenly as Bacchis did: nam nupta meretrici hostis est, a viro ubi segregata est (v. 789). The character of Habrotonon is as superior to that of Bacchis as the character of Charisius is to that of Pamphilus.

663 ff. Onesimus comes on the scene in a state of great excitement mingled with fear, and breathlessly relates how his master, now overwhelmed (v. 678) by the knowledge that his own sin has found him out, has been affected by the evidence he has received of his wife's love and forbearance toward him. Onesimus fails to tell us how he chanced to be a witness of the scene he describes. He has been shamelessly eavesdropping. Cf. Ter. Phor. 866 ff., where Geta tells how he overheard the conversation between Chremes and Phanium.

663 f. Note the climax: he's on the verge of (ὑπο-) madness, he's mad, in very truth a fit of madness seized him, then, with final emphasis, he's mad.

665 f. χολή μέλαινα: an attack of black bile was supposed to be the cause of mental derangement, μεγαχολία, cf. χολᾶ v. 176, S. 204, μεγαχολᾶ S. 361, Plaut. Capt. 596 atra bilis agitat hominem.

667. τί . . . ἄλλο: in such locutions ἄλλος is often placed after the vb. instead of next to the interr. pron., cf. Soph. Antig. 646 τί τόνδ' ἄν εἴποις ἄλλο;—Menander uses the anapaest contained in three words far less freely than Aristophanes: in the first foot here and P. 39, S. 450, 466, twice in the fourth (S. 165, 196), and once in the fifth (E. 82). White, p. 154.

668. πρὸς ταῖς θύραις . . . ἔνδον: Charisius stood at the double door in the party wall which separated the inner courts of the two houses. This door, which in some cases gave on a narrow alley between the houses (angiportus), is called by Hermip. 47. 9 K. and Poll. 1. 76 θύρα κηπαία and by Dem. 47. 53 ἡ θύρα ἡ εἰς τὸν κῆπον φέρουσα. This means of communication between χρόνον διακύπτων ἔνθεν ἤκουεν σαφῶς.

670 ὁ πατὴρ δὲ τῆς νύμφης τι περὶ πολέψεως [390]

ἐλάλει πρὸς ἐκείνην, ὡς ἔοιχ'. ὁ δ' ὡς πυκνὰ ἤλλαττε χρώματ', ἄνδρες, οὐδ' εἰπεῖν καλόν. H², quat. z, p. 6

"ὦ γλυκυτάτη," δέ, "τῶν λόγων οἴους λέγεις"

ἀνέκραγε, τὴν κεφαλὴν τ' ἀνεπάταξε σφόδρα

675 αὐτοῦ. πάλιν δὲ διαλιπὼν. "οἶαν λαβὼν [395]

γυναῖχ' ὁ μέλεος ἤτύχηκα." τὸ δὲ πέρας, two houses, and, when the alley was present, of entering a house unobserved by people in the street, is often referred to by Plautus, e.g. Cas. 612 ego iam per hortum iussu meam istuc transire uxorem ad uxorem tuam, Stich. 614 per hortum transibo, non prodibo in publicum, cf. Epid. 660, Merc. 1008. But it was sometimes lacking, e.g. Ter. Ad. 908, Plaut. Mil. 339 (cf. 378) scin tu nullum com meatum hinc esse a nobis, . . . neque solarium neque hortum nisi per inpluvium? In the Miles a secret passage is opened for the lovers.

669. διακύπτων: bending over and peeping through (δια-) an aperture in the door, cf. Aristoph. Pac. 78 ἀλλ' ὅ τι ποιεῖ τῇδι (at the door) διακύψας ὄψομαι.

670. πατὴρ . . . νύμφης: cf. Pet. fr., v. 17, p. 96. — ἀπολείψης: cf. v. 354. Though the text is purely conjectural, there is no doubt that Smicrines was bent on taking his daughter home, cf. vv. 852, 867, and fr. 566, p. 104.

671. ὡς ἔοικε: Onesimus evidently judged by the exclamations of Charisius, as well as by his own knowledge of the situation.

672. ἤλλαττε χρώματα: i.e. flushed and turned pale, under the influence of emotion, cf. Plat. Lys. 222 B παρτοδατὰ ἡφίει χρώματα, Hor. Ep. 1. 16. 38 mutemque colores. — ἄνδρες: the spectators are addressed also in P. 51, S. 56, 117, 481, and frequently in Plautus and Terence, e.g. Cist. 678 mi homines, mi spectatores, Men. 880. The New Comedy, like the Old, did not permit the spectators to lose sight of the fact that they were witnessing a theatrical exhibition. — οὐδ' εἰπεῖν καλόν: cf. Aristoph. Av. 63 οὐδὲ καλλίον λέγειν.

673. Darling, how nobly you speak! — λόγων: gen. of exclamation, see on v. 154.

674. Cf. H. 4. The compound ἀνεπάταξε is new, the prefix apparently induced by the preceding ἀνέκραγε. An analogy is found in ἀναπαίω, ἀναπαίστρος (hammer), in which ἀνα- seems to convey the idea of repetition.

675. αὐτοῦ: the possessive refl. pron. almost invariably has the attributive position; for other exceptions see Kühner-Gerth § 464. 4. Anm. 2. — λαβὼν: in marriage. With such a wife as this.

676. ἤτύχηκα: the force of the exclamatory οἶαν is carried over to the main verb, into what unhappiness have I fallen! Cf. S. 185. Had he realized more fully his wife's nobility of character he could have avoided the

- ὡς πάντα διακούσας ἀπῆλθ' εἴσω ποτέ, βρυχηθμὸς ἔνδον, τιλμός, ἔκστασις συχνή.
 "ἐγὼ" γὰρ "ἀλιτήριος" πυκνὸν πάνν 680 ἔλεγεν, "τοιούτον ἔργον ἐξεργασμένος [400] αὐτὸς γεγονώς τε παιδίου νόθου πατήρ οὐκ ἔσχον οὐδ' ἔδωκα συγγνώμῃς μέρος οὐθὲν ἀτυχούση ταῦτ' ἐκείνη, βάρβαρος ἀνηλεής τε." λοιδορεῖτ' ἔρρωμένως 685 αὐτῷ, βλέπει θ' ὕφαιμον ἡρεθισμένος. [405] πέφρικ' ἐγὼ μὲν, αὐὸς εἰμι τῷ δέει· οὕτως ἔχων γὰρ αὐτὸν ἂν ἴδῃ μέ που greatest of his misfortunes, his alienation from her. — τὸ πέρασ: cf. v. 70.

677. εἴσω: from the garden.

678. τιλμός: sc. τριχῶν, cf. H. 5. — ἔκστασις: outbursts of frenzy, illustrated by the following. Cf. ἐξέστηκα S. 67, 418.

679. ἀλιτήριος: guilty wretch that I am, in apposition to ἐγὼ. Not to be taken as predicate. The art. is indispensable, as with κακοδαίμων, μέλεος (above), ἀθλιος, and the like, when they refer to the speaker.

680. ἔργον: the assault at the festival.

682. οὐκ ἔσχον, κτέ.: I did not feel for her, much less did I grant her, the slightest degree of forgiveness. The inceptive force of the aor. is almost always felt in ἔσχον. — οὐδέ: nor yet, much less, cf. Dem. 18. 85 οὐ μέμψωσ οὐδὲ τιμωπας. — συγγνώμης μέρος οὐθέν: the periphrasis enhances the negation. Cf. the adv. use of οὐδὲν μέρος not a whit, e.g. Plat. Tim. 90 c μηδὲν μέρος ἀπολείπειν.

683. ἀτυχούση ταῦτά: sc. ἡ καὶ ἐγὼ ἐπύθησα. The partic. is equivalent to παθούση. Pamphila was the victim of the same outrage that he had committed — as he supposes, upon another girl. This verse (with which cf. vv. 699, 700) makes it clear that Pamphila had explained to Charisius, after his discovery of the birth of her child, the extenuating circumstances which made the fact a misfortune and not a fault. But she evidently did not state the facts with sufficient particularity to suggest to him the possibility that he was a party to the case himself.

684. λοιδορεῖται: the letters may be divided τε λοιδορεῖτ(αι), τε λοιδορεῖ τ', τ' ἐλοιδορεῖ τ', or τ' ἐλοιδορεῖτ(ο). The dat. in v. 685 demands the mid., which has the same sense as the act., but the latter takes the acc. The pres. is preferable to the impf. in view of βλέπει below. We see also from vv. 693 ff. that the vb. represents his present state.

685. ὕφαιμον: with bloodshot eyes, cf. Ael. De animal. 3. 21. 9 ἡ μὲν λέαινα . . . ὕφαιμον ἄνω βλέπουσα.

686. αὐὸς: cf. P. 233 and Aristoph. Lys. 385 ἀλλ' αὐὸς εἰμ' ἤδη τρέμων.

687. αὐτὸν . . . με: an emphatic me, further explained by τὸν διαβαλόντα.

τὸν διαβαλόντα, τυχὸν ἀποκτείνειεν ἄν.

διόπερ ὑπεκδέδυνκα δεῦρ' ἔξω λάθρα.

690 καὶ ποῖ τράπωμαί γ'; εἰς τί βουλῆς; οἴχομαι, [410]

ἀπόλωλα· τὴν θύραν πέπληχεν ἐξιών.

Ζεῦ σῶτερ, εἴπερ ἐστὶ δυνατόν, σῶζέ με.

Hastily conceals himself; enter Charisius from the house of Chaerestratus.

SC. 8. ONESIMUS, CHARISIUS

ΧΑΡΙΣΙΟΣ (to himself)

ἐγὼ τις ἀναμάρτητος, εἰς δόξαν βλέπων

καὶ τὸ καλὸν ὃ τί ποτ' ἐστὶ καὶ ταίσχρον σκοπῶν,

695 ἀκέραιος, ἀνεπίπληκτος αὐτὸς τῷ βίῳ — [415]

εὔ μοι κέχρηται καὶ προσηκόντως πάνυ τὸ δαιμόνιον — ἐνταῦθ' ἔδειξ' ἄνθρωπος ὦν.

688. τὸν διαβαλόντα: sc. τὴν Παμφίλην. Cf. v. 207 τὸν φράσαντα ταῦτα.

690. τί βούλης: for τίνα βούλην, a frequent use of τί with the gen., both sing. and pl., of all genders.

691. πέπληχεν ἐξιών: like ψοφεῖν, this vb. is used only of those who are coming out, see on v. 660. This form, post-classical for πέπληγε, is found in this MS. also in S. 89, 155, 353. Cf. διεφθαρκώς P. 376.

692. σῶτερ . . . σῶζε: cf. Plaut. Bacch. 880 Salus mea, servavisti me.

693 ff. Onesimus has prepared us for the sight of Charisius, thoroughly humbled in pride, conscious-stricken, and bitterly self-reproachful. His humiliation is the greater in that he has in the past plumed himself upon his sensitive feeling of honor and his scrupulous adherence (so far as the world knew) to the highest standards of conduct. — The diction of this monologue is distinctly tragic.

693. εἰς . . . βλέπων: my eyes fixed on, as on a goal to be attained.

694. In the schools of philosophy he has studied the nature of the honorable and the dishonorable, like the young man, a pupil of Ariston, in a fragment of an unknown comic poet: πᾶν ἤρτο, τὸ καλόν, τὰγαθόν, τὸ σύμφερον, τὸ κακόν, Kock adesp. 104. 5 (Wilamowitz in N. Jhb. XI, 1908, p. 41, corrects the text and compares with this passage).

695. This bitter characterization of his virtues, not only as seen by others but as formerly seen by himself, serves to set in clearer relief his shortcomings, as now seen by himself. The verse is an imitation of Eur. Orest. 922 ἀκέραιος, ἀνεπίπληκτον ἡσκηκώς βίον, but the words, applied there to a sturdy farmer, are devoid of the ethical significance (probably given them by the Stoics) which attaches to them here.

697. The const., interrupted by the parenthesis, is not really anacoluthic;

“ὃ τρισκακόδαιμον, καὶ μέγα φυσᾶς καὶ λαλεῖς.
 ἀκούσιον γυναικὸς ἀτύχημ’ οὐ φέρεις, 700 αὐτὸν δὲ δείξω σ’ εἰς ὅμοι’ ἑπτακότα. [420] καὶ χρήσεται αὐτῇ σοι τότε ἡπίως, σὺ δὲ ταύτην ἀτιμάξεις. ἐπιδειχθήσεται θ’ ἅμα ἀτυχῆς γεγωνὸς καὶ σκαιὸς ἀγνώμων τ’ ἀνὴρ.
 ὅμοιά γ’ εἶπεν οἷς σὺ διενόου τότε 705 πρὸς τὸν πατέρα· κοινωνὸς ἦκειν τοῦ βίου, [425]

ἐνταῦθα simply resumes the four preceding participial clauses, ἐγὼ βλέπων, σκόπων, ἀκέραιος ὢν, ἀνεπίληκτος ὢν, ἐνταῦθα (i.e. ἐν τῷ βλέπειν, etc.) εἰδεῖα. The speaker has in mind the good Greek doctrine that pride goeth before destruction, which Menander elsewhere (156 K.) phrased as follows: ἐν ᾧ φρονεῖς μέγιστον ἀπολεί τοῦτό σε, τὸ δοκεῖν τιν’ εἶναι· καὶ γὰρ ἄλλους μυρίους. — εἰδεῖα . . . ὢν: cf. Thuc. 4. 73. 2 εἰδεξαν ἔτοιμοι ὄντες. — ἄνθρωπος: but human.

698. He conceives that τὸ δαιμόδιον speaks thus to him. — μέγα: modifies both vbs., thou art both haughty and boastful. μέγα φυσᾶς is a contemptuous version of μέγα φρονεῖς, cf. Men. 302 K. οἱ φυσῶντες ἐφ’ ἑαυτοῖς μέγα.

699. οὐ φέρεις: refuse to bear. Cf. v. 62.

700. δείξω: i.e. to the world. No one but Habrotonon and himself, so far as he knows, is as yet aware of the truth concerning him. — ὅμοια: cf. ταῦτά, v. 688.

701. τότε: when she shall learn that he has fallen into ὅμοια ἀμαρτήματα. The revelation which Charisius has just had of his wife's nobility of character gives him good reason to be confident of her forgiveness.

702. ἐπιδειχθήσεται: shall be shown to the world. The vb. connotes indisputable proof. — ἅμα: introduces the less emphatic predicate, not only; καί, but also.

703. σκαιός: ill-bred, unfeeling, often contrasted with σοφός, one who has been enlightened. Pamphila was innocent; Charisius had not only sinned with full knowledge but had since been brutal toward her. — ἀγνώμων: inconsiderate, unkind. The well-bred man should be εὐγνώμων, as Pamphila, a true woman, will show herself to be. Cf. Men. 646 K. ἐν ἑστ’ ἀληθὲς φίλτρον, εὐγνώμων τρόπος. τοῦτῳ κατακρατεῖν ἀνδρὸς ἐβωθεν γυνή.

704. ὅμοιά γ’ εἶπεν πρὸς τὸν πατέρα: ironical, like indeed were her words to her father. — οἷς σὺ διενόου: to the thoughts you then harbored against her. For διανοεῖσθαι = φρονεῖν cf. Plut. Vit. Cim. 5. 5 ἀξια τοῦ Μαραθῶνος ἤδη διανοεῖσθαι καὶ πράσσειν. — τότε: before your own sin had come to light. Charisius has not yet had an understanding with his father-in-law nor explained to him the reasons he had for so humiliating Pamphila. He and Smicrines do not meet in any scene in the play, except possibly a lost final scene. Smicrines is successfully kept from all knowledge of his daughter's child until v. 900.

705. τοῦ βίου: i.e. of Charisius. See above, p. 32. — The trisyllabic tribrach ῥ' πάντως ἄρ' οὐ δεῖν τὰ τύχημ' αὐτὴν φυγεῖν ῥ' τοῦ συμβεβηκός. σὺ δέ τις ὑψηλὸς σφόδρα —

[Lacuna of 26 verses to Q².]

Onesimus issues from his place of concealment.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ἅπαντα δ' ἐκμαθεῖν ἐπειράθην ἐγὼ Q², quat. z, p. 7, l. 28 735 ὥς εὖ ποῶν σε, νῆ τὸν Ἀπόλλω καὶ θεούς.

is found in the second foot only five times in Menander. See White, p. 144, and on S. 79.

706. πάντως ἄρα: certainly, therefore, cf. Arist. fr. 51 Rose πάντως ἄρα φιλοσοφῆτέον. A similar sentiment, also uttered by a wife whose father urges her to leave her husband (because of his poverty) in Eur. (?) fab. inc. 953. 24 ff. N. ἡ πῶς δίκαιον ἐστὶν ἡ καλῶς ἔχον, τῶν μὲν ἀγαθῶν μετὰ μέρος ὧν εἶχεν λαβεῖν, τοῦ συναπορηθῆναι δὲ μὴ λαβεῖν μέρος; — τὸ ἀτύχημα: to her father this could only mean the shame and humiliation put upon her by Charisius, by conduct which is the subject of scandalous gossip at the very beginning of the play (fr. 600). The relations of Charisius with Habrotonon are urged upon Pamphila by Smicrines as a sufficient motive for her leaving him (fr. 566, p. 104 above). From this misfortune, Pamphila declares, she will not of her own free will (αὐτῇ) make her escape by divorcing her husband. The spectators know that Pamphila is not quite ingenuous with her father, in that she still conceals from him what her real misfortune was. Cf. Ter. Hec. 388 advorsa eius, referring to the same plight of Philumena.

707. ὑψηλός: lofty, like σεμνός, of one who gives offense by an ostentatious assumption of virtue. Cf. v. 528.

In this context perhaps belongs a verse quoted by Plutarch (Mor. 769D), who counsels wives to sacrifice to Eros, that their husbands may be loyal καὶ μὴ πρὸς ἑτέραν ἀπορροῦναι ὁ ἀνὴρ ἀναγκάζηται τὰς ἐκ τῆς κωμωδίας λέγειν φωνάς (fr. adesp. 221 K.) "οἶαν ἀδικῶ γυναῖχ' ὁ δυσδαίμων ἐγώ."

734 ff. Not long after v. 707 Charisius caught sight of Onesimus in his place of concealment and severely took him to task, as the cause of all his troubles. Onesimus had feared such an encounter with him (vv. 210, 686), and indeed found it no easy task to justify his interference. His attempts to excuse himself have made Charisius beside himself with anger. — ἅπαντα, κτέ.: cf. fr. 850, p. 118 below.

735. ὥς εὖ ποῶν: thinking I was doing you a service. His only excuse was his good intention, and that was not easy to establish from his acts. — νῆ . . . θεούς: the same oath v. 183. Or perhaps Ἀπόλλω τουνονί, with a gesture toward the statue by the door; see on P. 242. Apollo is invoked as a witness to the truth of the assertion.

ΧΑΡΙΣΙΟΣ

τί δέ με περισπᾶς, ἱερόσυλ' ;

Enter Habrotonon from the house of Charisius.

SC. 9. ONESIMUS, CHARISIUS, HABROTONON

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

ἔμοι μάχου,

βέλτιστε. τῆς γαμετῆς γυναικός ἐστί σου·

[440]

αὐτῆς γάρ, οὐκ ἀλλότριον.

ΧΑΡΙΣΙΟΣ

εἰ γὰρ ὠφέλεν.

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

νῆ τήν φίλην Δήμητρα.

ΧΑΡΙΣΙΟΣ

τίνα λόγον λέγεις ;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

740 εὖ ἴσθ', ἀληθῆ.

ΧΑΡΙΣΙΟΣ

Παμφίλης τὸ παιδίον

ὄντως ἄρ' ἦν ;

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ

καὶ σὸν γ' ὁμοίως.

736. περισπᾶς: try to distract me, pull the wool over my eyes, lit. draw me off, cf. Plut. Mor. 971c τοὺς διωκοῦντας ὑπάγουσιν (the mother partridges) ἀλλῃ καὶ περισπῶσιν εἰς ἑαυτάς, Luke 10. 40 ἡ δὲ Μάρθα περισπᾶτο περὶ πολλὴν διακονίαν. — ἱερόσυλε: a mere abusive epithet, its literal meaning no longer felt, — a development much like that of our "horse-thief," — and first found in the New Comedy, cf. P. 246, S. 476, and Men. 151 and 229 K.

SC. 9. When last seen (v. 662) Habrotonon was entering the house of Charisius to talk over matters with Sophrona. While within she is supposed to have acquainted Pamphila with the true state of affairs and to have given her the child. And now, hearing the angry voice of Charisius, she intervenes in the quarrel, sweetly remarking "have it out with me, dear friend," and speedily sets the mind of Charisius at peace.

ΧΑΡΙΣΙΟΣ

Παμφίλης;

"Ἀβρότονον, ἱκετεύω σε, μή μ' ἀναπτέρον.

[Lacuna of 26 verses to Q¹.]

At the end of the scene Charisius rushes into his own house. Habrotonon and Onesimus withdraw.

"ΧΟΡΟΤ"

ACT V

Enter Chaerestratus and Onesimus

SC. 1. CHAERESTRATUS, ONESIMUS

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

οὐ μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω. καὶ τὸ λοιπὸν πρόσεχέ μοι, ^{Q¹, quat. p. 8, l. 28} 770 Χαίρεστράθ· ἦδε τὸ μετὰ ταῦτα "δεῖ σ'," ἔφη, "ὅπως διαμένεις ὦν Χαρισίῳ τὸ πᾶν," οἴόσπερ οἴσθα, πιστός." οὐ γάρ ἐστὶ τοι [430]

742. ἀναπτέρον: cf. Aristoph. Av. 433 κλύων γὰρ ὦν σύ μοι λέγεις λόγων ἀνεπτέρωμαι, and, for the thought, Ter. Heaut. 292 Syre mi, obsecro, ne me in laetitiam frustra conicias. Without waiting for a detailed proof of Habrotonon's assertion, Charisius hastens to Pamphila. This is the first time in the course of the play that he has entered his own house.

ACT V, SC. 1. On the other side of fragment Q we find present one of the three persons who participated in the preceding scene, viz. Onesimus. It is therefore not certain that in the interval the scene was vacated, as at the close of an act. And yet it is probable that Onesimus withdrew, as well as Charisius and Habrotonon, and that the chorus of banqueters made its final appearance in the intermission. For Chaerestratus must be told of the happy dénouement, and it would have been undramatic and tedious for Onesimus to enlighten him in the presence of the spectators after the truth has been disclosed to Charisius. We are probably justified in assuming, therefore, that after the intermission Chaerestratus and Onesimus, deeply engaged in conversation, approach through one of the parodoi. Chaerestratus has already been put in possession of the facts and is now listening to the plea of Onesimus on behalf of Habrotonon.

770. ἦδε: i.e. Habrotonon. — δεῖ σε, κτέ.: on the const. cf. Soph. Phil. 54 τὴν Φιλοκτήτου σε δεῖ ψυχὴν ὅπως λόγουσιν ἐκκλέψεις, and Jebb's note. The tone is that of admonition.

772. οἴόσπερ οἴσθα: sc. εἶναι (from ὦν above), what you know well how to be. A similar brachylogy in Dem. 18. 125 δὲ μὴ τούτων μὲν ἐχθρὸς ἦς, ἐμὸς δὲ (εἶναι) προσποιῇ. Perhaps ἦσθα should be read.

ἑταιρίδιον τοῦτ' οὐδὲ τὸ τυχόν¹ ὃ τι ποεῖ.¹
σπουδῇ δὲ καὶ παιδάριον ἔϋρ' ὑμῖν.

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

γενοῦ¹

775 ἐλεύθερος. πάξ. μὴ βλέπ' εἷς τὴν γῆν ἔχων.¹
καὶ πρῶτον αὐτὸν κατὰ μόν¹ας Χαρίσιον,¹ τὸν φίλτατον καὶ τὸν γλυκύτατον παῖδά μου¹

[435]

[Lacuna of 2 pages = ca. 70 verses.]

SC. 2. CHAERESTRATUS, ONESIMUS, HABROTONON

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

φιλω σ', Ὀνήσιμ',¹ εἰ σὺ καὶ¹ περίεργος εἶ.

849 K.

* * * * *

773. ἑταιρίδιον: a mere strumpet. — τὸ τυχόν: no ordinary thing, lit. that which happens of itself. Cf. Epin. 4 K. κἄν τὸ τυχόν ἢ πραγμάτων ἢ σφῶδρ' εὐτελές, and ὁ τυχών Tom, Dick, and Harry. — ὃ τι ποεῖ: that she's doing for us, her services. Perhaps ὃ γ' ἐπεί.

774. σπουδῇ: by her zeal, almost = ἐξεπλήγδης v. 328, cf. Ter. Hec. 877 neque hic imprudens (i.e. consulto) feci. — καὶ παιδάριον, κτέ.: she found a child for you, too, i.e. in addition to her other services. — γενοῦ, κτέ.: Chaerestratus seems to interrupt Onesimus here; the tone of the following suits better the master than the slave.

775. πάξ: an interjection of impatience, to indicate that the subject of conversation is at an end (τέλος ἔχει Hesych.), enough, enough said, found also in Herond. 7. 114 and in Diph. 96 K. πάξ. — τὴν "πάξ," the first speaker interrupting the other. In Latin comedy it is used occasionally, either to interrupt the speaker, as here and Plaut. Mil. 808 pax, ibi; or by the speaker himself, to indicate the end of his discourse, e.g. Ter. Heaut. 717 pax, nil amplius. — μὴ βλέπ, κτέ.: used of a person who is buried in thought or troubled, as [Plat.] Alc. II 138 αὖτε γέ τοι ἐσκυθρωπακέναι τε καὶ εἰς γῆν βλέπειν, ὥς τι ξυννοούμενος, Plaut. Bacch. 608 numqui nummi exciderunt, ere, tibi, quod sic terram optuere? In the present instance the attitude indicates shame and confusion on the part of Onesimus.

776. He probably advises Onesimus frankly to confess his fault to Charisius and beg for forgiveness. The poet has clearly intimated (vv. 322, 331, 341) that Habrotonon was to receive her freedom. We cannot doubt that Chaerestratus at last yielded to the entreaties of Onesimus. It is probable that she now appears (cf. v. 845) and receives her reward. Fragments 849 and 850 probably belong to one of these two scenes.

Fr. 849. περίεργος: a busybody, cf. v. 357 and see p. 28 above.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

οὐδὲν γλυκύτερόν ἐστιν ἢ πάντ' εἰδέναι.

850 K.

* * * * *

Exeunt Habrotonon and Onesimus, the latter into the house of Charisius.

ΧΑΙΡΕΣΤΡΑΤΟΣ

848 σῶφρονα· τοιαυτησὶ γὰρ οὐκ ἀπέσχετ' αὖ H⁴, quat. z, p. 11 ἐκείνος, εἴ τοῦτ' οἶδ'. ἐγὼ δ' ἀφέξομαι.

Exit Chaerestratus. Smicrines approaches from the city.

SC. 3. SMICRINES

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ (to himself)

850 αὖ μὴ κατάξω τὴν κεφαλὴν σου, Σωφρόνη,

Fr. 850. πάντ' εἰδέναι: cf. v. 734.

848 f. After Onesimus and Habrotonon depart, Chaerestratus seems to remain, since these two verses are apparently spoken by him. Probably another scene intervened here. We may surmise that Syricus reappears, according to his intention (v. 245), to pay his ἀποφορά to Chaerestratus, and that the former then receives an accounting for the ring from Onesimus or one of the other characters. Chaerestratus leaves the scene commenting upon the virtues of Habrotonon. — σῶφρονα: as the following fem. shows, the reference is to Habrotonon. She must be a chaste woman, indeed, else Charisius (ἐκείνος) would not have kept his hands off her, so charming a woman (τοιαυτησί). On the vb. and its common implication cf. Aristoph. Lys. 146 εἰ δ' ὡς μάλιστ' ἀπεχόμειθ' — οὐ σὺ δὴ λέγεις, Plat. Legg. 839ε ἀφροδισίων ῥᾶον αὖν ἀπέχουτο, Phaedo 83b ἀπέχεται τῶν ἡδονῶν, and Plaut. Poen. 282 (Agorastocles of Adelpheum) amo . . . , tamen abstineo manus, Ter. Hec. 139. Chaerestratus resolves that he too owes her respect (ἀφέξομαι).

850 ff. Smicrines returns again from the city, determined to carry out the threat which he had made on his departure thither (v. 565). Pamphila must divorce her husband and return to her father's house. Since persuasion does not avail with her, force must be employed.

From the time Smicrines comes into view until he reaches the door of his son-in-law's house he scolds Sophrona, using the second person. Does she accompany him, or is he simply giving vent to his rage against her, for aiding and abetting Pamphila in her opposition to him, by holding an imaginary conversation with her? The latter assumption is probably correct. When Sophrona last quit the scene (v. 662) she conducted Habrotonon into the house of Charisius, and it is hardly likely that in the meantime she has come out again on an errand that would take her to the city. The objections κάκιςτ' ἀπολοίμην. νουθετήσεις καὶ σύ με;

 "προπετώσ ἀπάγω τὴν θυγατέρ'," ἱερόσυλε γραῦ; [450]
 ἀλλὰ περιμείνω καταφαγεῖν τὴν προῖκά μου τὸν χρηστὸν αὐτῆς ἄνδρα; καὶ λόγους λέγω 855 περὶ τῶν ἔμαντοῦ; ταῦτα συμπεΐθεις με σύ;
 οὐκ ὀξυλαβῆσαι κρεῖττον; οἰμῶξει μακρὰ ἂν ἔτι λαλῆς. τί; κρίνομαι πρὸς Σωφρόνην; [455]
 "μετάπεισον αὐτήν, ὅταν ἴδῃς." οὕτω τί μοι ἀγαθὸν γένοιτο, Σωφρόνη, γάρ, οἴκαδε to his conduct which Smicrines puts into her mouth (vv. 852, 858) are, it is likely, mere echoes of her protests to him at the time of his last interview with Pamphila, at which she was present. This interpretation of vv. 850–863 explains why Smicrines is still in ignorance of the latest discoveries regarding the parentage of the child, and greatly simplifies the distribution of speakers in vv. 911 ff. A precisely analogous scene is found in P. 278 ff., where Polemon berates Doris in absentia.

850. κατάξω: crack, as of nuts, cf. Aristoph. 590 K. τὰς ἀμυγδαλὰς λαβὼν τασδί κατάξον τῇ κεφαλῇ σεαυτοῦ λίθω, Phryn. 68 K.

851. καὶ σύ: as well as Chaerestratus (Act IV, sc. 3) and Pamphila, possibly Onesimus also (in the first act).

852. προπετώσ, κτέ.: the supposed words of Sophrona, as in v. 858.

853. The MS. reading περιμενῶ gives in the first two feet the forbidden sequence of dactyl and anapaest. περιμείνω is deliberative subj.—καταφαγεῖν: waste in eating and drinking, as already in Hom. Od. 3. 315 μή τοι κατὰ πάντα φάγωσιν κτήματα.—προῖκα: the four talents (cf. Pet. fr. v. 8, p. 95) on which he has had his eye from the beginning. In case of a divorce the dowry would revert to him as κύριος of Pamphila (see above, p. 41) unless she had a living son of the union. Similarly Phidippus in Ter. Hec. 502 demands back the dowry in case Pamphilus will not live with his daughter.

854. χρηστὸν: ironical, as in S. 196.—λόγους λέγω: cf. P. 630, Eur. Med. 321 μή λόγους λέγε.

855. ταῦτα: i.e. περιμένειν, κτέ.

856. ὀξυλαβῆσαι: lay hold quickly of an occasion, a rare vb., found also in Xen. Hell. 7. 4. 27 δοιοὶ ὠξυλάβησαν ἐξῆλθον. The λαβή which Charisius has given to Smicrines is of course his intrigue with Habrotonon, which would furnish a sufficient ground for a divorce.

857. κρίνομαι πρὸς: discuss the case before; see on v. 277 for this meaning of πρὸς. For the vb. cf. Aristoph. Nub. 66 τέως μὲν οὖν ἐκρινόμεθα.

858. μετάπεισον: make her change (μετα-) her mind.—οὕτω, κτέ.: see on v. 47.

859. Σωφρόνη: belongs to the γάρ-clause, and this clause gives the explanation of the threat involved, but not expressed, in the wish. As I hope for salvation (I'll punish you), for, Sophrona. On the position of γάρ cf. v. 50.

860 ἀπιών — τὸ τέλμ' εἶδες παριούσ'; ἐνταῦθά σε τὴν νύκτα βαπτίζων ὅλην ἀποκτενῶ, κἀγὼ σέ' ταῦτ' ἐμοὶ φρονεῖν ἀναγκάσω [460]
καὶ μὴ στασιάζειν. Approaches the door of Charisius' house.

ἡ θύρα παιητέα,
κεκλειμένη γάρ ἐστι. παῖδες. παιδίον.
865 ἀνοιξάτω τις. παῖδες, οὐχ ὑμῖν λέγω;
Onesimus opens the door and comes out, but does not admit Smicrines.

SC. 4. SMICRINES, ONESIMUS

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

τίς ἐσθ' ὁ κόπτων τὴν θύραν; ὦ, Σμικρίνης ὁ χαλεπός, ἐπὶ τὴν προῖκα καὶ τὴν θυγατέρα [465] ῥῆκων;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ἔγωγε, τρισκατάρατε.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

καὶ μάλα

ὀρθῶς· λογιστικοῦ γὰρ ἀνδρὸς καὶ σφόδρα

860. ἀπιών: temporal. — τέλμα: cf. Ter. Ad. 583 priusquam ad portam venias, apud ipsum lacum est pistrilla. — παριούσα: in passing. Smicrines noticed it himself and thought of its availability for the purpose he has in mind. εἶδες does not necessarily imply that Sophrona was actually with him at the time.

861. ἀποκτενῶ: see v. 688 and cf. ἀφανίζειν v. 210.

863. παιητέα: smite, instead of "knock" (κόπτειν). The word may have been chosen to prepare for the call "παῖδες," in accordance with the comic etymology 'παῖς' ἀπὸ τοῦ παλεσθαι, cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 1297 παῖδα γάρ, κἀν ᾧ γέρον, καλεῖν δίκαιον ὅστις ἀν πλῆγας λάβῃ (= παισθῇ).

864. κεκλειμένη: Onesimus had taken the precaution to lock the door, in expectation of this visit.

866. Σμικρίνης: sc. ἐστὶ;

867. Onesimus, who a short time ago fled from the very sight of Smicrines (v. 363), is now insolent to him, — the result of his superior knowledge of the situation and of the promise of emancipation. — χαλεπός: testy, cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 942 χαλεπὸς ὢν καὶ δόσκολος. — προῖκα, κτέ.: Smicrines has made his intentions clear to the spectators in vv. 565 ff., and Onesimus does not need to be told what he has now come for.

869. λογιστικοῦ: ironical; this time his "calculations" have gone wrong. On Smicrines' avarice see Pet. fr.,

870 φρονούντος ἡ σπουδή· τό θ' ἄρπασμ', Ἡράκλεις, θαυμαστὸν οἶον.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

πρὸς θεῶν καὶ δαιμόνων —

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

οἶει τοσαύτην τοὺς θεοὺς ἄγειν σχολὴν 174 K. [470] ὥστε τὸ κακὸν καὶ τὰγαθὸν καθ' ἡμέραν νέμειν ἐκάστω, Σμικρίνη;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

λέγεις δὲ τί;

v. 14, p. 96 (λελόγισται). — σφόδρα : const. with φρονούντος. The copula ἐστὶ is understood.

870. τὸ ἄρπασμα : your kidnapping. Smicrines evidently expected to find Pamphila unprotected in the house, as she had been during the day; now he finds the door locked and guarded by Onesimus. ἄρπαγή is the regular word for the carrying away of a person by violence. Alexis wrote a comedy Ἑλένης ἄρπαγή, The Rape of Helen; cf. Antiph. 74. 3 K. (Ganymede), Men. 204 K. ἄρπασμα here seems to mean kidnapping expedition.

871. θαυμαστὸν οἶον : admirable, indeed! — πρὸς θεῶν : Smicrines begins a protest against such impudence (v. 889) on the part of the slave, but is not permitted to get beyond the mention of the gods, which gives Onesimus an opening for a sermon.

872 ff. A bit of Epicurean philosophy put into the slave's mouth by Menander, the friend and age-fellow (συνέφηβος) of Epicurus. There is no suggestion of atheism in the question (as in Aris-toph. Eq. 32 ἐτεδὸν ἡγεῖ γὰρ θεοὺς;). In a letter to a friend (apud Diog. Laert. 123) Epicurus bluntly asserts his belief in the existence of the gods: θεοὶ μὲν γὰρ εἰσιν. ἐναργὴς δὲ ἐστὶν αὐτῶν ἡ γνῶσις· οἷους δ' αὐτοὺς οἱ πολλοὶ νομίζουσιν οὐκ εἰσίν. But their tranquillity is not disturbed by the petty affairs of men. If they interfered in them they could not be happy, and yet happiness is the supreme attribute of the deity. Cic. De nat. deor. 1. 19. 51 describes the life of the gods, according to Epicurus, as ea videlicet, qua nihil beatius. . . . nihil enim agit (deus), nullis occupationibus est implicatus, nulla opera molitur, sua sapientia et virtute gaudet. Menander elsewhere lightly jests with this topic, as when (750 K.) he makes a man say, just after assisting at a sacrifice, ἔθνον οὐ προσέχουσιν οὐδέν μοι θεοῖς. The above passage, from οἶει το Σμικρίνη, is quoted by David the Armenian (ca. 500 A.D.), with a reference to this play, as embodying the doctrine of Epicurus.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

- 875 σαφῶς διδάξω σ'· εἰσὶν αἱ πᾶσαι πόλεις, ὁμοιον εἰπεῖν, χίλιαι· τρισμύριοι οἰκοῦσ' ἐκάστην· καθ' ἓνα τούτων οἱ θεοὶ [475] ἕκαστον ἐπιτρίβουσιν ἢ σφῶνσι; πῶς;
 λέγεις γὰρ ἐπίπονόν τιν' αὐτοὺς ζῆν βίον.¹ 880 "οὐκ ἄρα φροντίζουσιν ἡμῶν οἱ θεοί"; 752 K. φήσεις. ἐκάστῳ τὸν τρόπον συνήρμωσαν¹ φρούραρχον· οὗτος ἔνδον ἕτερον μὲν κακῶς¹ [480] ἐπέτριψεν, ἂν αὐτῷ κακῶς χρήσῃθ' ἅπαξ,¹

875. αἱ πᾶσαι: i.e. all in the world.

876. ὁμοιον εἰπεῖν: to put it approximately (lit. indifferently), an idiom found elsewhere only in late Greek. The classical expression is σχεδὸν εἰπεῖν, cf. Plat. Soph. 237 c. This meaning of ὁμοιον may have developed from expressions like ὁμοιον ἡμῖν ἔσται Herod. 8. 80, it will be all one to us. — χίλιαι: Theocritus (17. 82 ff.), in extolling Ptolemy Philadelphus, reckoned the number of cities ruled by him alone as 33,333. The states tributary to Athens at the height of the first confederacy are given as 1000 in Aristoph. Vesp. 706.

877. καθ' ἓνα ἕκαστον: each individually. — τούτων: const. with ἓνα ἕκαστον.

878. ἐπιτρίβουσιν ἢ σφῶνσι: damn or save, in the modern theological parlance. Cf. Cic. l.c. interimunt and conservent. — πῶς: absurd!

879. ἐπίπονον: the stock argument of the Epicureans, cf. Cic. l.c. hunc deum rite beatum dixerimus, vestrum vero laboriosissimum.

881. φήσεις: φημι, in place of ἔρωτώ or ἔρομαι, is used freely with quotations that are cast in the form of indignant questions, cf. Plat. Theaet. 195 E "τί οὖν," φήσει, "τὰ ἔνδεκα . . . ἄλλο τι ἐκ τούτου τοῦ λόγου οὐκ ἂν ποτε οἰηθείη δώδεκα εἶναι;" Strat. 1. 32 K. "ἀλλὰ διὰ τὰς τέτταρας δραχμὰς ἀποβαλῶ," φησί, "τὴν προαίρεσιν;" In the question which is put into the mouth of Smicrines is implied the allegation "Of course the gods care for us." — ἐκάστῳ, κτέ.: the explanation given by Onesimus implies an affirmative answer to the assumed question of Smicrines, e.g. "The gods do care for us, but in this way." — τὸν τρόπον: character. The thought is a development of a saying attributed to Epicharmus (258 Kaib.) ὁ τρόπος ἀνθρώποισι δαίμων ἀγαθός, οἱ δὲ καὶ κακός, or of the famous sentence of Heraclitus ἦθος ἀνθρώπῳ δαίμων (Wilamowitz).

882. φρούραρχον: character, as commandant of the garrison of the soul, administers rewards and punishments according to the conduct of the individual. Cf. the figure employed by Menander in a similar passage (550 K.), ἅπαντι δαίμων ἀνδρὶ συμπαρίσταται εὐθὺς γενομένῳ, μυσταγωγὸς τοῦ βίου ἀγαθός. — ἔνδον: sc. οἰκῶν ἐκάστῳ.

883. ἐπέτριψεν: gnomic aor. — αὐτῷ . . . ἅπαξ: if a man once abuse it.

ἕτερον δ' ἔσωσεν. οὗτός ἐσθ' ἡμῖν θεός, 885 ὃ τ' αἷτιος καὶ τοῦ καλῶς καὶ τοῦ κακῶς πράττειν ἐκάστω. τοῦτον ἰλάσκου ποῶν υἡδὲν ἄτοπον μῆδ' ἀμαθές, ἵνα πράττης καλῶς. [485]

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

εἰθ' οὐμός, ἱερόσυλε, νῦν τρόπος ποεῖ ἀμαθές τι;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

συντρίβει σε.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

τῆς παρρησίας.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

890 ἀλλ' ἀπαγαγεῖν παρ' ἀνδρὸς αὐτοῦ θυγατέρα ἀγαθὸν σὺ κρίνεις, Σμικρίνη;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

λέγει δὲ τίς

τοῦτ' ἀγαθόν; ἀλλὰ νῦν ἀναγκαῖον.

— ἄπαξ: cf. Aristoph. Ach. 923 κείπερ λάβοιτο τῶν νεῶν τὸ πῦρ ἄπαξ (Bodin).

884. οὗτος θεός: cf. Men. 762 K. ὁ νοῦς γὰρ ἐστὶν ἡμῶν ἐν ἐκάστω θεός. Elsewhere (772 K.) character is one's νόμος, guide of life — essentially the same idea.

886. ποῶν: by doing.

887. ἵνα πράττης καλῶς: not a high motive for right conduct, but one not distinctively Greek, either in ethics or in religion.

888. The philosophy of the slave is too deep for Smicrines. Onesimus has intimated that it is not the τρόπος of Smicrines, but Smicrines himself, that is committing a stupidity.

889. συντρίβει: it's confounding you, proving your undoing. The difference between συν- and ἐπι-τρίβειν is about that between "crush" and "break."

 — τῆς παρρησίας: what insolence! Cf.
 vv. 154, 179, 673.

890. ἀπαγαγεῖν: ἀπαγαγεῖν παρὰ τοῦ ἀνδρός = ἀναγκάσαι τὸν ἄνδρα ἀπολείπειν.

— αὐτοῦ: one's own. We might have had τὴν θυγατέρα or τὴν αὐτοῦ θυγα-τέρα, cf. P. 256 ἔχειν γυναῖκα πρὸς βίαν τοῦ κυρίου. The omission of the art.
 with both ἀνδρός and θυγατέρα, combined with the third persons τινά (subj. understood of ἀπαγαγεῖν) and αὐτοῦ, makes the question a formulation of a principle. But θυγατέρα, where we should have expected γυναῖκα, serves to give the principle a specific application to the present case.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

θεᾶ ;

[490]

τὸ κακὸν ἀναγκαῖον λογίζεθ' οὕτοσί.

τοῦτόν τις ἄλλος, οὐχ ὁ τρόπος, ἀπολλύει.

895 καὶ νῦν μὲν ὀρμῶντ' ἐπὶ πονηρὸν πρᾶγμά σε ταῦτόματον ἀποσέσωκε, καὶ καταλαμβάνεις διαλλαγὰς λύσεις τ' ἐκείνων τῶν κακῶν.

[495]

αὖθις δ' ὅπως μὴ λήψομαί σε, Σμικρίνη, προπετῇ, λέγω σοι. νῦν δὲ τῶν ἐγκλημάτων

900 ἀφίεσο τούτων, τὸν δὲ θυγατριδοῦν λαβὼν ἔνδον πρόσειπε.

Stands aside from the door.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

θυγατριδοῦν, μαστιγία ;

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

παχύδερμος ἦσθα καὶ σύ, νοῦν ἔχειν δοκῶν.

[500]

892. θεᾶ: you see! Onesimus triumphantly calls attention to an absurdity in the logic of Smicrines.

894. τις ἄλλος: ironical. He doubtless thinks of ὁ νοῦς. The trouble now is with his brains. — ἀπολλύει: see on v. 220.

895. νῦν μὲν: though now. The concessive μὲν prepares the way for αὖθις δέ in v. 898.

896. ταῦτόματον: the Epicurean equivalent for ἡ τύχη. — καταλαμβάνεις: you find. The supplementary partic. γεγονυίας must be supplied in the predicate.

897. ἐκείνων: as now past.

898. ὅπως μὴ: GMT. § 271. The tone is threatening. The insolence of Onesimus here reaches its height. But before Smicrines can resent it Onesimus renders his rage impotent by the announcement of the truth.

899. προπετῇ: cf. Sophrona's words quoted v. 852. The comic poets, in order to create ludicrous situations, deliberately emphasized the impetuous dispositions of their characters. Cf. Polemon in the Periceiomene (vv. 9, 898).

900. ἀφίεσο: stand acquitted, a legal term. Note τ and see Kühner-Blass § 291, Anm. 1. — λαβὼν = καταλαβὼν. Supply in the predicate δντα, with ἔνδον.

901. πρόσειπε: salute, cf. Aristoph. Ach. 266 ἐκτῷ σ' ἔτει προσείπον.

902. παχύδερμος: not found elsewhere with this figurative implication of stupidity until Lucian, cf. Tim. 23 ἀπειρόκαλος καὶ παχύδερμος. — ἦσθα: "imperf. of sudden appreciation of a real state of things," Gildersleeve Syn. § 220. Generally with ἄρα, cf. Aristoph. Eq. 1170 ὡς μέγαν ἄρ' εἶχες, ὦ πότνια, τὸν δάκτυλον. For the thought cf. Plaut. Mil. 235 erus meus elephantī corio circumtentus, non suo, neque habet plus sapientiaī quam lapis. — καὶ σύ: intimates that other οὕτως ἐτήρεις παῖδ' ἐπίγαμον; τοιγαροῦν τέρασιν ὅμοια πεντάμηνα παιδιά 905 ἐκτρέφομεν.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

οὐκ οἶδ' ὅ τι λέγεις.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

οἶδ', ὥς ἐγῶμαι. τότε γὰρ οὐμὸς δεσπότης τοῖς Ταυροπολίοις — [505]

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ (calling loudly)

Σωφρόνη.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

ταύτην λαβὼν χορῶν ἀποσπασθεῖσαν — αἰσθάνει γε;

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

ναί.

ΟΝΗΣΙΜΟΣ

νυνὶ δ' ἀναγνωρισμὸς αὐτοῖς γέγονε καὶ 910 ἅπαντ' ἀγαθά.

Enter Sophrona from the house of Charisius.

participants in this misunderstanding, beside Smicrines, had failed to use their wits; Charisius, for example.

904. τέρασιν: prodigies, because the child was fully formed, cf. ἐκτρέφομεν v. 905. Only in a jocose sense, therefore, was it a πεντάμηνον. τέρατα are defined by Plat. (Crat. 394b) as τὰ παρὰ φύσιν γιγνόμενα. Note the tone of comic exaggeration in the plurals.

905. ἐκτρέφομεν: five-months infants could not usually be reared. The case was clearly παρὰ φύσιν. On the 1st pers. pl. cf. vv. 178, 393. — ἡ γραῦς γε: observe that the demonstrative is not used. The manner of reference to Sophrona shows that she is not present.

906. τότε: on that occasion, referring to some occasion about which Sophrona knew, made explicit in the next line.

907. At Onesimus' suggestion that Sophrona could give confirmation of his insinuation, Smicrines shouts loudly for her to come out.

908. Cf. v. 269. Instead of completing the sentence Onesimus trusts to the general familiarity of the father of a marriageable daughter, as well as of the theater-going public, with the dangers that notoriously beset young girls at the all-night festivals. Cf. Ael. De animal. 7. 19 τὰ μικρὰ μειράκια τὰ τοῦ Μενάνδρου ἐν ταῖς παννυχίσιν ἀκόλαστα (Bodin-Mazon).

910. ἅπαντα: sc. ἐστί.

SC. 5. SMICRINES, ONESIMUS, SOPHRONA

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

τί φησιν, ιεροσύλε γράυ;

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ

“ἡ φύσις ἐβούλεθ’, ἡ νόμων οὐδὲν μέλει.
γυνή δ’ ἐπ’ αὐτῷ τῷδ’ ἔφυ.”

[510]

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

τί μῶρος εἶ;

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ

τραγικὴν ἐρῶ σοι ῥῆσιν ἐξ Αὐγῆς ὄλην, ἂν μή ποτ’ αἰσθῇ, Σμικρίνη.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

σύ μοι χολήν

911. Sophrona hears enough of Onesimus' speech as she comes out of the house to enable her to appreciate the situation. Instead of making a direct answer to the question she quotes an apposite passage from the Auge of Euripides. Auge, daughter of Aleus king of Tegea, and priestess of Athena, when taking part in a festival of the goddess was violated by Heracles, who left a ring with her. A son, Telephus, was born to Auge, whereat Aleus caused the child to be exposed and commanded that his daughter should be put to death ignominiously. But Heracles arrived opportunely, and, convinced by the ring of his responsibility for the child, rescued Auge. Verse 911 (Eur. fr. 920 N.) is from the speech of Heracles before Aleus in justification of his conduct. It was often quoted in antiquity, but without the name of the play. The scholiast to Gregory Naz. cites it as from the New Comedy; he had seen it in this play (Wilamowitz). Fr. 265 N. is plausibly assigned by M. Croiset to the same speech: νῦν δ' οἶνος ἐξέστησέ μ'· ὁμολογῶ δέ σε ἀδικεῖν, τὸ δ' ἀδίκημ' ἐγένετ' οὐχ ἐκούσιον.

912. ἐπ' αὐτῷ τῷδε: i.e. ἐπὶ τῷ τεκεῖν in the speech of Heracles, but in this comic application of the aphorism perhaps ἐπὶ τῇ συνουσίᾳ.

913. ῥῆσιν: the regular term for one of the long declamatory passages so characteristic of tragedy, cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 580 οὐκ ἀποφεύγει πρὶν ἂν ἡμῖν ἐκ τῆς Νιόβης εἴπῃ ῥῆσιν τὴν καλλίστην ἀπολέξας.—ἐξ Αὐγῆς: the reference was probably necessary, familiar as many of the audience would be with the more popular plays of Euripides.

915 κινεῖς παθαινομένη· σὺ γὰρ σφόδρ' οἶσθ' ὅτι «τέρας λέγει νῦν.

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ

οἶδ' ἔγωγ', εὖ ἴσθ', ὅτι «τέρατ' ἄμφοτέρα συνῆκε.

[515]

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

πάνδεινον λέγεις.

ΣΩΦΡΟΝΗ

«οὐ γέγονεν εὐτύχημα μείζον οὐδὲ ἔν.

ΣΜΙΚΡΙΝΗΣ

«εἰ τοῦτ' ἀληθές ἐσθ' ὃ λέγεις, τὸ παιδίον

[A few verses are lacking.]

915. παθαινομένη: with your tragic bombast. The vb., found elsewhere only in late writers, chiefly in literary criticism, means the striving after pathetic effects in delivery. — The anapaest in the third foot, contained in a word that begins in the preceding foot, is found in the Cairo MS. only here and in S. 143, and in the fragments four times. It is not objectionable in the fourth foot, see on v. 114. White, p. 151.

916. τέρας λέγει νῦν: what he says now is monstrous, preposterous, i.e. τέρας ἂν εἴη εἰ γίγνοιτο (cf. Plat. Theaet. 164 B). The phrase, expressing incredulity, is used several times by Plato and passed into Latin, cf. Cic. ad Att. 4. 7. 1 mera monstra narrabat.

917. τέρατ' ἄμφοτερα: both prodigies, the nothos of Pamphila and that of Charisius, have been correctly interpreted by him. The text is uncertain.

— συνῆκε: comprehended, often of a thing difficult to understand, e.g. Soph. Trach. 1121 οὐδὲν ξυνίμ' ὦν σὺ ποικίλεις πάσαι. — πάνδεινον: outrageous.

919. Smicrines probably challenges Onesimus to a proof of his assertions. This could most readily be given, without the necessity of repeating anything which the spectators already know, by the appearance of Charisius and Pamphila together on the scene after their reconciliation, and their acknowledgment of the child in the presence of Smicrines.

FR. 185. ἔχινος: a word quoted as occurring in this play as the name of a kind of χύτρα. It may have been used in the exposition in the account of the exposure of the child. Cf. χυτρίζειν and ἐγχυτρίζειν to put a child, i.e. put it in a pot to be exposed.

ΠΕΡΙΚΕΙΡΟΜΕΝΗ

THE PERICEIROMENE

Within the past decade a kind fortune has on three separate occasions brought to light out of Egypt considerable portions of Menander's Periceiromene, or Girl with Shorn Locks,—a bright play, of distinctly original charm, which is referred to a number of times by ancient writers, though it is only three times quoted from by title. The series of discoveries began at Oxyrhynchus: in the second volume of the Oxyrhynchus Papyri (1899) Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt published from a papyrus roll a fairly well-preserved column containing 51 lines from near the end of the play and a few line-ends from the preceding column. Among the remains of the papyrus codex of Menander which M. Lefebvre found at Aphroditopolis and published in 1907 were two sheets of four pages each and a torn leaf containing a little more than half of two consecutive pages, a total of 320 lines, which have been assigned with certainty to this comedy. Unfortunately, about one-fourth of the text of the Aphroditopolis (Cairo) manuscript is seriously mutilated or difficult to decipher. Finally, in 1908 two leaves of a parchment codex of Menander which had been acquired at Antinupolis were published by Professor A. Körte for the Leipzig Academy. They contain respectively 61 and 60 lines of the Periceiromene, but 48 lines of the first leaf overlap the text of the Cairo manuscript. In spite of the mutilation of the extremities of many of the lines on this parchment, the text is in a fairly satisfactory condition except at the end of the second leaf. We thus possess at the present time, of a play whose original compass was not much more than 1000 verses, 444 verses and a few insignificant verse-ends.¹ Furthermore, the relative position of each of these six sections of text has been determined, and the extent of the gaps between the first five can be estimated within a few lines. In consequence we possess a body of text that, for the most part, can be read with pleasure; we know all, or at any rate most, of the leading characters, their chief individual traits, and the motives which actuate them; and the plot in its general outlines lies before us. This is not to say that there are not many problems of both text and plot which our present resources do not permit us to solve. A number of ways of creating the complication and of solving it are always open to a poet after he has chosen his theme and has fixed upon his characters, and the gaps in our text are so extensive that often we can only guess which of the possible solutions our poet adopted. But we are doubtless justified in believing that, on the whole, the portions we possess are of greater significance for the understanding of the plot than those which are lost.

¹ The information supplied by the ancients has been of great value in helping to identify the several finds. The Bembine scholiast to Terence remarks on Eun. 60 (in amore haec omnia sunt vitia: iniuriae, suspiciones, etc.): videtur Detonsam (Periceiromenen) Menandri tangere, in

The play derives its title from the act of a lover, Polemon, who, in a moment of insane but apparently justifiable jealousy, cut off the hair of his dearly-beloved mistress, Glycera. This barbarous deed, which brought the deepest humiliation¹ upon a beautiful and qua fabula miles, suspicione percussus adulterii, gladio amatae amputat crines. Agathias in an epigram Anth. Pal. 5. 218 refers to τὸν σοβαρὸν Πολέμωνα, τὸν ἐν θυμέλῃσι Μενάνδρου κείραντα Γλυκέρως (Scaliger's conj. for γλυκερούς) τῆς ἀλόχου πλοκάμους. Lucian Dial. meretr. 8.1 alludes to the cutting of a mistress' hair as the act of a jealous lover. We now know that throughout Dial. meretr. 9 he has in mind the situation that confronts Polemon on his return from the wars, and that he draws on the play for significant details. Philostratus also alludes to the subject of the play in two letters, Ep. 16 and 61 (both quoted below). Each of the six pieces of MS. is vouched for by conclusive evidence, either internal or external: E by an allusion (v. 53) to the hair-cutting and by proper names and subject matter; J by the recurrence (v. 243) of a quotation accompanied by the title; Lp.¹ by overlapping J; K by proper names and content; Lp.² by content, by the fact that it obviously continues K, and by its belonging to the same book as Lp.¹; and the Oxyr. fr. by proper names and subject matter. Only one of the three quotations with title recurs in these MSS., but the text contains eight quotations without title.

¹ The poet seems not to have attached any special significance to the act, as some scholars have thought; it was merely a wanton outrage upon a woman's beauty, an ἀτίμια (v. 48). Philostratus gives a reasonable interpretation when he writes (Ep. 61), thinking of Glycera: τίς σε, ὦ καλή, περιέκειρεν; ὡς ἀνόητος καὶ unoffending girl, was not committed before the eyes of the spectators; but it was reported in detail just after it was perpetrated, and is kept constantly before the spectators' minds, not only by the presence upon the scene of Glycera with her shortened locks, but also by allusions in the text (vv. 53, 248). Polemon's violence drives Glycera out of his home. A critical situation is thus created which gives rise to the subsequent course of plot and sub-plot. The sympathy of the spectators is drawn to Glycera at the outset, and their interest in her fortunes aroused. The incident which gives the play its title is therefore of central dramatic importance in a play whose theme is jealousy. Had Menander desired to use a descriptive subtitle he might properly have called his comedy Περικειρομένη ἢ ὁ ζηλότυπος.

To put the spectators in possession of the facts necessary to the understanding of the plot—to acquaint them with the characters, the situation in which they at present find themselves, and their antecedent history in so far as it is necessary that this history should be known at the beginning—Menander has employed for the Periceiomene the same method which he adopts in the Hero: a prelude followed by a prologue. In a play constructed on this plan the characters are first seen in action. A few preliminary scenes reveal the principal actors in the drama, their relations to each βάρβαρος ὁ μὴ φεισάμενος τῶν Ἀφροδίτης δώρων. οὐδὲ γὰρ γῆ κομῶσα ἡδὺ οὕτω θέαμα ὡς γυνὴ κατὰκομος. So far as we know, the hair was never cut as a punishment for adultery in the case of either man or woman. In Aristoph. Ach. 849 the allusion in Κρατῖνος εἰς κεκαρμένους μοιχόν is to the foppish hair-cut of an old man who would fain be regarded as a youthful gallant. The tyrant Polycrates is said by the historian Alexis (Athen. 540 ε) to have clipped the hair of a favorite youth in a fit of jealousy caused by his rival, the poet Anacreon. The hair of slaves and of captives in war was sometimes shorn. The women in Aristoph. Thesm. 836 ff. propose that the mothers of undesirable citizens be required to sit, their hair cut "σκάφιον-style," behind the mothers of brave men. The scholiast describes the σκάφιον cut as the tonsure of slaves. As for captives, Philostratus l.c. goes on to say: ὅντως πάντα τὰ ἐκ πολεμίων πέπονθας· ἐγὼ δ' οὐκ ἂν οὐδ' αἰχμαλώτου (sc. οὔσαν) περιέκειρα, τιμῶν τὸ κάλλος. In Ep. 16 Philostratus carelessly speaks of Glycera as a captive girl, forgetting the details of the comedy and thinking only of the girl's short hair; or perhaps we should read: οὐδ' ὁ τοῦ Μενάνδρου Πολέμων καλὸν μειράκιον περιέκειρεν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ αἰχμαλώτου μὲν ἐρωμένης κατετόλμησεν ὀργισθεὶς, ἣν οὐδ' ἀποκείρας ἠνέσχето, κτέ.

other, and the present situation, which is almost invariably of a critical nature. The exposition is then completed by a narrative monologue. In a comedy in which the dénouement is to be accomplished by means of an ἀναγνώρισις, — a scheme for which Menander, herein a true disciple of Euripides, showed a marked predilection (Vit. Aristoph. 10), — the monologue, in which the antecedents of the principal characters are given, was traditionally desirable, whether it preceded or followed the dialogue. It is thoroughly in accordance with the Euripidean tradition, moreover, that the expository monologue should be assigned to a person who is outside the main action. In the present instance Menander has assigned this function to Agnoia, a personification of Ignorance, or, more accurately, Misapprehension, a figure whom he endows with the divine power of directing the affairs of men. Lucian introduces his essay On Calumny with a description of ἄγνοια which in all probability owes some traits to the speech of the goddess in the Periceirumene (cf. Kock adesp. 1473), just as he elsewhere (Pseudol. 4) invokes from another of Menander's prologues the analogous figure of Elenchus, the spirit which brings the truth to light. "A dread thing is misapprehension," he says in effect, "the cause of many woes to men. She pours down as it were a mist upon men's actions, dimming the truth and beclouding the life of each individual. We stumble like men who walk in the dark. We see not that which is before our feet, but fear that which is far from us. Through misapprehension calumnies arise, and through calumnies homes have been ruined, cities utterly destroyed, fathers enraged against their children, brothers against brothers, children against parents, lovers against their beloved." In Menander's play Misapprehension appears as a benevolent spirit, working against herself in the interest of those who through her are deprived of that which is dearest to them. Through her a calumny arises against an innocent girl. She arouses in Polemon, who believes the calumny, a jealous rage which leads him to commit an act which is inconsistent with his true nature (v. 44), to the end that the truth, obscured by herself, may come to light.

The history of the characters prior to the action of the play is as follows: About eighteen years before, the wife of Pataecus, a wealthy ship-owner, gave birth to twin children, a boy and a girl, and died. Pataecus had just heard of the loss of his ship, representing all his property. Unwilling to face poverty burdened by these children, he gave them to a slave to expose. With them were placed the usual γνωρίσματα—some objects hung about the neck, a piece of embroidered cloth, a small casket containing an embroidered girdle, and the clothing on their backs (vv. 693 ff.). The children were found by a poor old woman of Corinth. Unable to rear both children, she kept the girl and gave the boy to Myrrhina, a rich Corinthian matron, who desired a son (vv. 1 ff.). After the death of his first wife it seems that Pataecus had married Myrrhina, and, believing that the boy was her child, had formally adopted him (v. 703). The boy, Moschion, brought up in luxury and thoroughly spoiled by Myrrhina, grew to be a conceited and somewhat dissolute young man. His sister, Glycera, was reared as a respectable girl, but her foster-mother, reduced to abject poverty by the war, could not provide a proper marriage for her and was therefore obliged to give her in a freer union to a Corinthian soldier, Polemon, who was enamored of her. Now the secret of Glycera's birth lay heavy upon the conscience of her supposed mother as she approached her end. The girl was not safely established in life, she reflected, living outside the bonds of legal wedlock. Glycera might at some time need the protection of her brother; there was even danger that an attachment might spring up between brother and sister if each were unaware of the relationship. So the old woman, before her death, told Glycera the truth and gave her the evidences of her origin (vv. 11-24). These tokens Glycera guarded carefully in a chest (vv. 621, 633). She revealed her secret to no one.

Not long before the action of the play begins, Pólemon had established Glycera in a house next door to that of Myrrhina (vv. 26 ff.). Although she knows that Moschion is her brother, she yet has kept the fact to herself, fearing that if known it might seriously affect his fortunes (vv. 28 ff.). Moschion, however, regarded his pretty neighbor as a suitable object of his attentions. During an absence of Polemon (vv. 240, 377, 62), probably on a campaign,¹ Moschion had got into the habit of hanging about her door. Finally, the evening before the play opens, seeing her through the open door, he had rushed upon her and embraced her. And Glycera did not repulse him. At that moment Polemon, just home from abroad, arrived in time to witness the encounter. He drew the obvious inference from Glycera's complaisance, but, instead of having the matter out with her then, he hurried away, intending to question her on the morrow (vv. 33 ff., 868). Moschion, we may assume, beat a speedy retreat from the scene of danger.

¹ Cf. Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 1 ὁ Πολέμων ἀπὸ τῆς στρατίας ἀνέστρεψε πλουτῶν.

○ The action begins the next morning after this incident. We cannot tell how the poet managed the initial scenes, but we know that in them appeared Polemon (vv. 9, 244 f.), Glycera (v. 7), and Sosias, the man-servant of Polemon (he is not introduced when he appears in v. 52); and probably Doris, Glycera's maid. We can imagine that Polemon, accompanied by Sosias, first tells of his suspicions of Glycera, which he cannot bring himself to believe, so convinced has he been of her affection for him. Sending Sosias away, probably to look for Moschion, he enters the house. Instead of explaining her conduct Glycera requires that he shall believe her assurances of innocence. Exasperated by her reticence regarding her relations with Moschion, Polemon cuts off her hair and bursts out of the house followed by the weeping and frightened woman. Polemon already regrets his violence and would be glad to make his peace with her; but she will hear no more of his promises (fr. 569). In despair Polemon joins some boon companions in the country and tries to drown his grief in wine (vv. 56, 244). Glycera summons her maid Doris. She must leave Polemon's house without delay. Recalling probably the kindness which her neighbors, Pataecus (v. 385) and Myrrhina, had shown her during Polemon's absence, and ascertaining first that Moschion is not at home (v. 204), she seeks and gains from Myrrhina permission to live with her until other arrangements can be made. At any rate we find her already established in Myrrhina's house at the conclusion of the speech of Misapprehension.

In this characteristic way Menander has first shown us the principal persons of his play under the sway of violent emotions. When they emerge from the struggle a breach has been created between them. Polemon's sincere love for Glycera makes it impossible for him to acquiesce in the separation; he must win her back in some way. But the passion of jealousy has been aroused in him. He cannot overlook what he has seen with his own eyes, and yet Glycera will not explain her conduct nor come back to him until he is willing to make amends. In ordinary circumstances this lovers' quarrel would have taken the usual course of confession and forgiveness, after Polemon's rage had cooled, for he is already sorry for what he has done.¹ But the poet contrives so to fan the flame of jealousy that Polemon is finally ready to resort to violence (v. 379) in order to regain Glycera and punish Moschion. At this point a third party will intervene. Through his intervention the secret of Glycera's birth will be discovered. She will find her father, Moschion his sister and father. Glycera's innocence will be established and an independent position in life secured for her. The reconciliation and marriage with Polemon will follow. In this way the purpose announced by Misapprehension (vv. 43 ff.) will be fulfilled.

The speech of the Goddess belongs properly to the exposition. The brief second act (ca. 94 vv.), which intervenes between her departure and the appearance of the chorus, develops the two motives that are to be at play until the dénouement, — the attempt of Polemon to regain Glycera, and Moschion's ridiculous wooing. The former constitutes the main plot, the latter the secondary plot. Polemon does not know that Glycera has left his house. He sends Sosias to see what she is doing. Sosias, a blundering servant and half drunk besides, goes back with the report that he has seen Doris come from the house of Myrrhina (v. 64). Fearing that Glycera will try to escape from him, Polemon later (v. 234) sends Sosias back, with a couple of soldiers, to keep a watch upon her. A moment afterward (v. 246), unable to wait for information through Sosias, he himself comes rushing upon the scene, almost certain that Glycera has already gone. He goes into his house to search for her. Meanwhile Davus, the confidential slave of Moschion, has learned from Doris (vv. 142 ff.) that Glycera is in Myrrhina's house. Assuming that Myrrhina has acted in her son's interest in receiving his sweetheart, Davus hurries off to bring Moschion home.

¹ V. 54 κλάει κατακλινείς, and Philost. Ep. 16 κλάει καταπεσών καὶ μεταγίγνωσκει.

The long trochaic scene between Moschion and Davus at the beginning of the third act (vv. 147 ff.) is a ludicrous exposure of Moschion's complacent belief in his personal attractiveness to women, — a fixed idea with him. He is easily made to believe that his mother has arranged the matter with the sole purpose of placing Glycera at his disposal. But his complacency receives a severe shock when Myrrhina sends Davus about his business on receiving the message that Moschion is present; she bluntly states that Glycera would not have come at all had she known that Moschion was about the premises (vv. 203 f.). Davus soon persuades Moschion, however, that he has merely to deal with an exhibition of coyness on the part of Glycera, and that if he will wait a few days she will send for him. So Moschion goes to his room and waits. While he is waiting in one house and Polemon is searching the other house for Glycera, Davus and Sosias, their representatives, indulge in a battle of billingsgate (vv. 253 ff.).

The main action of the plot, interrupted by the Moschion-Davus and Davus-Sosias scenes, is resumed when Polemon comes out of his house with the knowledge that Glycera has left him (v. 278). He is sure, though no one has told him, that she has gone over to Myrrhina's house to be with her Moschion. He determines, apparently, to storm the house (v. 356), recover Glycera by force (v. 379), and deal out vengeance upon Moschion. Before he can carry out this plan, however, Pataecus and Habrotonon join Polemon and Sosias upon the scene (vv. 344 ff.). It is difficult to make out the rôle of Habrotonon from the scanty remains. She is of course an hetaera, and seems to have some connection with Sosias or at least some influence over him. Pataecus, the adoptive father of Moschion, is a friend of both Glycera and Polemon, and is therefore deeply concerned in all that has taken place. He had probably already participated in one of the scenes of the second act (after v. 70), and knows that his wife and Glycera give as the reason for the latter's removal to his house the fear of Polemon's violence (v. 369). His mission at the present time is to effect a reconciliation. He succeeds in persuading Polemon to dismiss Sosias and his "army," and soon convinces him that his only hope of winning Glycera back is by persuasion. He assures Polemon that he has not the authority of a husband over her, and that he cannot inflict summary punishment upon her lover as an adulterer. In the end Pataecus agrees to act as Polemon's ambassador to Glycera.

At this point, at the beginning of the fourth act, the dénouement by the device of a recognition begins. It is managed in duplicate throughout, but without repetition. While Pataecus is discovering that Glycera is his daughter, Moschion by eavesdropping is discovering that she is his sister. During Moschion's long wait in his chamber for a summons to his sweetheart, he apparently overhears a conversation between Myrrhina and Glycera (after v. 427). It is probable that Glycera is obliged to take Myrrhina into her confidence, to the extent, at least, of disclosing to her that Moschion is her brother. Moschion overhears enough of the conversation to disillusion him regarding Glycera's supposed predilection for him and to arouse his curiosity about her parentage (vv. 665, 670); but just how much he learns we do not know. At the same time Pataecus, in examining Glycera's wardrobe in Polemon's house (vv. 396 ff.), has seen something that arouses his curiosity as to her origin. Proceeding to discharge his mission as ambassador for Polemon, he summons Glycera from the house. She defends herself against the unjust suspicions of her motive in accepting Myrrhina's hospitality, complains bitterly of the conduct of Polemon, and repeatedly rejects Pataecus' proposals that she should go back to him (vv. 599, 625, 630). She seems also to assert (on v. 603) that she is of free-born parentage, and to challenge Pataecus to examine the contents of the chest in which she keeps the evidences of her origin (vv. 620 ff., 632). The chest is brought out. Then follows a long recognition scene in the manner of Euripides. Pataecus at first identifies the objects in the chest as the property of his former wife. The circumstances of the exposure of Glycera and her brother, as related by her, correspond with those in which his own twin children were exposed. Finally the recognition is completed by Glycera demanding of Pataecus that he name the objects contained in a casket which is in the chest.¹ Now during the whole of this dialogue, and possibly during the two preceding scenes, Moschion is present, not as a participant but again as an eavesdropper. Glycera has refused to answer Pataecus' questions about her brother, saying that she had given her oath to Myrrhina not to reveal that part of the secret. At the end of the interview Pataecus has found his daughter, but has no suspicion that Moschion is his true son. But Moschion from his hiding-place has heard the proofs that the girl to whom he has been fatuously making love is his own sister; he knows that Pataecus is his father and that Myrrhina is not in reality his mother. He has also heard Pataecus' expressions of disapproval of his conduct (vv. 703 f.), and takes pains thereafter to keep out of his father's way.

¹ Von Arnim's interpretation of the recognition scene (in Zeitschr. f. österr. Gymn. LX [1909], p. 8) coincides in the main with that given above; see also the articles of Robert (Hermes LXIV [1909], pp. 260 ff.), Schmidt (ibid., pp. 403 ff.), and Sudhaus (Rh. Mus. LXIV [1909], pp. 412 ff.).

Before the beginning of the final act, which probably opened with a monologue by Polemon followed by the dialogue between him and Doris of which the last part is preserved, we must assume a number of scenes in which the misapprehension under which the several characters have labored is cleared up. An interview between Moschion and Glycera certainly followed the recognition scene. After Glycera went into the house Moschion probably had an opportunity to vent his wrath upon Davus. A scene between Moschion and Myrrhina would probably follow. And finally Pataecus, who of course does not find Moschion in the house (v. 704), must first be informed that the adoptive son, with whom he is justly indignant, is in reality his own son and not Myrrhina's; he must then come to an understanding with Myrrhina for having led him to believe that Moschion was her son by a former marriage. Both objects would most easily be accomplished by an interview between husband and wife. Myrrhina would acknowledge her deception and beg forgiveness; and, since she came to Pataecus richly dowered (v. 3), she would have little difficulty in placating him. At the end of the fourth act there would remain to be arranged only the provision for the happiness of Glycera and the settlement of Moschion's fate.

The conclusion is swiftly accomplished. Doris tells Polemon of Glycera's good fortune. He now understands her conduct of the evening before (v. 866). Better still, Doris assures him that Glycera is ready to forgive him. Pataecus and Glycera soon appear. The lovers are reconciled and Glycera formally given to Polemon to be his lawful wife. Pataecus lets Polemon off with a word of good-natured admonition. As for Moschion, Pataecus announces his intention of marrying him to the daughter of Philinus. At this announcement Moschion, who has again been eavesdropping, gives from his hiding-place an exclamation of consternation. We suspect that the choice of bride is no more agreeable to him than is that of the daughter of Philocrates for Clinia in the Heauton (vv. 1060 ff.). This young man's protest as transferred from the original of Menander may give us an idea of Moschion's feelings regarding the proposed bride: rufamne illam virginem, caesiam, sparso ore, adunco naso? non possum, pater. It may be that Moschion, like Clinia, ventured to express a preference for another girl and gained his father's consent to his marriage with her. However this may be, the play ends with a double marriage in prospect for the evening.—

In the foregoing account of the plot one relationship is assumed that cannot be proved from our fragmentary text, viz. that Pataecus is the present husband of Myrrhina and the step-father, as he supposes, of Moschion. The case would be clear if the obscure letters in v. 703 were found to be correctly read by the present editor as vids therós; the letters voorther seem fairly clear. But even without this support the hypothesis seems reasonable in itself and is opposed by nothing in the extant lines. When Myrrhina took the boy to rear, she did not adopt him. Moschion himself and everybody else understood that he was her son by birth. Evidently, then, her husband was deceived by her and Moschion was a supposititious child. There is nothing in our text to show whether or not Myrrhina is at the present time a widow. The house is constantly referred to as hers, but the natural explanation is that she, a rich woman, owns her home. Widows are unknown on the Greek comic stage. It is safer, therefore, to assume that Myrrhina's husband is still living. He is either the husband of eighteen years ago or a successor. If he is living he almost certainly has a part in the action of the play, and if he has such a part, he must be either Philinus or Pataecus, — unless, indeed, another middle-aged man appeared in the lost portions of the play, to whom there is no allusion in the preserved portions; and this is extremely unlikely. Now Philinus is mentioned but once, and that at the very end of the play. There is elsewhere no allusion that can be referred to him with any cogency or even with a high degree of probability.¹ The casual way in which he is mentioned by Pataecus (v. 907) as the father of the girl whom he has selected to be Moschion's wife is best explained by the analogy of Menander's Heauton, which offers a perfect parallel. On the spur of the moment, out of patience with his son and determined to put a stop to his folly, Pataecus, like Chremes in the Heauton, calls to mind an eligible girl. Almost any girl would do, the uglier the better. Philinus need no more have a part in the action of the Periceirumene than Phanocrates has in the Heauton. Indeed, a plausible rôle cannot be created for him on the basis either of the dramatic necessity for such a character or of allusions that may naturally be interpreted as referring to him. The important rôle which Pataecus plays, on the other hand, becomes much more intelligible if he is the second husband of Myrrhina. His interest in the affairs of Glycera, Polemon, and Moschion would require no explanation or motivation. And he would in a double sense be a victim of Misapprehension, in that, ignorant of his wife's deception, he has for years regarded his own son as a stepson. And the fact that Moschion's fortune is not in the least changed by the discovery of his parents makes the triumph of the intervening goddess more complete; for, as Glycera most earnestly desired, Μοσχίων ὀνήσεται ὧν δέδωκεν ἡ τύχη.

So far as we can judge from the remains of this play, most of the characters in it are rather types than individuals. Glycera, the heroine of the play, does not differ materially from the ordinary young girl of comedy. Pataecus is the prosperous, good-natured citizen, somewhat unctuous in manner. Davus is the tricky and lying slave, Doris the typical maid. The characters of Polemon and Moschion, however, stand out strongly as individuals, especially by contrast with the persons about them. We feel that the poet elaborated their parts with especial predilection. Polemon is not drawn as a braggart soldier, as the character in Lucian's dialogue (Meretr. 10) might have led us to expect. It is to the amusing figure of Sosias that the rôle of braggart soldier is given, and of course it becomes an absurd caricature in his hands. Polemon, however, is rather the loyal and straightforward lover, if somewhat tempestuous when aroused. He has hitherto been generous and kind in his treatment of Glycera, childishly proud of her in the finery he has lavished upon her, and in all ways as considerate of her as if she were his lawful wife. But the trying situation which confronted him on his return from an absence aroused in him a storm of unreasoning jealousy and rage. Under the stress of passion he committed an act of brutality that, as Agnoia tells us, was inconsistent with his true nature. We see that he is quick to regret this action, and that he can listen to reason in spite of his passion. In the final act he, the doughty warrior, is as excited and as timid as a boy. His naiveté there and in the scene with Pataecus is both amusing and convincing. Moschion is an excellent foil to Polemon. A spoiled and pampered boy, always clinging to his mother's apron-strings, he aspires to be a gallant, a crusher of women's hearts. With the malicious encouragement of Davus he easily fancies himself a tremendous success in that rôle. But he is an arrant coward in love as in war. Instead of facing Polemon, and, later on, Pataecus, he keeps out of their sight throughout the play. His advances to Glycera, except for the one moment of impudent boldness, are made through the agency of Davus. He even credits his mother with the desire to aid and abet him in his career as μοιχός. When he begins to realize what a cheap figure he cuts as a lover, and knows that he has incurred the disapproval of his mother and father as well as the contempt of his beloved, he sneaks about, eavesdropping at every opportunity. The New Comedy, so far as we know it from the Greek fragments and the Latin translations, offers no counterpart of either Moschion¹ or Polemon.

¹ Van Leeuwen raised the question (on v. 313 in his edition) whether τῷ πατρὶ v. 591 may not be Philinus, and he is now inclined (Mn. XXXVII, p. 120) to assign vv. 141 ff. (his 71 ff.) to Philinus on account of τὴν μείρακα, which Doris could not use of her mistress. But the assignment of these verses (with Leo) to Davus, reading προθύμως or πρὸς ἡμᾶς, relieves this difficulty. Robert (Hermes XLIV, pp. 300 ff.) makes Philinus the husband of Myrrhina and the supposed father of Moschion, mainly on the strength of τῷ πατρὶ and of τοῦτους in v. 589. οὗτοι would be, he thinks, Philinus and his illegitimate daughter whom Pataecus has selected for Moschion's future wife. But Glycera, in defending herself before the spectators, as before a jury, could quite properly refer to Pataecus and Myrrhina as οὗτοι, and Pataecus, though present, is quite naturally referred to as "his father" in the interpretation of the passage given in this edition.

The chorus is a comos of revelers, as in the Epitrepontes. We are told in v. 56 that Polemon has gathered together his boon companions, to whom he is giving a breakfast. We learn from v. 244 that after his quarrel with Glycera he had retired into the country, and from v. 877 that he has engaged a cook for an entertainment in his city house. When, therefore, Davus in v. 141 announces the approach of a throng of drunken youth, and immediately thereafter, at the close of the act, the MS. has χοροῦ, we naturally conclude that these youth form the chorus and that they are the companions of Polemon. After their breakfast in the country they come to his house in the city to be on hand for the dinner in the evening. At the end of their performance after v. 146 they probably retire into Polemon's house, whence they emerge when suitable occasions for similar performances are offered. According to the divisions of the play adopted in this edition, the chorus makes its first appearance after the second act and does not furnish an entertainment between the third and fourth acts. It would appropriately appear, however, between the fourth and fifth acts.

The scene of the Periceiomene, like that of the Emporus of Diphilus (fr. 32 K. νόμιμον τοῦτ' ἐστί, βέλτιστ', ἐνθάδε Κορινθίοισιν) is laid in Corinth. Though the fact is not stated explicitly in the preserved text (it would have been explained in the early part of Agnoia's speech), it is safely deduced from a number of passages. In the first place, Polemon is a Corinthian (v. 9). He owns the house in which he lives (v. 26). But in no city but Corinth would he have possessed the right of ἐγκτησις. Again, he marries Glycera. Pataecus therefore must also have been a Corinthian citizen; for Corinth and Athens, so far as we know, never had an agreement of ἐπιγαμία with each other. Thirdly, the law of τιμωρία as expounded by Pataecus (vv. 376 ff.) differs from that which was recognized at Athens. There the law gave to the man whose παλλακή ἐπ' ἐλευθέροις παισίν (and Polemon expressly declares in v. 366 ἐγὼ γαμετὴν νεόμικα ταύτην) was guilty of adultery the right to inflict summary vengeance upon the adulterer. This right Pataecus explicitly denies to Polemon; his recourse, he says, is in an action at law against Moschion. It is Corinthian, not Attic, law which Pataecus is expounding.¹ The narrative of Agnoia, finally, implies that the old woman who found the children was a Corinthian. No reason is apparent why Menander chose Corinth rather than Athens as the scene of his play. There is of course no attempt at local coloring. The background represents two private residences, as in the Epitrepontes.

¹ The character which Aristaenetus (Ep. 1. 27) describes, — a good-looking but conceited youth, who fancies that all women are in love with him, — has many points of similarity with that of Moschion and may have been suggested by this play. But the girl who deludes him is no Glycera.

The two references in the text to contemporary historical events are rather vague, but perhaps they suffice to fix the approximate period of the dramatic action and consequently the position of the Periceiomene among the plays of Menander. It is a period of great distress among the Greeks at large (v. 409). At the time Glycera was given in marriage to Polemon, some months at least before the action of the play begins, a war was in progress, in the course of which "the Corinthian troubles" grew worse and worse (v. 5). Obviously a particular war, which involved the fortunes of the Corinthians, is referred to. Now the troubles of Corinth may be said to have begun with the occupation of that city by Ptolemy early in the year 308 (Diod. 20. 37). Ptolemy stationed a garrison there and continued to hold it until at least 306, when Demetrius, before his departure for Cyprus, tried in vain to induce Leonidas, Ptolemy's general, to deliver the place to him. But Ptolemy's occupation seems not to have been attended by protracted military operations, and Greece was not in especial distress from the time of the liberation of Athens by Demetrius in the summer of 307 until his departure for Cyprus in 306. But shortly thereafter the war was actively renewed in central Greece and in the Peloponnesus by Cassander, whose aggressions continued until the return of Demetrius in 304. This period is referred to in the decree in honor of Demochares quoted in Vit. X Orat. 851 D as ὁ τετραετής πόλεμος. The years 306 and 304 brought great alarm and distress to Athens in particular, for Cassander threatened Attica and in 304 the city was in danger

¹ So Körte in Ber. d. süchs. Gesell. 1908, p. 111; see note on v. 380 and cf. Meier-Schömann-Lipsius, Att. Proc., pp. 404 ff. This point cannot be pressed, however, for Attic law may have permitted summary vengeance only at the time of detection.

(IG. II 249 and 266 = Ditt. Syl.² 180 and 184, Plut. Vit. Dem. 23). In 304 Cassander took Corinth, which had come into the possession of Demetrius sometime between 306 and that date (Diod. 20. 102). On the arrival of Demetrius from Asia in 304 the war against Cassander was prosecuted with vigor. For considerably more than a year Demetrius carried on aggressive operations throughout Greece, recapturing Corinth and other cities of the Peloponnesus. Peace with Cassander was not declared until 302 (Diod. 20. 111). In view of these facts we may conclude that the period of greatest distress in Greece which coincides with the period of greatest trouble for the Corinthians was that which lay between the capture of Corinth by Cassander in 304 and its recapture by Demetrius in the course of the following year. The marriage of Glycera would accordingly fall towards the end of "the four years' war"; the campaign on which Polemon was obliged to be absent would be one of those in which Demetrius was engaged after his return from the east in 304; and the date of composition of the play would fall in the neighborhood of 302 or 301, after peace had been established.¹ This conclusion would place the Periceiomene at the beginning of the third and last decade of Menander's activity, when he was forty years of age.

The original extent of the Periceiomene can be estimated as between 1000 and 1050 lines. As stated above, the order of the extant fragments is certain and the amount of text missing between them can be estimated with approximate accuracy. The sheet J¹²⁸⁴, which offers a continuous text, must be the middle sheet of a quaternion. E¹² therefore precedes and E⁸⁴ follows J. Now E cannot be the outer sheet of a quaternion, for E¹ and E⁴ are the verso of the sheet, i.e. the writing is against the fibers²; hence E must be the second of the four sheets that made up the quaternion of which J is the middle sheet, and one sheet intervened between them. In other words, E² is separated from J¹ by two pages, and J⁴ from E³ by the same interval. The position of Lp.¹ is determined by the fact that it overlaps E⁸⁴ by 48 lines. The position of the two Leipzig fragments in relation to each other is fixed by the original page-numbers which are preserved on them, viz. $\nu\alpha$ and $\nu\beta$ (51 and 52), and $\xi\alpha$ and $\xi\beta$ (61 and 62).¹ They were therefore separated by an interval of 8 pages or ca. 240 verses. In the Cairo codex, which averages ca. 35 lines to a page, Lp.² would begin on the 8th line of the fifth page of the quaternion following that which contained E. The position of K is determined, relatively to that of Lp.², firstly by its contents: K¹ obviously contains the beginning of the recognition scene which occupies the two pages of Lp.². K², which contains a portion of a different scene, must therefore have preceded K¹. Secondly, since the verso of K preceded its recto in the quaternion, and since K¹ preceded by only a short interval Lp.², which began on the fifth page of a quaternion, K must be from the second sheet of that quaternion, i.e. its third and fourth pages.

¹ Professor W. S. Ferguson of Harvard University suggests to me that the expulsion of Cassander from Corinth in 303 was probably attended by banishments and confiscations of property; and that it must have been disastrous to the commerce of Corinth to have been on the side of Ptolemy between 307 and 305/4 and of Cassander the following year, while all this time Antigonos and Demetrius were in absolute control of the Aegean. The phrase "Corinthian troubles," he believes, must have needed no commentary to an Athenian of the period 301 to 297.

² The quires in the Cairo codex were made up on the same plan as those of a parchment codex, recto facing recto and verso facing verso. This fact was observed by Körte, who also demonstrated the correct order of the fragments

We have no external criteria by which we can estimate the interval which separated Lp.² from the Oxyrhynchus fragment, but must depend upon certain general considerations as to the extent of the Periceiomene and of the play which preceded it in the Leipzig manuscript. A play of 1000 lines would fill 34 pages of a manuscript which has 30 lines to the page, 20 lines being allowed for the title, hypothesis, and cast of characters (which fill 19 lines in the Hero). This would leave 17 pages (51—34) or 510 lines for the Periceiomene down to Lp.¹. Now from the beginning of E¹ to Lp.¹, if we estimate lost pages at 35 lines, we have 344 lines,² leaving 166 lines for the lost first part of the Periceiomene. This would fill 4 pages plus ca. 26 lines of the Cairo manuscript. Since the Periceiomene doubtless began at the top of a page, we may of this play. The estimates given below are in the main similar to his, Ber. d. sächs. Gesell. 1908, pp. 174 ff.

¹ These numbers were later altered to $\nu\beta$, $\nu\gamma$, and $\xi\beta$, $\xi\gamma$, respectively. The four Leipzig pages contain 30 verses each except the second, which contains 31.

² E¹² and J¹²⁸⁴ contain 217 lines, the four lost pages 140 lines; deduct the 13 lines of Lp.¹ which extend back of E³.

disregard the extra 26 lines and consider that ca. 120 lines of text and 20 lines of preliminary matter preceded E¹. The last line of the second Leipzig fragment would in that case be about the 825th of the play ($120 + 344 + 61 + 240 + 60$). The two columns of the Oxyrhynchus fragment contain 102 lines. If we accept the analogy of the Heauton, which closes in 8 lines after Chremes has announced his intention of marrying Clinia to the daughter of Phanocrates, 10 lines beyond the Oxyrhynchus fragment would complete the Periceiomene. By assuming, therefore, an interval of ca. 100 lines between the end of Lp.² and the first column of the Oxyrhynchus fragment, we have a play of ca. 1037 lines ($825 + 100 + 102 + 10$). This result is satisfactory from the point of view of the dramatic economy of the play, so far as we can judge. The first part of the speech of Agnoia and the two or three initial scenes would hardly have required more than 120 lines, and the scenes which we need to assume between the end of the recognition scene in Lp.² and the Doris-Polemon scene in the second Oxyrhynchus column would not have required more than 151 lines.

The position of the several portions of text in the three quaternions over which the Periceiomene extended is indicated in the following table. The place assigned to the Oxyrhynchus fragment is only approximate, as stated above.

| QUATERNION X | | QUATERNION Y | | QUATERNION Z | |
|-------------------|------------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------|-------------------|---------------------------------|
| Quat. page | Pap. page | Quat. page | Pap. page | Quat. page | Pap. page |
| 1 | | 1 | lost | 1 | lost |
| 2 | | 2 | lost | 2 | lost |
| 3 | | 3 | E ¹ | 3 | K ² (last 18 vv.) |
| 4 | | 4 | E ² | 4 | K ¹ (last 19 vv.) |
| 5 | | 5 | lost | 5 | Lp. ² (last 28 vv.) |
| 6 | | 6 | lost | 6 | Lp. ² (first 32 vv.) |
| 7 | | 7 | J ¹ | 7 | lost |
| 8 | | 8 | J ² | 8 | lost |
| 9 | | 9 | J ³ | 9 | Ox. i (last 8 vv.) |
| 10 | | 10 | J ⁴ | 10 | Ox. i |
| 11 | | 11 | lost | 11 | Ox. i (8 vv.) and ii |
| 12 | | 12 | Lp. ¹ (last 13 vv.) | 12 | Ox. ii (first 24 vv.) |
| 13 | | 13 | E ³ , and Lp. ¹ | 13 | |
| 14 | | 14 | E ⁴ , and Lp. ¹ (first 13 vv.) | 14 | |
| 15 | lost | 15 | lost | 15 | |
| 16 | lost | 16 | lost | 16 | |

ἙΠΕΡΙΚΕΙΡΟΜΕΝΗ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

ΤΑ ΤΟΥ ΔΡΑΜΑΤΟΣ ΠΡΟΣΩΠΑ

Πολέμων

Δᾶος

Γλυκέρα

Πάταικος

Σωσίας

Μοσχίων

Δωρίς

Ἀβρότονον

Ἄγνοια θεός

Μυρρίνη

Χορὸς συμποτῶν¹

ΠΕΡΙΚΕΙΡΟΜΕΝΗ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

SCENE : A street in Corinth, before the houses of Polemon and Pataecus. The street leads on one side to the market-place in the city, on the other to the country.

ACT I

POLEMON, GLYCERA

The initial scenes, now lost (about 120 verses), created the situation in the household of Polemon which remained unchanged until near the end of the play, — Glycera living as a refugee in a neighbor's house, Polemon endeavoring by every means to regain her. One of the first scenes was an interview between these two, ending in a rupture which seemed irreparable. The evening before (vv. 33, 180), after Polemon had witnessed the conduct of Glycera with Moschion, he had departed in violent anger to a place in the country, promising to decide at a later time upon his course of action (v. 39). The night he had spent in an effort to drown his sorrow (v. 869). The next morning he had returned to his house, and, in a fit of jealous rage, had shorn the hair from the head of Glycera with his sword. It is after this outrage has been committed that the two appear before the house and engage in an angry dialogue, in which Glycera protests in vain her innocence of wrong-doing. At the close of the scene Polemon returns to the country.

To this scene probably belongs the following quotation :

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

Γλυκέρα, τί κλάεις ; ὁμνύω σοι τὸν Δία τὸν Ὀλύμπιον καὶ τὴν Ἀθηνᾶν, φιλτάτη, —

569 K.

ΓΛΥΚΕΡΑ

ὁμωμοκῶς καὶ πρότερον ἤδη πολλάκις.

On the scene of the play see notes on vv. 244, 892.

Fr. 569. Polemon is already sorry for his brutal exhibition of jealousy and begins to swear to his undying affection for Glycera ; but such protestations, which have regularly followed his outbursts of passion, will no longer avail with her. The lines are quoted by Priscian, but without the title of the play, to illustrate the Attic usage ὁμνυμι θεούς, without νῆ or μά. Cf. Men. Colax 45 (Ox. Pap. III. 409) ὁμνύω τὸν ἥλιον. — πολλάκις : Alciphron

GLYCERA, DORIS

With the help of her maid, Doris, Glycera carries out her plan of leaving Polémon's house. Myrrhina, the wife of her next-door neighbor, Pataecus, offers to give her shelter (vv. 143, 282). They hastily move thither, taking with them the necessary personal effects.

MISAPPREHENSION

The goddess Misapprehension appears and tells the story of the twin infants who had been exposed many years ago by their parent and discovered by a poor old woman. The first few lines of the narrative are lost; the disposition which the woman made of the boy and the girl is now disclosed:

ΑΓΝΟΙΑ

ῥούτων θέλει τὸ μὲν τρέφειν, ἔχειν τέκνον

1 αὐτῇ ᾗ προθυμηθεῖσα θήλυ, τὸ δ' ἕτερον

El, quat. y, p. 3

ῥυναικὶ δοῦναι πλουσίᾳ τὴν οἰκίαν

ταύτην κατοικούσῃ, δεομένη παιδίου.

makes use of this thought in his imaginary letter of Menander to Glycera (Ep. 2. 3. 1 = 4. 15. 1 Sch.) ἐγὼ μὰ τὰς Ἐλευσινίας θεάς, μὰ τὰ μυστήρια αὐτῶν, ἃ σοι καὶ ἐναντίον ἐκείνων ὥμοσα πολλάκις, Γλυκέρα, μόνος μόνῃ, κτέ.

1 ff. After the problem which the play is to treat has been presented in the introductory scenes, through the action of its characters, the exposition proper is committed to an allegorical figure, who explains the antecedents of the principal characters in the plot and the motives which are at play, and gives an intimation as to the outcome. The exposition is managed in the same way in the Hero and in the Cistellaria of Plautus, where Auxilium deus appears after the initial scenes; also in the Miles, though there the slave Palaestrio takes the place of a πρόσωπον προτατικόν. Misapprehension probably introduces herself in the opening lines of her speech (cf. v. 21) and gives the scene of the action, since it is not Athens. See note on the Hero's speech, p. 20, and cf. Plaut. Cist. 154 nam mihi Auxilio nomen, Aul. 2 ego Lar sum familiaris, Mil. 88 hoc oppidum Ephesust. The speech of Misapprehension is notable for the number of participles employed and the loose way in which they are strung together, sometimes obscuring the thought; cf. Mark 16. 9-20.

1. The subj. is ἡ γραῦς (see v. 6), the woman who found the infants; the time is immediately after their discovery. — θήλυ: a daughter.

2. ῥυναικί: Myrrhina. She seems to have led her first husband, and later her second husband Pataecus, to believe that it was her own child. Afterwards, as it seems, the boy was adopted by Pataecus, see v. 703.

4. ἐτὼν τινων: some eighteen years have passed; the children are now grown. Cf. H., fr. O., p. 21.

- ῥ' ποιεῖ δὲ τοῦτ'. ἐγγενομένων δ' ἐτών τινων
 5 ῥ' καὶ τοῦ πολέμου καὶ τῶν Κορινθιακῶν κακῶν ῥ' αὐξανομένων, ἣ γραῦς ἀπορουμένη σφόδρα, τεθραμμένης τῆς παιδός, ἣν νῦν εἶδετε ὑμεῖς, ἐραστοῦ γενομένου τε τοῦ σφοδροῦ τούτου νεανίσκου, γένει Κορινθίου 10 ὄντος, δίδωσι τὴν κόρην ὡς θυγατέρα αὐτῆς ἔχειν. ἤδη δ' ἀπειρηκυῖα καὶ προορωμένη τοῦ ζῆν καταστροφὴν τινα αὐτῇ παροῦσαν, οὐκ ἔκριψε τὴν τύχην, λέγει δὲ πρὸς τὴν μείραχ' ὡς ἀνείλετο 15 αὐτήν, ἐν οἷς τε σπαργάνοις δίδωσ' ἅμα τὸν ἀγνοούμενόν τ' ἀδελφὸν τῇ φύσει φράζει, προνοουμένη τι τῶν ἀνθρωπίνων, εἰ ποτε δεηθείη βοηθείας τινός,

5. τοῦ πολέμου: probably the "four years' war" between Cassander and Antigonos, 306-303 B.C. See above, p. 145. Since the union of Glycera and Polemon some months, probably the period of a campaign, are supposed to have elapsed; see on vv. 240, 377, 385.

7. ἣν νῦν εἶδετε: i.e. in one of the opening scenes. For similar references in the exposition cf. Plaut. Cist. 170 ut eampse vos audistis confiterier, Mil. 88 illest miles meus erus qui hinc ad forum abiit.

8. ἐραστοῦ: sc. αὐτῆς. — τε: the unusual position is due to the desire to connect the two participial clauses containing τεθραμμένης and γενομένου. — σφοδροῦ: impetuous. The poet emphasizes this quality in the hero of the play, cf. v. 898. See on E. 899.

9. τούτου νεανίσκου: Polemon. Both the dem. and the reference in v. 244 show that he appeared in the first act.

10. δίδωσι: sc. αὐτῷ. This was done with the girl's approval, cf. v. 367.

11. ἔχειν: not a legal marriage, for the girl was dowless and her parentage uncertain. — ἀπειρηκυῖα: intr., worn out by age, cf. Arist. Pol. 1329a 33 τοὺς διὰ χρόνον ἀπειρηκότας, of citizens no longer in physical vigor.

12. καταστροφὴν: cf. Soph. O.C. 101 ff. ἀλλὰ μοι, θεαί, βλου . . . δότε πέραςιν ἤδη καὶ καταστροφὴν τινα.

13. τὴν τύχην: sc. τῶν τέκνων.

15. ἐν οἷς, κτέ.: brachylogy for τὰ σπάργανα ἐν οἷς ἀνείλετο ἅμα δίδωσιν. The girl carefully preserved the clothing in a chest, as we shall see.

16. τῇ φύσει: he now belonged to another family by adoption, θέσει; cf. v. 703.

17. τῶν ἀνθρωπίνων: in view of the informal nature of the bond by which the girl was attached to the soldier, as explained in v. 24.

- ὀρώσα τοῦτον ὄντ' ἀναγκαῖον μόνον 20 αὐτῇ, φυλακὴν τε λαμβάνουσα μή ποτε δι' ἐμέ τι τὴν Ἄγνοιαν αὐτοῖς συμπέσῃ ἀκούσιον, πλουτοῦντα καὶ μεθύοντ' αἰεὶ ὀρώσ' ἐκείνους, εὐπρεπῇ δὲ καὶ νέαν ταύτην, βέβαιον δ' οὐθὲν ᾧ κατελείπετο.
 25 αὕτη μὲν οὖν ἀπέθανεν· ὁ δὲ τὴν οἰκίαν ἐπρίατο ταύτην ὁ στρατιώτης οὐ πάλα.
 ἐν γειτόνων δ' οἰκοῦσα τὰδελφού, τὸ μὲν πρᾶγμ' οὐ μεμῆνυκ', οὐδ' ἐκείνους βούλεται, εἶναι δοκοῦντα λαμπρόν, εἰς μεταλλαγὴν 30 ἀγαγεῖν, ὄνασθαι δ' ὧν δέδωκεν ἡ τύχη.
 ἀπὸ ταῦτομάτου δ' ὀφθεῖσ' ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, — θρασυτέρου, ὥσπερ προείρηκ', ὄντος, ἐπιμελῶς τ' αἰεὶ φοιτῶντος ἐπὶ τὴν οἰκίαν, — ἔτυχ' ἑσπέρας πέμπουσά ποι θεράπαιναν· ὡς δ' ἐπὶ ταῖς θύραις

19. τοῦτον: her brother.

22. ἀκούσιον: without intent. A possible erotic attachment is thought of; the sister's knowledge will now prevent it. — μεθύοντ' αἰεὶ: given to drink.

24. βέβαιον οὐθὲν: utterly unstable, referring rather to the absence of a legal union than to the soldier's character. Const. (τοῦτον) ᾧ κατελείπετο (δὲντα) οὐθὲν βέβαιον. For the neuter cf. v. 67 οὐδὲν πιστόν, and on οὐθὲν see on E. 60.

26. ἐπρίατο: an indication of the scene of the play: as a Corinthian, Polemon would have the right to own real estate only in Corinth. See above, p. 144.

27. ἐν γειτόνων: sc. οἴκῳ, a common ellipsis with the poss. gen. in prepositional phrases with εἰς and ἐν, e.g. εἰς Ἄιδου, ἐν κιθαριστοῦ, etc. Dependent upon γειτόνων in this idiom may be either the gen., as τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ here, or the dat., as in Antiph. 212 K. ἐν γειτόνων αὐτῷ κατοικοῦσης.

29. μεταλλαγὴν: sc. τῆς τύχης. His adoptive mother had guarded so well the secret of his birth that no one, except perhaps his adoptive father, suspected that he was not her son by blood.

30. ὄνασθαι: const. with ἐκείνους βούλεται. The position of ἐκείνους before βούλεται facilitates the use of the pron. both as obj. of ἀγαγεῖν and as subj. of ὄνασθαι.

31. ἀπὸ ταῦτομάτου = ἀπὸ (ἐκ) τύχης, cf. E. 896.

32. προείρηκα: cf. v. 22; but perhaps the reference is to an earlier portion of this speech.

33. ἑσπέρας: last evening.

34. ἐπὶ ταῖς θύραις: Glycera had accompanied her maid Doris to the door,

- 35 ἄττην γενομένην εἶδεν, εὐθύς ᾗ προσδραμὼν ἐφίλει, περιέβαλλ'. ἥ δὲ τῷ προειδέναι^{E2, quat. y, p. 4} ἀδελφὸν ὄντ' οὐκ ἔφυγε. προσιών δ' ἄτερος
 ὀρώ. τὰ λοιπὰ δ' αὐτὸς εὖροιτ' ἂν τίς εὖ.
 ὁ μὲν ὥχετ' εἰπὼν ὅτι κατὰ σχολὴν κρινεῖ 40 αὐτὴν τί βούλεθ', ἥ δ' ἔδάκρυ' ἐστῶσα καὶ ὠδύρεθ' ὅτι ταῦτ' οὐκ ἐλευθέρως ποεῖν ἔξεστιν αὐτῇ. πάντα δ' ἐξεκάετο ταῦθ' ἔνεκα τοῦ μέλλοντος εἰς ὀργὴν θ' ἵνα οὗτος ἀφίκοιτ', — ἐγὼ γὰρ ἦγον οὐ φύσει 45 τοιοῦτον ὄντα τοῦτον, ἀρχὴν δ' ἵνα λάβοι μηνύσεως τὰ λοιπά, — τοὺς θ' αὐτῶν ποτε precisely as she does in v. 61, where the spectators catch a glimpse of her. — The Cairo MS. has five anapaests contained in a word that begins in the third foot and overlaps the fourth: E. 163, 308, P. 34, 360, S. 427. Six instances in the fragments. White, p. 151.

36. ἐφίλει, περιέβαλλε: note the descriptive imperfects following ingressive aorists; see Gildersleeve §§ 207, 211. — τῷ προειδέναι = διὰ τὸ προειδέναι.

37. προσιών: he has just returned from a protracted absence, doubtless a campaign; see on vv. 377, 62, 240.

38. τὰ λοιπά: what happened next, i.e. the confusion of Pamphila and the jealous rage of Polemon. — αὐτὸς, κτέ.: one might discover very well by himself, i.e. it was just what one would have expected and there is really no need of narrating it. For the mid. ευροίτο cf. Eur. Suppl. 1075, Soph. El. 625.

39. ὁ μὲν: Polemon. — κρινεῖ = ἀνακρινεῖ (v. 868), question, often in poetry, cf. Soph. Trach. 195 αὐτὸν Μηλιεύς ἀπας λεὼς κρινεῖ and Jebb's note. — The anapaest contained in three words is not common in Menander; in the first foot only here and in S. 466.

40. τί: for δ τι. See on E. 280 and cf. Men. Georg., fr. Gen., v. 67 τοῦ μειρακίου τὰ πράγματ' ἀνέκρινεν, τίνα ἐστί.

41. ταῦτα: φιλεῖσθαι καὶ περιβάλλεσθαι ὑπὸ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ. — ἐλευθέρως: without restraint, cf. Soph. El. 1300 τότε χαλεπὴν παρέσται καὶ γελᾶν ἐλευθέρως.

43. τοῦ μύλλοντος: the subsequent issue of the plot, further explained by the two final clauses ἵνα ἀφίκοιτο and (ἵνα) εὖροιεν. The goddess reveals the poet's artifice. — τε: correlative with τε in v. 46.

44. οὗτος: Polemon. — ἦγον: i.e. ὥστε ὀργίσασθαι. Often of divine guidance, e.g. Soph. Ant. 623 στῶ φρένας θεὸς ἀγχι πρὸς ἄταν.

45. τοιοῦτον: as the spectators have seen him, — beside himself with jealous rage. — ὄντα: concessive.

46. μηνύσεως: const. with ἀρχήν. — τὰ λοιπά: all that remains to be revealed, events, a rather vague term where we might have expected the more definite τὰ κρυπτά.

εὔροιεν. ὥστ', εἰ τοῦτ' ἔδυσχέραινε τις ἀτιμίαν τ' ἐνόμισε, μεταθέσθω πάλιν· διὰ γὰρ θεοῦ καὶ τὸ κακὸν εἰς ἀγαθὸν ῥέπει 50 γιγνόμενον. ἔρρωσθ', εὐμενεῖς τε γενόμενοι ἡμῖν, θεαταί, καὶ τὰ λοιπὰ σῶζετε.

Exit Misapprehension. Enter Sosias from the country. He begins to stroll up and down before the two houses.

ACT II

Sc. 1. SOSIAS

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

ὁ σοβαρὸς ἡμῖν ἀρτίως καὶ πολεμικός, ὁ τὰς γυναῖκας οὐκ ἔων ἔχειν τρίχας,

47. εὔροιεν: the brother and sister. — τοῦτο: Polemon's brutal treatment of Glycera. — ἔδυσχέραινε: had a feeling of disgust at. The impf. is properly distinguished from the aor. ἐνόμισε, which is ingressive. But the poet may have written the aor., ἔδυσχέρανε, conceived disgust.

48. μεταθέσθω: sc. τὴν δόξαν (i.e. ἀ ἐνόμισε); cf. Dem. 18. 229 μεταθέσθαι ταύτην τὴν δόξαν ἀξιῶν. The vb. is often used absolutely, as Plat. Rep. 334E ἀλλὰ μεταθώμεθα· κινδυνεύομεν γὰρ οὐκ ὀρθῶς . . . θέσθαι. The figure involved is derived from the game of draughts, πεττοί, cf. Plut. Mor. 1068c πεττῶν δίκην δεῦρο κάκει τὰς κοινὰς ἐννοίας μετατιθεῖς.

50. γιγνόμενον: const. w. τὸ κακὸν, even as it comes into being. The thought of evil turning into good is a commonplace, cf. Eur. Hel. 644 τὸ κακὸν ἀγαθὸν and Men. (?) 1084 K. καὶ τὸ κακὸν ἀγαθοῦ γίγνεται παρὰ τιον. The assertion of a god's responsibility for this is appropriately placed in the mouth of a god. — γινόμενοι: proving yourselves.

51. See on E. 672. Menander here addresses the spectators at the end of the exposition, as Aristophanes in his early plays takes them into his confidence at the beginning of it (Eq. 36, Vesp. 54, Pac. 50, Av. 30). See Leo, Plaut. Forsch., p. 217. The plea for favor toward the poet (ἡμῖν) as a competitor for the prize was generally reserved in the Old Comedy for the parabasis. — τὰ λοιπὰ: the rest of the play. — σῶζετε: prosper. Cf. Plaut. Poen. 128 adiuva te.

52 ff. The spectators recognize the speaker as Sosias, the body-servant of Polemon, without an introduction, probably because he had appeared with his master in the first scene. In his dress, talk, and bearing Sosias reflects the life of the camp. He has not been an idle bystander at his master's potations, cf. v. 348.

52. σοβαρός: blustering, defined by Photius as meaning λαμπρός, ἐπαιρόμενος, τολμηρός, αὐθάδης, ἔξω τοῦ δέοντος φερόμενος (the meaning here). Agathias in Anth. Pal. 5. 218 (quoted above, p. 145, note) refers to the Polemon of this play as σοβαρός. In Aristophan 11. 4 K. Eros

- κλαίει κατακλινείς. κατέλιπον ποούμενον 55 ἄριστον αὐτοῖς ἄρτι, καὶ συνηγμένοι εἰς ταῦτόν εἰσιν οἱ συνήθεις, τοῦ φέρειν αὐτὸν τὸ πρᾶγμα ῥᾶον. οὐκ ἔχων δ' ὅπως τάνταυθ' ἀκούσῃ γιγνόμεν', ἐκπέπομφέ με ἱμάτιον οἷσόντ' ἐξεπίτηδες, οὐδὲ ἐν 60 δέομενος ἀλλ' ἢ περιπατεῖν με βούλεται.

Enter Doris from the house of Pataecus. She calls back to her mistress within the house. She does not see Sosias, who stands at one side.

is said to have been cast out from among the gods as θρασύς καὶ σοβαρός. — ἡμῖν: ethical dat., this fellow of ours, an indication that Polemon has already been seen by the spectators. — ἄρτιως: sc. ὦν; const. with both σοβαρός and πολεμικός.

53. ὁ τὰς γυναῖκας, κτέ.: the man that won't permit women to have hair, a comic generalization, cf. E. 904. Sosias later twits Polemon to his face for this ungallant act, v. 248 and note. By such references the poet justifies the title of his play.

54. κατακλινείς: i.e. on the ground. The passage is so interpreted by Philostratus in the reminiscence Ep. 16 κλαίει γοῶν καταπεσὼν καὶ μεταγιγνώσκει τῷ φόνῳ τῶν τριχῶν. Polemon is spending his time at a place in the suburbs, cf. ἐν ἀγρῷ, v. 244.

55. αὐτοῖς: i.e. the establishment, cf. v. 422. As αὐτός in the mouth of a servant means "master," so the pl. embraces the whole familia of the master. — ἄρτι: constr. with κατέλιπον. — συνηγμένοι: see on E. 195.

56. τοῦ φέρειν: hoping he'd bear. On the const. see on E. 307. αὐτόν is subj.

58. τάνταυθα: i.e. in his house, where he had left Glycera.

59. οἰσόντα: to fetch. Contrast φέ- ροντα v. 234. — ἐξεπίτηδες: deliberately, cf. E. 328, Dem. 19. 182 εἰ δὲ πρὸς βουλήν ὦν (Aeschines) ἐπὶ χρήμασιν ἐξεπίτηδες ἠπάτηκεν ὑμᾶς, Plaut. Poen. 788 consulto hoc factumst, mihi ut insidiae fierent. — Observe the anapaest in the fourth foot, contained in a word which overlaps both the preceding and the following feet; also in E. 328, 868. White, p. 152.

60. ἀλλ' ἢ: since the finite vb. βούλεται follows, it is better to read here ἀλλ(α) ἢ than ἀλλ(ο) ἢ, not really wanting anything, except that he wishes me to be on the go. We might have had either δέομενος οὐδὲν ἄλλο ἢ με περιπατεῖν, or δέομενος οὐδέν, ἀλλὰ με περιπατεῖν βουλόμενος. When the phrase has the force of a conj., or ἄλλος (ἕτερος) precedes, we should probably read ἀλλ' ἢ, e.g. Xen. Oec. 2. 13 οὔτε ἄλλος πώποτε μοι παρέσχε τὰ ἐαυτοῦ διοικεῖν ἀλλ' ἢ (except that) σύ νυνὶ ἐθέλεις παρέχειν, Plat. Phaedo 97 D οὐδὲν ἄλλο . . . ἀλλ' ἢ (except) τὸ ἄριστον, but when οὐδεὶς alone precedes and there is no conjunctive force, editors generally read ἀλλ' ἢ, e.g. Plat. Apol. 20 D οὐδὲν ἄλλ' ἢ διὰ σοφίαν τινα. ἀλλ' ἢ (= πλὴν or πλὴν ὅτι) seems to be the result of a fusion of two constructions, viz. οὐδὲν ἄλλο . . . ἀλλὰ and οὐδὲν ἄλλο . . . ἢ. See Kühner-Gerth

Sc. 2. SOSIAS, DORIS

ΔΩΡΙΣ

ἐγὼ προσεστῶσ' ὄψομαι, κεκτημένη.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ (aside)

ἡ Δωρίς. οἷα γέγονεν, ὥς δ' ἐρρωμένη.
ζῶσιν τρόπον τιν', ὥς ἔμοι καταφαίνεται, αὐταί. πορεύσομαι δέ.

Exit to the country.

ΔΩΡΙΣ (approaching Polemon's house)

κόψω τὴν θύραν.

860 K.

§ 534. 6, Anm. 3.—περιπατεῖν: the original meaning walk up and down, promenade, has by this time become weakened in colloquial speech to nearly take a walk, be on the go, like βαδίζειν. Cf. the complaint in Ter. Hec. 435, where Parmeno grumbles at his master for devising errands ut me ambulando rumperet.

61. Glycera accompanies her maid to the door and is probably seen for a moment by the spectators, just as Moschion had seen her the evening before (v. 34). The device is frequently employed in the New Comedy, generally as the simplest means of motivating the appearance of a servant, and is used in a novel manner in the Epitrepontes (Act IV, sc. 6, p. 103) in connection with the ἀναγνώρισις. The errand of Doris is not fully explained here, but doubtless was accounted for in the latter part of the scene, when she came out of the house of Polemon. She was probably sent there to fetch the chest (vv. 622, 633), which Glycera had forgotten in her hasty departure from Polemon's house.—κεκτημένη: see on H. 37.

62. ἡ Δωρίς: exclamatory nom., ah, Doris! Similar is the use of the nom.

with the art. in calls and commands, e.g. Aristoph. Ach. 54 οἱ τοῖξδ' αἱ πόλεις police! Av. 665 ἡ Πρόκνη, ἔκβαλλε, Men. 311 K. ἐπὶ τὸ πῦρ, ἡ ἰάκκος. — οἷα γέγονεν: what a fine woman she has become! Sosias has not seen Doris for some time. He has recently been abroad with his master, as we learn from vv. 240, 377. They had returned the night before.

63. ζῶσιν . . . αὐταί: these women are leading a life, so to speak, it's clear to me! Sosias judges by the buxom appearance of Doris. For this pregnant use of ζῆν cf. Antiph. 217. 8 λέγεις μάγειρον ζῶντα he's a high liver, your cook! Men. 165 K. ζῶσιν δ' (really live) οἷς ἐστὶν βίος (substance), the epitaph in Cass. Dio 69. 19 Σίμυλις ἐνταῦθα κεῖται, βίου μὲν ἔτη οὐκ ἔφησας δὲ ἔτη ἐπτά, and Lat. vivere, e.g. Cat. 5. 1 vivamus, mea Lesbia, atque amemus.—τρόπον τινά: in a fashion, quodammodo, qualifying ζῶσιν, a word used in a special sense. See on v. 228 and H. 20. Cf. ὥς ἔπος εἰπείν, ut ita dicam.

64. πορεύσομαι: cf. v. 178, E. 642. Sosias has seen enough to report to his master, the important fact being that Glycera has taken refuge in the house of her neighbor.—κόψω: see on E. 660, 863.

65 οὐδεὶς γὰρ αὐτῶν ἐστὶν ἔξω. δυστυχῆς ἥτις στρατιώτην ἔλαβεν ἄνδρα· παράνομοι ἅπαντες, οὐδὲν πιστόν. ὦ κεκτημένη, ὡς ἄδिका πάσχεις.

Knocking again at the door.

παῖδες. — εὐφρανθήσεται

κλαοῦσαν αὐτὴν πυθόμενος νῦν· τοῦτο γὰρ 70 ἐβούλετ' αὐτός.

A slave opens to her.

παιδίον, κέλευέ μοι

She gives a command to the slave, and later enters the house.

[A lacuna of ca. 70 verses to J¹.]

Doris enters from the house of Polemon. She is joined by Davus, who comes from the city.

DORIS, DAVUS

Davus learns that Glycera has sought shelter in the house of his master, and assumes that Moschion's infatuation for her is reciprocated. — Toward the end of the scene a crowd of revelers is seen approaching.

65. αὐτῶν: of Polemon's household.
 — ἔξω: i.e. in front of the house.

67. οὐδὲν πιστόν: see on v. 24 and cf. the favorite phrase οὐδὲν ἠγίης, e.g. Aristoph. Thesm. 394 τὰς οὐδὲν ἠγίης, τὰς μέγ' ἀνδράσιν κακόν. The passage recalls the characterization of the Egyptians in Theocr. 15. 49f.

To a later part of this scene may belong Men. 732K., which Robert would assign to this play: κομψὸς στρατιώτης, οὐδ' ἂν εἰ πλάττοι θεός, οὐδεὶς γένοιτ' ἂν, where κομψὸς refined suggests by contrast the adj. θρασύς.

68. παῖδες: cf. E. 864, Men. Colax 83 (Ox. Pap. III. 409). — εὐφρανθήσεται: subj. Polemon. Doris is evidently prepared to find him at home; from her he will learn that Glycera is weeping. But she soon discovers that he has not returned since his interview with Glycera.

70. κέλευέ μοι: she probably asks for Polemon. When she learns that he is not at home, she enters the house to do the errand on which she has been sent. While Doris is in the house it is probable that Pataecus, who later takes an important part in the action, is present during a brief scene. As a friend of Polemon and adoptive father of Moschion he is deeply concerned with the incident of the night before, which has caused bitterness between these two. When he enters his house he learns that his wife has offered protection to Glycera.

When Doris comes out of Polemon's house she falls in with Davus. She may have announced his arrival with the line which has been preserved from an unknown comedy, fr. adesp. 287 K. Δῶς πάρεστι· τί ποτ' ἀπαγγελῶν ἄρα; Davus has been in the city with his master, Moschion, who has been keeping carefully out of Polemon's way since he was caught kissing Glycera. When Davus learns that Glycera has come over to

ΔΑΟΣ

Knocking at the door of Pataecus' house.

παῖδες. μεθύοντα μεираκία προσέρχεται J¹, quat. y, p. 7 πάμπολλ'. ἐπαινῶ διαφόρως κεκτημένην.
 εἶσω προθύμῳ εἰσάγει τὴν μείρακα.
 τοῦτ' ἔστι μήτηρ. ὁ τρόφιμος ζητητέος. [345]

ΔΩΡΙΣ

145 ἔλκ' αὐτὸς αὐτὸν τὴν ταχίστην ἐνθάδε.

their house he at once puts a false construction upon her action.

141. παῖδες: probably a call to the servants within, following a command to open, e.g. ἀνοιξέτω τις, as in v. 68 and E. 864. The speaker cannot be made out with certainty, but it is probably Davus, since he refers to Myrrhina as his mistress and to Moschion as his master. It is on this supposition that προθύμως (or πρὸς ἡμᾶς) has been adopted in v. 143 for πρὸς ἡμᾶς. — μεθύοντα μεираκία: cf. E., Pet. fr., v. 33, p. 98. — προσέρχεται: shows that the crowd approaches through the street. It is the κῶμος, as in the Epitrepontes, which appears at the intermissions between acts and gives the choral entertainment. The young men are probably the boon companions (v. 56) of Polemon.

142. διαφόρως: cf. E. 333. — κεκτημένην: the omission of the art. with a noun of relationship virtually makes the noun a proper noun. Such omission is not uncommon in the poets in contexts where the person whose relationship is indicated is readily recognized. The usage is most natural where the relation sustained is toward the speaker himself, as here. "Master" and "Mistress" in the mouth of one slave speaking to another must mean the speaker's own master or mistress, precisely as in the case of αὐτός and αὐτή.

143. προθύμως: cf. Men. 663 K. (advice to a father) νῦν προθύμως τὰξιούμενον ποῶν κηδεμὸν' ἀληθῶς, οὐκ ἔφεδρον, ἔξεις βίον. — εἰσάγει: Doris must have explained the situation to Davus in the early part of this scene. Moschion and Davus were absent from home when Glycera was taken in by Myrrhina.

144. τοῦτ' ἔστι μήτηρ: Davus attributes a false motive to Myrrhina, viz. that she has harbored Glycera in the interest of Moschion. For the expression cf. Men. 367 K. τοῦθ' ἔταιρός ἐστιν δντως, Plaut. Pseud. 444 illic est pater, patrem esse ut aequomst filio, Ter. Ad. 707 hoc est patrem esse aut est filium esse? — ὁ τρόφιμος: Moschion. The use of the art. is significant as contrasted with its omission with κεκτημένη above. Doris could not have said τρόφιμος in reference to Moschion.

145. ἔλκ' αὐτός, κτλ.: hale him here yourself. For this use of αὐτός as an emphatic σύ (Lat. tu ipse) with the inv. cf. Plat. Gorg. 506c λέγε, ὦ ἀγαθέ, αὐτὸς καὶ πέραινε. It is certain that ἔῤῥκαιρον εἶναι φαίνεθ', ὥς ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ.

ΔΑΟΣ

Exit Davus to the city, Doris into the house of Pataecus. The band of revelers gives entertainment between the acts.

ΧΟΡΟΙ

ACT III

Davus returns from the city with Moschion.

SC. 1. MOSCHION, DAVUS

ΜΟΣΧΙΟΝ

Δᾶε, ἑπολλάκις μὲν ἤδη πρὸς μ' ἀπήγγελλας, ἑτάλας,

Davus did go himself rather than send another, for he and Moschion enter together at the beginning of the next act. ἔλκειν intimates that Moschion will be reluctant to come. Cf. Aristoph. Eccl. 1037 ποῖ τοῦτον ἔλκεις; — τὸν ἐμὸν αὐτῆς εἰσάγω. Possibly ἔλθ' αὐτός (or οὗτος) is to be read; in that case αὐτὸν . . . δοκεῖ would be spoken by Davus.

146. εὐκαιρον, κτέ.: it's clearly high time. Cf. E., Pet. fr., p. 99, v. 35. Davus evidently labors under the impression that the transfer of Glycera to Myrrhina's house is a scheme to bring the two lovers together. Naturally this will be Polemon's view when he hears of it (v. 284).

147 ff. Menander's employment of the trochaic tetrameter was remarked by the ancient metricians (see Meineke, Hist. crit. com. Graec., p. 442), e.g. by Marius Victorinus (Gram. Lat. VI. 57. 14 Keil): Nam et Menander in comœdiis frequenter a continuatis iambicis versibus ad trochaecos et rursum ad (iambicos) redit; and was known through the occurrence of trochaic lines among the quotations. The transition to the trochaic rhythm, the ῥθος of which was always semi-lyrical, marks an access of excitement, which is enhanced by the frequent division of a line between the two speakers. Arist. Rhet. 1408b 36, contrasting the iambic and the trochaic rhythm, calls the former σεμνός, the latter κορδακικώτερος, instancing particularly the tetrameter. When the emotion of which this rhythm was the suitable medium is pitched on a low plane and is caused by circumstances that are trivial or unworthy, as often in comedy, we may be sure that the poet intends to present a ridiculous situation. We may expect to find in such passages traces of tragic style and diction, introduced for paratragedic effect.

147. πολλάκις: Davus has so often in the past lied to his master that the latter is suspicious of his last announcement, too good to be true, that his mother has brought his beloved Glycera into their house for his sake. — τάλας: you wretch, cf. Herond. 5. 55 Πυρρίης, τάλας, κωφέ, καλεῖ σε, Theocr. 2. 4 ὅς μοι δωδεκαταῖος ἀφ' ὧ, τάλας, οὐδὲ ποθίκει.

οὐκ ἀληθές, ἀλλ' ἀλᾶζ'ων καὶ θεοῖσιν ἐχθρὸς εἶ. 875 K.
εἰ δὲ καὶ νυνὶ πλανᾶς με —

ΔΑΟΣ

κρέμασον εὐθύς, εἰ πλανῶ, [350]

150 τήμερον.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

λέγεις τί;

ΔΑΟΣ

χρῆσαι πολεμίου τοίνυν δίκην ἄν' λαθῇ σε μῇ κατ'ἀλάβης τ' ἔνδον αὐτὴν ἐνθάδε.
ἃ δ' ἐδῶκές νυν ἔχεις σὺ ταῦτα πάντα, Μοσχίων, καὶ πέπεικ' αὐτὴν μὲν ἔλθειν δεῦρ' ἀναλώσας λόγους μυρίουσ, τὴν σῆν' δὲ μητέρ' ὑποδέχεσθαι καὶ ποεῖν [355] 155 πάνθ' ἃ σοι δοκεῖ. τίς ἔσομαι;

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

τίς βίος μάλισθ', ὄρα, Δᾶε, τῶν πάντων ἀρέσκει; σκέψ', ἐπίβλεψ' οὐ δέει.
ἄρα τὸ μυλωθρεῖν κράτιστον;

148. θεοῖσιν ἐχθρὸς: an old expression, practically equivalent to an adj., in which the old dat. ending was retained long after it had gone out of use in current speech.

150. χρῆσαι: sc. μοι. — τοίνυν: confirms and emphasizes what Davus had said before (κρέμασον): yes, treat me, I say, as an enemy. — δίκην: cf. Eur. Hec. 1162 αἱ δὲ πολεμίων δίκην ξυναρπάσσαι τὰς ἐμὰς εἶχον χέρας, adesp. 439 K.

151. ἄν' λάθῃ σε: if she eludes you, i.e. if you don't see her.

153. This shameless lie is exposed in vv. 198 ff. The truth was that Glycera only with reluctance consented to accept the hospitality urged upon her by Myrrhina. Davus had had no part whatever in the matter.

154. ὑποδέχεσθαι: to offer hospitality, cf. 211.

155. τίς ἔσομαι: what am I to be in return for this service? He expected the answer ἐλεόθερος. For ἔσομαι in the sense of γενήσομαι see Men. 223. 2 K. quoted in the next note.

156. σκέψ', ἐπίβλεψ', κτέ.: look you, consider what life you want. For the repetition of the impv. cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 1170 ἰδοῦ, θεῶ τὸ σχῆμα καὶ σκέψαι μ'. In the lacuna of four letters before ἐπίβλεψ' either a word of two short syllables must be restored or a long monosyllabic word, for βλ makes position in comedy, as in tragedy, with rare exceptions, e.g. Men. 638 and 683 (?) K. — οὐ δέει: cf. Men. 223. 2 K. ἔσει δ' ὅ τι ἀνβούλη . . . ὅ τι βούλει δ' ἔλον, Plut. Mor.

ΔΑΟΣ (trying to frighten him)

εἰς μὺλῳνα βάλλ', ἐὰν οὔτοσὶ φερόμενος ἡμῶν μὴ δέῃ τιν' ἐν ξύλῳ.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

βούλομαι δὲ προστάτην σε πραγμάτων ἐμῶν λαβεῖν^[360]
160 καὶ διοικητήν, στρατηγόν, Δᾶε· μὴ μὲ νῦν προδῶς.

ΔΑΟΣ οὐ μάλ' ἀποφράττουσιν εὐθύς, ἀλλ' ἔχεις εἴσω δραμεῖν.

602c ἐλοῦ βλον ἄριστον, a Pythagorean maxim.

157 f. Davus parries the threat by a suggestion that is sure to terrify Moschion, viz. that the big soldier (οὔτοσι) is sure to come and wreak vengeance on him for taking Glycera. — μὺλῳνα: cf. Eur. Cycl. 240 ἡ' μὺλῳνα καταβαλεῖν.

158. οὔτοσι: Polemon. — φερόμενος: cf. E. 304. — δέῃ τιν' ἐν ξύλῳ: clap some one in the stocks, cf. Aristoph. Eq. 705 ἐν τῷ ξύλῳ δῆσω σε, νῆ τὸν οὐρανόν. For the indefinite τῆς, rhetorically more effective in threats than the definite σέ, cf. Nub. 1491 κάγω τιν' αὐτῶν τήμερον δοῦναι δίκην ἐμοὶ ποῆσω, Lys. 446 παύσω τιν' ὑμῶν τῆσδ' ἐγὼ τῆς ἐξόδου, Eur. Cycl. 210 τάχα τις ὑμῶν τῷ ξύλῳ δάκρυα μεθήσεται.

159 f. Moschion at once drops his domineering air and submits himself unreservedly to the direction of Davus. — Other pure trochaic lines are vv. 175, 196, S. 382, and fr. 23. 3 K.

160. στρατηγόν: cf. Plaut. Mil. 1160 (Acroteleutium to the slave Palaestrio) impetrabis, imperator, Bacch. 759 (Pistoclerus to his slave Chrysalus) o imperatorem probum.

161–173. The text of these lines is in a desperate condition. From the hints which are preserved here and there, however, a context has been tentatively supplied. The course of the dialogue seems to be about as follows: Davus has already played upon the vanity of Moschion to the extent of making him believe that Glycera is ready to fall into his arms and that she has been brought into his mother's house with this purpose. Moschion's lingering suspicions of the veracity of Davus have been allayed and Davus put in command of his master's interests as a consequence of the suggestion that a hostile demonstration on the part of Polemon may be expected at any moment. When Davus now suggests to Moschion that he go indoors, Moschion again becomes suspicious, especially at Davus' hint that he will need a large sum of money to buy off Polemon. At length Moschion apparently agrees to stay indoors, besieged, while Davus tries to placate Polemon; if that cannot be done he will fight.

161. οὐ μάλ': omnino non. The neg. strengthened by μάλ' has here a reassuring tone, by no means, as you expect. Cf. Aesch. Pers. 384 κού μάλ' Ἑλλήνων στρατὸς κρυφαῖον ἐκπλουν οὐδαμῇ καθίστατο, Herod. 6. 3 τὴν μὲν γενομένην αὐτοῖσι αἰτίην οὐ μάλ' ἐξέφαινε. In ἀλλ' ὄρα, τί εἶ' ἔκιδ' οἰκίης ἐκδοτόν μ' ;

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ΔΑΟΣ

ἔαν' σὺ δῶς

ἐπ' τὰ χρυσίου τάλαντα—

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

παντοπωλεῖν σ' οἶομ' ἄν.

ΔΑΟΣ

Μοσχίων, ὦρα φρονεῖν ἔστ'. ἡγόρακα σῖτον πολύν. [365] 165 ὁμνύω νῆ τὴν Ἀθηνᾶν, ἐν πολέμῳ καθέσταμεν.
 εἴτ' ἐμὲ ταυτ' ἔα διοικεῖν. δεῖ δὲ μάλλον ἀντικρυς ὁδῶδεκ' ἐκτεῖσθαι ἢ γενέσθαι σκαιόν, ὅστις εὐφρονεῖ.

Homer the order is always μάλ' οὐ. — ἀποφράττουσιν: the στρατηγός uses a military term, blockade. The pres. is used with fut. meaning; hence εὐθύς for ἤδη. Cf. for this "prophetic present" v. 190, Aristoph. Eq. 127 ἐνταῦθ' ἐνεστίν, αὐτὸς ὡς ἀπόλλυται. In Lucian's skit Dial. meretr. 9, which is freely based on this play, the jealous Polemon says to his slave (ch. 5) ὡπλισμένοι ἡκόντων (οἱ Θράκες) ἐμφράξαντες τὸν στενωπὸν τῇ φάλαγγι. — εἴσω: cf. vv. 172, 229.

162. τί εἶ: cf. Eur. Hel. 1043 τί δ' εἶ . . . κτάνοιμ' ἀνακτα; Aristoph. Nub. 769 τί δῆτ' ἄν, εἶ.—ἐκιδ' οἰκίης ἐκδοτόν: propose to betray, cf. Aeschin. 3. 73 Κερσοβλέπτῃν . . . ἐκδοτὸν ποιῆσαι. The cognate vb. is often used with this adj., as in Dem. 23. 85 ἐὰν μὴ τὸν ἱκέτην ἐκδοτὸν δίδωσι.

163. χρυσίου: cf. Eup. 112 K. ἔχων στατήρας χρυσίου τρισχιλίου. — παντοπωλεῖν, κτέ.: I suppose you'd traffic in anything. παντοπώλης is used disparagingly in Anaxippus 1. 10 K. Moschion puts a false construction on Davus' words. — ἄν: regularly separated from its vb. by οἶομαι and similar words, see GMT. § 220. 1.

164. ὦρα φρονεῖν: it's time to be sensible. Cf. Eur. Heracleid. 288 ὦρα προνοεῖν, πρὶν ὄροις πελάσαι στρατὸν Ἀργείων, Aesch. Suppl. 176 παῖδες, φρονεῖν χρὴ.—ἡγόρακα σῖτον: by pointing to his wallet (cf. v. 230) crammed with provisions (doubtless bought for a wholly different purpose) Davus proves to Moschion that he is in earnest in anticipating a siege.

165. Menander seems to admit the dactyl (ἐν πολέμῳ) into trochaic verse, but not so freely as Aristophanes, cf. vv. 166 (εἴτ' ἐμὲ), 220 (πορνίδιον), S. 480 (ὑστερον). But the text is uncertain in all but one of these cases. The word-division must be —, ∪ ∪, except where the dactyl is contained in a single word.

166. διοικεῖν: cf. διοικητήν v. 160.

167. δῶδεκα: sc. τάλαντα, cf. v. 163. — ἐκτεῖσαι: cf. Herod. 6. 92 ζημίη χίλια τάλαντα ἐκτίσαι. — γενέσθαι σκαιόν: show one's self a booby. — δεσπης εὐ γραυσί' τοῖα στρύζε, μιᾶρέ.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ΔΑΟΣ

σκέπτ' ἔόν γ' εἰ σπείσομαί, φῆμ', ἐφ' οἷς εἰρηκά' τούτοις.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

μὰ Δία σὺ στρατηγὸς οὐκ' [370]
170 ἦσθας, ἀλλὰ τυροπῶλει, καὶ τὸ λοιπὸν ἐν πέδαις —

ΔΑΟΣ

ταῦτα μέντοι φῆς ἔν' εὖ δρῶ σ'; ἀλλὰ μὴ μέλλ', εἰς δὲ τήν οἰκίαν ἄπελθε, τρόφιμε.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

δεῖ μάλιστα μ' ἐπιτρέπειν φρονεῖ: cf. Eur. Troad. 400 φεύγειν μὲν οὐν χρὴ πόλεμον ὅστις ἐδ' φρονεῖ.

168. γραυσί: talk fit only for old women was proverbially λῆρος, cf. Plat.
Theaet. 176b ὁ λεγόμενος γραῶν ὄβλος (ἡ παροιμία ἐπὶ τῶν μάτην ληρούντων Suid.
s. γραῦς χορεύει), Gorg. 527 ἂ μῦθος . . .
ὥσπερ γραῖς. — στρύζε: mutter, croak.
στρύζειν is a rare collateral form of τρύζειν, which differs but slightly in meaning from τρίζειν. Cf. Aristoph. Lys.
506 τοῦτο μὲν, ὦ γραῦ, σπαντῇ κρώξαις. — μιᾶρέ: cf. vv. 215, 216, S. 200. — σκε-πτέον γε: you've got to consider, at least.
Cf. Aristoph. Eq. 35 ἀλλ' ἐτέρᾳ πῃ σκε-πτέον. This verbal is often used by Plato and Aristotle to introduce a subject of discussion. — εἰ σπείσομαι, κτέ.: whether I'm to make peace with them.

169. ἐφ' οἷς εἰρηκά: on the terms
I've mentioned (in v. 163), i.e., apparently, on the basis of money. Cf.
Aristoph. Av. 1602 κὰν διαλλαττώμεθα ἐπὶ τοῖσδε, Eur. Phoen. 1240 ἐπὶ τοῖσδε δ' ἐσπείσαντο. — τούτοις: the enemy, Polemon and his followers. The dat.

is the usual constr., cf. Aristoph. Lys.
1040 ἀλλὰ νυνὶ σπένδομαί σοι.

170. ἦσθας: you are not, as it seems.
The impf. "of sudden realization of the real state of affairs," see on v. 385 and E. 902. For the form see on E. 166.
— τυροπῶλει: be a cheese-seller instead.
The petty trade is contrasted with the honorable profession, as in Aristoph.
Ran. 1369 ἀνδρῶν ποιητῶν τυροπωλῆσαι τέχνην. — ἐν πέδαις: see on H. 3 and
cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 435 εἰ δὲ μή, ἢ πέδαις παχείαις οὐδὲν ἀριστήσετε.

171. ταῦτα, κτέ.: is this what you say to get me to do you a service?

172. οἰκίαν: a general term for the residence. εἰς οἰκίαν = εἰσω v. 229. When Moschion goes into the house he repairs to the men's apartments, εἰς οἶκον; see on v. 417. — μάλιστα: preferably, if σοί γε ἡ παραμυθεῖσθ' ἐκείνους, εἰ δὲ μή, τότε ἐπιέναι ἐπὶ θεοῖς ἐχθρῷ πτεροφόρῳ χιλιάρχῳ;

ΔΑΟΣ

καὶ μάλα. J³, quat. y,
p. 8

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

175 εἰσιὼν δέ μοι σύ, Δᾶε, τῶν ὄλων κατάσκοπος [376] πραγμάτων γένου· τί ποιεῖ; πῶν ἔστιν ἡ μήτηρ; ἐμὲ εἰς τὸ προσδοκᾶν ἔχουσι πῶς; τὸ τοιουτὶ μέρος οὐκ ἀκριβῶς δεῖ φράσαι σοι· κομψὸς εἶ.

ΔΑΟΣ

πορεύσομαι.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

περιπατῶν δὲ προσμένῳ σε πρόσθε τῶν θυρῶν ἐγώ. [380]
Exit Davus into the house of Pataecus.

possible, Lat. potissimum. Cf. Soph. Phil. 617 μάλισθ' ἐκούσιον λαβῶν, εἰ μὴ θέλοι δ', ἀκοντα. In prose the alternatives are generally introduced by μάλιστα μὲν and εἰ δὲ μή.

173. παραμυθεῖσθαι: appease, lit. talk over, cf. Thuc. 3. 75. 4 Νικόστρατος δὲ αὐτοὺς ἀνίστη τε καὶ παρεμυθεῖτο.

174. πτεροφόρῳ χιλιάρχῳ: a certain beplumed brigadier, referring to the imposing crest of feathers on Polemon's helmet, cf. Aristoph. Pac. 1172 θεοῖσιν ἐχθρὸν ταξίαρχον προσβλέπων τρεῖς λόφους ἔχοντα, Ach. 965 τρισὶ κατάσκιοις λόφοις. The jealous Polemon in Luc. Dial. meretr. 9, likewise a chiliarch, wears a splendid uniform, ἐφεστρίδα περιπόρφυρον ἐμπεπορημένον. The omission of the art. with χιλιάρχῳ gives about the same effect as the use of τις as "the indefinite of insinuation"; see on vv. 158, 224.

175. At this point a plan of action seems to have been agreed upon. Moschion, persuaded that Polemon will soon begin hostilities, has consented to remain in the house while Davus is trying to placate the enemy. We now see that Moschion, far from intending to be cooped up in the house, practically a prisoner, hopes to be able to enjoy there the society of Glycera. He therefore sends Davus in to learn how the land lies.

176. ποιεῖ: i.e. Glycera. For the spelling see on H. 1.—ἐμέ: obj. of προσδοκᾶν.

177. εἰς τὸ προσδοκᾶν: cf. Dem. Phil. 3. 46 οὐ γὰρ οὕτως ἔχεθ' ὑμεῖς οὕτε πρὸς τὰ τοιαῦτ' οὕτε πρὸς τὰλλα, ἀλλὰ πῶς;—μέρος: role; see on E. 17.

178. κομψός: clever, cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 649 κομψὸν ἐν συνουσίᾳ, Cratin. 307 K. κομψὸς θεατῆς, and for the thought Aristoph. Eq. 233 γνωσθήσεται· τὸ γὰρ θέατρον δεξιόν. Sometimes κομψός seems to imply readiness of speech as well as of wit, cf. Eur. Cycl. 315 κομψὸς γενήσεται καὶ λαλίστατος, Suppl. 426 κομψός γ' ὁ

- 180 ἄλλ' ἔδειξεν μὲν τι τοιοῦθ' ὡς προσῆλθ' ὅν ἔσπ' ἐρας· προσδραμόντ' οὐκ ἔφυγεν, ἀλλὰ περιβαλοῦσ' ἔπ' ἐσπ' ἄσε.
 οὐκ ἀηδής, ὡς εἰκέν, εἰμ' ἰδεῖν οὐδ' ἐντυχεῖν, οἶομαι, μὰ τὴν Ἀθηνᾶν, ἀλλ' ἐταίραις προσφίλῃς.
 τὴν δ' Ἀδράστειαν μάλιστα νῦν ἄρ' ὦρα προσκύνειν. [385]

Davus returns from his errand.

ΔΑΟΣ

- 185 Μοσχίων, ἡ μὲν λέλονται καὶ κάθεται.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

φιλτάτη.

κῆρυξ καὶ παρεργάτης λόγων, and the definition of κομψεία given by Hesychius, ποικίλη λαλιὰ καὶ πανουργία. — πορεύ-σομαι: cf. v. 65.

180. ἔδειξεν: subj. Glycera. — τι τοιοῦτον: some such feeling. — ἔσπ' ἐρας: cf. v. 33.

181. ἐπ' ἐσπ' ἄσε: sc. ἐμέ, drew me to her, cf. Plut. Vit. Cat. 27. 2 ἐπισπᾶσας τῆς χειρὸς ὁ Κάτων τὸν Μουνάτιον ἀνήγαγε. The mid. is more commonly used in this sense, as in Arist. Hist. animal. 613 b 19 ἐπισπᾶται ὁ πέρδιξ τὸν θηρεύοντα. Glycera's conduct appears in a very different light in Agnoia's narrative, vv. 35 ff.

182. οὐκ ἀηδής: a common litotes, cf. Plat. Apol. 41 b οὐκ ἂν ἀηδὲς εἴη, Plut. Vit. Luc. 22. 1 ἀνὴρ εἰπεῖν οὐκ ἀηδής. — ἐντυχεῖν: cf. [Plat.] Ep. 360 c οὐτε ἀχαρὲς ἐστὶν ἐντυχεῖν (Headlam), Theoph. Char. 19. 3 δυσέντυκτος εἶναι καὶ ἀηδής.

183. The complacency with which Moschion contemplates his own attractiveness to the fair sex is matched by that of Pyrgopolinices in the Miles of Plautus, who ait sese ultro omnis mulieres sectari (v. 91), and who confesses Venus me amat (985), nepos sum Veneris (1264).

Cf. also vv. 58, 68, 1021, 1223, 1227. For the pl. ἐταίραις see on v. 53. Aristaenetus, Ep. 1. 27, describes such a breaker of hearts: φουσῶν αὐτὸς αὐτὸν οἴεται μόνος ἀξέραστος εἶναι ταῖς γυναιξὶ καὶ πρεπόντως τῷ κάλλει ποθεῖσθαι.

184. The goddess Adrasteia, associated with Nemesis and often confounded with her, was supposed to punish those who uttered boastful or arrogant words. In Aesch. Prom. 936 the chorus warns Prometheus οἱ προσκυνούντες τὴν Ἀδράστειαν σοφοί, cf. in [Eur.] Rhes. 342 the prayer Ἀδράστειαν μὲν ἃ Διὸς παῖς εἰργοὶ στομάτων φθόνον. Cf. also Dem. 25. 37 Ἀδράστειαν μὲν ἄνθρωπος ὧν ἔγωγε προσκυνῶ, Plat. Rep. 451 a προσκυνῶ δὲ Ἀδράστειαν . . . χάριν οὐ μέλλω λέγειν, [Eur.] Rhes. 468 σὺν δ' Ἀδραστεῖα λέγω. In Alciph. Ep. 1. 33. 5 Nemesis is deprecated in the same spirit, and φθόνος in Soph. Phil. 776 τὸν φθόνον πρόσκυσον takes the place of the personification. Cults of Adrasteia and of Nemesis were established in Attica before the time of the Peloponnesian War. — μάλιστα νῦν ἄρ' ὦρα: it's especially timely now, as it seems. On ὦρα, with which the copula is regularly omitted, see note on v. 164.

ΔΑΟΣ

ἡ δὲ μήτηρ σου διοικεῖ περιπατοῦσ' οὐκ οἶδ' ὅ τι.
 εὐτρεπὲς δ' ἄριστόν ἐστίν, ἕκ δὲ τῶν ποουμένων περιμένειν δοκοῦσί μοί σε.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

καὶ πάλαι μένουσ' ἐμέ.
 εἴμ' ἀηδής; εἴπας αὐταῖς καὶ παρόντα μ' ἐνθάδε; [390]

Davus makes a gesture of negation.

190 ἄγε δὲ νῦν τούτῳ λέγ' ἐλθών.

ΔΑΟΣ

ὥς ὁρᾶς, ἀναστρέφω.

Davus reënters the house.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

εἰ μὲν αἰσχύνοιτο μ' εἰπεῖν, βασιανῶ μὲν δηλαδὴ παρακαλῶ Δᾶον δὲ μάρτυν. τὴν δὲ μητέρα σφόδρα¹⁰³⁴ K.

186. διοικεῖ: is busy about.

188. καὶ πάλαι, κτέ.: they've been waiting for me a long time, too.

189. εἴμ' ἀηδής: a confident question, Am I distasteful? equivalent to the assertion οὐκ ἀηδής εἰμι in v. 182. The neg. in the MS. before εἴμ' ἀηδής gives the right interpretation but spoils the meter; its presence is due to the fact that no sign of interrogation is used. — παρόντα: the partic., instead of the infin., in indirect discourse after a vb. of saying is confined almost entirely to poetry and is there unusual. The object clause represents an actual, not merely a reported, fact, Did you also tell them of my presence? See GMT. § 910, Kühner-Gerth § 484. 18, Anm. 2.

190. ἀναστρέφω: I am there and back again, lit. I return, — the answer of a zealous servant, cf. Plaut. Trin. 1109 illic sum atque hic sum. The "prophetic pres." takes the place of a fut., cf. Men. 198 K. παρέσσομαι γὰρ ἐν δύο, Plaut. Amph. 969 iam hic ero, quom illic censebis esse me.

191. Moschion coaches himself for the expected meeting with Glycera. — αἰσχύνοιτο: subj. Glycera. — μ' εἰπεῖν: to address me. For the acc. with εἰπεῖν and similar vbs., a usage confined to poetry, see Kühner-Gerth § 409, Anm. 3. μοί is unlikely, for though it suffers elision in Homer it rarely does in Attic. — βασιανῶ: I shall question her closely, i.e. draw from her in this way an acknowledgment of her affection. Moschion does not for a moment doubt her attachment to him, but is prepared to find her somewhat shy about betraying her feeling.

192. παρακαλῶ: the vox propria for the summoning of witnesses, e.g. Lys. 14. 28 πολλοὺς παρακαλέσας. — μάρτυν: in predicate apposition. μάρτυν, attested for Menander by Photius, is a εἰσιόντ' εὐθὺς φιλήσαι δεῖ μ', ἀνακτῆσασθ' ὅλως, εἰς τὸ κολακεύειν τρέπεσθαι, ζῆν τε πρὸς ταύτην ἀπλῶς.

195 ὥς γὰρ οἰκείῳ κέχρηται τῷ παρόντι πράγματι. [396] ἀλλὰ τὴν θύραν ψοφεῖ τις ἐξιὼν.

Davus returns, apparently crestfallen.

τί τοῦτο, παῖ;

ὥς ὀκνηρῶς μοι προσέρχει, Δᾶε.

ΔΑΟΣ

ναὶ μὰ τὸν Δία·

πάνυ γὰρ ἀτόπως. ὥς γὰρ ἐλθὼν εἶπα πρὸς τὴν μητέρα ὅτι πάρει, "μηθὲν ἔτι τούτων." φησί, "πῶς ἄκῃκοεν; [400] 200 ἦ σὺ λελάληκας πρὸς αὐτὸν ὅτι φοβηθεῖς ἐνθάδε καταπέφευγ' αὐτὴ πρὸς ἡμᾶς; φεῦγε· μὴ ὥρας σὺ γε," metaplastic form of μάρτυρα, as μάρτυς is of μάρτυρος. — σφόδρα: decidedly, modifying the whole predicate, as in Aristoph. Ach. 71 σφόδρα γὰρ ἐσφύζομην ἐγώ, Arist. Hist. animal. 575b 18 σφόδρα δοκεῖ σημεῖον εἶναι, and especially in exclamations, ὥς σφόδρα, etc.

193. ἀνακτῆσασθαι: cf. Arist. Oec. 1349a 31 ποιήσας δὲ τοῦτο ἀνεκτῆσατο τοὺς πολίτας.

194. κολακεύειν: cf. Plaut. Cist. 92, where Selenium tells of the arts of her lover, inde in amicitiam insinavit cum matre at mecum simul blanditiis, muneribus, donis — a translation of Men. 558 K. κολακεύων ἐμέ τε καὶ τὴν μητέρα. — ζῆν πρὸς ταύτην: see on Pet. fr. v. 39, p. 99.

196. ψοφεῖ: see on E. 660.

198. ἀτόπως: sc. a vb. like ἔπρεσεν or συνέβη, cf. Plat. Polit. 226c καὶ μάλ' ἀτόπως ξυμβαῖνον.

199. μηθὲν, κτέ.: sc. λέγε, no more of that. — πῶς ἄκῃκοεν: viz. that Glycera had come to her house.

201. φεῦγε: cf. S. 373 φεῦγε, Χρυσί. — μὴ ὥρας, κτέ.: a formula of imprecation equivalent to "plague take you," lit. may you not come to next year. The phrase was originally εἰς ὥρας or perhaps even εἰς τὰς ἐτέρας ὥρας, to judge by the formula used in good wishes, e.g. Theocr. 15. 74 κῆς ὥρας κῆπειτα, φίλ' ἀνδρῶν, ἐν καλῶς εἰης (cf. Aristoph. Nub. 562 εἰς τὰς ὥρας τὰς ἐτέρας εἰ φρονεῖν δοκήσετε), but this was early shortened to the acc. without the prep., as here (cf. Aristoph. Lys. 1037 ἀλλὰ μὴ ὥρας ἰκοισθε, where Bentley would read μὴ 'ς ὥρας), or to the adverbial dative ὥρασι betimes, as in Aristoph. Lys. 391, or ὥραισι, e.g. Luc. De salt. 5 μὴ ὥραισι δὲρα ἰκοίμην. The scholiast to Luc. l.c. (cf. also ad Dial. deor. 9. 4 and Dial. meretr. 10. 3) declares the dat. an Attic solecism and μὴ ὥρας the correct form, adding the explanation σημαίνει δὲ τὸ μὴ εἰς τοῦτων φθάσαι. For εἰς ὥρας meaning next year cf. [Plat.] Ep. 7. 346c μέγε . . . τὸν ἐνιαυτὸν τοῦτον· εἰς δὲ ὥρας ἀπιθί.

‘φῆς’, “ἴκοι, ἀλλ’ ἐς φθόρον σὺ νῦν βαδίζε, παιδίον, ἐκποδών.” ἄκουε δὴ νῦν· πάντ’ ἀνῆρπαστ’ ἐκ μέσου, ὥς ἐφεδρεύειν παρόντα σ’ ᾗδεσαν.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (indignantly)

μαστιγία, [405]

205 ἄρα γελάσαι μοι—

ΔΛΟΣ

γέλοιον; ἡ μὲν οὖν μήτηρ—

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

τί φῆς;

εἰσάγειν ἄκουσαν αὐτήν, καὶ τὸ πρᾶγμ’ οὐχ ἔνεκ’ ἐμοῦ;

The phrase is restored in Men. 530.11 K. μη’ ὥρας σύ γε ἴκοιο (Fritzsche, Headlam).

202 f. εἰς φθόρον . . . ἐκποδών: cf. Aristoph. Eq. 1151 ἀπαγ’ ἐς μακαρίαν ἐκποδών, Aesch. Sept. 252 οὐκ ἐς φθόρον; Herond. 6. 15 ἐκποδών ἡμῖν φθείρεσθε, and the vb. εἰσφθείρεσθαι v. 403, S. 372.

203. ἄκουε δὴ νῦν: this phrase is found in Aristoph. Eq. 1014, Av. 1513, Soph. El. 947, Eur. Hec. 831, H. F. 1255, I. A. 1009, 1146, Orest. 237, 1181, Phoen. 911, 1427, and elsewhere.

203 f. πάντ’ ἀνῆρπαστο . . . ᾗδεσαν: all was lost, snatched from your grasp, as soon as they knew that you were here lying in wait. Cf. S. 346 τὰ πράγματ’ ἀνατέτριπται, and for a similar use of ἐκ μέσου Euphron 8. 5 K. τίς ἐκ μέσου τὰ θερμὰ δεινός (ἐστιν) ἀρπάσσει; Anaxipp. 1. 6 K. τὴν θυεὶαν ἠφάνισαν ἐκ τοῦ μέσου. — ὥς: almost = ὥς τάχιστα, ut, simul ac. See Kühner-Gerth § 556. 1 b. — ἐφεδρεύειν: lie in wait as an ἐφεδρος, the odd contestant in a wrestling or boxing match, who was left over to engage the winner of the preliminary bouts. See Luc. Hermot. 40 ἐφεδρεύει περιμένων, ἔστ’ ἂν ἐκείνοι ἀγωνίσωνται . . . καὶ ἔστι τοῦτο οὐ μικρὰ εὐτυχία τοῦ ἀθλητοῦ, τὸ μέλειν ἀκμήτα τοῖς κεκμηκόσι συμπεσεῖσθαι. At the contest between Aeschylus and Euripides in the Frogs of Aristophanes it was the purpose of Sophocles ἐφεδρος καθεδεῖσθαι (v. 792). — Observe that the syl. before δρ is long. The tragic poets show a tendency to this measurement in ἔδρα and compounds (Tucker Class. Rev. XI, p. 342). In Aristophanes it is found in anapaestic and iambic meter in Av. 686 (δλιγῶδρανέες) and Plut. 1153 (ἰδρόσασθε); cf. Herond. 4. 92 (ἔδρη). — μαστιγία: cf. S. 95, 112.

205. γελάσαι μοι: the intercepted word was τολμᾶς or the like. For the dat., regular with ἐπι- and ἐγ-γελάω, cf. Aristoph. Nub. 560 τούτοις γελάω, Eq. 696 ἐγέλασα ψολοκομπλαῖς, Soph. Aj. 957 γελάω δὲ τοῖσδε . . . ἀχεσιν. — γέλοιον: sc. ἐστί; Davus pretends that it was no laughing matter, and was about to say that Myrrhina certainly (μὲν οὖν) did not so treat it.

206. εἰσάγειν: cf. v. 143. The subj. τὴν μητέρα is readily understood from ἡ μήτηρ above. — ἄκουσαν: cf. φοβηθεῖσα v. 200.

ἔϊπας ὥς πέπεικας ἐλθεῖν πρὸς μ'.

ΔΑΟΣ (as if trying to remember)

ἔγὼ δ' εἰρηκά σοι
ὥς πέπεικ' ἐλθεῖν ἐκείνην; μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω, γὰρ μὲν οὐ.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ἡ μηδαμοῦ δόκει λάθρα μου πολὺ καταψεύδεσθ' ἐμοί, [410] 210 ὅς γε καὶ τὴν μητέρ' αὐτὸς ταῦτα συμπέπεικέναι ἀρτίως ἔφησθα, ταύτην ἐνθάδ' ὑποδέξασθ' ἐμοῦ J³, quat.y, p.9 ἐνεκα.

ΔΑΟΣ (as if recalling with difficulty)

τοῦθ', ὀρᾶς, ἔφην. ναί· μνημονεύω.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

καὶ δοκεῖν
ἐνεκ' ἐμοῦ σοι τοῦτο πράττειν;

ΔΑΟΣ

οὐκ ἔχω τουτὶ φράσαι·
ἀλλ' ἔγωγ' ἔπειθον.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (threateningly)

εἶεν· δεῦρο δὴ βάδιζε.

ΔΑΟΣ

ποῖ; [415]

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

215 μῶν, μιάρ', ὀνήσει;

207. εἶπας: in v. 158.—πέπεικας: hence that she came willingly.

209. μηδαμοῦ δόκει, κτέ.: don't think you're lying to me wholesale without my knowing it! Equivalent to μὴ δόκει λαθεῖν με καταψευδόμενος. For μηδαμοῦ in prohibitions cf. Philem. 115 K. μηδαμοῦ σκέψη φυγεῖν, and for λάθρα w. gen. see Kühner-Gerth § 421. 4.

210. ὅς γε: quippe qui, cf. Soph.

O.T. 35 ὅς γ' ἐξέλυσας . . . σκληρὰς δαυδοῦ δασμόν.—ταῦτα: explained by τὰ τὴν ὑποδέξασθαι, see on E. 91.

212. ὀρᾶς = ὡς ὀρᾶς, cf. v. 388.—δοκεῖν: const. w. ἔφησθα.

214. ἔπειθον: conative. I did try to persuade her.—δεῦρο δὴ βάδιζε: cf. Aristoph. Nub. 58 δεῦρ' ἔλθ', ἵνα κλάγῃς.

215. μῶν ὀνήσει: it won't do you any good, will it? i.e. to have lied in

ΔΑΟΣ (stammering)

τὸ δεῖνα, Μοσχίων, ἐγὼ τότε — μῆταρὸς εἰμ', ἔργων.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

φλυαρεῖς πρὸς με.

978 K.

ΔΑΟΣ

μὰ τὸν Ἀσκληπίον, οὐκ ἔγωγ', ἐὰν ἀκούσης. τυχὸν ἴσως οὐ βούλεται ῥ' διατελεῖν σ' ἐξ ἐπιδρομῆς ταῦθ', ὡς ἔτυχεν, ἀλλ' ἀξιοῖ this way. Moschion acts as if about to give Davus a beating. — τὸ δεῖνα: equivalent to let me see, bless me, used by one who through embarrassment cannot think of the right word or for some reason does not wish to speak it. As the scholiast to Luc. Vit. auct. 19 explains the idiom, it serves to reveal the underlying thought through the very indefiniteness of the word. In the present passage Davus starts with his explanation before he has thought what it is to be; at first he spars for time (τὸ δεῖνα), then breaks down and confesses. Similarly in Aristoph. Thesm. 620 ff. the κηδεστῆς of Euripides, parading as a woman, when asked the name of her husband stammers τὸν δεῖνα γινώσκεις, τὸν ἐκ Κοθωκιδῶν; . . . ἔσθ' ὁ δεῖν', δὲ καὶ ποτε τὸν δεῖνα τὸν τοῦ δεῖνα —. The embarrassment may be due to the desire to avoid using an objectionable word, as in S. 345 and in Aristoph. Ach. 1149 ἀνατριβομένη τε τὸ δεῖνα, or to a real or assumed forgetfulness, as in Aristoph. Ran. 918, where Dionysus, unable to call to mind the name of Aeschylus, refers to him as ὁ δεῖνα. In Plautus perii or malum serves the same purpose; in Merc. 721 Lysimachus merely stammers illa — illa edepol—vae mihi, etc. See Starkie on Aristoph. Vesp. 524.

216. πρὸς με: criticized by Charax (Bekk. Anec. 1154), who demands πρὸς ἐμέ. See Kühner-Blass § 90. 6b. — The anapaest in the sixth foot, contained in three words, is the only instance of the kind in the tetrameters of the Cairo MS.

217. ἐὰν ἀκούσης: Davus has now recovered himself and has thought of a way out of his dilemma. The action of Myrrhina has seemed to give the lie to all that has been said to Moschion; but possibly, he now suggests, Glycera simply prefers to be wooed in a more conventional way.

218. διατελεῖν ἐξ ἐπιδρομῆς ταῦτα: to finish this business by assault, as he had begun it. The metaphor suggests the suddenness and unexpectedness of a military onslaught, and is often used in the meaning suddenly. — ὡς ἔτυχεν: off-hand, used adverbially in all periods to qualify a vb. in the pres. as well as in the past, e.g. Xen. Mem. 3. 9. 13 ὡς ἔτυχεν ζημοῦσθαι, Philem. 137 K. ὁ γίγνεται ὡς ἔτυχ' ἐκάστω, Plut. Mor. 879 c οὐδὲν τῶν καλῶν εἰκῇ καὶ ὡς ἔτυχεν γίγνεται.

220. αὐλητρίς: the word is almost the equivalent of ἐταῖρα. — πορνίδιον πρότερον ἰδέναί σ', ἀκούσαι τὰ παρὰ σοῦ γέ, νῆ Δία. [420] 220 οὐ γὰρ ὡς ἀνῆλθις οὐδ' ὡς πορνίδιον τρισάθλιον ἦλθε.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (reassured)

νῦν δοκεῖς λέγειν μοι, Δᾶέ, τι πάλιν.

ΔΑΟΣ

δοκίμασον·

ἦδε σοὶ πάρεστιν, οἶμαι· καταλέλοιπεν οἰκίαν οὐ φλυάρῳ τόν τ' ἔραστήν. εἰ σὺ τρεῖς ἡ τέτταρας ἡμέρας σ' ἔδει, προσέξει σοί τις· ἀνεκοινοῦτό μοι [425] 225 ταῦτ'· ἀκούσαι γὰρ ὅλα δέῃ νῦν.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ποῦ σ' εἰρήσας καταλίπω, τρिसάθλιον: cf. com. adesp. 120 K. πορνιδίῳ τρισαθλίῳ ἑαυτὸν οὕτω παραδέδωκεν.

 — Note the dactyl in the fifth foot and see on v. 166.

221. δοκίμασον: put it to the test, viz. ὅ τι λέγω.

222. ἦδε σοὶ . . . οἶμαι: this girl's here for you, I think. Then follow his reasons for this opinion. σοὶ is stressed and practically = σοῦ ἕνεκα.

223. οὐ φλυάρῳ = οὐ παιδιᾷ, i.e. σπουδῇ, ἐπιτηδές, cf. Plat. Crit. 46ν παιδία καὶ φλυαρία.

224. σ' ἔδει: will stoutly hold out, lit. will eat yourself; cf. Eng. "grit your teeth." The expression suggests both (1) patient endurance and (2) impatient fretting at that which must be endured. Both ideas have their origin in Homeric phrases, e.g. (1) Od. 1. 381 ὁδὰς ἐν χεῖλεσι φόντες, with which cf. Tyrt. 8. 32 Cr. χεῖλος ὁδοῦσι δακῶν and Aristoph. Ran. 43 δάκνω γ' ἑμμανόν, ἀλλ' ὅμως γελῶ, (2) Il. 6. 202 ὃν θυμὸν κατέδων, with which cf. Aristoph. Vesps.

287 μῆδ' οὕτω σεαυτὸν ἔσθιε (see Starkie's note ad loc.), Alcaeus com. 36 K. ἔδω δ' ἑμμανόν ὥσπερ πολυπόους, Plaut. Truc. 587 quisnam illic homost, qui ipsus se comest, tristis oculis malis? The thought of the passage above is similar to that of Ter. Eun. 187: when Thais asks Phaedria to absent herself from her for two days Phaedria answers, rus ibo: ibi hoc me macerabo biduom.—τις: some one we know, the indef. of insinuation, cf. vv. 153, 168, 174, Aristoph. Ran. 552 κακὸν ἥκει τινί, Soph. Ant. 751 ἦδ' οὖν θανέεται καὶ θανούσ' ὀλεῖ τινα.—ἀνεκοινοῦτό μοι: Davus now pretends that Glycera has asked him to convey this hint to Moschion; the time has arrived, he goes on to say, for Moschion to know all about it.

225. ὅλα = πάντα, a late usage, but cf. Soph. Aj. 1105 οὐχ ὅλων στρατηγός (see Jebb).—ποῦ, κτέ.: where am I to leave you fettered?—that I may find you when the period of waiting is over.

Δᾶε; περιπατεῖν ῥ' ποῖς με περίπατον πολύν τινα.
ἀρτίως μὲν οὐκ ἄλλ' ἢ πρὸς μὲ λεαλέλ' ἡκας πάλιν.

ΔΑΟΣ

οὐκ ἔᾶς φρονεῖν ῥ' μ' ἄθορ' ὕβως. μεταβαλοῦ τρόπον τινὰ κοσμίως τ' εἴσω παρέλθε.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ῥ' σίτ' ἀγοράσει;

ΔΑΟΣ

καὶ μάλα· [430]

230 ἐφόδι' οὐχ ὄρᾳς μ' ἔχοντα πλήρες ὃν τε τοῦτ'; ἐμοὶ δ'

226. περίπατον πολύν: in his vexation Moschion magnifies his troubles and assumes that he will have to spend the three or four days walking the streets.

227. Moschion again grows suspicious of Davus. He thinks—and rightly—that the last story (v. 224) is another lie.

228. Instead of defending himself Davus impatiently asks for time to think out a plan undisturbed. Under this pretext he induces Moschion to go to his room in the house.—ἔᾶς . . . ἀθορύβως: cf. Eur. Orest. 238 ἕως ἔωσι σ' εὖ φρονεῖν 'Ερινύες, Plut. Vit. Fab. Max. 26. 4 οὐδὲ . . . ἔλασε (ὁ Φάβιος) τὸ χαῖρον καὶ τεθαρρηκὸς τῶν πολιτῶν ἀθόρυβον καὶ βέβαιον.—μεταβαλοῦ τρόπον τινά: if the vb. is rightly restored the meaning probably is right about face, as it were. The mid. is used absolutely as a military term in Xen. Cyrop. 7. 5. 6 ὀλίγα βήματα προΐδντες μετεβάλλοντο ἐπ' ἀσπίδα whirled about to the left, but usually in the meaning "change sides," "turn traitor," as in Thuc. 1. 71. 6 οὔτε γὰρ δσῶα ἂν ποιοῖμεν μεταβαλ- όμενοι, or "change one's character," "reform," as in Plut. Ages. et Pomp. Comp. 3. 2 τῶν πειρατῶν τοῖς μεταβαλομένοις πόλεις ἔδωκε (ὁ Πομπήιος). The military meaning seems the more appropriate here in the mouth of Davus ὁ στρατηγός (v. 160) and is carried on by κοσμίως below.—τρόπον τινά: quodammodo. The phrase calls attention to the special meaning of the preceding word, as in H. 20 δούλη τρόπον τινά, P. 63 ζῶσιν τρόπον τινά. In Arist. De gen. et corr. 320 a 3 τρόπον τινά in a certain sense is contrasted with κυρίως properly speaking.

229. σίτ' ἀγοράσει: while he absents himself from the common meals of the household he expects Davus to provide for him. He forgets that Davus has already told him (v. 164) that he has laid in provisions for a siege.

230. τοῦτο: the purse, βαλλάντιον, or the wallet, πηρίδιον, which he carries. The text is highly conjectural.—ἐμοὶ δ': the only instance of elision at the end of the verse in the remains of Menander, though the ancient grammarians cite a case from the Plocium, εἰσιὼν κλίθῃτι· τούτων συνδιορθώσεῖς τινά·

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ὁμολογῶ νικᾶν σε.

Exit Moschion into his father's house.

ΔΑΟΣ

μικροῦ, Ἡράκλεις. καὶ νῦν τρέμων αὐδὸς εἰμ'· οὐκ ἔστι γὰρ ταῦθ', ὥς τότ' ᾤμην, εὐκρεμῇ.

Sosias arrives from the country in time to catch sight of Moschion as he enters the house. Sosias is accompanied by a couple of ragamuffins, his army. He stations his forces in front of the house of Pataecus. He does not see Davus, who stands at one side.

SC. 2. DAVUS, SOSIAS

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

παλιν πέπομφε τὴν χλαμῦδα φέροντά με [435] 235 καὶ τὴν σπάθην, ἵν' ἰδῶ τί ποιεῖ καὶ λέγω

see fr. 412 K. Aristophanes admits it occasionally, viz. δ' Av. 1716, Eccl. 351, σ' Nub. 891, μ' Ran. 298. Among the tragic poets it was peculiar to Sophocles, hence called by the grammarians εἶδος Σοφοκλείου. See Jebb on Soph. O.T. 29. An elided monosyllable at the end of the verse is sometimes written at the beginning of the next verse in the MSS., as here.

231. εἰσιὼν κλίθῃτι: pray go in and lie down, cf. Eur. Cycl. 543 κλίθῃτι νόν μοι πλευρὰ θεῖς ἐπὶ χθονός, Eur. fr. 691 N. κλίθῃτι καὶ πῖωμεν (to be restored in com. adesp. 1203 K. for τί κάθη; καὶ πῖωμεν). The simple vb. is often used for κατακλινεσθαι.—συνδιορθώσεις: Menander's fondness for verbal compounds w. συν- is noticeable, e.g. συμπεῖθειν v. 210, συναπατρεῖν E. 89, συνδιαλλάττειν v. 887, συνεκκείσθαι E. 233, συνεκτιθέσθαι E. 59, συνευρίσκειν E. 84.

232 f. μικροῦ: a close shave!—τρέμων αὐδὸς εἰμι: cf. Aristoph. Lys. 385

ἀλλ' αὐδὸς εἰμ' ἥδη τρέμων (van Leeuwen). Possibly δέει is to be restored, cf. E. 686.—τότε: at first, when he formed the plan.—εὐκρεμῇ: easy to manage, lit. conveniently hung, i.e. within easy reach. The word occurs nowhere else and is probably colloquial. ἀμφικρεμής, ἐκκρεμής, and ἐπικρεμής occur, the last in a figurative sense in schol. Soph. Aj. 23 ἵνα ἐπικρεμής ᾖ ἔτι ἡ ὑπόθεσις that the plot may remain doubtful, lit. still hanging suspended. The same figure is involved in Sappho's comparison (fr. 91 Cr.) of girls with apples that hang out of reach.

234 ff. Since we last saw him (v. 64) Sosias has reported to his master at his headquarters in the country what he had seen at his previous visit: Glycera at the door inside of her neighbor's house, and Doris coming from that house. From this report Polemon could not infer with certainty that Glycera had taken up her residence in the house

ἐλθών. ἀκαρῶν δέω δὲ φάσκειν καταλαβεῖν τὸν μοιχὸν ἔνδον, ἢ ἀναπηδήσας τρέχῃ, εἰ μὴ γε παντάπασιν αὐτὸν ἠλέουν, κακοδαίμον' οὕτω. δῆλός ἦν, οὐδ' ἐνύπνιον.

[440]

of his rival, but, on the other hand, he could not avoid the conclusion that the intimacy which had aroused his jealousy still continued. He therefore sends Sosias again. Sosias is in uniform and attended by several peltasts (vv. 264, 272). His mission evidently is to stand guard at Polemon's house, in order to see that Glycera does not escape if she has not already done so, and to spy upon her doings. He arrives in time to see Moschion, whom he recognizes, enter the house.

The siege lasts until v. 358. A similar mock siege is represented in Ter. Eun. 771 ff., where Thraso assisted by his lieutenant Sanga deploys his forces, consisting of three cheap soldiers, before the house of Thais in order to capture Pamphila. But there is more of contrast than of similarity in the actual management of the two scenes.

234 f. πάλιν πέπομφε: see v. 58. — τὴν χλαμύδα, τὴν σπάθην: his cloak and sword. Sosias is probably carrying, not wearing, Polemon's uniform. He had previously been sent to fetch the himation, the dress of a civilian, and now comes back with the discarded uniform. The cloak and sword were the typical parts of a soldier's dress, cf. S. 457, Antiph. 16 K., Plaut. Pseud. 735 etiam opust chlamyde et machaera et petaso, Curc. 632, Merc. 921, 926. σπάθη, lit. blade (Eur. fr. 373 N. σπάθη φασγάνου), is used in comedy for ξίφος, see Poll. 10. 145 (Men. 346 K.). — ποιεῖ: subj. Glycera. For the spelling see on H. 1. — The trisyllabic tribrach in the fourth foot (χλαμύδα) is found in Menander only here, S. 78, and three times in the fragments. White, p. 143.

236. ἀκαρῶν δέω: I'm within an ace of, an expressive variation of δλίγον δέω. The nom. ἀκαρῶν is used in agreement with the subj. when the vb. expresses an action, as Men. 835 K. ἀκαρῶν παραπόλωλας. Here we might have had ἀκαρῶν φάσκω, but with δέω the gen. is required. The doctrine of Ammonius De diff. voc. (fr. com. adesp. 581 K.) ἀκαρῶν μὲν γὰρ ἀνευ τοῦ σ σημαίνει τὸ βραχύ, . . . ἀκαρῶν δὲ σημαίνει τὸ παρὰ βραχὺ δν applies to the adjectival use. But it is possible that ἀκαρῶν came to be used even with δέω. — καταλαβεῖν: represents κατέλαβον in direct discourse.

238. εἰ μὴ γε: implies καὶ ἔφασκον δν, a common ellipsis after expressions which indicate that the act specified has not been performed, followed by the explanation of its non-performance. This ellipsis is often expressed by εἰ μὴ διὰ, cf. Lys. 12. 60 ἀπολέσαι παρεσκευάζοντο τὴν πόλιν, (and would have done so) εἰ μὴ δι' ἄνδρας ἀγαθοὺς. Here we might have had εἰ μὴ διὰ τὸ ἔλεειν αὐτόν.

239. κακοδαίμον' οὕτω: sc. δντα. — οὐδ' ἐνύπνιον: and it wasn't a dream, either, cf. Plat. Polit. 290 B ἀλλ' οὐ μὴν, οἶμαι γε, ἐνύπνιον ἰδὼν εἶπον, Plut. Mor. 1067 E ἀρετὴς δὲ μὴδ' ἐνύπνιον, Ter. Phor. 494 verum hercle hoc est. — somnia!, ibid. 874, Plaut. Amph.

- 240 ἰδὼν γὰρ οἶδ' ἐκ τῆς προτέρας ἐπιδημίας.

ΔΑΟΣ (aside)

ὁ ξένος ἀφίκεται· χαλεπὰ ταῦτα παντελῶς τὰ πράγματ' ἐστί, νῆ τὸν Ἀπόλλω τουτονί.

740 K.

καὶ τὸ κεφάλαιον οὐδέπω λογιζομαι,

sch. Ar. Pl. 35

τὸν δεσπότην, ἂν ἐξ ἀγροῦ θᾶπτον πάλιν

[445]

245 ἔλθῃ, ταραχὴν οἶαν ποήσει παραφανείς.

Polemon rushes upon the scene, coming from the country. Fearing that Glycera has left his house, he indignantly reproaches Sosias and his men for their neglect.

738 somnium narrat tibi, Aristoph. Vesp. 1218 ἐνύπνιον ἐστιώμεθα; The adverbial equivalent is διὰ, cf. v. 900.

240. πρότερας ἐπιδημίας: see notes on vv. 62, 377. Cf. Plat. Parm. 127 A ἀνεγνώρισέ τέ με ἐκ τῆς προτέρης ἐπιδημίας καὶ με ἠσπάζετο. Moschion recognizes Sosias when he sees him, v. 408. — Anapaests in two successive feet occur four times in the Cairo Menander, twice in the fourth and fifth feet; cf. also v. 278.

241. ὁ ξένος: the hireling. Sosias is so referred to by Moschion also, in v. 408. It is here intended as a contemptuous term, like τετρώβολος below (v. 260) and Lat. latro, cf. Men. 439 εὐλοιδόρητον, ὥς ἔοικε, φαίνεται τὸ τοῦ στρατιώτου σχῆμα καὶ τὸ τοῦ ξένου (referring to a particular pair, officer and man), Plaut. Bacch. 20 latronem, suam qui auro vitam venditat, Most. 354 isti qui hosticas trium nummum causa subeunt sub falas (see Headlam, Class. Rev. XII, 1898, p. 351).

242. τουτονί: pointing to the statue of Apollo Aguius which stood by the entrance of every house, cf. Aristoph.

Vesp. 875 ὦ δέσποτ' ἀναξ, γείτον ἀγνιεύ, τοῦμοῦ προθύρου προθύλαιε, Plaut. Bacch. 172 saluto te, vicine Apollo, qui aedibus propinquos nostris accolis, Men. 740 K. καὶ μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω τουτονί καὶ τὰς θύρας, and perhaps E. 735. These statues were really rude cone-shaped or square columns, probably something like the Hermæ, see schol. Aristoph. Vesp. 875 πρὸ τῶν θυρῶν ἔθος εἶχον κίονας εἰς ὅθ' ἀγγοντας ὡς ὀβελίσκους ἰδρύειν εἰς τήμην Ἀπόλλωνος Ἀγνιεύς, ad Thesm. 480 Ἀπόλλων τετράγωνος.

244. τὸν δεσπότην: left out of the construction as the sentence takes shape, τὸν δεσπότην οἶαν ταραχὴν ποήσει for οἶαν ταραχὴν ὁ δεσπότης ποήσει. The scholiast to Aristoph. Plut. 35 (τὸν δ' ὕλιν, . . . πεισόμενος εἰ χρὴ . . . εἶναι), quoting this passage (with τὸ δὲ for καὶ τὸ), construed δεσπότην as obj. of λογιζομαι, = περὶ τοῦ δεσπότην. — ἐξ ἀγροῦ: Polemon is there comforting himself in the company of his boon companions, see v. 55. — θᾶπτον: i.e. before Davus shall have had time to deal with Sosias and to settle the affairs of Moschion. — πάλιν: he was present in one of the first scenes; see v. 9.

SC. 3. DAVUS, SOSIAS, POLEMON

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ὑμεῖς δ' ἀφήκαθ', ιεροσύλα θηρία, ἀφήκατ' ἔξω τῆς θύρας τὴν ἀθλίαν;

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

ἦ περικερεῖς ὀργιζόμενος ἄλλην κόραν;
 ἦ δ' ὦχέθ' ὡς τὸν γείτον' εὐθὺς δηλαδή, [450] J⁴, quat. y, p. 10 250 τὸν μοιχόν, οἰμῶζειν φράσας ἡμῖν μακρὰ καὶ μεγάληα.

246 ff. Polemon has hurried after his emissary without waiting for his return. Jealousy, and anxious fear lest the worst construction is to be put upon the conduct of Glycera as reported by Sosias, drive him to ἀναπηδήσας τρέχειν. The care with which the poet has prepared the spectators for his coming (παραχὴν οἷαν ποήσει) suggests the dramatic importance of his arrival at this juncture. The abrupt question which he angrily puts to Sosias indicates his fear that the worst has happened.

246. ιερόσυλα: cf. E. 736, 852, 888, 910, S. 476. The neut. form is new. — θηρία: Sosias and his soldiers. The epithet in Aristoph. Vesp. 448 ὦ κάκιστον θηρίον and elsewhere.

248 ff. Sosias is not averse to exasperating his master by twitting him about his conduct and by letting him think the worst about Glycera. In v. 248, as in v. 53, the poet seems to give prominence to the incident which gave the play its title, here using the significant vb., as he used ἐπιτρέπειν in the Epitrepontes. The act of Polemon is naturally emphasized in allusions to the play, Philost. Ep. 16 ὁ τοῦ Μενάνδρου Πολέμων καλὸν μείρακιον περιέκειρεν, Luc. Dial. meretr. 8. 1 ὅστις . . . μήτε ζηλοτύπει . . . ἢ περιέκειρεν, Anth. Pal. 5. 218 τὸν σοβαρὸν Πολέμωνα, τὸν . . . κείραντα Γλυκέρας τῆς ἀλοχοῦ πλοκάμους. With ὀργιζόμενος cf. v. 43 and Philost. Ep. 16 (of Menander's Polemon) αἰχμαλωτοῦ μὲν ἐρωμένης κατετόλμησεν ὀργισθεῖς.

249. The assertion of Sosias is based upon surmise; he does not yet know positively that Glycera is still in the neighbor's house; cf. v. 265.

250. ἡμῖν: see on E. 393.

251. μάντιν: a prophet! Though Sosias speaks from conjecture he hits the truth, ἐπιτυχάνει τι. Fortunately Sosias does not hear this admission about Glycera. For the thought cf. Plaut. Cas. 356 (of the slave Chalinus) hariolum hunc habeo domi, Mil. 911 (to the slave Palaestrio) bonus vates poteras esse, nam quae sunt futura dicis. A similar thought is mockingly expressed by Euripides fr. 973 N. μάντις δ' Ἀριστος ὅστις εἰκάζει καλῶς. Of course ὁ στρατιώτης is Polemon.

252. ἐπιτυχάνει τι: he makes a lucky guess, hits the mark. Cf. E. 346. The vb. generally implies good fortune, cf. com. adesp. 110. 7 K. εἴτ' ἐπέτυχες

ΔΑΟΣ (aside)

μάντιν ὁ στρατιώτης λαμβάνει⁷

τοῦτον· ἐπιτυχάνει τι. Polemon goes to the door of his house.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

κόψω τὴν θύραν.

Exit Polemon into his house. Davus approaches Sosias.

SC. 4. DAVUS, SOSIAS

ΔΑΟΣ

ἄνθρωπε κακόδαιμον, τί βούλει; τί γὰρ ἔχεις;

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

ἐντεῦθεν εἰς τυχόν.

(Turning toward the speaker)

ἀλλὰ τίς με λοιδόρει⁷;

[455]

255 ἀποπενόησθε; πρὸς θεῶν, ἐλευθέραν⁷ἔχειν γυναῖκα πρὸς βίαν τοῦ κυρίου⁷ τολμᾶτε κατακλείσαντες;

ΔΑΟΣ

ὥς τηρούμεθα.⁷ἐπισυκοφαντεῖς, ὅστις εἶ σύ, περὶ φανῶς.⁷

γάρ, φησι, γήμας τὸ πρότερον, εὐημερῶν κατάπανσον, εἴτ' οὐκ ἐπέτυχες, κτέ., Plat. Men. 97c ὁ μὲν τὴν ἐπιστήμην ἔχων ἀεὶ ἂν ἐπιτυχάνοι.

253. τί γὰρ ἔχεις: sc. κακόν, what's the matter with you? = τί πάσχεις;

254. ἐντεῦθεν εἰς τυχόν: go to—wherever you please. — λοιδόρει: see on E. 684. — Note that the arsis and thesis of the anapaest in the third foot are separated by punctuation, the only instance in the Cairo Menander. As a rule the parts of an anapaest with word-division ∪ ∪, — are closely connected. White, p. 153.

255. Throughout this dialogue the second pers. sing. and the second pers. pl. seem to be almost interchangeable. The pl. refers to Sosias and Polemon or to Davus and Moschion, the sing. to Sosias or Davus alone. The passage from sing. to pl. is easy in slaves' conversation, for the slave can always be identified with his master. — ἐλευθέραν: cf. S. 405.

256. Cf. E. 890.

257. ὥς τηρούμεθα: cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 819 τηρούμαι δ' ὑπὸ τῶνδε. Davus sees that Sosias is trying to trap him into an admission, see v. 265.

258. ἐπισυκοφαντεῖς: cf. E. 1. The complex vb. is rare, but found in

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

πότερα νομίζετ' οὐκ ἔχειν ἡμᾶς χολήν, [460] 260 οὐδ' ἄνδρας εἶναι;

ΔΑΟΣ

μὴ μὰ Δία, τέρωβόλους.
ὅταν δ' ὁ τετράδραχμος τοιοῦτους λαμβάνῃ ἢ ῥαδίως μαχοῦμεθ' ὑμῖν.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

ἄνοσίου πράγματος.

Hyper. fr. 243 Bl. and Plut. Vit. Anton. 21. 4.

259. πότερα: sometimes introduces a simple question. See Jebb on Soph. O.C. 333. — οὐκ ἔχειν χολήν: cf. Aristoph. Lys. 464 πότερον ἐπὶ δούλας τινὰς ἦκειν ἐνόμισας, ἢ γυναῖξιν οὐκ οἶε χολήν ἐνεῖναι; Eubul. 61 K. οὐκ ᾔφον σύ με χολήν ἔχειν, Archil. 131 B. χολήν γὰρ οὐχ ἔχεις ἐφ' ἧπατι (Wilamowitz), Dem. 25. 27 οὐδεὶς ὑμῶν χολήν οὐδ' ὀργήν ἔχων εὐρεθήσεται, proverb ap. schol. Aristoph. Av. 82 ἔστι κὰν μύρμηκι κὰν σέρφῳ χολή, Men. 31 K.

260. ἄνδρας: cf. Ter. Eun. 785 quod tibi nunc vir videatur esse hic, nebulo magnus est. — μὴ μὰ Δία: an emphatic rejection of the idea, Men? God forbid! The ellipsis is especially common after the deprecating μή μοι, often accompanied by an oath, e.g. Pher. 67 K. ἰδοῦ . . . φακοί. — μή μοι "φάκους," μὰ τὸν Δία, Aristoph. Vesp. 1179 μή μοι γε μύθους. In prose ἀλλά would have been used to introduce the alternative τερωβόλους. — τερωβόλους: cf. v. 273. Four-oboler could be used as a term of reproach because four obols was the usual pay of an ordinary mercenary soldier at this time; see on v. 261. Pausanias (apud Eust.

1475. 29) speaks of the soldier's life as τερωβόλου βίος. Cf. Luc. Ep. Sat. 21 ἐμὲ δὲ . . . ὄνειροπωλεῖν, εἰ ποθεν ὀβολοὶ τέτταρες γένοιντο. τριώβολον is the term for a petty sum ("thruppence") in comedy, cf. Nicoph. 12 K. οὐκ ἄξιος τριωβόλου, Plaut. Poen. 381 non ego homo trioboli sum, nisi ego, etc.

261. ὁ τετράδραχμος: Polemon, the brigadier, cf. v. 174. Davus does not consider a "four-oboler" a worthy foe. τετράδραχμος is not intended, however, as a complimentary epithet. Polemon as well as Sosias was a μισθοφόρος. Cf. Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 5 ὡς βρεφυλλοὺς ταῦτα, ὧ μισθοφόρε, ἡμῖν λέγεις; For the adj. used as noun cf. Arr. Anab. 7. 23. 8 δεκαστάτηρος. In Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 5 the soldier-lover Polemon, who is modeled upon the character in this play, is mocked as being a διμοιρίτης, explained by schol. Men. Colax 28 (Ox. Pap. III, 409) as ὁ διπλοῦν λαμβάνων τῶν στρατιωτῶν μισθόν. — τοιοῦτους: pointing to Sosias and his miserable peltasts (v. 272).

262. ἢ ῥαδίως: right gladly. ἢ is strongly asseverative (= ἀληθῶς, ὄντως Hesych.), cf. Eup. 356 K. ἢ πολλὰ γ' ἐν μακρῷ χρόνῳ γίγνεται, Plat. Gorg. 447 c ἢ καλῶς λέγεις.

ΔΑΟΣ

ἔς ὀλεθρον ἐλθέ — τοῦτο δ' εἰπά σοι — ἐς ὀλεθρον ἐλθ', ἀνδρῶν γελοίων οἰκέτα· [465] 265 οὐ λήψεται αὐτήν.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

ἄρσ γ' ὁμολογεῖτ' ἔχειν;

ΔΑΟΣ

οὐκ ἴσθ' ὅτ' ἐπόησ' — εὖ γε μέμνημαί — τινὰς ὑμῶν —

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

πόθεν ἡμᾶς; πρὸς τίν' οἶεσθ', εἰπέ μοι, παίζεις; παραληρεῖς. κατὰ κράτος τὸ δυστυχές

263 f. ἀνοσίου πράγματος: for the gen. of exclamation see on E. 154. ἀνόσιος again in v. 601. — ἐς ὀλεθρον: see on v. 202 and E. 398. — τοῦτο δ' εἰπά σοι: interjected to make the curse more pointed, cf. v. 347. On the aor. referring to the immediate past and practically equivalent to the pres. cf. Eur. Suppl. 1213 σοὶ μὲν τὰ δ' εἶπον, Cycl. 101 χαίρειν προσεῖπα πρῶτα τὸν γεραίτατον, and see Blaydes on Aristoph. Eccl. 255 τοῦτ' ἔμην. — εἰπα: the first pers. of this first aor. is rare in Attic prose but occurs more often in comedy, viz. in v. 198 above and in Alex. 2. 3 K., Philem. 145, Athenio 1. 38, and Euang. 1. 1.

265. It is assumed in the restored text that Davus inadvertently admits that Glycera is within, — an admission that Sosias is prompt to seize upon.

266. We can only guess at what Davus said, but the reply of Sosias shows that it was insulting. If the sentence was not completed a gesture may have conveyed the thought of Davus. — οὐκ ἴσθ' ὅτε: don't you recall the time when? See van Leeuwen on Aristoph. Av. 1054 μέμνησ' ὅτε τῆς στήλης κατετίλας ἐσπέρας; — εὖ γε μέμνημαι: cf. Plat. Tim. 21 c ὁ δὲ γέρον — σφόδρα γὰρ οὖν μέμνημαι — εἶπεν.

267. πόθεν ἡμᾶς: us? Nonsense! ἡμᾶς takes up the ὑμῶν of Davus, the quoted word being drawn into the constr., as often. For examples from Aristophanes and Euripides of this use of πόθεν in indignant or scornful retort see Starkie on Aristoph. Vesp. 1145, and cf. note on S. 109 (τί). So ποῖ in Aristoph. Lys. 383 μὴν θερμὸν ἦν; — ποῖ "θερμὸν;"

268. παραληρεῖς: you talk like a fool, cf. Aristoph. Ran. 694 εἰ δὲ παραληρῶν ἀλώσει κάκβαλεῖς τι μαλθακόν (schol. οὐδὲν πλέον τοῦ "ληρῶν"), Eq. 531 αὐτὸν (Cratinus) ὀρώντες παραληροῦντ' οὐκ ἐλεεῖτε (schol. διαποροῦντα καὶ ἀσχημονοῦντα). The word is used several times by Plato as practically the equivalent of ληρεῖν, e.g. Theaet. 169 A ἐγὼ ἄρτι παρελήρησα φάσκων. The effect of παρα- is the same as in παραφρονεῖν, παρανοεῖν, παραμαίνεσθαι, παράκοπος, etc.

οἰκίδιον τοῦτ' αὐτίκ' ἐξαιρήσομεν.

[470]

270 ὅπλιζε τὸν μοιχόν.

ΔΑΟΣ

πονηρόν, ἄθλιε,

ὥσπερ παρ' ἡμῖν οὔσαν εἰς θρηναῖς πάλαι.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

οἱ παῖδες οἱ τὰ πέλτ' ἔχοντες πρὶν πτύσαι διαρπάσσονται πάντα, κἂν "τετρωβόλους" καλῆς.

ΔΑΟΣ

ἐπαιζον· εἰ σκατοφάγος.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

οἱ πόλιν

[475]

275 οἰκοῦντες οὐ καλῶς ἐπεριττοί·

(With a threatening gesture)

λήψομαι σάρκ'.

269. οἰκίδιον: the second syllable is sometimes lengthened, as in χρυσίδιον and similar words (Phot.).—ἐξαιρήσομεν: cf. Ter. Eun. 772 primum aedis expugnabo.

270. πονηρόν: sc. ἐστί, cf. II. 17.

271. ὥσπερ, κτέ.: Davus again tries to make Sosias believe that Glycera is not in Myrrhina's house.—εἰ θρηναῖς πάλαι: if all this time you've been whining about, cf. Soph. El. 530 (Clytemnestra to Electra) πατήρ οὗτος σός, ὃν θρηναῖς ἀέλ.

272. πρὶν πτύσαι: of an act quickly performed, cf. Epicr. 220 K. ἰδεῖν μὲν αὐτήν (Lais) θάπτον ἐστιν ἢ (Herw. for καὶ) πτύσαι, Theocr. 29. 27 γηραλέοι πέλομεν πρὶν ἀποπτύσαι, schol. Aristoph. Plut. 739 (on πρὶν σε κοτύλας ἐκπιεῖν οἶνον δέκα) ὡς εἰ ἔλεγε "πρὶν εἰπεῖν σε πέντε λόγους" ἢ "πρὶν πτύσαι" (Headlam).

274. Davus withdraws the epithet τετρωβόλος which he had applied in v. 260 and substitutes for it the more insulting σκατοφάγος, which has come to mean little more than ἀκάθαρτος (Phot., quoting Men. 825 K.), impurus. It was originally an epithet of swine, cf. Antiph. 126 K. Cf. Aristoph. Plut. 705 λέγεις ἀγροικὸν ἄρα σύ γ' εἶναι τὸν θεόν.—μὰ Δι' οὐκ ἔγωγ', ἀλλὰ σκατοφάγος, where ἀγροικός suggests σκατοφάγος. In Plaut. Mil. 90 the epithet stercoreus is applied to the soldier.—οἱ πόλιν οἰκοῦντες: suggested by the epithet, by which Sosias was implicitly classed with the ἀγροικοί. Cf. Men. 97 K. εἰμὶ μὲν ἀγροικός, ... καὶ τῶν κατ' ἄστυ πραγμάτων οὐ παντελῶς ἔμπερος, Alcaeus 26 K. νῦν οὐ γένοιτ' ἀστεῖος οἰκῶν ἐν πόλει.

275. περιττοί: sc. ἐστέ. You city people have no business to be fastidious, ἀλλ' ἄπαγ' ἐς κόρακας. τέως εἵσειμ' ἐγώ, ἔως ἔοικεν ἀνδροφάγειν ὁ Σώσιος.

ΔΑΟΣ

Exit Davus into the house of Pataecus. Sosias continues to stand guard. Polemon comes from his house, having failed to find Glycera, and soliloquizes.

Sc. 5. SOSIAS, POLEMON

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

σὲ μένει, προέρῳ σοι, Δωρί, μέγ' ἐκτεῖσθαι κακόν.
φήσω· σὺ τούτων γέγονας αἰτιωτάτη.

[480]

i.e. about your eating. The countryman was notoriously gross, cf. Theoph. Char. 4. 9 δεινὸς φαγεῖν. περιττός naturally reaches this meaning through its development from "odd," "superior," to "haughty," "particular," "dainty." Hippolytus is spoken of as περισσὸς καὶ φρονῶν μέγα, Eur. Hipp. 445. There is a similar implication in Plaut. Men. 169 lepide ut fastidis, and in Ter. Heaut. 1063 heia, ut elegans est. Perhaps the adj. to be restored is μεγαροὶ envious; see Crit. Ap.

276. σάρκα: i.e. he will be a meat-eater. With these words Sosias may have made a rush at Davus as if to eat him alive.—Anapaests in successive feet are found in twelve instances in the Cairo MS., counting that in v. 278.

277. ἔως, κτέ.: so long as Sosias appears to be a man-eater.—ἀνδροφάγειν: cf. Herod. 4. 106 ἀνδροφάγεσσι δὲ μοῦνοι τούτων, of the Androphagi. ἀνδροφάγος is an epithet of the Cyclops in Hom. Il. 10. 200.

278 ff. A similar situation, in which the speaker in a soliloquy carries on an imaginary conversation with another, occurs in E. 850 ff. Polemon has searched his house and failed to find Glycera. He can only conjecture where she has gone. He has not found Doris, either, who is with her mistress. He feels especially incensed against Doris, for if she had been loyal to his interests Glycera, as he thinks, would not have left him. As in the Epitrepontes, we are introduced into the midst of a conversation in progress.

278. σὲ μένει, κτέ.: it's in store for you, I'll tell you in advance, Doris, to give me full satisfaction for this. Both the vb. and the tone of the speaker suggest that something bad awaits her, cf. Aesch. Ag. 1277, where Cassandra says ἐπίξηνον μένει (με), Soph. Aj. 641 οἶαν σε μένει πυθέσθαι . . . ἄταν, Eur. Troad. 431 οὐκ οἶδ' οἷά νιν μένει πάθη, and many passages in which a destiny or punishment is spoken of. προειπεῖν also carries an implication of warning or penalty, e.g. Aristoph. Pac. 371 ἄρ' οἶσθα θάνατον δτι προείφ' ὁ Ζεὺς;—ἐκτεῖσθαι κακόν = δοῦναι (μοι) κακόν, cf. Men. 747 ἀνθρωπον . . . κακόν τί σοι δώσοντα, Antiph. 211 K. κακόν τί μοι δώσει μέγα. Observe that μέγα τί σοι κακόν | δώσω, which has been proposed here, could not mean "I'll inflict heavy punishment upon you."—For the meter cf. S. 466.

279 ff. From σὺ τούτων on we have the speech which Polemon proposes to

- 280 ὣτως ὄναι, λέγε, τί πρὸς γυναῖκά ποι
 "δείσασα καταπέφενγε; "πρὸς γυναῖκά ποι
 "δείσασα;" καὶ γὰρ οἶχεθ' ὡς τὴν Μυρρίνην τὴν γείτον', ὣτως μοι γένοιθ' ἅ βούλομαι.
 ἔμ' ἔλιπεν, οἶχεθ' οὐ τὸ μέλημ' ἔστ', ἐνθάδε. [485] 285 τί μῆν ἔμ' αἰσχύνειν σὺ βούλει παντελῶς; ἀποφθερεῖ, γύναι; δόλῳσ' εὐδηλὸς εἶ—

[Lacuna of ca. 57 verses to the first Leipzig fragment.]

After his soliloquy and a brief conversation with Sosias, in which their further military operations are planned, Polemon and Sosias are joined by Pataecus and Habrotonon.

SC. 6. SOSIAS, POLEMON, PATAECUS, HABROTONON

Pataecus is a friend of both parties and is convinced that the quarrel is due to a misunderstanding, not to disloyalty on the part of Glycera. He has understood from the women that Glycera has fled because of Polemon's treatment of her (v. 389). He advises Polemon to abandon hostile measures and to try to win Glycera back by gentler means.

In introducing his mission Pataecus probably touches upon the value of having a friend in time of trouble. The following quotation may be from Polemon's reply:

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

οὕτω ποθεινόν ἐστὶν ὁμότροπος φίλος.

391 K.

make to Doris when he sees her, interrupted by the supposed question of Doris in v. 281.

280. ὣτως ὄναι: as you hope to be saved. Something like ἀγαθὸν is to be supplied in thought, cf. Dem. 28. 20 (ικετεύω) πρὸς τῶν θυγῶν ἀγαθῶν ὑμῖν. οὕτως ὄναισε τοῦτων. For such formulae see on E. 47. — τί = διὰ τί, why? — ποί: adds indefiniteness to the idea expressed in the pred., "has she taken refuge with a woman somewhere," about equivalent to πρὸς γυναῖκα τινα, cf. Soph. Trach. 304 ὦ Ζεῦ τροπαῖε, μή ποτ' εἰσίδοιμί σε πρὸς τοῦμόν οὕτω σπέρμα χωρήσαντά ποι.

281. δείσασα: Polemon may have heard that Glycera has expressed fear of him. Fear is the motive she gave Myrrhina for leaving him, cf. v. 200. — πρὸς, κτέ.: he imagines that Doris repeats his words with feigned surprise.

282. καὶ γάρ, κτέ.: yes, to a woman, for, etc.

283. Polemon has no certain knowledge yet as to where she has gone, as his very protestation shows.

284. ἔμ' ἔλιπεν: cf. v. 383. — τὸ μέλημα: her darling. In his bitterness Polemon chooses an endearing term. — ἐνθάδε: pointing to Myrrhina's house.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

ἐκεῖθεν ἦκει χρήματ' εἰληφώς, ἐμοὶ 345 πίστευε· προδίδωσίν σε καὶ τὸ στρατόπεδον.

Lp. va

286. ἀποφθερεῖ: will you perish from my sight? Cf. v. 403, S. 161, E. 308, and Aristoph. Eq. 802 οὐκ ἐς κόρακας ἀποφθερεῖ; Nub. 789.

Fr. 391. ποθεινόν: welcome.—ὁμότροπος: and therefore sympathetic. From the words of Pataecus to Polemon in this connection may come the two passages from Menander which Stobaeus quotes, without mention of the play, under the topic περὶ ὀργῆς, viz. 630 K. οὐκ ἔστιν ὀργῆς, ὡς ἔοικε, φάρμακον | ἀλλ' ἢ λόγος σπουδαῖος ἀνθρώπου φίλου, and 574 εἰ καὶ σφόδρ' ἀλγείς, μηδὲν ἡρεθισμένος | πράξις προπετῶς· ὀργῆς γὰρ ἀλογίστου κρατεῖν | ἐν ταῖς ταραχαῖς μάλιστα τὸν φρονούντα δεῖ. At the end of the play (v. 898) Pataecus again warns Polemon against acting rashly (προπετές μηδὲ ἔν). Consistent in tone and thought with the above is fr. 591, which may be from the same context, τῷ μὲν τὸ σῶμα διατεθειμένῳ κακῶς | χρεῖα 'στ' ἱατροῦ, τῷ δὲ τὴν ψυχὴν φίλου· | λύπην γὰρ εὖνους οἶδε θεραπεύειν λόγος.

344 ff. It is noticeable that four persons are present and participate in this scene, as in the final scene of the play (vv. 907 ff.). Elsewhere in these plays an analysis of the action makes it seem probable that more than three actors were used to fill the rôles, but only here and in the final scene are more than three engaged at the same time. A few four-actor scenes occur in the Old Comedy, e.g. Aristoph. Ran. 1414 ff., Av. 1579 ff., and there is evidence of the use of four or more actors in many of the classical tragedies and comedies. There seems to have been no restriction placed upon the poet as regards the number of actors he should employ, in spite of the persistent tradition to the contrary; see Rees, The So-called Rule of Three Actors in the Classical Greek Drama.

The distribution of speakers here adopted is based upon the following considerations, briefly stated: Pataecus has the rôle of mediator; he desires to break up the siege and have a quiet talk with Polemon. To him, therefore, are assigned vv. 346 ff. and εἰσω . . . ἄγει vv. 353 f. Sosias, obviously the speaker of vv. 344 f., is eager to continue the siege; he resents the interference of Pataecus but has to submit to the authority of Polemon. To him, therefore, are given, besides ἦττον . . . μέλλον vv. 348 ff., also vv. 351 b, 355 f., and 357 b. The words εἰ λέγεις in v. 350 can hardly indicate approval of the speech of Sosias; they must refer rather to the proposal of Pataecus in v. 346. We must assume, accordingly, that Polemon intervenes, speaking vv. 350 b, 351 a, and 352. οὐτοσί . . . ἐξόλλυσιν v. 356 f. may appropriately be given to Polemon if punctuated as a question. V. 358 a is assigned to Habrotonon, since vv. 359 ff. imply that she has taken some part in inducing Sosias to withdraw. On vv. 353 a and 359 ff., see below.

344. ἐκεῖθεν: i.e. from the enemy's house, where Glycera and Moschion are.—ἦκει: subj. Pataecus, who has come as an intermediary.—χρήματ' εἰληφώς:

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ (to Sosias)

κάθεινδ' ἀπελθών, ὦ μακάριε, τὰς μάχας ταύτας ἐάσας. ὄυχ ὑγιαίνεις — σοὶ λαλῶ — ἢ τόν, μεθύεις γάρ.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ (in amazement)

ἦττον ὅς πέπωκ' ἴσως [5] κοτύλης, ἢ προειδὼς πάντα ταῦθ', ὁ δυστυχής, ἅο τηρῶν τ' ἐμαυτὸν εἰς τὸ μέλλον;

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ (to Pataecus, aside)

εὖ λέγεις.

(To Sosias)

ἢ πείσθητί μοι.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ (in a tone of submission)

τί δ' ἐστὶν ὃ κελεύεις ἐμοί;

cf. Dem. 19. 209 καὶ χρήματ' εἰληφέναι φῆσιν ἐμέ, αὐτὸς εἰληφώς ἢ μετειληφώς.

345. It is clear from the charge of Sosias that Pataecus has made a proposal to Polemon that he shall withdraw his forces from before the house; this is the act of "treason." Sosias, puffed up with his own importance and half drunk, cuts a ridiculous figure. Gnatho in Ter. Eun. 814 also refers to the manipulus furum as an exercitum.

346. μακάριε: the tone is conciliatory, my good fellow. The word implies, perhaps, a certain degree of familiarity, but not more than is appropriate on the part of a superior when speaking to a drunken inferior.

348. ἢ τόν: on my word. The name of the god is omitted, as often in the negative formula, e.g. Aristoph. Ran. 1374 μὰ τόν, Men. 369 K. οὐ μὰ τήν. We have ancient testimony (Suid., Phot., Eust.) to this ellipsis with both adverbs, see esp. Philo De spec. legg. 2. 1. 4 Cohn (Körte). The explicit and emphatic language of Pataecus shows that Sosias is amazed and incredulous at the charge οὐχ ὑγιαίνεις. — ὅς: i.e. ἐγὼ μεθύω, ὅς, κτέ.;

349. πάντα ταῦτα: all these contingencies that have arisen and the consequent responsibilities that would devolve upon him as the lieutenant of Polemon.

350. τηρῶν, κτέ.: i.e. keeping himself sober for the emergency. — εὖ λέγεις: Polemon speaks with approval of Pataecus' advice to Sosias.

351. ἐμοί: the const. of κελεύειν with the dat. is rarely found in Attic, viz. Thuc. 8. 38. 4, where it may be due to epic influence, and Plat. Rep. 396 A, where it is thought to represent the language of sailors. It is found, however, in later prose, and may have been used

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ὀρθῶς ἐρωτᾷς· νῦν ἐγὼ δὴ σοί γ' ἐρῶ· (Turning to Habrotonon) Ἀβρότονον, ἐπισήμηνον.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ (to Polemon)

εἴσω τουτονὶ

[10]

πρῶτον ἀπόπεμψον τοὺς τε παῖδας οὓς ἄγει.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ (to Pataecus)

355 κακῶς διοικεῖς τὸν πόλεμον. (To Polemon) διαλύεται, δέον λαβεῖν κατὰ κράτος.

here purposely to characterize Sosias; but ἐμέ is an easy correction.

352. ἐγὼ δὴ σοί γε: you shall certainly have an answer from me. The combination of words is striking and indicates that something unexpected is to follow. He will give the word of command through Habrotonon.

353 ff. The rôle of Habrotonon in this scene was undoubtedly explained at the time of her entrance and by her conduct at that time, but from the scanty indications which are preserved it is difficult to make out. It seems clear, however, from the manner in which Polemon addresses her in vv. 359 ff., that she is not his mistress, as we might assume on the analogy of her namesake in the Epitrepontes; it is equally clear, moreover, that Polemon expected her to exercise some influence upon Sosias. It is possible that she has strolled upon the scene and has been engaged in a flirtation with the tipsy Sosias.

353. ἐπισήμηνον: give the signal or command. The vb. is used in this meaning of the trumpeter, who communicates the commander's signal, of the deity, who gives a sign or omen, or of persons or inanimate objects, which give indications or symptoms of some sort. Polemon's reason for appealing to Habrotonon is apparently that given below, "I thought you would accomplish something." Habrotonon probably complies by making appropriate gestures to Sosias. The vb. occurs in Men. 501 and 1011 K.—εἴσω: into Polemon's house. Pataecus interrupts, wishing to make sure that he and Polemon are left alone.—τουτονὶ: Sosias.

354. παῖδας: the peltasts of v. 272.

355. διαλύεται: he's for disbanding. The vb. is used both of "disbanding" an army and of "making up" a quarrel. Since the preceding command is to withdraw the army, the former interpretation is to be preferred. Cf. Ter. Eun. 814 iam dimitto exercitum? Sosias protests against disbanding, when the right procedure would be to capture by assault the enemy's stronghold. The obj. of λαβεῖν is readily understood; cf. the words of Sosias in vv. 268 ff.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

οὔτοσί με γάρ,

ὁ Πάταικος, ἐξόλλυσιν;

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

οὐκ ἔσθ' ἡγεμών. E², quat. γ, p. 13

ΑΒΡΟΤΟΝΟΝ (coaxingly)

πρὸς τῶν θεῶν, ἄνθρωπ', ἄπελθ'.

ΣΩΣΙΑΣ

ἄπέρχομαι.

Exit Sosias into the house, followed by his army.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ᾧμην σε ποιήσῃν τι· καὶ γάρ, Ἀβρότονον, 360 ἔχεις τι πρὸς πολιορκίαν σὺ χρήσιμον, δύνασαι τ' ἀναβαίνειν, περικαθῆσθαι, — ποῖ στρέφει, [75]
 λαικάστρι; ἡσχύνθης; μέλει τούτων τί σοι;

Habrotonon, offended, departs.

356 f. οὔτοσί, κτέ.: what, is it this man, Pataecus, that's proving the death of me? The suggestion of course is that it's Sosias himself. The vb. conveys the double idea of ruining one's cause and boring one to death. For the latter cf. Aristoph. Pac. 319 ἐξολεῖτέ μ', ὦνδρες, εἰ μὴ τῆς βοῆς ἀνήσετε.

357. ἐξόλλυσιν: -θεί in E. 220. — οὐκ ἔσθ' ἡγεμών: and should therefore not give orders, as he has presumed to do. ἡγεμών glances at the profession of Polemon; it is the technical term for captain of mercenaries.

358. ἄνθρωπε: cf. E. 220. We may assume that Habrotonon speaks these words kindly, and not roughly, to the drunken man. Though Sosias had been sulky to Polemon, he yields at once to Habrotonon. If the command is spoken by Polemon, it is peremptory and final.

359 ff. These vv. are manifestly spoken by the speaker of v. 353a, and, since Pataecus speaks vv. 363 ff., they must be given to either Polemon or Sosias. But Sosias is just quitting the scene; the charms of Habrotonon have proved more effective with him than the advice of Pataecus. It is not likely that he would insult her. Both passages, however, suit Polemon's mood. The idea of using Habrotonon to get rid of Sosias occurs to him in v. 353, and he now finds his judgment confirmed (ᾧμην σε ποιήσῃν τι). His taunts at the poor girl are in bad taste, but irritability characterizes his present mood; cf. the following scene.

361. The siege terms are used with double meanings. — ἀναβαίνειν: cf. Men. 562 K. ἐπὶ κλίμακα πρὸς τεῖχος ἀναβαίνων. — περικαθῆσθαι: cf. Herod. 5. 126 ὁ

SC. 7. POLEMON, PATAECUS

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

εἰ μὲν τι τοιοῦτ' ἦν, Πολέμων, οἶόν φατε ὕμεις, τὸ γεγονός, καὶ γαμετὴν γυναικὰ σου —

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

365 οἶον λέγεις, Πάταικε διαφέρει δὲ τί;
ἐγὼ γαμετὴν νενόμικα ταύτην.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

μὴ βόα.

[80]

τίς ἐσθ' ὁ δούς;

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ἐμοὶ τίς; αὐτή.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

πάνυ καλῶς.

ἤρεσκες αὐτῇ τάχα ἑτέρως, νῦν δ' οὐκέτι, στρατὸς αὐτοῦ, πόλιν περικατήμενος. The rough and insulting language is calculated to drive Habrotonon away. She was probably turning to go with Sosias.

364. ὕμεις: those on your side. We can see that Polemon has been giving Pataecus his version of the affair. At the present time Pataecus must believe that Glycera has compromised herself with Moschion, but urges the argument that, since she is not legally Polemon's wife, Polemon can neither force her to return to him nor take summary vengeance upon Moschion as μοιχός.

366. Just as Clinia in Ter. Heaut. 104 regarded Antiphila as amicam prope iam in uxoris loco.

367. ὁ δούς: the person who gave the bride away, cf. Poseid. 26. 20 K. ὁ διδούς ἐπιφανής, ἐπιφανής ὁ λαμβάνων. The κύριος alone could legally bestow a girl in marriage. Since Glycera gave herself away, neither party was bound to the union, a fact which the old woman clearly recognized (v. 24 βέβαιον οὐθέν). There is no real contradiction between Polemon's statement and that of Agnoia in v. 10. Cf. the question which Micio puts to Aeschinus in Ter. Ad. 670 quis despondit? quis dedit? . . . auctor (κύριος) his rebus quis est? — the questions implying a doubt as to the legality of Pamphila's connection with him.

The knowledge which Pataecus here incidentally acquires about the antecedents of Glycera plays a part in the further development of the plot. Obviously a girl who had no legal guardian (v. 374) was of doubtful parentage.

368. τέως: concessive, = τέως μὲν, cf. Aristoph. Thesm. 449 τέως μὲν οὖν . . . νῦν δέ.

ἀπελήλυθεν δ' οὐ κατὰ τρόπον σου χρωμένον 370 αὐτῇ.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

τί φής; οὐ κατὰ τρόπον; τουτί με τῶν πάντων λελύπηκας μάλιστ' εἰπών.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

τοῦτ' οἶδ' ἀκριβῶς, ὥς ὁ μὲν νυνὶ ποεῖς ἀπόπληκτόν ἐστι. ποῖ φέρει γάρ, ἢ τίνα ἄξων; ἑαυτῆς ἐστ' ἐκείνη κυρία.
375 λοιπὸν τὸ πείθειν τῷ κακῶς διακειμένῳ ἐρῶντί τ' ἐστίν.

Lp. 7β = E², l. 18

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ὁ δὲ διεφθαρκῶς ἐμοῦ ἄποντος αὐτὴν οὐκ ἀδικεῖ μ';

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ὥστ' ἐγκαλεῖν
ἀδικεῖ σ' ἐκείνος, ἂν ποτ' ἔλθῃς εἰς λόγους.

369. οὐ κατὰ τρόπον: in unseemly fashion.

370. Polemon is hurt that Pataecus should remind him of his disgraceful act of violence. — Note that the v. ends with the art., as also, apparently, v. 172.

373. ἀπόπληκτον: crazy, cf. Dem.

34. 16 μὴ γὰρ οἰσθέ με οὕτως ἀπόπληκτον εἶναι καὶ παντελῶς μαινόμενον, id. 21. 143 οὐχ οὕτως εἰμ' ἄφρων οὐδ' ἀπόπληκτος ἐγώ, E. 344. — φέρει: the vb. suggests a lack of purpose or volition on the part of the subject, cf. the admonition of Socrates in Plat. Cleit. 407 A ποῖ φέρεσθε, ὠνθρωποι, and φερόμενος in E. 304.

374. ἄξων: supplementary partic. with φέρει understood, to capture whom?

376. ἐρῶντί τε: makes explicit the preceding partic., that is, the (unhappy) lover. — διεφθαρκῶς: Menander uses also the second perf. διεφθορώς (fr. 3 K.), which Attic writers prefer for the trans. meaning, though the first perf. is found occasionally. Euripides in the Medea uses the first perf. in v. 226, the second in v. 349, both transitively.

377. ἄποντος: see on vv. 37, 62, 249. — ὥστε, κτέ.: accompanied by an affirmative gesture. In prose we should have ἐγκαλεῖν μὲν to indicate the limitation; cf. v. 368.

379. ἐκβιάσει: sc. αὐτήν, take her from him by force, cf. the pass. in Soph. Phil. 1128 ὃ τῶρον φίλον, ὃ φίλων χειρῶν ἐκβεβιασμένον. — ἔχει: involves, admits of.

εἰ δ' ἐκβιάσει, δίκην ὀφλήσεις· οὐκ ἔχει 380 τιμωρίαν γὰρ τὰδίκημ', ἔγκλημα δέ.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

οὐδ' ἄρα νῦν — ;

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

οὐδ' ἄρα νῦν.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

οὐκ οἶδ' ὃ τι

[95]

λέγω, μὰ τὴν Δήμητρα, πλὴν ἀπάγχομαι.
Γλυκέρα με καταλέλοιπε, καταλέλοιπέ με
Γλυκέρα, Πάταικ'. ἀλλ' εἴπερ οὕτω σοι δοκεῖ 385 πράττειν, — συνήθης ἦσθα γὰρ καὶ πολλάκις λελάληκας αὐτῇ, — πρότερον ἐλθὼν διαλέγου· πρέσβευσον, ἱκετεύω σε.

[100]

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ (starts to go)

τοῦτό μοι δοκεῖ,

ὄρῳ, ποεῖν.

380. τιμωρίαν: private vengeance. — ἔγκλημα: a legal complaint, made before witnesses, preliminary to a suit, which in this case would be a γραφὴ μοιχείας against Moschion. In Attic law τιμωρία was permitted in such a case, though probably only when the offender was caught in the act. A law quoted in Dem. 23. 53 (cited by Körte) gives the cases in which one was permitted to kill without being liable to prosecution for murder. One of them is ἐάν τις ἀποκτείνῃ . . . ἐπὶ παλλακῇ ἣν ἀν' ἐπ' ἐλευθέροις παισὶν ἔχῃ. Though the Attic law was not operative in Polemon's case—for he is a Corinthian and the action of the play is laid in Corinth—yet the law of Corinth was probably essentially the same as that of Athens. See on v. 895.

381. οὐδ' ἄρα νῦν: and may I then not now — ? He was about to ask ἔξεστί μοι τιμωρῆσθαι αὐτόν; when Pataecus interrupted him by repeating his words in a tone of positive assertion. ἄρα is for ἀρα metri causa, as often in the poets; see Sachtschal De com. Gr. serm. metro accom., p. 10.

382. πλὴν: cf. E. 266.—ἀπάγχομαι: cf. v. 857.

385. ἦσθα: as next-door neighbor of Glycera Pataecus had become well acquainted with her during Polemon's absence. This he has doubtless explained to Polemon in the early part of the scene.

388. ὄρῳ: cf. ὡς ὄρῳ v. 190. As he says this he turns to go, but Polemon detains him. ἰδοῖ is more often used to indicate compliance with a request.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ (detains him)

δύνασαι δὲ δῆπουθεν λέγειν,

Πάταικε;

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

μετρίως.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ἀλλὰ μήν. Πάταικε, δέι.

390 αὐτῇ ὅτιν ἡ σωτηρία τοῦ πράγματος.

ἐγὼ γὰρ εἴ τι πάποτ' ἡδέκτηχ' ὅλως —

[106]

εἰ μὴ διατελῶ πάντα φιλοτιμούμενος —

E⁴. quat. γ, p. 14

τὸν κόσμον αὐτῆς εἰ θεωρήσαιοις —

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

καλῶς ἔχει.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

θεώρησον, Πάταικε, πρὸς θεῶν.

396 μᾶλλον μ' ἐλεήσεις.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ (aside)

ὦ Πόσειδόν.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

δεῦρ' ἴθι.

ἐνδύμαθ' οἷ', οἷα δὲ φαίνεθ' ἡνίκ' ἄν

[110]

389. μετρίως: cf. E. 19 μετρίω γε . . . ῥήτορι.

390. Cf. E. 201.

391 ff. Polemon is so agitated, in urging his merits as a husband before his ambassador, that he cannot complete his sentences.

392. πάντα φιλοτιμούμενος: in all things zealous toward her, cf. Xen. Oec. 4. 24 αἰεὶ ἐν γέ τι φιλοτιμούμενος.

393. As an illustration of his devotion to Glycera Polemon thinks of the finery he has given her. — καλῶς ἔχει: Pataecus does not care to inspect Glycera's wardrobe and tries to decline politely; but Polemon will not let him off. For the polite phrase of refusal cf. Antiph. 165 K. βούλει . . . πινεῖν: — καλῶς ἔχει μοι, Theocr. 15. 3 ἐμβαλε καὶ ποτίκρανον. — ἔχει κάλλιστα, Aristoph. Ran. 508 κάλλιστ', ἐταυρῶ, Hor. Ep. 1. 7. 16 quantum vis tolle. — benigne.

396. ἐνδύματα: elsewhere only in late writers. — οἷα δὲ φαίνεται: Polemon's thoughts pass from Glycera's finery to her person. The poignancy of his grief seeks to find expression in the representation to his friend of the charms of the woman he has lost.

λάβη τι τούτων· οὐ γὰρ ἐοράκεις ἴσως.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἔγωγε.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

καὶ γὰρ τὸ μέγεθος δῆπουθεν ἦν ἄξιον ἰδεῖν. ἀλλὰ τί φέρω νῦν εἰς μέσον 400 τὸ μέγεθος, ἐμβρόντητος, ὑπὲρ ἄλλων λαλῶν;

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ (reassuringly)

μὰ τὸν Δί', οὐδέν.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

οὐ γάρ; ἀλλὰ δεῖ γέ σε

[115]

ἰδεῖν· βάδιζε δεῦρο.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

πάραγ', εἰσέρχομαι.

Polemon leads the way into his house, Pataecus following. Moschion appears at the door of the house of Pataecus. He looks about anxiously for the enemy. When he sees Polemon entering the other house with Pataecus, and none of the army present, he comes out of the house, reassured.

397. λάβη: puls on, a proper aor. of ἔχειν, which is common in the sense of "wear." ἀναλαβεῖν is similarly used, e.g. in Plutarch and Lucian. — ἐοράκεις: ἔωρ-, the reading of C and of L second hand, would give an undesirable anapaest beginning with γάρ. Some scholars regard ἐοράκειν (-κη) as the correct Attic spelling of the plpf., and the short vowel in the pf. is in fact required by the meter in many passages.

398. καὶ γάρ, κτέ.: why, just the magnificence of them was, I dare say, etc. τὸ μέγεθος and τὸ μεγάλειον were employed by writers on aesthetics in the meaning of "grandeur," "majesty," "sublimity," e.g. of style by Longinus 12.4. Cf. Acts 2.11 τὰ μεγαλεῖα τοῦ θεοῦ and in Byzantine Greek τὸ μέγεθός σου "your Majesty."

399. φέρω, κτέ.: bring up as a subject of conversation, allude to, cf. Herod. 4. 97 ἐγὼ δὲ γνώμην . . . ἐς μέσον φέρω.

400. ἐμβρόντητος: sc. ἐγώ, scatter-brained, lit. thunderstruck, attonitus, cf. S. 199. — ὑπὲρ = περί, a usage common in the orators and occasional in other writers, cf. Pet. fr. 2, p. 94, Men. 521 K. ὑπὲρ μὲν οἴνου μηδὲ γρῦ, τίτθῃ, λέγε. — ἄλλων: indifferent things. This meaning developed naturally out of the usual meaning, cf. Eur. I.A. 1135 οὐκ ἀλλ' ἐρωτῶ, καὶ σὺ μὴ λέγ' ἄλλα μοι.

401. οὐδέν: not at all, sc. εἰ ἐμβρόντητος.

402. The fact that Polemon insists so persistently that Pataecus shall see Glycera's finery raises the suspicion that the poet has a larger motive than merely to make Polemon ridiculous. See the explanation at the beginning of the third act.

ACT IV

Sc. 1. MOSCHION

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

(To Polemon and Pataecus as they disappear into the other house) οὐκ εἰσφθερεῖσθε θάπτον ὑμεῖς ἐκποδῶν;

λόγχας ἔχοντες ἐκπεπηδήκασί μοι.

End of Lp. νβ

(Again looking about him)

405 οὐκ ἂν δύναιντο δ' ἐξελεῖν νεοττιὰν

χελιδόνων, οἷοι πάρεισ', οἱ βάσκανοι.

[120]

"ἀλλὰ ξένους", φήσ', "εἶχον." εἰσὶ δ' οἱ ξένοι

403 ff. Moschion was sent into the house by Davus at v. 282 to wait for a few days until Glycera should languish for him. What seems to him an endless time has elapsed, during which he has been afraid either to leave the house, invested as it was by the "army" under the command of Sosias, or to go into the women's apartments to visit Glycera, in view of his mother's apparently hostile attitude (vv. 199 ff.) toward his attentions to Glycera and of the reported objections of Glycera herself (vv. 223 ff.). At length, when he can stand the suspense no longer, he comes forth from the house, taking pains to avoid the enemy.

403. εἰσφθερεῖσθε: aye, in with you, and the devil take you! Moschion repeats the εἰσ- of the last word of Pataecus, εἰσέρχομαι. This compound occurs in S. 372 εἰσφθάρηθι, but not elsewhere in this sense; cf. ἀποφθείρου in S. 161 and see on v. 286. The compound ἀνεπάταξε in E. 674 is also invented for the occasion.

404. Better to express his contempt (simulated, however) for the forces of the enemy, Moschion adopts the mock-tragic style. The verse suggests Eur.

Phoen. 1382 (Eteocles and Polyneices) ἦσσαν δὲ λόγχαις, but is quoted from no known passage. λόγχη is distinctively tragic and is used by the comic poets only for pompous effect, as Aristoph. Ran. 1016 (Aeschylus speaks) ἀλλὰ πνέοντας δόρυ καὶ λόγχας καὶ λευκολόφους τρυφαλείας.

405. Cf. Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 5, where the successful rival says to Polemon ὡς βρεφυλλίους ταῦτα, ὦ μισθοφόρε, ἡμῖν λέγεις καὶ μορμολύττῃ; σὺ γὰρ ἀλεκτρούνα πῶποτε ἀπέκτεινας ἢ πόλεμον εἶδες;

406. οἱ βάσκανοι: the scurvy knaves. The word originally implied envious and malicious action, esp. the casting of the evil eye. A trace of this meaning may possibly be felt here, since Moschion, thinking himself the fortunate lover, attributes φθόνος to Polemon. Cf. Aristoph. Eq. 103, where one of the slaves of Demos says of the Paphlagonian ἐπίπαστα λείξας δημιόπραθ' ὁ βάσκανος.

407. ξένους: mercenary troops. Sosias is a ξένος v. 241. — φήσι: Davus. We are to suppose that when Davus followed Moschion into the house (v. 272, cf. v. 419) he reported the arrival of the enemy, magnifying, of course, the

οἱ περιβόητοι — (Catching sight of Sosias)

Σωσίας εἷς οὐτοσί. —

πολλῶν γεγονότων ἀθλίων κατὰ τὸν χρόνον

410 τὸν νῦν, — φορὰ γὰρ γέγονε τούτου νῦν καλὴ 872 K.

ἐν ᾧ πασι τοῖς Ἑλλήσι δι' ὃ τι δὴ ποτε — [125]

οὐδένα νομίζω τῶν τοσούτων ἄθλιον

ἄνθρωπον οὕτως ὡς ἑμαυτὸν ζῆν ἐγώ.

ὡς γὰρ τάχιστ' εἰσῆλθον, οὐδὲν ὦν αἰεὶ

415 εἴωθ' ἐποιοῦν, οὐδὲ πρὸς τὴν μητέρα 872 K.
εἰσῆλθον, οὐ τῶν ἔνδον ἐκάλεσ' οὐδένα [130]

πρὸς ἑμαυτόν, ἀλλ' εἰς οἶκον ἐλθὼν ἐκποδῶν ἐνταῦθα κατεκείμεν συνεστηκὼς πάνυ.

formidable character of the "army."

— εἶχον: Polemon and his party.

408. Sosias and his troops were sent into the house of Polemon in v. 358. But, since Sosias is here pointed to as present, we must suppose that he has come out again. He is probably lying in a drunken stupor in the portico (v. 346), or skulking in the distance. — εἷς: according to an old proverb fr. com. adesp. 679 K. εἷς ἀνὴρ, οὐδεὶς ἀνὴρ.

409 ff. An obscure reference to the troubled state of affairs in Greece. See p. 145 and on v. 5. Euripides begins his diatribe against athletes in a similar way (fr. 282 N.), κακῶν γὰρ ὄντων μυρίων καθ' Ἑλλάδα, οὐδὲν κάκιον ἔστιν ἀθλητῶν γένους.

410. φορὰ: crop, cf. Dem. 18.61 παρὰ γὰρ τοῖς Ἑλλήσιν, οὐ τισὶν ἀλλὰ ᾧ πασιν ὁμοίως, φορὰν προδοτῶν καὶ δωροδόκων καὶ θεοῖς ἐχθρῶν συνέβη γενέσθαι, Aeschin. 3. 234. — τούτου: i.e. τῶν ἀθλίων considered as a product.

411. δι' ὃ τι δὴ ποτε: whatever the reason may be.

412 ff. The order of words is nicely calculated to give the desired emphasis.

— οὐδένα τῶν τοσούτων: not one of them all. — ἐγώ: tacked on at the end, has about the emphasis of "in my opinion."

414. εἰσῆλθον: v. 232.

415. ἐποιοῦν: on the spelling see notes on H. 1 and v. 176.

416. εἰσῆλθον: i.e. into the part of the house reserved for the women, the γυναικωνῆτις, cf. Men. 519 K. νῦν δ' εἰς γυναικωνῆτιν εἰσὶνθ' ὅταν ἰδῶ παράσιτον.

417. οἶκον: the large common living room or perhaps the chamber reserved for the men, ἀνδρῶν or ἀνδρωνῆτις. οἶκος, except in idiomatic prepositional phrases (e.g. κατὰ τὸν οἶκον), usually means "room" in classical Attic prose and in comedy, cf. Phryn. 66 K. ἐπτάκλιος οἶκος ἦν, εἰτ' ἐννεάκλιος ἕτερος οἶκος, "house" only in lyric and tragic poetry.

418. συνεστηκὼς πάνυ: apparently quile composed, in good order, cf. Xen. Anab. 6. 5. 30 ἐπεὶ δὲ εἶδον οἱ Ἕλληνες τὸ τε Φαρναβάζου ἱππικὸν ἔτι συνεστηκός, ibid. 7. 6. 26 οὔτε γὰρ ἱππικὸν οὔτε πελταστικὸν ἔτι ἐγὼ συνεστηκός κατέλαβον,

- τὸν Δᾶον εἰσπέμπω δὲ δηλώσουθ' ὅτι 420 ἦκω, τοσοῦτον αὐτό, πρὸς τὴν μητέρα.
 οὗτος μὲν οὖν, μικρόν τι φροντίσας ἐμοῦ, [135]
 ἄριστον αὐτοῖς καταλαβὼν παρακείμενον, ἐγέμιζεν αὐτόν. ἐν δὲ τούτῳ τῷ χρόνῳ
 κατακείμενος πρὸς ἐμᾶντὸν ἔλεγον· "αὐτίκα 425 πρόσσεισιν ἡ μήτηρ ἁπαγγελοῦσά μοι παρὰ τῆς ἐρωμένης ἐφ' οἷς ἂν φησί μοι [140]
 εἰς ταῦτόν ἐλθεῖν." αὐτὸς ἐμελέτων λόγον —

[Lacuna of ca. 157 verses to K²]

Moschion probably goes on to tell of a confidential talk between Glycera and Myrrhina which he has overheard. He is convinced that his hopes are illusory and realizes that he has been duped by Davus. He has heard also things which arouse his curiosity regarding Glycera (v. 665), but not enough to reveal the facts in full. When Pataecus comes out of Polemon's house, Moschion conceals himself from view. He is present, but unobserved by the others, throughout the following scenes.

SC. 2. MOSCHION (in hiding), PATAECUS

SC. 3. MOSCHION (in hiding), PATAECUS, GLYCERA

While inspecting the wardrobe of Glycera in Polemon's house, Pataecus seems to have noticed something among her belongings that aroused in him a suspicion as to her identity. Therefore, when he summons her from the house, he has three objects in view: the first, to secure an explanation of her conduct with Moschion; the second, to discharge his mission of reconciling her

Dem. 8. 11 ὁ μὲν γὰρ ἔχων δύναμιν συνεστηκυῖαν ἀεὶ περὶ αὐτόν, and the noun σύστασις (e.g. προσώπου). The opposite is ἐξεστηκώς distraught, cf. ἐξέστηκα S. 67, 418, ἔκστασις E. 678. In a play of the Old Comedy we should suspect paronomasia, -εστνκώς.

419. εἰσπέμπω: see on εἰσῆλθον in v. 416.

420. αὐτό = μόνον, only that.

422. ἄριστον: cf. v. 187.

425. Davus had led him to believe that his mother was intervening on his behalf, vv. 154, 188.

426. ἐφ' οἷς ἂν . . . ἔλθῃν: the vb. φησί (subj. Glycera) intervenes and changes the opt. to the inf. Without φησί the clause would be ἐφ' οἷς ἂν ἔλθοι. The ἂν of the opt. clause is of course retained when the opt. becomes the inf. — μοι: governed by εἰς ταῦτόν.

427. εἰς ταῦτόν: cf. v. 590. — ἐμελέτων: just as he had rehearsed in vv. 191 ff. how he should act. Cf. E. 201.

with Polemon; the third, to discover who she really is. He finds her unwilling to return to Polemon (vv. 599, 625, 630, cf. 904). She assures Pataecus, however, that her relations with Moschion have been innocent, though she admits that she has put herself in a false position with him.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

- "λαθεῖν"
 585 "τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα" αὐτοῦ, φράζε μοι,^{K², quat. z, p. 3, l. 18}
 "ἐνταῦθα καταφυγούσ' ἐδυνάμην — οὐ, σκοπεῖς,
 "ἵνα με λάβῃ γυναῖκα, κατὰ με γὰρ πάνν
 "μονοῦμένην" οὐ τοῦθ', ἐταίραν δ' ἵνα μ' ἔχῃ;
 εἴτ' οὐ λαθεῖν τούτους ἂν ἔσπενδον, τάλαν,^[165]
 590 αὐτός τ' ἐκείνος; ἀλλ' ἱταμῶς εἰς ταυτό με

585 ff. Pataecus has probably asked Glycera to defend herself against Polemon's charge of unfaithfulness. Was her motive in accepting Myrrhina's hospitality really fear of Polemon, as she had alleged, or the desire to be near Moschion? If the former, he might induce her to return to Polemon. Glycera is now showing that her conduct will not bear the interpretation that has been put upon it. She employs the argument from probability throughout. — τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα: though she is defending herself before Pataecus she refers to him and Myrrhina in the third person (vv. 589, 591) precisely as if she were addressing a court. The thought seems to be: Could I have taken refuge here, in order to be Moschion's mistress, without his father's and his mother's knowledge?

586. οὐ, κτέ.: const. with καταφυγούσα. — σκοπεῖς: you observe. On ὁρᾷς, μανθάνεις, and similar parenthetical expressions see Kock on Aristoph. Nub. 355.

587. κατὰ με: in accordance with my station. See on H. 19 and cf. S. 180. — πάνν: utterly, modifies the following partic., cf. Xenarch. 7 K. εἰς τις θεοῖσιν ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος πάνν | ξηραινομένους ὡς εἶδε τοὺς ἰχθῦς.

588. μονοῦμένην: left utterly alone in the world as I was. Having no parents and no dowry she could not hope for a legal marriage, much less for one above her social position. — οὐ τοῦτο: sc. ἦν, that was impossible. The ἵνα-clauses summarize the charge which she is refuting, viz. ἐνταῦθα κατέφυγες, οὐκ ἵνα σε λάβῃ γυναῖκα, ἀλλ' ἵνα σ' ἔχῃ ἐταίραν.

589. εἴτα: in that case, i.e. if I had consented to be his mistress. — λαθεῖν: in fact she had made no attempt at concealment. — τούτους: Pataecus, Myrrhina, and the members of their household. We feel that the appeal is addressed to the spectators as well as to the persons on the scene.

590. ἐκείνος: Moschion. τὲ connects the two subjects, as if ἐγὼ had preceded. The second clause is brought in as an afterthought: Moschion's conduct, she pretends, also bears out her argument. Had there been an intrigue between them he would have been as anxious as she that the family should τῷ πατρὶ κατέστησ', εἰλόμην δ' οὕτως ἐγὼ ἀφρόνως ἔχειν, ἐχθρόν τε πράττειν πράγμα μοι, ὕμιν θ' ὑπόνοιαν καταλιπεῖν αἰσχρὰν ἐμοῦ.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἦν ἐξαλείψας* οὐκέτ' οὐδ' αἰσχρὰ φανεῖ.

[170]

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

595 Πάταικε, καὶ σὺ ταῦτα συμπεπείσμενος ἦλθες τοιαύτην θ' ὑπέλαβες με γεγονέναι;

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

μὴ δὴ γένοιτ', ὦ Ζεῦ πολυτίμητ', ἄδिका δέ δείξαις ἀληθῶς ὄντ'. ἐγὼ μὲν πείθομαι.
ἀλλ' ἄπιθι μηδὲν ἥττον.

[175]

not suspect it. Through her desire to shield her brother, Glycera is disingenuous with Pataecus. — ἰταμῶς: boldly: cf. E. 311. — εἰς ταῦτό: into his father's presence, cf. v. 427. — με: for ἐμαυτὸν. The reflexive force is weak, since the phrase κατέστησά με about = ἤλθον. Cf. Kühner-Gerth § 454. 2, Anm. 8.

591. τῷ πατρὶ: i.e. Pataecus himself. — εἰλόμην δέ: the horns of the dilemma which presented itself to her were (1) her fear of Polemon, which made it impossible for her to remain in his house, and (2) the certainty that if she accepted Myrrhina's offer of hospitality her motive would be misunderstood. Of the two evils she chose the latter, but with full knowledge of the possible consequences.

592. ἐχθρόν: cf. Soph. Phil. 475 τοῖσι γενναίοισι τοι τό τ' αἰσχρὸν ἐχθρόν.

594. ἐξαλείψασα: cf. Eur. Hec. 590 τὸ μὲν σὸν . . . πάθος οὐκ ἂν δυναίμην ἐξαλείψασθαι φρενός, and for the same figure Aesch. Prom. 789 ἦν ἐγγράφου σὺ μνήμοσιν δέλτοισ φρενῶν.

595. καὶ σὺ: Glycera reproaches Pataecus, who has known her long (συνήθης, v. 385).

596. τοιαύτην: i.e. μοιχεύτριαν.

597. The same oath in Men. 848 K., which is a reminiscence of Aristoph. Eq. 1390. — ἄδικα: Polemon's accusation.

598. δείξαις: for the opt. of entreaty see Kühner-Gerth § 395. 5. Objection has been raised to the aor. opt. ending -αις in Attic (van Leeuwen on Aristoph. Plut. 1035), but it seems too well authenticated to displace; see verb-list in Kühner-Blass. — πείθομαι: cf. Aristoph. Plut. 251 δὲ ἐγὼ φιλῶ μάλιστα μετὰ σέ. — πείθομαι.

599. ἄπιθι μηδὲν ἥττον: go back to him just the same. ἀπιεῖναι is used in precisely this meaning in v. 800, where Doris reports to Polemon: ὥς φησι νῦν, ἀπεισιν ὥς σέ. — εἰς ἄλλας, κτέ.: Glycera's resolution seems unalterable, cf. v. 622.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἔἰς ἄλλας κόρας

600 ὑβριζέτω τὸ λοιπόν.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

οὐχ ὑβριστικῶς

γέγονε τὸ δεινόν.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἀνόσιον δ' ἔπραξέ με.

οὐκ ἔσθ' ὁρᾶν θεράπαιναν ἀθλιωτέραν

ἔμοῦ—

[Lacuna of 16 verses to K¹]

Glycera seems to have declared to Pataecus that she is free born and also to have asked him to examine the proofs of her origin for himself, that he may assist her to establish her legal independence of Polemon. A single word quoted from this play may belong here:

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἀποδείξει

392 K.

When the text begins again Glycera is explaining to Pataecus the nature of the objects, contained in the chest, which she has asked him to examine.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

σ λα K¹, quat. 2, p. 3, l. 17

600. οὐχ ὑβριστικῶς: Pataecus suggests that Polemon's act was not unpardonable, since it was committed δι' ὀργήν, not wantonly.

601. ἀνόσιον ἔπραξε: cf. Eur. I.A. 1105 ἀνόσια πράσσω.

602. Glycera is now overcome by the recollection of her wrongs and sufferings. The knowledge, which she has all along possessed, that she is of free birth, increases her indignation against Polemon. The thought probably occurs to her that, by establishing the fact of her free birth, she will be able the more easily to shake off the authority which he feels he has over her person. — θεράπαιναν: cf. Ceph. 4 K. νῦν δ' ὥσπερ ἐθεράπειν ἔχω περιβαρίδας. — ἀθλιωτέραν: cf. Eur. Hel. 504 τίς ἡμῶν ἐγένετο ἀθλιώτερα; Suppl. 1076 οὐκ ἂν τιν' εὖροιτο ἄλλον ἀθλιώτερον.

FR. 392. In the rhetorical lexicon Bekk. Anec. 427. 23 we find ἀποδείξει, οὐ παραδείξει. "ὁμοῦ δ' ἀποδείξον τοῦτο τῇ γυναικί," καὶ Περικειρομένη Μένανδρος. The quotation from the Periceirromene seems to have fallen out, but some form of the vb. ἀποδείξει, which is attested by the lexicon, came from this play.

ACT IV

Sc. 1. MOSCHION

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

(To Polemon and Pataecus as they disappear into the other house)

οὐκ εἰσφθερεῖσθε θᾶπτον ὑμεῖς ἐκποδῶν;

λόγχας ἔχοντες ἐκπεπηδήκασί μοι.

End of Lp. νβ

(Again looking about him)

405 οὐκ ἂν δύναιντο δ' ἐξελεῖν νεοττιὰν

χελιδόνων, οἳοι πάρεισ', οἱ βάσκανοι.

[120]

"ἀλλὰ ξένους", φήσ', "εἶχον." εἰσὶ δ' οἱ ξένοι

403 ff. Moschion was sent into the house by Davus at v. 232 to wait for a few days until Glycera should languish for him. What seems to him an endless time has elapsed, during which he has been afraid either to leave the house, invested as it was by the "army" under the command of Sosias, or to go into the women's apartments to visit Glycera, in view of his mother's apparently hostile attitude (vv. 199 ff.) toward his attentions to Glycera and of the reported objections of Glycera herself (vv. 223 ff.). At length, when he can stand the suspense no longer, he comes forth from the house, taking pains to avoid the enemy.

403. εἰσφθερεῖσθε: aye, in with you, and the devil take you! Moschion repeats the εἰσ- of the last word of Pataecus, εἰσέρχομαι. This compound occurs in S. 372 εἰσφθάρθθι, but not elsewhere in this sense; cf. ἀποφθέρου in S. 161 and see on v. 286. The compound ἀνεπάταξε in E. 674 is also invented for the occasion.

404. Better to express his contempt (simulated, however) for the forces of the enemy, Moschion adopts the mock-tragic style. The verse suggests Eur.

Phoen. 1382 (Eteocles and Polyneices) ἥσσαν δὲ λόγχαῖς, but is quoted from no known passage. λόγχη is distinctively tragic and is used by the comic poets only for pompous effect, as Aristoph. Ran. 1016 (Aeschylus speaks) ἀλλὰ πνέοντας δόρυ καὶ λόγχα καὶ λευκολόφους τρυφαλείας.

405. Cf. Luc. Dial. meretr. 9. 5, where the successful rival says to Polemon ὡς βρεφυλλοῖς ταῦτα, ὦ μισθοφόρε, ἡμῖν λέγεις καὶ μορμολύττῃ; σὺ γὰρ ἀλεκτρούνα πῶποτε ἀπέκτεινας ἢ πόλεμον εἶδες;

406. οἱ βάσκανοι: the scurvyknaves. The word originally implied envious and malicious action, esp. the casting of the evil eye. A trace of this meaning may possibly be felt here, since Moschion, thinking himself the fortunate lover, attributes φθόνος to Polemon. Cf. Aristoph. Eq. 103, where one of the slaves of Demos says of the Paphlagonian ἐπίπαστα λείξας δημιόπραθ' ὁ βάσκανος.

407. ξένους: mercenary troops. Sosias is a ξένος v. 241. — φησὶ: Davus. We are to suppose that when Davus followed Moschion into the house (v. 272, cf. v. 419) he reported the arrival of the enemy, magnifying, of course, the

οἱ περιβόητοι — (Catching sight of Sosias)

Σωσίας εἰς οὔτοσί. —

πολλῶν γεγονότων ἀθλίων κατὰ τὸν χρόνον

410 τὸν νῦν, — φορὰ γὰρ γέγονε τοῦτον νῦν καλῇ 872 K.

ἐν ᾧπασι τοῖς Ἑλλησι δι' ὃ τι δὴ ποτε — [125]

οὐδένα νομίζω τῶν τοσούτων ἄθλιον

ἄνθρωπον οὕτως ὡς ἑμαυτὸν ζῆν ἐγώ.

ὡς γὰρ τάχιστ' εἰσῆλθον, οὐδὲν ὦν αἰὲ

415 εἰωθ' ἐποιοῦν, οὐδὲ πρὸς τὴν μητέρα [130]

εἰσῆλθον, οὐ τῶν ἔνδον ἐκάλεσ' οὐδένα

πρὸς ἑμαυτόν, ἀλλ' εἰς οἶκον ἔλθων ἐκποδῶν ἐνταῦθα κατεκείμην συνεστηκῶς πάνυ.

formidable character of the "army." — εἶχον: Polemon and his party.

408. Sosias and his troops were sent into the house of Polemon in v. 358. But, since Sosias is here pointed to as present, we must suppose that he has come out again. He is probably lying in a drunken stupor in the portico (v. 346), or skulking in the distance. — εἰς: according to an old proverb fr. com. adesp. 679 K. εἰς ἀνὴρ, οὐδεὶς ἀνὴρ.

409 ff. An obscure reference to the troubled state of affairs in Greece. See p. 145 and on v. 5. Euripides begins his diatribe against athletes in a similar way (fr. 282 N.), κακῶν γὰρ θνητῶν μυρίων καθ' Ἑλλάδα, οὐδὲν κάκιον ἐστιν ἀθλητῶν γένους.

410. φορὰ: crop, cf. Dem. 18.61 παρὰ γὰρ τοῖς Ἑλλησιν, οὐ τισὶν ἀλλὰ ᾧπασιν ὁμοίως, φορὰν προδοτῶν καὶ δωροδόκων καὶ θεοῖς ἐχθρῶν συνέβη γενέσθαι, Aeschin. 3. 234. — τοῦτου: i.e. τῶν ἀθλίων considered as a product.

411. δι' ὃ τι δὴ ποτε: whatever the reason may be.

412 ff. The order of words is nicely calculated to give the desired emphasis.

— οὐδένα τῶν τοσούτων: not one of them all. — ἐγώ: tacked on at the end, has about the emphasis of "in my opinion."

414. εἰσῆλθον: v. 232.

415. ἐποιοῦν: on the spelling see notes on H. 1 and v. 176.

416. εἰσῆλθον: i.e. into the part of the house reserved for the women, the γυναικωνῆτις, cf. Men. 519 K. νῦν δ' εἰς γυναικωνῆτιν εἰσὶν ὅταν ἰδῶ παράσιτον.

417. οἶκον: the large common living room or perhaps the chamber reserved for the men, ἀνδρῶν or ἀνδρωνῆτις. οἶκος, except in idiomatic prepositional phrases (e.g. κατὰ τὸν οἶκον), usually means "room" in classical Attic prose and in comedy, cf. Phryn. 66 K. ἐπτάκλιος οἶκος ἦν, εἰτ' ἐννεάκλιος ἕτερος οἶκος, "house" only in lyric and tragic poetry.

418. συνεστηκῶς πάνυ: apparently quite composed, in good order, cf. Xen. Anab. 6. 5. 30 ἐπεὶ δὲ εἶδον οἱ Ἕλληνες τὸ τε Φαραβάξου ἱππικὸν ἔτι συνεστηκός, ibid. 7. 6. 26 οὔτε γὰρ ἱππικὸν οὔτε πελταστικὸν ἔτι ἐγὼ συνεστηκός κατέλαβον,

- τὸν Δᾶον εἰσπέμπω δὲ δηλώσονθ' ὅτι 420 ἦκω, τοσοῦτον αὐτό, πρὸς τὴν μητέρα.
 οὗτος μὲν οὖν, μικρόν τι φροντίσας ἐμοῦ, [135]
 ἄριστον αὐτοῖς καταλαβὼν παρακείμενον,
 ἐγέμιζεν αὐτόν. ἐν δὲ τούτῳ τῷ χρόνῳ
 κατακείμενος πρὸς ἑμαυτὸν ἔλεγον. "αὐτίκα 425 πρόσκεισιν ἡ μήτηρ ἁπαγγελοῦσά μοι
 παρὰ τῆς ἐρωμένης ἐφ' οἷς ἂν φησί μοι [140]
 εἰς ταῦτόν ἐλθεῖν." αὐτὸς ἐμελέτων λόγον —

[Lacuna of ca. 157 verses to K²]

Moschion probably goes on to tell of a confidential talk between Glycera and Myrrhina which he has overheard. He is convinced that his hopes are illusory and realizes that he has been duped by Davus. He has heard also things which arouse his curiosity regarding Glycera (v. 665), but not enough to reveal the facts in full. When Pataecus comes out of Polemon's house, Moschion conceals himself from view. He is present, but unobserved by the others, throughout the following scenes.

SC. 2. MOSCHION (in hiding), PATAECUS

SC. 3. MOSCHION (in hiding), PATAECUS, GLYCERA

While inspecting the wardrobe of Glycera in Polemon's house, Pataecus seems to have noticed something among her belongings that aroused in him a suspicion as to her identity. Therefore, when he summons her from the house, he has three objects in view: the first, to secure an explanation of her conduct with Moschion; the second, to discharge his mission of reconciling her Dem. 8. 11 ὁ μὲν γὰρ ἔχων δύναμιν συνεστηκυῖαν αἰεὶ περὶ αὐτόν, and the noun σύστασις (e.g. προσώπου). The opposite is ἐξεστῆκώς distraught, cf. ἐξέστηκα S. 67, 418, ἔκστασις E. 678. In a play of the Old Comedy we should suspect paronomasia, -εστῆκώς.

419. εἰσπέμπω: see on εἰσῆλθον in v. 416.

420. αὐτό = μόνον, only that.

422. ἄριστον: cf. v. 187.

425. Davus had led him to believe that his mother was intervening on his behalf, vv. 154, 188.

426. ἐφ' οἷς ἂν . . . ἔλθειν: the vb. φησί (subj. Glycera) intervenes and changes the opt. to the inf. Without φησί the clause would be ἐφ' οἷς ἂν ἔλθοι. The ἂν of the opt. clause is of course retained when the opt. becomes the inf. — μοι: governed by εἰς ταῦτόν.

427. εἰς ταῦτόν: cf. v. 590. — ἐμελέτων: just as he had rehearsed in vv. 191 ff. how he should act. Cf. E. 201.

with Polemon; the third, to discover who she really is. He finds her unwilling to return to Polemon (vv. 599, 625, 630, cf. 904). She assures Pataecus, however, that her relations with Moschion have been innocent, though she admits that she has put herself in a false position with him.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

- "λαθεῖν"
 585 ἔνταυθα κατὰφυγούσ' ἐδυνάμην — οὐ, σκοπεῖς, K², quat. z, ἵνα με λάβῃ γυναῖκα, κατὰ με γὰρ πάννυ p. 3, l. 18
 ἡμονομένην οὐ τοῦθ', ἐταίραν δ' ἵνα μ' ἔχῃ;
 εἴτ' οὐ λαθεῖν τούτους ἂν ἔσπενδον, τάλαν, [165]
 590 αὐτός τ' ἐκείνος; ἀλλ' ἱταμῶς εἰς ταυτό με

585 ff. Pataecus has probably asked Glycera to defend herself against Polemon's charge of unfaithfulness. Was her motive in accepting Myrrhina's hospitality really fear of Polemon, as she had alleged, or the desire to be near Moschion? If the former, he might induce her to return to Polemon. Glycera is now showing that her conduct will not bear the interpretation that has been put upon it. She employs the argument from probability throughout. — τὸν πατέρα καὶ τὴν μητέρα: though she is defending herself before Pataecus she refers to him and Myrrhina in the third person (vv. 589, 591) precisely as if she were addressing a court. The thought seems to be: Could I have taken refuge here, in order to be Moschion's mistress, without his father's and his mother's knowledge?

586. οὐ, κτέ.: const. with καταφυγούσα. — σκοπεῖς: you observe. On ὁρᾷς, μανθάνεις, and similar parenthetical expressions see Kock on Aristoph. Nub. 355.

587. κατὰ με: in accordance with my station. See on H. 19 and cf. S. 180. — πάννυ: utterly, modifies the following partic., cf. Xenarch. 7 K. εἰς τις θεοῖσιν ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος πάννυ | ξηραινομένους ὡς εἶδε τοὺς ἰχθῦς.

588. μονομένην: left utterly alone in the world as I was. Having no parents and no dowry she could not hope for a legal marriage, much less for one above her social position. — οὐ τοῦτο: sc. ἦν, that was impossible. The ἵνα-clauses summarize the charge which she is refuting, viz. ἐνταῦθα κατέφυγες, οὐκ ἵνα σε λάβῃ γυναῖκα, ἀλλ' ἵνα σ' ἔχῃ ἐταίραν.

589. εἴτα: in that case, i.e. if I had consented to be his mistress. — λαθεῖν: in fact she had made no attempt at concealment. — τούτους: Pataecus, Myrrhina, and the members of their household. We feel that the appeal is addressed to the spectators as well as to the persons on the scene.

590. ἐκείνος: Moschion. τὲ connects the two subjects, as if ἐγὼ had preceded. The second clause is brought in as an afterthought: Moschion's conduct, she pretends, also bears out her argument. Had there been an intrigue between them he would have been as anxious as she that the family should

τῷ πατρὶ κατέστησ', εἰλόμην δ' οὕτως ἐγὼ
ἀφρόνως ἔχειν, ἐχθρόν τε πράττειν πρᾶγμα μοι, ὕμιν θ' ὑπόνοιαν καταλιπεῖν αἰσχρὰν ἐμού.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἦν ἐξαλείψας οὐκέτ' οὐδ' αἰσχρὰ φανεῖ.

[170]

ΓΛΥΚΕΡΑ

595 Πάταικε, καὶ σὺ ταῦτα συμπεπείσμενος
ἦλθες τοιαύτην θ' ὑπέλαβες με γεγονέναι;

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

μῇ δὴ γένοιτ', ὦ Ζεῦ πολυτίμητ', ἄδικα δὲ
δείξαις ἀληθῶς ὄντ'. ἐγὼ μὲν πείθομαι.
ἀλλ' ἄπιθι μηδὲν ἦττον.

[175]

not suspect it. Through her desire to shield her brother, Glycera is disingenuous with Pataecus. — ἰταμῶς: boldly: cf. E. 311. — εἰς ταύτό: into his father's presence, cf. v. 427. — με: for ἐμαυτόν. The reflexive force is weak, since the phrase κατέστησά με about = ἦλθον. Cf. Kühner-Gerth §454. 2, Anm. 8.

591. τῷ πατρὶ: i.e. Pataecus himself. — εἰλόμην δέ: the horns of the dilemma which presented itself to her were (1) her fear of Polemon, which made it impossible for her to remain in his house, and (2) the certainty that if she accepted Myrrhina's offer of hospitality her motive would be misunderstood. Of the two evils she chose the latter, but with full knowledge of the possible consequences.

592. ἐχθρόν: cf. Soph. Phil. 475 τοῖσι γενναίοισι τοι τό τ' αἰσχρὸν ἐχθρόν.

594. ἐξαλείψασα: cf. Eur. Hec. 500 τὸ μὲν σὸν . . . πάθος οὐκ ἂν δυναίμην ἐξαλείψασθαι φρενός, and for the same figure Aesch. Prom. 789 ἦν ἐγγράφου σὸ μνήμοσιν δέλτοισι φρενῶν.

595. καὶ σὺ: Glycera reproaches Pataecus, who has known her long (συνήθης, v. 385).

596. τοιαύτην: i.e. μοιχεύτριαν.

597. The same oath in Men. 848 K., which is a reminiscence of Aristoph. Eq. 1390. — ἄδικα: Polemon's accusation.

598. δείξαις: for the opt. of entreaty see Kühner-Gerth § 395. 5. Objection has been raised to the aor. opt. ending -αις in Attic (van Leeuwen on Aristoph. Plut. 1035), but it seems too well authenticated to displace; see verb-list in Kühner-Blass. — πείθομαι: cf. Aristoph. Plut. 251 ὅν ἐγὼ φιλῶ μάλιστα μετὰ σέ. — πείθομαι.

599. ἄπιθι μηδὲν ἦττον: go back to him just the same. ἀπιέναι is used in precisely this meaning in v. 860, where Doris reports to Polemon: ὥς φησι νῦν, ἀπεισιν ὡς σέ. — εἰς ἄλλας, κτέ.: Glycera's resolution seems unalterable, cf. v. 622.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἔἰς ἄλλας κόρας

600 ὑβριζέτω τὸ λοιπόν.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

οὐχ ὑβριστικῶς

γέγονε τὸ δεινόν.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἀνόσιον δ' ἔπραξέ με.

οὐκ ἔσθ' ὁρᾶν θεράπαιναν ἀθλιωτέραν

ἐμοῦ —

[Lacuna of 16 verses to K¹]

Glycera seems to have declared to Pataecus that she is free born and also to have asked him to examine the proofs of her origin for himself, that he may assist her to establish her legal independence of Polemon. A single word quoted from this play may belong here :

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἀποδείξαι

392 K.

When the text begins again Glycera is explaining to Pataecus the nature of the objects, contained in the chest, which she has asked him to examine.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

σ λα K¹, quat. 2, p. 3, l. 17

600. οὐχ ὑβριστικῶς: Pataecus suggests that Polemon's act was not unpardonable, since it was committed δι' ὀργήν, not wantonly.

601. ἀνόσιον ἔπραξε: cf. Eur. I.A. 1105 ἀνόσια πράσων.

602. Glycera is now overcome by the recollection of her wrongs and sufferings. The knowledge, which she has all along possessed, that she is of free birth, increases her indignation against Polemon. The thought probably occurs to her that, by establishing the fact of her free birth, she will be able the more easily to shake off the authority which he feels he has over her person. — θεράπαιναν: cf. Ceph. 4 K. νῦν δ' ὥσπερ ἐθεράπειν ἔχω περιβαρίδας. — ἀθλιωτέραν: cf. Eur. Hel. 594 τίς ἡμῶν ἐγένετο ἀθλιώτερος; Suppl. 1076 οὐκ ἂν τιν' εὖροιτ' ἄλλον ἀθλιώτερον.

FR. 392. In the rhetorical lexicon Bekk. Anec. 427. 23 we find ἀποδείξαι, οὐ παραδείξαι: "ὁμῶς δ' ἀποδείξον τοῦτο τῇ γυναικί," καὶ Περιειρομένη Μένανδρος. The quotation from the Periceirromene seems to have fallen out, but some form of the vb. ἀποδείξαι, which is attested by the lexicon, came from this play.

620 τοῦμοῦ πατρός καὶ μητρός, ἔκέλευσεν δ' ἔχειν ἀεὶ παρ' ἐμαντῇ ταῦτα καὶ τηρεῖν.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

τί οὖν

βούλει κομίσασθαι ταῦτ'; ἀπέγνωνκας σὺ γὰρ [145] κομιδῇ τὸν ἄνθρωπον; τί βούλει, φιλτάτῃ;

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

διὰ σοῦ γενέσθω τοῦτό μοι. πραχθήσεται;

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

625 τοῦτό γ' ἐγὼ γέλοιον· ἀλλ' ὑπὲρ πάντων ἐχρῆν εἰξαί σ'.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἐγὼ δα τὰ μ' ἄρισθ'.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ (reluctantly yielding)

οὕτως ἔχεις;

620. Cf. Plaut. Rud. 389 cistulam . . . quam habebat (Palaestra) ubique habebat qui suos parentes noscere posset. Glycera refers to the σπάργανα and other memorials of her infancy which the old woman had given her (v. 15).

622. κομίσασθαι ταῦτα: to have them brought, i.e. from the house, cf. v. 633. Glycera had doubtless already used this vb., so that the meaning of the mid. voice here was clear. For this meaning cf. Thuc. 4. 38. 4 πέψαντες τοὺς νεκροὺς διεκομίσαντο. — ταῦτα: the tokens, which she seems to have kept in a casket, cf. v. 633. Probably it was to fetch this casket that Doris was sent to Polemon's house after the flight (v. 61). — ἀπέγνωνκας, κτέ.: what, have you given the fellow (Polemon) up absolutely? ἀπογιγνώσκειν means "to give up as hopeless," "to despair of," used of a thing or of a person, cf. Dem. 6. 16 οὐτ' ἀνείνυν ἀπεγίγνωσκεν Θηβαίους. The partic. acquires the meaning "desperate," "abandoned," as applied to character, e.g. Herodian 1. 16. 4 ἐαυτὸν ἐπιδόντα μονομάχοις καὶ ἀπεγνωσμένοις ἀνθρώποις κινδυνεύσαι.

623. τί βούλει: what is your motive?

624. διὰ σοῦ, κτέ.: be my agent in this matter. She probably refers to her intention of breaking off relations with Polemon.

625. ἐγὼ γὰρ εἰξαί σε: you ought to have yielded, i.e. to my desires in the matter, expressed in v. 599 and probably elsewhere.

626. ἐγὼ δα, κτέ.: cf. Plaut. Trin. 636 satis in rem quae sint meam ego conspicio mihi. — οὕτως ἔχεις:

τίς τῶν θεραπεινῶν οἶδε ταῦθ' ὅπου 'στί σοι; [150]
ἦ Δωρίδ' οἶδε;

ΓΛΥΚΕΡΑ

καλεσάτω τὴν Δωρίδα

ἔξω τίς.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἀλλ' ὅμως, Γλυκέρα, πρὸς τῶν θεῶν, 630 διαλλάγηθ' ἐφ' οἷς λόγοις νυνὶ λέγω.

Enter Doris from the house.

SC. 4. MOSCHION (in hiding), PATAECUS, GLYCERA, DORIS

ΔΩΡΙΣ

βούλει τί χρῆμ'; ἐμοὶ λέγ', ὦ κεκτημένη.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (aside)

τάχα δ' εἴσομ' οἶον τὸ κακόν.

ΓΛΥΚΕΡΑ

ἐξένεγκέ μοι [155]

τὴν κιστίδ' ἔξω, Δωρί, τὴν τὰ ποικίλα

ἔχουσαν. οἶσθας, νῆ Δί',— ἣν δέδωκά σοι

635 τηρεῖν. τί ἄλλεις, ἀθλία; Exit Doris into the house.

is this the way you feel about it? There is disapproval, but also acquiescence, in the question.

629 f. Pataecus makes a last appeal on behalf of Polemon. We do not know what promises he has made on behalf of Polemon—probably a pledge of good conduct.

632. εἴσομαι: cf. Aristoph. Lys. 1114 τάχα δ' εἴσομαι 'γώ.—οἶον: sc. ἐστίν. This is the first intimation in the preserved portion of text that Moschion is present during these scenes of disclosure. He is eavesdropping, as throughout the following scene and in the last scene of the play; see on vv. 646 ff., 907.

633. Cf. Ter. Eun. 753 abi tu, cistellam, Pythias, domo ecfer cum monumentis.—τὰ ποικίλα: embroidered garments, as often, cf. Theocr. 16. 78 τὰ ποικίλα πρῶτον ἀθρησον, Philem. 76 K. ἱμάτια ποικίλ' εἰ λέγοι τις Σικελικά. As we shall see, the chest contained other objects as well.

635. ἄλλεις: are you idling? See on E. 342 and Phot. fr. on p. 100, and cf. Ter. Eun. 754 (continuing the passage cited on v. 633) Pyth. ubi sitast? Thais. in risco. odiosa, cessas?

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (aside)

πέπονθά τι,
 ἤνῃ τὸν Δία τὸν σωτήρ', ἐγὼ καινὸν πᾶν
 καὶ ποικίλον' πρᾶγμ'· οὐδὲν ἢ κόρη δοκεῖ

[160]

[Lacuna of ca. 7 verses to the second Leipzig fragment]

Doris has brought out the chest and returned again into the house. Pataecus first examines the ποικίλα. He has just made out the first object.

SC. 5. MOSCHION (in hiding), PATAECUS, GLYCERA

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

646 ὄν' καὶ τότε εἶδον. οὐ παρ' αὐτὸν οὐτοσί τράγος τις, ἢ βοῦς, ἢ τοιοντὶ θηρίῳ ἔστηκεν;

Lp. ξα

— πέπονθά τι, κτέ.: I've had a strange and varied experience, cf. Dem. 35. 25 πεπόνθαμεν καινότατον, Plat. Apol. 40A θαυμάσιόν τι γέγονεν.

646 ff. The following recognition scene falls into two portions. In the first Pataecus recognizes as having belonged to his first wife some objects contained in the chest, and finds that the story which Glycera has been told of the discovery of herself and brother in infancy coincides with his recollection of the exposure of twin children of his own. He is convinced that she is his daughter and inquires anxiously about his lost son. But Glycera will tell him nothing on this point. In the second portion Glycera insists that Pataecus shall prove his identity by naming and describing the objects contained in the chest. Moschion, overhearing all this, discovers for himself that Pataecus is his father and Glycera his sister.

This scene may profitably be compared with the recognition scenes in Eur. Ion 1412 ff. and in Plaut. Rud.

1134 ff. In the former, Ion causes Creusa to name and describe the objects contained in the vessel in which he kept his γνωρίσματα. In particular she describes the design on a piece of embroidery. In the Rudens, Palaestra proposes to establish her ownership of the wallet which Gripus has fished out of the sea by telling the contents of the casket contained in it. Daemones takes the objects from the casket as she mentions them, and thus discovers that Palaestra is his long-lost daughter.

The tragic coloring of this scene is noticeable in both the diction and the meter. At the climax the lines are wholly tragic. But the side remarks of Moschion stand out in sharp contrast in both respects. His rôle is that of the clown (βωμολόχος); but Pataecus and Glycera are moved by genuine feeling.

646. τότε: olim, the last time he saw the chest.

647. They seem to be inspecting the figures on a piece of embroidery (ποικίλα v. 633) from the clothing (σπάργανα ἐλαφος, φίλτατ', ἐστίν, οὐ τράγος.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ῥ' κέρα γ' ἔχει, τοῦτ' οἶδα.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

καὶ τοῦτ' τρίτον;

[65]

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

650 ῥ' πετεινὸς ἵππος. τῆς γυναικὸς τῆς ἐμῆς ῥ' τὰ χρῆματ' ἐστὶ ταῦτα, καὶ μάλ' ἀθλίας.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (aside)

οὐ τῶν ἀδυνάτων ἐστὶ τοῦτ'; ἔμοι δοκεῖ ῥ' ἄτοπόν τι τὴν ἐμὴν τεκοῦσαν μητέρα ῥ' αἰσχροῦς προῆσθαι θυγατέρ' αὐτῇ γενομένην.

[70]

v. 15) in which the infants were exposed (v. 660). The design was indistinct through age. Pataecus describes the figures as if he had seen them before.

648. ἔλαφος, οὐ τράγος: cf. E. 171.

649. κέρα γε . . . οἶδα: Pataecus remembers only that it was an animal with horns. Attic writers use the pl. forms κέρατα etc., see Kühner-Blass § 121.

650. πετεινὸς ἵππος: a Pegasus. The form πετεινός, a doublet of the more poetical πτηνός, is apparently good Attic, in spite of the objections of Thomas Magister (p. 272. 6 R.); cf. Lyc. Leocr. 132 τὰ πετεινὰ (ῥῶα), cited by Körte.

651. The silence of Glycera at this declaration, which must have startled her, is significant. Is it due to the new embarrassment that confronts her? She knows that Moschion is not the son of Myrrhina, as Pataecus supposes him to be. If she is the daughter of Pataecus' wife and Moschion the son, the fact will have to come out that Myrrhina has deceived Pataecus in passing off Moschion as her son, cf. v. 669. The statement of Pataecus is not an "aside," for Moschion hears it.

652. οὐ τῶν ἀδυνάτων: sc. ἐστὶ (or, if an assertion, read ἐν τῶν ἀδυνάτων). The phrase is an emphatic equivalent of ἀδυνάτον ἐστὶ affected by the writers of the fourth century.

653. ἄτοπόν τι, κτέ.: i.e. quite inconsistent with the character of Myrrhina.

654. προῆσθαι: should have abandoned. The vb. often suggests, as here, a reprehensible act.

655 ἔι δ' ἄρα τι πιστὸν τοῦτ', ἀδελφὴ δ' ἔστ' ἐμή, οἷας ἀπεστέρημ' ὁ δυστυχῆς ἐγώ.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ (to himself)

ἦ δυστυχῇ δὴ τὰπίλοιπα τῶν ἐμῶν.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

σῆμαιν' ὁ βούλει, τοῦτο πυνθάνου τ' ἐμοῦ.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

πόθεν λαβούσα ταῦτα κέκτησαι; φράσον.

[75]

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

660 ἐν τοῖσδ' ἀνγρέθην ποτ' οὔσα παιδίον.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἐπάναγε σαντὸν μικρὸν ὡς ῥέθος βλέπω.

Scans her face closely.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (aside)

ἦκω τύχης εἰς καιρὸν οἰκείας ἐγώ.

655. εἰ δ' ἄρα: in this locution ἄρα, when not illative, expresses the speaker's doubt whether the assumption is true, cf. Thuc. 3. 58. 5 τῆς νῦν ἀμαρτίας, — εἰ ἄρα ἡμάρτηται —, and see Kühner-Gerth § 543. 10.

656. οἷας . . . ἐγώ: cf. fr. com. adesp. 221 K. οἶαν ἀδικῶ γυναιχ' ὁ δυσδαίμων ἐγώ. Similarly in Plaut. Epid. 648 ff. Strattippocles finds that his sweetheart is his sister, and is overwhelmed by the discovery.

657. ἦ δυστυχῇ, κτέ.: at the thought of his son, whom he naturally supposes to be lost or dead, Pataecus cries out in grief. Glycera hears but does not understand. — τὰπίλοιπα: cf. Soph. Phil. 24 ὡς τὰπίλοιπα τῶν λόγων σὺ μὲν κλύης. The whole phrase is a vague reference to his other child, τῶν ἐμῶν (τέκνων).

660. ἀνγρέθην: cf. Pind. P. 9. 66

παῖδα τέζεται (Cyrene), ὃν κλυτὸς Ἑρμᾶς . . . ἀνελὼν φίλας ὑπὸ ματέρος οἶσει. Glycera purposely avoids the plural.

661. ἐπάναγε, κτέ.: draw back a little. — ὡς: almost unknown to comedy as final particle, but common in tragedy. See GMT., p. 398. — ῥέθος: face, a word borrowed from the epic, where it is used in the pl. in the meaning "limbs" (Hom. Il. 16. 856; 22. 68 and 362). It occurs in the sing. in two lyrical passages of tragedy, viz. Soph. Ant. 529 νεφέλη . . . αἱματόεν ῥέθος αἰσχύνει and Eur. H. F. 1205 ὦ τέκνον, . . . ῥέθος δελίῳ δαΐζον. The word was revived by the Alexandrian poets: in Theocr. 23. 39 the pl. means "limbs," while in Apoll. Rhod. 2. 68 it means "countenance," as also ἐπιρρέθη in Mosch. 4. 3.

662. τύχης εἰς καιρόν: cf. Pind. N. 7. 58 Θεαρίων, τιν' δ' εὐκίττα καιρὸν δαΐζου μόνη δ' ἔκεισο; τοῦτο γὰρ σήμαινέ μοι.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

οὐ δῆτ', ἀδελφὸν δ' ἐξέθηκε κάμέ τις.

[80]

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (aside)

665 τουτὶ μὲν ἔν μοι τῶν ἐμοῖ ζητουμένων.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

πῶς οὖν ἐχωρίσθητ' ἀπ' ἀλλήλων δίχα;

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἔχοιμ' ἂν εἰπεῖν πάντ' ἀκηκουῖά σοι, τὰ δ' ἐμά μ' ἑρώτα, ῥητὰ γὰρ ταῦτ' ἐστί μοι, ἐκεῖνα δ' αὐτῇ μὴ φράσειν ὁμώμοκα.

[85]

δίδωσι, Eur. Orest. 384 ἀφίξει δ' αὐτὸν eis καιρὸν κακῶν.

665. The vb. ζητεῖν is the technical term for the "investigation" of a problem, ἀπορία, and τὰ ζητούμενα (or τὰ ἐπιζητούμενα, see Crit. Ap.) "the objects of search," the points to be determined by investigation. Now Moschion has been puzzled by what he has overheard of the conversation between Glycera and Myrrhina (see the note in the text following v. 427). Their talk has raised in his mind a number of ἀπορίαι. In vv. 652 he draws from the remark of Pataecus the inference that, if Glycera is the daughter of Pataecus, she must be his sister; but could Myrrhina his mother have heartlessly exposed a daughter? This question is now answered by Glycera's declaration that a brother was exposed along with her. This clears up one ἀπορία for Moschion; Myrrhina cannot be his mother.

666. A reminiscence of Eur. Melan. fr. 484. 3 N. ἐπει δ' ἐχωρίσθησαν ἀλλήλων δίχα.

667. ἀκηκουῖα: by hearsay, cf. Soph. O.T. 105 ἔξοιδ' ἀκούων.

668. τὰ δ' ἐμά: that which concerns me alone (cf. v. 626), as opposed to ἐκεῖνα (= τὰ ἐκείνου), "that which concerns my brother." — ῥητά: cf. Soph. O.T. 993 ἡ ῥητόν; ἡ οὐχὶ θεμιτόν ἄλλον εἰδέναι; — The first foot is unmetrical in the MS., viz. τὰ μὰ δ'. In a verse otherwise tragic in tone an initial dactyl with word-division — υ, υ (e.g. τὰ μὰ δέ μ' Rob. or τὰ μὰ δέ γ' Arn.) would be objectionable. τὰ δ' ἐμά is free from this objection, and has the advantage over τὰ δ' ἄλλ' (Körte) in that it supplies ταῦτα with a definite antecedent.

669. αὐτῇ: Myrrhina. The allusion is so vague that Pataecus may possibly be in doubt as to who is meant; hence the further question τίς ἦν; But

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (aside)

670 καὶ τοῦτό μοι σύσσημον εἶρηκεν σαφές· ὁμώμοκεν τῇ μήτρῃ. ποῦ ποτ' εἰμὶ γῆς;

1073 K.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ὁ δὴ λαβὼν σε καὶ τρέφων τίς ἦν ποτε;

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

γυνή μ' ἔθρεψ', ἥπερ τὸτ' εἶδ' ἔκκειμένην.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

τοῦ δὴ τόπου τί μνημόνευμά σοι λέγει;

[90]

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

675 κρήνην τιν' εἶπ' εἶναι τόπον τ' ὑπόσκιον.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

τὸν αὐτὸν ὄνπερ χω τιθεῖς εἶρηκέ μοι.

Lp. ξβ

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

τίς δ' οὗτός ἐστιν; εἰ θέμις καμοὶ φράσον.

Moschion, who had probably heard Glycera swear to his mother to keep something secret, is in a position to understand it.

670. καὶ τοῦτο: the second point, cf. τουτὶ μὲν v. 665. Glycera's statement has carried a step further the proof that Myrrhina is not his own mother. — σύσσημον: indication, sign. The word was tabooed by Phrynichus (see on Men. 1007 K.) as un-Attic, and was probably slang in the meaning here required, clinch. The vb. συσσημαίνεσθαι, from which this meaning seems to have been derived, was in use as the equivalent of κατασφραγίζεσθαι, "to seal and certify," according to Suidas, who adds that σύσσημον = σημείον. The other meanings of the noun are later.

673. ἐκκειμένην: cf. v. 694 below and E. 28 κάκκειμενον παιδάριον. But κειμένην may be right, cf. τιθεῖς v. 678.

674. τόπου μνημόνευμα: to remember the place by, lit. memorial, reminder. The word occurs in Attic only in Arist. De mem. 450 b 27 (and 451 a 2): τὸ ἐν ἡμῖν φάντασμα ἰσὺν εἰκὼν καὶ μνημόνευμα ἄλλου (Körte). So Luc. De salt. 44 speaks of certain stories of mythology as ἀναγκαῖα δρχηστῇ μνημονεύματα. The Attic equivalents were μνημείον (prose) and μνήμα (poetry).

675. εἰπ' εἶναι: for the exceptional inf. after εἰπεῖν cf. Plat. Gorg. 478a ὁ μὲν τιθεὶς παῖς, ὁ δὲ τρέφειν ὀκνῶν ἐγώ.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

σὺ δ' ἐξέθηκας ὦν πατήρ; τίνος χάριν; [95]

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

680 πόλλ' ἐστὶν ἔργ' ἄπιστα, παιδίον, κλύειν· ἡ μὲν τεκοῦσ' ὑμᾶς γὰρ ἐκλείπει βίον· εὐθύς, μιᾷ δ' ἔμπροσθεν ἡμέρᾳ, — νοεῖς;

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

τί γίγνεταιί ποθ'; ὥς τρέμω, τάλαιν' ἐγώ.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

πένης ἐγενόμην, βίον ἔχειν εἰθισμένος. [100]

εἶπον ἐγὼ . . . τὸ ἀδικεῖν τοῦ ἀδικεῖσθαι κάκιον εἶναι. GMT. § 753.3.

678. παῖς: sc. τις ἢν.

679. Such an act on the part of a man who knew the children to be his own certainly called for an explanation. Exposure ordinarily implied, in real life as well as in the romantic drama, some irregularity of parentage.

680. ἄπιστα: and yet true, cf. Eur. fr. 396 N. νομίζειν χρή σε . . . ἄπιστα ἀληθῆ πολλά συμβαίνειν βροτοῖς. — κλύειν: used by the comic poets, in jest or in earnest, always as a tragic word, e.g. Aristoph. Av. 416 ἄπιστα καὶ πέρα κλυεῖν. This whole passage reveals Menander as a true disciple of Euripides in his use of tragic pathos. The dissyllabic feet and short syllables in arsi mark real feeling.

681. γάρ: the fact that ἡ τεκοῦσ' ὑμᾶς is a compact phrase explains the position of γάρ. So also in E. 859 and elsewhere. But Menander exercises a good deal of freedom in placing this particle. — ἐκλείπει βίον: another phrase from the high style, cf. Soph. El. 1131 ὥς ὠφελον παροῖθεν ἐκλιπεῖν βίον and Antiphon 1. 21 ἀθῶς καὶ ἀκλεῶς πρὸ τῆς εἰμαρμένης ὑφ' ᾧν ἤκιστα ἐχρῆν τὸν βίον ἐκλιπών.

682. εὐθύς: sc. τεκοῦσα. — μιᾷ: the numeral enhances the pathos by emphasizing the suddenness of the reversal, cf. Eur. H.F. 509 καὶ μ' ἀφείλεθ' ἡ τύχη ὥσπερ πτερόν πρὸς αἰθέρ' ἡμέρᾳ μιᾷ, id. fr. 420 N. μὴ ἡμέρα τὰ μὲν καθεῖλεν ὑψόθεν, τὰ δ' ἦρ' ἀνω. — νοεῖς: the speaker puts off the decisive word, cf. E. 908 αἰσθάνει γε; Plaut. Pseud. 215 usque ad languorem — tenes quo se haec tendant quae loquor?

684. εἰθισμένος: cf. Baton 5. 4 K. πρότερον οὐκ εἰθισμένος.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

685 ἐν ἡμέρᾳ; πῶς; ὦ θεοί, δεινοῦ πάθους¹.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἤκουσα τὴν ναῦν ἣ παρεῖχ' ἡμῖν τρόφην¹ ἄγριον καλύψαι πέλαγος Αἰγαίας ἁλός.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

τάλαιν' ἔγωγε τῆς τύχης.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἐφόλκια

ἤγησάμην δὴ πτωχὸν ὄντα παιδία

[105]

690 τρέφειν ἄβούλου παντελῶς ἀνδρὸς τρόπους.¹

685. ἡμέρα = ἡμέρα μιᾶ, as in Herod. 1. 126 (Körte). — δεινοῦ πάθους: a common tragic phrase, cf. Soph. O.T. 1297 ὦ δεινὸν ἰδεῖν πάθος, Eur. Suppl. 11 πάθος παθεῖν δεινόν. Glycera's emotion seems out of proportion with her father's misfortune; but she is thinking of its results for herself and her brother.

687. ἄγριον πέλαγος: cf. Aesch. Suppl. 34 ἀγρίας ἁλός, Eur. H.F. 851 θάλασσαν ἀγρίαν. — πέλαγος Αἰγαίας ἁλός: cf. Poseidon's words Eur. Troad. 88 ταραξέω πέλαγος Αἰγαίας ἁλός (Körte).

688. ἐφόλκια: as useless burdens. The ἐφολκίς was ἡ μικρὰ ναῦς ἢ ὑφ' ἐτέρας νεῶς ἐλκομένη (schol. Aristoph. Vesp. 268); in a figurative sense ἐφόλκια were τὰ ἐκ περιττοῦ ἐπιφερόμενα σκεῆθ' τοῖς ἀποδημοῦσιν (Bekk. Anec. 257), "baggage," cf. Anth. Pal. 7. 67 (Diogenes to Charon) ὀλη μοι καὶ πῆρ' ἐφόλκια καὶ τὸ παλαιὸν ἔσθος. The figure is Euripidean, cf. H.F. 631, where Heracles leading his children says ἀξω λαβὼν γε τοῖσδ' ἐφολκίδας χερσῖν, ναὺς δ' ὥς ἐφέλξω, and later (1424), of himself, Θησεὶ πανώ-λεις ἐψόμεσθ' ἐφολκίδες. The tow as a troublesome burden suggests the figure in Eur. Andr. 200, where Andromache speaks of her base-born children as ἐμαντῇ τ' ἀθλίαν ἐφολκίδα ("drag").

690. τρέφειν: this unworthy motive for the exposure of children is occasionally mentioned, e.g. Plat. Theaet. 180E οὐκ ἄξιον ὃν τροφῆς τὸ γιγνόμενον, . . . ἢ σὺ οἶσι πάντως δεῖν τὸ γε σὸν τρέφειν καὶ μὴ ἀποτιθέναι; Ter. Ad. 809 tu illos duo olim pro re tollebas tua, quod satis putabas tua bona ambobus fore. Poseidippus says (11 K.), but presumably only in jest, υἱὸν τρέφει πᾶς κἂν πένης τις ὦν τύχη, θυγατέρα δ' ἐκτίθῃσι κἂν ἢ πλούσιος. — τρόπους: the art. is generally used with τρόπους in this const., e.g. Aristoph. Eq. 192 οὐ πρὸς μουσικοῦ ἔτ' ἐστὶν ἀνδρὸς οὐδὲ χρηστοῦ τοὺς τρόπους, Men. 235. 4 K. οὐδ' οὕτως ἀκριβῆς τοὺς τρόπους.

691 ff. From here to v. 705 the parchment is badly broken and the writing on the preserved portions difficult to decipher. We are generally able, however, ῥηλοῖς ἀληθής, ῥίλτατ', ὦν ῥάντ'. ἀλλ' ἐπὸν ῥ ῥφη ῥτι παῖς; ῥρ' οὐκ ἐμηνύθη γε πᾶν;

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ῥν καὶ δέραια καὶ βαθὺ ζυγάστριον, κόσμος προσὼν σμικρὸς δὲ τοῖς ἐκκειμένοις. [110]

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

695 ἔπειπε τᾶνδον· ἔν δὲ τούτῳ γ' εὐστοχεῖς.

to catch the drift of the dialogue. Glycera is all but convinced that Pataecus is her father, and begins here to cross-question him in order to see if he can name and describe the articles which he caused to be placed with his exposed children. The whole situation is similar to that in Eur. Ion 1412 ff., where Ion, having in his hands the vessel in which were his γνῶρίσματα, challenges Creusa καὶ τοῦνομ' αὐτῶν ἐξερεῖς πρὶν εἰσιδεῖν;

691. δηλοῖς: opt. of wish. Perhaps δείξαις should be supplied, cf. v. 598. On the const. see Kühner-Gerth § 482. 2. — ἐπόν = ἐπιτιθέν, cf. E. 250 τὸν δακτύλιον ἐπόντα. — παῖς: cf. v. 678.

693 f. Pataecus first mentions three things, all of a general nature, such as one might easily hit upon by guessing: δέραια, ζυγάστριον, κόσμος. — δέραια: see on E. 29. — βαθύ: as an epithet of a vessel Theocr. 1. 27 βαθὺ κισσύβιον. — ζυγάστριον: Pollux (7. 79 and 10. 138) mentions the word, as in use among post-classical writers, in a list of receptacles for storing clothes. Deianeira keeps the poison of Nessus κολῶν ζυγάστρῳ (Soph. Trach. 692), and Cyrus stores the treasure of Croesus in such a box (Xen. Cyrop. 6. 3. 1). — κόσμος: cf. E. 30. — δέ: the particles δέ and τε, as well as γάρ (see on v. 680), are sometimes placed late in the sentence by the later comic poets. δέ is the fourth word also in E. 309 and in Men. 555. 3 K.

695. Although only the last word (some form of εὐστοχεῖν) is free from doubt, the thought seems to be that of Eur. Ion 1426. When Creusa has described the first object correctly, Ion says ἔστιν τι πρὸς τῷδ', ἢ μόνῳ τῷδ' εὐτυχεῖς; — ἐπειπέ: tell me, further. This meaning is found e.g. in Thuc. 1.67.5 οἱ Κορινθιοὶ . . . ἐπέειπον (i.e. after the rest had spoken), Aeschin. 2. 157 ταῦθ' ὑποθεὶς ἐπέειπεν. Perhaps ἔτ' ἐπέ. — τᾶνδον: τὰ ἐν τῷ ζυγαστρῷ, cf. the proposal of Palaestra to Daemones in Plaut. Rud. 1132 ff. cistellam isti inesse oportet caudeam in isto vidulo: ibi ego dicam quicquid inerit nominatim. — εὐστοχεῖς: hit the mark, as by a happy accident, cf. Plut. Mor. 617 D ἄν τις εὐστοχεῖν δύνηται, Ephip. 14. 1 K. εὐστοχος νεανίας "a good guesser."

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

τί' οὖν ποτε; ζώνη γέ' κεῖται δηλαδή.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ἔα· σὺ τοῦτ' ἄριστα. δεῖ σέ' μοί, ἵ πάτερ,
' ἐνούσαν εἰπεῖν εἰκόν' ἐν ζώνῃ τίς ἦν.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἦν γὰρ χορὸς τε παρθένων ἐνταῦθά τις,

[115]

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ (aside)

ἦν βάδην συνήκα· (to Pataecus) καὶ τόδ' εἶπες τῶν ἐμῶν.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

χρυσῇ τε μίτρᾳ — πάντα δ' ἐκφαίνειν μ' ἐρᾷς;

886 ff. Pataecus seems to say, after a moment's reflection (τίδ' οὖν ποτε), that among the articles in the basket was a woman's girdle, cf. v. 888. In the next line (Cyclops seems to show surprise in admitting that the answer is correct, calling him for the first time "father"); then, however, to demand that he shall give a description of the girdle. — κεῖται: lies there. — ἄριστα: cf. N. 888. δεῖ σέ' μοι, κτέ.: for the demand of. Eur. Ion 1420: Cressus has named as one of the objects in the vessel a piece of cloth which she had woven as a girl. Ion asks concerning it καυρὸν ἔχον τινα: whereupon Cressus describes the embroidered pattern. — ἐνούσαν εἰπεῖν εἰκόν': the embroidered design was a part of the fabric, hence ἐν καὶ καὶ εἶναι. Cf. Eur. I. T. 816 εἰς τὸν ἑσθλόν, Ion 1421 Παρῶν αὖν ἐν κούρῳι φέρονται σκεῦη, Aristot. Or. I. 1418 εἰς αὐτὸν ἐν σκευῇ.

888 βάδην συνήκα is likewise ἀρρηκτὸν, ἀνὰ τὴν ἰσχυρίαν, cf. Aristot. Phys. 1010 ἡ ἀρρηκτὴ τῆς ἀπὸ συνήκας.

βάδην (κατὰ βραχύ schol.), Aesch. Suppl. 887 ἀραχνος ὡς βάδην. — καὶ τόδε, κτέ.: for the third time Pataecus has stood the test.

701. μίτρᾳ: headband, a circle, often of metal (cf. schol. Aristoph. Eq. 580 στλεγγίς χρυσοῦν ἑλασμα τὸ περὶ τῇ κεφαλῇ τῶν γυναικῶν), for holding the hair in place, cf. Eur. Hec. 924 πλόκαμον ἀναδέτοις μίτραισι ἐρρηθμίζεσαν. Such bands were worn by Bacchic revelers, cf. Eur. Bacch. 838 ἐπὶ κάρᾳ δ' ἔσται μίτρα, and by Dionysus himself, who is called χρυσόμιτρος in Soph. O. T. 209. The design on the girdle was Dionysus at the head of a band of Maenads, and the unfinished thought was ἀνεστρεμμένος ὁ Βάχχος αὐτός. Note that the penult of μίτρᾳ must be measured long, a quantity not found elsewhere in Attic poetry. Probably Menander wrote μίτρᾳ τε χρυσῇ. — πάντα δ' ἐκφαίνειν μ' ἐρᾷς: Pataecus expresses a not unnatural impatience with the protracted cross-examination to which he is being subjected. ἐρᾷς is quite in the manner of οὐκ' ἐτι καθέξω, φίλτατ'. ἄδικος εἰ δ' ἐγὼ—

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἄδικεῖ σ' ὅδ' υἱὸς θετοῦς ἐμός γ', ὥς φαίνεται.

πάρεμι, τοῦτον μιᾶρὸν ὥς νῦν καὶ ψέγω.

[120]

Exit into the house. Moschion comes from his hiding-place.

SC. 6. GLYCERA, MOSCHION

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (aside)

705 ὦ θεοί, τίς ἐστ' ὄνησις, εἰ μὲν ὄσπερ' ἄν

[Lacuna of perhaps ca. 100 verses to Oxyrhynchus fragment, col. i.]

Euripides. For ἐκφαίνειν cf. Eur. Hipp. 368 ἐξέφηνας εἰς φάος κακά, Soph. fr. 690. 4 N. τὸ κρυφθὲν ἐκφανείς.

702. οὐκέτι καθέξω: sc. ἐμαντήν. This intransitive use is rare in classical Greek, found, according to Jebb, only in Soph. O.T. 782 κἀγὼ βαρυνθεῖς . . . μόλις κατέσχον. But it recurs in later writers. The thought is similar to that in Plaut. Rud. 1171, where Daemones, convinced that Palaestra is his daughter, says contineri quin complectar non queo.—ἄδικος: Glycera seems to begin an apology for her persistent opposition to Pataecus: "If I have been unfair to you,—"

703. Pataecus does not permit her to finish, but takes up the topic suggested by ἄδικος. "Unfair? The unfairness has been toward you and on the part of this adopted son of mine."—θετός: Pataecus does not yet know that Moschion is his own son; how he finds out we do not know. Probably Myrrhina tells him.

704. πάρεμι: like παρέρχομαι v. 264, is sometimes used by the dramatic poets for εἰσεμι (ἐρχομαι), either with or without εἰς or εἰσω, of one who goes from the scene into the house. Cf. Eur. Ion 229 μὴ πάρῃτ' εἰς μυχόν, Hel. 451 ἀλλ' εἰσω πάρεμι, Soph. El. 1337 εἰσω παρέλθετε, Eur. Med. 1275 παρέλθω δόμους.—ὥς: see on v. 671.—ψέγω: he does not, as a matter of fact, see Moschion until the last scene of the play.

705. On the transition from the iambic rhythm to the trochaic see on v. 147.—τίς ἐστ' ὄνησις: cf. Eur. Bacch. 473 ἔχει δ' ὄνησιν τοῖσι θύουσιν τίνα; Moschion apparently does not finish the sentence, for a change of speaker is indicated by the paragraphus; but his thought seems to be "What advantage is it to a man to lose a sweetheart and gain a sister?" He cannot look upon the outcome of his silly wooing with any satisfaction.

Moschion probably takes part in several other scenes: first with Glycera; then, after Glycera enters the house, with Davus, who well deserves a scolding; and finally with Pataecus. The last misunderstanding which is to be cleared up, except that under which

ACT V

At the beginning of the final act Polemon learns from Doris that Glycera is Moschion's sister and that her father is the wealthy Pataecus. She is a free-born girl and a formal marriage with her would now be legally possible. But now his act of jealous rage seems more unpardonable than ever. When he meets Doris he is in the depths of despair.

POLEMON, DORIS

| | | | |
|-----|--------------------|---------|--------------|
| | - - - - - | ν : | Oxyr. col. i |
| | - - - - - | μοι | |
| | - - - - - | ἄσμενος | |
| | - - - - - | λόγος | |
| 810 | - - - - - | | |
| | - - - - - | λέγεις | |
| | - - - - - | ων | |
| | [Lacuna of 19 vv.] | | |
| | - - - - - | ι | |
| | [Lacuna of 10 vv.] | | |
| | - - - - - | ν | |
| | [Lacuna of 3 vv.] | | |
| | - - - - - | ας : | |
| | - - - - - | | |
| | - - - - - | ν | |
| 850 | - - - - - | ως | |
| | - - - - - | τα | |
| | [Lacuna of 4 vv.] | | |

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

857 ἵν' ἐμαντὸν ἀποπνίξαιμι.

Polemon labors, is between Myrrhina and Pataecus. From her Pataecus learns that Moschion is his son, not hers; and she asks and receives forgiveness for her deception.

857. ἀποπνίξαιμι: the mood shows that Polemon is telling how he had felt when he learned that Glycera had left him. In v. 382 he had threatened to hang himself; but it is not his present

ΔΩΡΙΣ

μὴ δὴ τοῦτό γε. ¹

Oxyr. col. ii.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ἀλλὰ τί ποήσω, Δωρί; πῶς βιώσομαι, ὁ τρισκακοδαίμων, χωρὶς ὧν;

ΔΩΡΙΣ

ὥς φησι νῦν, ¹

860 ἄπεισιν ὥς σέ—

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

πρὸς θεῶν, οἷον λέγεις. ¹

ΔΩΡΙΣ

ἐὰν προθυμηθῇς ἀκάκως τὸν θένδ' ἔχειν. ¹

[5]

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

οὐκ ἐνλίποιμ' ἂν οὐθέν, εὖ τοῦτ' ἴσθ', ἐγώ.
ὑπέρευ λέγεις. βάδιζ'. ἐγὼ δ' ἔλευθέραν αὔριον ἀφήσω, Δωρί, σ'. ¹

Doris hastily turns to go.

ἀλλ' ὁ δέῃ λέγειν ¹

865 ἄκουσον.

She enters the house.

εἰσελήλυθ'. οἴμοι, μάργ' Ἔρωσ, ¹ purpose (v. 869). — τοῦτό γε: cf. Soph. Phil. 763 μὴ δῆτα τοῦτό γε. Menander's Ctesipho in the original of Terence's Adelphi proposed to commit suicide, but in Terence he meditates flight; see Donatus on Ad. 275.

860. ἄπεισιν: she'll come back, cf. v. 599 ἀλλ' ἀπιθι μηδὲν ἤττον. The vb. acquires the meaning "return" only as the quoted word of Glycera, who had said, in effect, ἀπειμ (πάλιν) πρὸς Πολέμωνα.

861. ἐὰν προθυμῇθης, κτέ.: still the quoted words of Glycera.

863. ὑπερεῦ: cf. E. 308. — ἐλευθέραν: the usual reward of faithful slaves in comedy.

864. For the position of σε after a voc. cf. S. 46 αὐτὴ καλεῖ, τίτθῃ, σε, and 411 ἀδικεῖς, Δημέα, με. — By sending Doris from the scene before she receives explicit instructions the poet avoids tedious repetition. A similar device in v. 178.

865. μάργ' Ἔρωσ: Polemon's besetting sin, which got him into all this trouble, is jealousy, due to his ardent love of Glycera. He can therefore ὡς κατὰ κράτος μ' εἰληφας. ἐφίλησεν τότε [10] ἀδελφόν, οὐχὶ μοιχόν, ὃ δ' ἄλᾶστωρ ἐγὼ 862 K.

 καὶ ζηλότυπος ἄνθρωπος, ἀνακρίναι δέον, εὐθὺς ἐπαρφύουν. τοιγαροῦν ἀπηγχόμην, 870 καλῶς ποῶν. ἐξέρχεται Δωρίς.
 τί ἐστι, Δωρὶ φιλτάτη;

ΔΩΡΙΣ

ἀγαθὰ · πορεύσεθ' ὡς σέ.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

κατεγέλα δ' ἐμοῦ. [15]

ΔΩΡΙΣ

μὰ τὴν Ἀφροδίτην, ἀλλ' ἐνεδύετο στολήν, ὃ πατὴρ ἐπεξήταζ'. ἐχρῆν σε νῦν θύειν properly accuse "furious Eros" of having overwhelmed him. For the epithet cf. Alem. 56 Cr. μάργος δ' Ἔρως οἷα παῖσι παῖσδει, Non. Dionys. 48. 277 μάργος Ἔρως ἐρέθιζεν, Apoll. Rhod. 3. 120.

866. κατὰ κράτος: cf. vv. 268, 356. Polemon is fond of military language, cf. vv. 353, 361.

867. Polemon has not seen Pataecus, his ambassador, since v. 402. Doris must therefore have told him the truth in the earlier part of this scene. — ἀλᾶστωρ: accursed wretch. The lexicographers (Phot. Berl., E.M., Bekk. Anec. 374.22) define as ἀμαρτωλός, ἀλιτήριος. Like Charisius in the Epitrepontes (v. 679), Polemon in his contrition now sees how unpardonable his conduct was.

868. ἀνακρίναι δέον: when I ought to have inquired into the matter. This was his intention at first, see v. 39. Cf.

E. 299, Men. Georg., fr. Gen., v. 67 τοῦ μειρακίου τὰ πράγματ' ἀνέκρινεν.

869. εὐθὺς ἐπαρφύουν: I forthwith proceeded to play the drunken fool. The impf. is often used in narrative with an adv. of rapidity, see Gildersleeve Syn. § 206. παροιμία (cf. v. 903) is not drunkenness but the act of a drunken, or rather tipsy, man; cf. Arist. Prob. 871A9 οὐχ ὁ σφόδρα μεθύοντες παροινούσιν, ἀλλ' οἱ ἀκροθώρακες μάλιστα. Cf. E. 255. — ἀπηγχόμην: I wanted to hang myself, the impf. of past intention, a variety of the conative.

870. καλῶς ποῶν: cf. Aristoph. Plut. 863 καλῶς τοίνυν ποιῶν ἀπόλλυται. — The scenic directions in Greek are written in the papyrus above the line or in the margin.

871. κατεγέλα δ' ἐμοῦ: the impf. takes us back to the time, a moment before, when Glycera announced her intention, πορεύσομαι ὡς αὐτόν.

εὐαγγέλια τῶν γεγονότων · ἀσεβὲς πάνν⁷ 875 ὅ στένειν ἐκείνης εὐτυχηκυίας τῷδε.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

νῆ τὸν Δί', ὀρθῶς γὰρ λέγεις ὁ δεῖ ποεῖν.⁷ [20]
ὁ μάγειρος ἔνδον ἐστί· τὴν ὕν θυέτω.

ΔΩΡΙΣ

κανοῦν δὲ ποῦ, καὶ τᾷλλ' ᾧ δεῖ;

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

κανοῦν μὲν οὖν⁷
ὑστερον ἐνάρξεται, ἀλλὰ ταύτην σφᾶττέτω.

873. ἐπεξήταξε: was passing her in review again, i.e. was feasting his eyes on her, dressed up in her best clothes. The vb. apparently does not recur, but the noun is used by Thuc. 6. 42 ἐπεξέτασιν (a fresh review) τοῦ στρατεύματος ἐποίησαντο. Note the asyndeton.—θύειν εὐαγγέλια: a formal phrase, see Pauly-Wissowa Encycl. s. εὐαγγέλια, and for the custom cf. Aristoph. Eq. 1320 τίν' ἔχων φήμην ἀγαθὴν ἦκεις, ἐφ' ὅτῳ κνιζώμεν ἀγνιάς; The vb. θύειν with ὕ at the end of the verse also in Eur. El. 1141 (MSS.), Aristoph. Ach. 792.

874. ἀσεβὲς: as depriving the gods of their dues. Pentheus, for example, ἀσεβειαν ἥσκει in not recognizing the rites of Bacchus, Eur. Bacch. 476. But Doris uses the word loosely.

877. A cook happened to be in the house presumably because Polemon had invited his guests, whom he had earlier entertained in the country (v. 55), to a banquet at home in the evening. The cook assisted at domestic sacrifices, cf. Athen. 659D θυτικῆς ἦσαν ἔμπεριοὶ παλαιότεροι μάγειροι· προϊστατο γοῦν καὶ γαμῶν καὶ θυσιῶν, Poseid. 26. 19 K. διακονοῦμεν νῦν γάμους· τὸ θῆμα βοῦς.

878 ff. κανοῦν, κτέ.: cf. Aristoph. Pac. 948 τὸ κανοῦν πάρεστ' ὅλας ἔχον καὶ στέμμα καὶ μάχαιραν, καὶ πῦρ γε τουτί, κούδεν ἰσχει πλὴν τὸ πρόβατον ὕμᾱς,—a situation just the opposite of that here, where nothing but the victim is ready. Before the victim was slain the basket was carried around the altar (Pac. 956 τὸ κανοῦν λαβὼν σὺ καὶ τὴν χέρνιβα περιῖθι τὸν βωμὸν ταχέως ἐπιδέξια, Eur. H. F. 926 ἐν κύκλῳ δ' ἤδη κανοῦν εἰλικοτο βωμοῦ), barley grains scattered upon the head of the victim, and the fillets attached to it. This rite was described as κανοῦν ἐνάρχεσθαι, cf. also S. 8.—μὲν οὖν: immo, often so used in answers, modifying or correcting a suggestion, e.g. Soph. O. T. 705 μάντιν μὲν οὖν, Aristoph. Eq. 13 λέγε σύ.—σὺ μὲν οὖν. See Kühner-Gerth § 507. 2c. Polemon impatiently brushes aside all formalities, though sanctioned by immemorial custom: Never mind the basket, that rite will come later!

880 μᾶλλον δὲ καὶ γὰρ στέφανον ἀπὸ βωμοῦ ποθεν ἔ ἀφελὼν ἐπιθέσθαι βούλομαι.

Takes a garland from the altar of Apollo, near the door, and puts it on his head.

ΔΩΡΙΣ (mockingly)

πιθανώτερος ἔ

[25]

πολλῷ φανεῖ γούν.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ἄγετε νῦν Γλυκέραν ταχύ.

ΔΩΡΙΣ

καὶ μὴν ἔμελλεν ἐξιέναι δὴ χῶ πατήρ.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

αὐτός; Hears the door rattle.

τί γὰρ πάθῃ τις;

εἰσέρχεται Πολέμων.

ΔΩΡΙΣ

ὦ τᾶν, ἀποδραμεῖ;

880. A garland was ordinarily taken from the basket by the sacrificer, schol. Aristoph. Pac. 848 ἐκέκρυπτο ἐν τῷ κανῷ ἡ μάχαιρα ταῖς δλαῖς καὶ τοῖς στέμμασιν. Polemon proposes to appropriate one from an altar near by. Glancing about him, he sees a wreath on the altar of Apollo Agnieus (v. 242, E. 785) and puts it on his head.

881. πιθανώτερος: more plausible in speech, as he must needs be to make an acceptable excuse to Glycera. The orators in the assembly put on garlands before addressing the people. Or possibly Doris meant more natural, more true to your rôle as sacrificer, cf. the question which Socrates put to the sculptor in Xen. Mem. 3. 10. 7 ὁμοιότερά τε τοῖς ἀληθινοῖς καὶ πιθανώτερα ποιεῖς φάινεσθαι; and Aristoph. Thesm. 286 ὅπως τῷ φθέγματι γυναικεῖς εἶ καὶ πιθανῶς. Polemon, at any rate, sees the former meaning only, for now that he is crowned he is ready for Glycera, and forgets for the moment about the sacrifice.

884. τί γὰρ πάθῃ τις: what is to become of one? τί γὰρ πάθω; is the more usual formula. τις is often so used for the first pers., e.g. Aristoph. Thesm. 603 ποῖ τις τρέψεται; Polemon is afraid to see Pataecus because, since their last meeting (v. 402), Glycera has been found to be the latter's daughter. As her father, Pataecus would justly, he feels, be angry with the man who had treated Glycera with such indignity and had suspected her of infidelity. At the critical moment the brave soldier becomes panicky. — τᾶν: cf. S. 375. — ἀποδραμεῖ: or οὐ μενεῖς.

885 οὗ τοι δράκοντός ἐστι τὴν θύραν φοφείν.
εἴσειμι καὶ τὴν συμποήσουσ', εἴ τι δεῖ.

[30]

Exit Doris into the house of Polemon. Enter Pataecus and Glycera from the house of Pataecus.

PATAECUS, GLYCERA

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

πάνν σου φιλῶ τὸ "συνδιαλλαχθήσομαι."
ὅτ' εὐτύχης, τότε δέχ' εἶσθαι τὴν δίκην, τεκμήριον τοῦτ' ἐστὶν Ἑλλήνος τρόπου.
(To a slave)

890 ἀλλ' ἐκκαλείτω τις δρᾶμῶν αὐτὸν ταχύ.

Enter Polemon from his house.

885. A dragon can't rattle the door. Doris hurls this taunt at Polemon as he runs toward his house. The terror which he shows when he hears the door creak naturally suggests to Doris the thought of a man jumping back at sight of a snake. Cf. Hom. Il. 3. 33 (Paris at sight of Menelaus) ὡς δ' ὅτε τίς τε δράκοντα ἰδὼν παλίνροσος ἀπέστη . . . ὑπὸ τε τρόμος ἔλλαβε γυῖα, ἀψ' δ' ἀνεχώρησεν, ὥχρος τέ μιν εἶλε παρείας, ὡς αὖτις καθ' ὄμιλον ἔδν . . . δέϊσας Ἀτρείος υἱόν, Verg. Aen. 2. 379 inprovisum aspris veluti qui sentibus anguem pressit humi nitens trepidusque repente refugit. But the text is very uncertain. On φοφείν used trans. see on E. 660.

887. φιλῶ: like, approve, = ἐπαινῶ. — συνδιαλλαχθήσομαι: I'll do my part (syn-) in making up with him, quoted as having been spoken by Glycera just before they left the house.

888. τὴν δίκην: the satisfaction that is offered, i.e. a contrite apology and a promise of better behavior in the future. Polemon δίκην δίδωσι, Glycera δέχεται. The expression δίδοναι καὶ δέχε-σθαι τὰ δίκαια (Thuc. 1. 37. 5, cf. 5. 59. 5) is a formula of complete reciprocity in contractual or treaty relations.

889. Ἑλλήνος τρόπου: true Hellenic character. In Eur. Orest. 494 Menelaus is denounced as not having grasped the high Hellenic conception of justice, ὅστις τὸ μὲν δίκαιον οὐκ ἐσκήψατο οὐδ' ἤλθεν ἐπὶ τὸν κοινὸν Ἑλλήνων νόμον.

890. δρᾶμών: cf. Aristoph. Plut. 222 ἀλλ' ἴθι σὺ μὲν ταχέως δρᾶμών. — An analysis of the entrances and exits in this passage shows that at least four actors were employed to present this play, — a fact established by two four-actor scenes; see on vv. 354, 905. Polemon and Doris retire (vv. 884, 886) just before Pataecus and Glycera appear (v. 887), and Polemon reappears immediately (v. 891). The actor who carried the part of Doris would not have had time to change costume and appear as Glycera. Furthermore, the parts of two characters so diverse as Polemon and Doris could not be doubled; therefore the impersonator of Doris cannot have come back as Polemon, if the interval were sufficient

PATAECUS, GLYCERA, POLEMON

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ἐξέρχομ'. ἀλλ' ἔθνον ὑπὲρ εὐπραξίας,¹ [35] Ἰλκεῖραν ὑπάρ εὐρηκυῖαν οὐς ἔβούλετο πύθόμενός.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ὀρθῶς γὰρ λέγεις, ἃ δ' οὖν ἐγώ μέλλω λέγειν ἄκουε· ταύτην γνήσιον¹ 720 K.
 895 παίδων ἐπ' ἀρότῳ σοι δίδωμι.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

λαμβάνω.¹

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

καὶ προῖκα τρία τάλαντα.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

καὶ καλῶς τόδε.¹ [40] for a change of costume. But he may possibly appear in v. 904 as Moschion.

891. ἔθνον: I was about to sacrifice (see on v. 869), — a lame explanation of his panicky flight.

892. ὑπαρ: in very truth, lit. a waking vision, the realization of something desired but scarcely hoped for. The contrast with δναρ, a mere dream, is always felt in thought and usually expressed, cf. Plat. Legg. 969B ὄντως δὲ ἔσται σχεδὸν ὑπαρ ἀποτελεσμένον, οὐ σμικρῷ πρόσθεν οὐκ εἰρατος ὡς τῷ λόγῳ ἐφηψάμεθα. — For the two initial anapaests see on vv. 276, 278.

893. Pataecus at once puts Polemon at his ease by approving: A good idea. The sacrifice ὑπὲρ εὐπραξίας will be turned into a γαμηλία θυσία.

894 ff. ἄκουε: the pure fun-making is now over, and the poet proceeds rapidly to collect the loose strands of his plot in order to bring the play to a close. — γνήσιον παίδων ἐπ' ἀρότῳ: a version of the marriage formula to which this passage gave a wide currency in antiquity; a variant ἐπὶ σπορῇ in schol. Eur. Andr. 4. The essential part of the formula, as distinguishing the legal marriage from the unsanctioned connection, involved the idea of παιδοποιία. E.g. Andromache contrasts her relation to Neoptolemus as his concubine with her former honorable position δοθεῖσα παιδοποιός Ἐκτορι, Eur. Andr. 4. Cf. E. 330 and note. The figure derived from plowing and sowing is common in all antiquity in connection with marriage. — λαμβάνω: the vox propria for the bridegroom, probably from the regular formula, cf. Men. 583 K. αὐτὸν δίδωσιν, οὐκ ἐκείτην λαμβάνει.

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

τὸ λοιπὸν ἐπιλαθοῦ στρατιώτης ὦν, ὅπως προπετὲς ποιήσης μηδὲ ἐν τοὺς σοὺς φίλους.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

* Ἀπολλων· ὃς καὶ νῦν ἀπόλωλα παρ' ὀλίγον, 900 πάλιν τι πράξω προπετὲς; οὐδὲ μῆν ὄναρ,
Γλυκέρα· διαλλάγηθι, φιλτάτη, μῶνον.

[45]

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

νῦν μὲν γὰρ ἡμῖν γέγονεν ἀρχὴ πραγμάτων ἀγαθῶν τὸ σὸν ἀροῖνον.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

ὀρθῶς, ὦ φίλη.

ΓΑΤΚΕΡΑ

διὰ τοῦτο συγγνώμης τετύχηκας ἐξ ἐμοῦ.

ΠΟΛΕΜΩΝ

905 σύνθυε δὴ, Πάταιχ'.

From this passage we learn that the action of this play is laid in Corinth, for there the Corinthian soldier could contract a legal marriage with the daughter of Pataecus, a Corinthian. But a Corinthian could not marry an Athenian girl. See on v. 381.

898. προπετὲς: Polemon was inclined to be impulsive, cf. σφοδρὸς v. 8.

899. Ἀπολλων* . . . ἀπόλωλα: cf. E. 692 σῶτερ . . . σῶξέ με. This manner of playing upon the name of the god invoked is common, cf. Archil. 20 Cr. Ἀπολλων*, . . . ὅλλυ' ὥσπερ ὀλλύεις, Aesch. Ag. 1081 Ἀπολλων ἀγνιάτ'*, ἀπόλλων ἐμός, Eur. fr. 781. 11 N. ὦ καλλιφεγγὲς Ἥλι', ὥς μ' ἀπόλεσας καὶ τόνδ'. Ἀπόλλων δ' ἐν βροτοῖς ὀρθῶς καλῇ*.

900. οὐδὲ μῆν ὄναρ: see on v. 289 and cf. Eur. fr. 107 N. οὐδ' ὄναρ κατ' εὐφρόνην φίλοις ἔδειξεν αὐτόν, Plat. Theaet. 173 D οὐδὲ ὄναρ πράττειν (ταῦτα) προσίσταται αὐτοῖς, Herond. 1. 11 πέντε που δοκέω μῆνες, ἐξ οὗ σε, Γρυλλίς, οὐδ' ὄναρ . . . εἶδέ τις.

902. ἀρχὴ πραγμάτων ἀγαθῶν: referring to the εὐπραξία (v. 889) of Glycera, cf. v. 45 ἀρχὴν ἵνα λάβοι μὴνύσεως . . . τούς θ' αὐτῶν ποτε εὐροίεν. Pure happiness radiates from these simple words of Glycera, spoken with exquisite delicacy and grace.

903. τὸ σὸν ἀροῖνον: see on v. 869. This is precisely as Agnoia had planned, vv. 43 ff.

905. The scenic direction, Πολέμων εἰσεισι· Πάταικος, written above σύνθυε, does not accurately represent the ἑτέρους ζήτητέον'

ΠΑΤΑΙΚΟΣ

ἐστὶν γάμους μοι· τῷ γὰρ υἱῷ λαμβάνω' [50]

τὴν τοῦ Φιλίνου θυγατέρ'. Moschion comes from his hiding-place.

PATAECUS, GLYCERA, POLEMON, MOSCHION

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ὦ Γῆ καὶ θεοί.'

[A few verses are lacking.]

actions of the speakers here. Polemon doubtless starts toward his house with Glycera, but he turns to hear the answer of Pataecus to his invitation.

907. Φιλίνου: see above, p. 142. — ὦ Γῆ καὶ θεοί: this exclamation, which follows the announcement by Pataecus of his intentions regarding Moschion, could not well proceed from any one but Moschion himself. We have only to suppose that Moschion has been eaves-dropping again, as in vv. 427 ff., 585 ff., and in the recognition scene vv. 646 ff. The statement of Pataecus so startles him that he betrays his presence.

The appearance of Moschion at this point permits the poet to conclude the play in a few more verses. Pataecus had left the scene at v. 704 intending to administer a severe rebuke to Moschion. Moschion had heard him announce his purpose and has since taken good care not to come into his sight. He is now obliged to show himself. In the presence of Polemon and Glycera Pataecus probably gives him a reprimand and a warning and requires his consent to the marriage which he has hurriedly arranged for him. Four persons are present in the final scene, as in vv. 344 ff., 631 ff. We know nothing about Philinus or his daughter. They seem to have no part in the action of the play. In Ter. Heauton, Chremes announces in a similar way at the end of the last scene his wishes for Clinia: 1056 uxorem ut ducas. Cl. pater! . . . perii. 1060 Ch. gnate mi, ego pol tibi dabo illam lepidam, quam tu facile ames, filiam Phanocratae nostri. Cl. rufamne illam virginem, caesiam, sparso ore, adunco naso? non possum, pater.

ΣΛΜΙΑ

THE SAMIA

The title of the fourth comedy contained in the codex of Aphroditopolis is uncertain; but, as M. Lefebvre justly observes, the importance of the rôle of Chrysis the Samian girl (so called in vv. 53 and 142) naturally leads to the tentative identification of this play with the Samian Girl¹ of Menander, a play from which we have but a single line, quoted with the title by Phrynichus the Atticist. This line happens not to recur in the new manuscript, but is of a content not inappropriate to it. Of this play we have in round numbers 344 lines, of which the text is in fairly good condition. The preserved text falls into two continuous sections of 204 and 140 lines respectively, separated by a lacuna of 140 lines. There are therefore lost from the beginning and end of the play approximately 500 lines. These scenes from the central part of the comedy unfortunately do not supply us with sufficient information to enable us to reconstruct the plot with any considerable degree of certainty. We know, however, who the principal characters are, and to a certain extent the situation in which they find themselves at the time the action begins.

Demeas, a well-to-do Athenian citizen of middle age, is living with Chrysis, a free-born (v. 375) Samian girl, whom he had once rescued from a position of great poverty (vv. 165 ff.)—in fact had literally taken from the streets if we may believe his angry denunciation (v. 136)—and had placed in charge of his household (vv. 46, 201). He is evidently deeply attached to Chrysis and she to him. Doubtless only the fact that she is foreign-born has prevented him from making her his lawful wife. Another member of the household is Moschion, an adopted son (v. 134) of Demeas, a young man of rather romantic turn of mind (vv. 414 ff.) who has been, as Demeas at any rate supposes (vv. 61, 132), exemplary in his conduct, and certainly loyal and obedient in his relations with his adoptive father (vv. 62, 133). But Demeas and Moschion, a short time previous to the action of the play, have had a serious quarrel (vv. 120 f.); Moschion had offended his father and had for a time resented the latter's treatment of him. We do not know the occasion of the misunderstanding, but may reasonably surmise that it was due to a report, which had reached the ears of Demeas, of his son's entanglement in a love affair with a girl whom Demeas does not know, but who is so poor that Moschion cannot hope that she would be thought an acceptable wife for him. However this may be, Moschion had made satisfactory explanations to his father (v. 122), and now, when the latter has proposed to settle him in life and remove him from temptation by marrying him to Plangon (v. 428), the daughter of Niceratus, a poor neighbor, Moschion, much to his father's surprise, has readily accepted the arrangement. In fact, the alacrity with which Moschion fell in with the plan caused Demeas to suspect that the girl with whom his son was really in love was Plangon (vv. 122 ff.). And this was indeed the case, for Plangon is the girl of whom Moschion was enamored and whom he had sworn to marry (v. 422), apparently without having made any definite plans to carry out his intention. It so happens that the proposal by Demeas of an immediate marriage with Plangon comes at a most fortunate time for Moschion, for matters have gone so far with the young people that Plangon has just given birth to a child. To save her from reproach Moschion has taken the child over to his father's house (vv. 447 ff.), placing it in the care of an old woman who had been his own nurse in infancy. We do not know what other persons may be in the secret, but Plangon's mother certainly is (v. 356), and also Parmenon, Moschion's confidential slave (vv. 447 ff.). But neither of the two fathers has the slightest inkling of what is going on, and pains have been taken that their suspicions shall not be aroused.

¹ The possibility of a double title Σαμία ἡ Τίτθη is suggested by Harmon, who points out the striking similarity of the "Samia" and Caecilius' Titthe.

The situation in the household of Demeas is apparently still further complicated by the fact that Chrysis has secretly borne a child to Demeas himself. Of this we cannot, perhaps, be absolutely certain, but a number of allusions point to this conclusion. In the first place Chrysis is a mother, for she is seen in the act of giving her breast to a baby (v. 54).¹ She has importuned Demeas for permission to rear a child, whom she professes to have found (vv. 66, 162, 175, 198). In the second place, Parmenon declares under oath to Demeas (vv. 102 f.) that Demeas himself is the father of the child and that Chrysis is its mother; and when Demeas tries to make him acknowledge that Moschion is the father, Parmenon apparently adheres to his original assertion and refuses to clear up the mystery (v. 108). The slave's frankness in telling Demeas about the child which he calls Chrysis' and his reticence when it is a question of involving Moschion are both accounted for by the assumption that there is a second child of which Parmenon has knowledge, while Demeas knows of but one (vv. 106 ff.). And, finally, the concluding scenes of the second act can hardly be understood except upon the assumption that the child which Niceratus threatens to kill is a different child from that which Plangon has borne to Moschion. It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that both Chrysis² and Plangon have recently given birth to children; that Chrysis, concealing the fact from Demeas, perhaps because she knows that he does not care to rear a family, has told him that the child which she has in her possession is a foundling, and has with difficulty won his consent to her keeping it; that Moschion, not knowing what else to do with Plangon's child, has put it in charge of his old nurse until a better arrangement should present itself. On this hypothesis we should have to assume that Chrysis, who was the manager of Demeas' house, was a party to Moschion's secret; but she was too loyal a woman to betray it to Demeas, even when such a course would have been in her own interest.

¹ It has been suggested that Chrysis, though a childless woman, gave her breast to the child, playing the mother to it; or that she simply held it to her bosom, but Demeas, excited and suspicious, imagined he saw in her act a confirmation of his fears. The second alternative is a possible one, but there is no hint in the extant text to support it, and, besides, the suspicion of Demeas had not in the least been directed toward Chrysis until he saw her nursing the child. The first suggestion is extremely improbable. There is nothing morbid about Chrysis. And in the struggle with Niceratus (v. 357) she fights for the possession of the child as if it were her own.

² Presumably during an absence of Demeas from home.

That the Samia is a comedy whose plot leads up to a recognition, by which the chief characters are restored to their proper station in life, is obvious. The heroine, a Samian orphan girl, as she and her protector suppose, is destined to be revealed as the daughter of an Athenian citizen and joined in lawful wedlock to Demeas. As in the other comedies of Menander that belong to this general type, the favorite procedure of the poet is to show us the characters in the midst of a serious crisis which leads to all possible misunderstandings. The clearing up of these misunderstandings inevitably leads to disclosures regarding the persons who are living under false conditions. In the Samia, as we interpret its plot, Menander is true to his method. Chrysis is launched upon a course which is bound to keep her in the position of mistress of Demeas and recipient of his bounty, compelled to rear in secret as a foundling a child which, if the truth were known, would occupy an honorable position in life. Some incident must arise which shall turn events from their normal course. The subordinate plot, in which Moschion and Plangon are the chief factors, provides such an incident. The presence of two babies in the house on the day of the marriage sets the machinery of the plot in motion. Demeas by chance overhears the old nurse crooning over Moschion's child, which he supposes to be the foundling, and referring to it as Moschion's (vv. 30 ff.). A moment later he sees Chrysis in another part of the house with a baby at her breast, — the same baby, he naturally assumes. He jumps to the conclusion that the child which he has been led to believe was a foundling is the Samian girl's own offspring, — as it really is, — and that Moschion is its father. Beside himself with grief, he takes the spectators into his confidence in the speech with which the second act opens, and again after his suspicions have been confirmed, as he thinks, by the reticence of the slave Parmenon. The previous conduct of Moschion has been such that Demeas cannot believe that he has wantonly committed so outrageous a breach of loyalty toward him. Chrysis, the woman of unknown origin, must have enticed the boy to this act. She must be dismissed from the house. As for Moschion, his reputation must be protected at all hazards. Demeas will not breathe a word of suspicion against him, even to Chrysis. This resolution of Demeas (v. 141) has an important bearing on the plot. Explanations are impossible, since no charge is made. The dénouement, which might have come speedily, is postponed by what seems to be an inextricable tangle of misunderstandings in which the characters are involved. They talk at cross purposes continually.

We have no means of knowing how the scenes of the first act were managed, nor who spoke the prologue of exposition, if there was one. It is clear, however, that the spectators have already had the present situation fully explained to them before the speech of Demeas, and that the action proper does not begin until after this speech. We are therefore justified in assigning the speech to the first scene of the second act. After a short scene between Parmenon and the Cook, which serves to bring us back into the current of activities, Demeas tries to learn the truth from Parmenon. And Parmenon does tell him the truth so far as the supposed foundling is concerned, though Demeas cannot believe it, especially since the slave, loyal to his young master, is evasive on the subject of the child which Demeas has heard called Moschion's. Accordingly Chrysis is driven from the house. She is seen by Niceratus, who offers her protection.

At this point comes the long break in the manuscript. When the text is resumed we find Demeas and Niceratus¹ in the midst of a conversation. Demeas has in the meantime learned from somebody (vv. 349, 413), presumably from Moschion himself (for to no third person would Demeas have divulged his suspicion that Moschion had sustained improper relations with Chrysis), that the mother of Moschion's child is Plangon and not Chrysis. But he has learned nothing about the child whom he saw Chrysis nursing; in fact he seems to forget the significance of that incident, so pleased is he to have proved Moschion's innocence. Niceratus also seems to have had an interview with Moschion after the latter's confession to his father. Chrysis has told Niceratus that Demeas has driven her from his house because of the child which she has taken to rear (v. 198), although she cannot understand his sudden outburst of rage against her in view of his having previously given his consent to her taking it. Niceratus is no doubt curious to know something more about this child, now under his protection, which Demeas has been so foolish (v. 199) as to take into his household, and whose presence there has led Demeas to commit so outrageous an act against Chrysis. Moschion is in a position to satisfy his curiosity. When questioned on the subject, Moschion would have no scruples about telling frankly what he and everybody else believed to be the truth, viz. that the child had been found by Chrysis and that its parents are unknown.¹ Possessed of this information Niceratus meets Demeas. Demeas is now very happy that his suspicions against Chrysis and Moschion have proved false, and is eager to make his peace with Chrysis and to take her back to his home. As for the lesser deception which Moschion has practiced upon him, in concealing his intrigue with Plangon and in secreting the child in his house, this does not disturb him at all; the marriage will set matters right so far as Plangon is concerned. Demeas is anxious, however, to guard Moschion's secret at all hazards, and a simple expedient for keeping the knowledge of it from Niceratus occurs to him. By telling Niceratus that his daughter has given birth to an illegitimate child, but that Moschion is ready to marry her in spite of this misfortune, Demeas hopes that Niceratus, in his chagrin, will be glad enough to accept the situation without pressing too seriously into the question of the child's father.

¹ οἰκτοῦ, used by Demeas in v. 347 with reference to Niceratus, requires us to assume that the latter is the other interlocutor in the preceding conversation.

This hypothesis regarding the lost scenes that intervened between vv. 204 and 345 will, it is believed, be found consistent with the indications furnished by the extant text and helpful in rendering

¹ It is only by assuming such a conversation between Niceratus and Moschion on the subject of the child that we can account for the words and actions of the former in the scenes which follow the lacuna. He says that Moschion has hoodwinked and deluded him (vv. 384, 397), and this has generally been interpreted as indicating that Niceratus suspects Moschion of being the child's father. But there is no indication of any such suspicion, nor of any desire on Moschion's part to escape marrying Plangon. Rather, Moschion has told Niceratus something which the latter, now that he has been enlightened by Demeas, regards as a falsehood. The most important communication which Demeas makes to Niceratus is that Plangon has borne a child and that this child is now in Niceratus' house with Chrysis. Moschion must therefore have told Niceratus that Chrysis' child is a foundling.

intelligible the highly interesting conversation of the two fathers, interrupted by the assault of Niceratus upon Chrysis, which follows the lacuna. When Niceratus is told by Demeas that Plangon has a child and that this child is the foundling which Chrysis has taken in charge, he rushes into his house without waiting for the further explanations of Demeas. In the house he finds his wife and daughter with Chrysis and her baby. He accuses the women of concealing from him the fact that this baby is Plangon's child. They protest, and truthfully, that it is not (v. 356). Threatening to kill the child if they do not confess the truth, he tries to seize it from the arms of Chrysis. Her resistance infuriates him, and he decides to resort to extreme measures, if necessary, to get possession of the child (v. 359). With the assistance of Demeas Chrysis makes her escape, but not until the two men have come to blows. With delightful irony the poet makes Demeas assert that the child is his own. Finally Niceratus is calmed, — not, we may be sure, by the silly argument by which Demeas pretends to prove that Plangon has been visited by Zeus, but rather by the repeated assurances of Demeas that the marriage will take place in spite of Plangon's misfortune.

Of the extant text there remains to consider only the beginning of the third act, in which another complication is introduced. Moschion proposes to show a manly resentment of his father's unjust suspicion. He cannot actually go to the wars, for he is in honor and love bound to Plangon; but he will pretend that he is going, and after Demeas has implored him to remain he will yield an apparently reluctant consent. We cannot see what bearing the development of this motive could have upon the main plot. Very likely these scenes were introduced merely as amusing by-play to delay the dénouement.

The manner in which the complication was solved so far as Chrysis and her child are concerned we can only conjecture. No clues survive in the extant text which give any intimation of the way in which the truth was revealed. A natural means of disclosing the identity of the child would have been to bring the two infants together before the eyes of Demeas, just as the misunderstandings of the Menaechmi are finally cleared up by a personal meeting of the two brothers. Explanations would be demanded and given. The discovery that Chrysis is an Athenian girl of good family may have been managed, as in the Andria, by the timely arrival of a stranger in the fifth act; this would be after Chrysis has been obliged to acknowledge the child as her own. In any event, we can have little doubt that the play closed with an announcement of a double wedding.

The originality of the Samia depends rather upon the plot than upon the characters. Demeas and Niceratus are typical fathers of the New Comedy, possessed of substantial, if rather elementary, virtues, but more remarkable for their readiness to believe the most improbable things without due inquiry and their tendency to fly into a rage at the slightest provocation. Moschion and his slave Parmenon do not vary much from the familiar characters of young man and confidential slave of the better sort. The Cook seems to have a minor rôle of the usual mageiric type. It is likely that Plangon did not appear upon the scene. Of Trypha, whose name is furnished by the quotation, we know nothing; she may have been the maid-servant of the wife of Niceratus and may not have had a speaking part. The character of Chrysis was probably clothed with rather more individuality than that of the average young woman of the New Comedy, if we may judge by the one extant scene in which she plays an important part.

As a play, however, the Samia reveals Menander in a new light as the author of a farcical comedy, to which the nearest analogy among the existing specimens of the New Comedy is the Menaechmi of Plautus. The original of the Menaechmi was composed a generation after Menander's death, so that Menander may have been an innovator in this direction also. In a farcical comedy like the Samia or the Menaechmi one does not inquire too closely into the intrinsic probability of the situations that are presented, nor does one demand at every turn that the motives which actuate the characters shall be both adequate and reasonable. For example, the presence in a household at the same time of two unacknowledged babies, about one of whom the master of the house is successfully kept in ignorance, does not seem to be an incident that would be likely to occur in real life. Equally improbable, from this point of view, is the presence in a house of two hetaerae as guests of a respectable man and his wife,— the situation that underlies the plot of Menander's Heauton. But such situations must be accepted as the creation of the poet's fancy, definitely calculated to produce certain humorous entanglements and ludicrous misunderstandings. So far as we can judge, the poet has taken advantage with admirable skill and ingenuity of the opportunities offered by his plot for boisterous humor and effective stage business, and that too without resorting to the coarseness which characterizes the Menaechmi. And into the series of amusing situations which are developed from the varied interplay of cross purposes the poet has woven a memorable scene of unusual pathetic power,— the scene in which Chrysis is driven out by Demeas.

The presence of a chorus is indicated at the beginning of the third act (after v. 413), but no reference is found in the extant text to the persons who form the chorus. The comus-chorus of the Epi-trepontes and Periceiomene, however, and of the other plays of the Middle and New Comedy from which we chance to have passages alluding to the chorus, probably had its counterpart in the Samia also. As van Leeuwen suggests, the entertainments between the acts are probably furnished by a band of revelers who are in attendance upon the wedding of Moschion.

The scene of the play is laid in Athens (v. 426). Only two houses are required in the scene, the residences of Demeas and Niceratus. These houses are apparently separated by a passageway or angiportus (v. 156), and before the house of Demeas at least is the usual πρόθυρον (v. 193).

The only clue to the date of composition of the Samia is the allusion to the parasite Chaerephon¹ in v. 401. The point of the jest is that Chaerephon, though an old man, bids fair to live forever. Now Chaerephon was ridiculed in no fewer than eleven plays by six poets of the early New Comedy. The data furnished by these plays and by Athenaeus make it seem probable that none of these references, even this in the Samia, which is probably the latest of all, falls after ca. 310 B.C. In the first place we learn from Athenaeus (244 A) that Chaerephon was the author of the first book on dining — a fact that doubtless contributed to his notoriety — and that it was addressed in the form of a letter to “Cyrebion.” “Cyrebion” was the nickname applied to Epicrates, son of Philodemus, of Paeania (see Kirchner, No. 4908), who was brother of Philon and brother-in-law of Aeschines the orator. Demosthenes alludes to this “Cyrebion” in the Oration on the Embassy (§ 287), delivered in 343. We cannot follow the career of Epicrates, but he was probably not much younger than Aeschines. He is mentioned by Alexis in the Pancratiast (359 K.) along with another parasite, Callimedon, the orator who opposed Demosthenes and was condemned to death while in exile in the year 318. Callimedon is mentioned also by Menander in the Methe (320 K.) together with our Chaerephon. It is therefore reasonable to suppose that both the Pancratiast and the Methe were produced before 318, and altogether likely that Chaerephon, as a somewhat younger contemporary of Epicrates, dedicated his book to the latter early in the twenties, shortly before the stream of ridicule was directed against its author. An approximate estimate based on these data would make Chaerephon between 50 and 60 years of age in 320 B.C. The other allusions to Chaerephon are consistent with this conclusion. Antiphanes, who mentions him (189), died ca. 314–311 (A. J. P. XXI, p. 58). Alexis refers to him twice (210, 252); in the former passage, where we are told that Chaerephon has made a visit to Corinth “as an unbidden guest,” we may suspect that the visit was due to the political troubles that sent many Athenians into exile between the years 323 and 317. Timocles, whose career extended from about 340 to 320, ridicules him in the Epistolae (9) along with Demotion and Tithymallus. The latter, as Meineke remarked (Hist. Crit., p. 418), is mentioned only by poets of the Middle Comedy. Demotion is to be identified with the rich man referred to in the oration of Hypereides for Euxenippus, delivered in 330 B.C.; for the poet says of him παρέτρεφεν τὸν βουλόμενον, while the orator refers to the charge against his client, Δημοτίωνος δάιταρ ἔλαβεν. The play and the oration obviously belong to the same period. The allusion by Nicostratus (25) is one of the latest, for the career of this poet began ca. 320 (A. J. P. XXVIII, p. 188). Menander himself has three other references to Chaerephon: in the Androgynus (56) and Cecryphalus (277), neither of which can be dated, and in the Orge (364), with which the poet probably won his first victory in 315 B.C. (A. J. P. XXI, p. 61; Clark, Cl. Phil. I, pp. 313 ff.). Finally, Apollodorus of Gela, almost exactly a contemporary of Menander, mentions him in the Sphattomene (26), and in the Hieraea (24).¹ In the latter a person is called "a new Chaerephon," i.e. a successor of Chaerephon, as if Chaerephon himself had passed off the stage.

¹ See Wilamowitz in N. Jhb. XI (1908), p. 47, Anm. 1.

All this tends to place the Samia early in the second decade of Menander's career, after the Orge and before the Periceiomene.

The remains of the Samia in the Cairo papyrus consist of one leaf of two pages (G) and two sheets of four pages each (I and F). The sequence of these ten pages was determined by the first editor. I⁸⁴ must precede I¹² because in the latter (v. 442) reference is made to an event which happened in the former (v. 114). F¹ follows immediately upon I⁴, the latter page ending in the middle of a sentence which is completed in F¹. The connection between G² and I⁸ and between F⁴ and I¹ is not so obvious, since each ends and begins respectively with a completed sentence; but the action moves on continuously and the make-up of the book requires that these pages shall join without an interval. A considerable interval, however, separates F² from F⁸. The length of this interval is fortunately determined, as Körte has shown (Ber. d. sächs. Gesell. 1908, p. 114), by the position of the other sheets in the quaternion. The quaternion must begin and end with the recto side. The arrangement of the extant ten pages must therefore be as follows, one sheet, or four pages, being lost between F² and F⁸:

G¹ G² I⁸ I⁴ F¹ F² [x¹ x² x³ x⁴] F⁸ F⁴ I¹ I² [G³ G⁴]

¹ The Sphattomene is once quoted by Athenaeus as by Apollodorus of Carystus; but this poet is now known to have entered upon his career after Menander's death (IG. II 977 h, in Wilhelm, Dramat. Urk., p. 118; A. J. P. XXI, p. 45). The Hieraea is assigned to the Geloan by Suidas and Eudocia, but by Athenaeus, again erroneously, to the Carystian.

Mention should also be made of Machon, a contemporary of Apollodorus of Carystus (Ath. 664 A), who relates two anecdotes of Chaerephon in his Chreiae (Ath. 243 E), in one of which he properly makes the parasite a contemporary of Diphilus. Machon is clearly not speaking of a person contemporary with himself. The time of Matron the παρωδός, who mentions Chaerephon in his poem Δείπνον (Ath. 184 E), is unknown.

One half of the play was therefore contained in the middle quaternion (y) of the three which contained the Samia. The preceding quaternion (x) contained the first act and a few lines of the second. For this lost portion perhaps 200 lines, say six pages of quaternion x, would suffice. If the play had the usual compass of from 1000 to 1100 lines, about nine pages of quaternion z, in addition to the last two pages of quaternion y, would be required for the completion of the third act and for the fourth and fifth acts.

The question as to the amount of text lost from the beginning of the Samia is related to the question of the order of the plays in the Cairo codex. We know that the Hero was second in order and that the play which preceded it occupied only 28 pages, for the folio numbers $\kappa\theta'$ and λ' are preserved at the tops of pages A¹ and A² respectively. Furthermore, according to the estimates given above (pp. 45, 148), the Epitrepontes probably began on the fourteenth (but see below) page of a quaternion and extended through the fourteenth page of the second following quaternion, occupying about 32 pages, while the Periceiomene began on the fifteenth (but see below) page of a quaternion and extended through the twelfth page of the second following quaternion, occupying about 30 pages. If these estimates are even approximately correct, it is obvious that the first play in the codex, which filled the first quaternion and twelve pages of the second, was neither the Epitrepontes nor the Periceiomene; nor yet the Samia, which, as we have just seen, began in the second half of a quaternion. The first play must have been either the play of unknown title represented by the single page LPS, or a play of which nothing is preserved. Now from our estimates it appears that the order Epitrepontes-Periceiomene is somewhat more probable than the order Periceiomene-Epitrepontes, since the Epitrepontes probably ended nearer the end of a quaternion than did the Periceiomene, and the Periceiomene probably began nearer the end of a quaternion than did the Epitrepontes. As for the Samia, the lost beginning of which extended back about six pages into the quaternion preceding E¹, it cannot have immediately followed either the Epitrepontes or the Periceiomene, but, so far as we can judge by its estimated position in the quaternions, may have followed either the Hero or the play represented by LPS.

Körte has recently advanced a plausible theory, based upon considerations of another kind, of the order of the plays in the codex. He observed that the practice of the scribe in noting in the margins the names of the speakers varied greatly in the several plays,¹ and suggests that he became more negligent in this regard as he went on. By this criterion the Hero was followed by the Epitrepontes and Periceiomene, in this order; the unknown play LPS could not have been first in the codex but rather preceded the Samia; and the Samia was last of the preserved plays — the sixth in the codex, if the manuscript contained no more than six plays.

It will be observed that this new evidence lends support to the conclusions based upon the estimated length of the plays and their positions in the quaternions, and that the estimate of the length of the lost beginning of the Samia permits the assumption that the Periceiomene was followed by the unknown play LPS and this in turn by the Samia. The following table shows the order of the plays in the codex as thus tentatively determined:

| QUATERNIONS | I | II | III | IV | V | VI | VII | VIII | IX | X | XI | XII |
|--------------------|--------|----|-----|------------------|----|------------------|-----|------|------|------|----|-----|
| Plays: | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| I. — | pp. 16 | 12 | | | | | | | | | | |
| II. Hero | pp. | 4 | 16 | [12] | | | | | | | | |
| III. Epitr. | pp. | | | [4] ² | 16 | [13] | | | | | | |
| IV. Peric. | pp. | | | | | [3] ³ | 16 | [12] | | | | |
| V. LPS | pp. | | | | | | | [4] | [16] | [10] | | |
| VI. Samia | pp. | | | | | | | | | [6] | 16 | 9? |

¹ Menandrea, Praef., pp. xi, xii. The proportion of speakers named in the margins to the number of lines is as follows: Hero 1 to 4; Epitrepontes 1 to 23; Periceiomene 1 to 32; LPS 1 to 59; Samia 1 to 341.

² Assuming that 4 pages (instead of 3, see p. 45) of quaternion iv were required for the Epitrepontes, the Hero occupied 32 pages, the Epitrepontes 33. The other alternative is equally possible, and the Hero may have been the longer play.

³ The calculation on p. 147 showed that about 4 pages and 26 lines were lost from the beginning of the Periceiomene (i.e. before E). We there unnecessarily discarded the odd 26 lines and concluded that the play extended back two pages, instead of three, into the quaternion preceding that which contained E.

ἜΣΑΜΙΑ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

ΤΑ ΤΟΥ ΔΡΑΜΑΤΟΣ ΠΡΟΣΩΠΑ

Δημείας

Παρμένων

Μάγειρος

Χρυσίς

Νικήρατος

Μοσχίων

[Τρύφη]

Χορὸς συμποτῶν

Κωφά: ὑπηρέται τοῦ Μαγείρου, γραῦς, δούλοι.

ΣΑΜΙΑ ΜΕΝΑΝΔΡΟΥ

SCENE : a street in Athens, before the houses of Demeas and Niceratus.

The whole of the first act is lost. In it was explained the strange situation in the household of Demeas, a wealthy Athenian. Chrysis, a Samian girl and housekeeper for Demeas, has secretly borne a child to him. She keeps the child with his consent, by leading him to believe that it is a foundling. Moschion, adopted son of Demeas, and Plangon, daughter of a poor neighbor Niceratus, have also had a child, as the result of a secret union. Demeas and Niceratus, the two grandfathers, have been kept in ignorance of this event. To protect the girl Moschion has recently brought the child over to his father's house (v. 448), by the connivance of the girl's mother, and placed it in the care of Moschion's aged nurse. Thus two infants are at present in the house of Demeas, one openly but under false pretenses, the other without his knowledge. Now for some reason the future of Moschion has caused concern to Demeas. To settle him in life he plans to marry him forthwith to Plangon. Moschion is informed of this plan and agrees to it with alacrity. The consent of Niceratus to the match is readily obtained. Demeas thereupon begins active arrangements for the wedding, which is to take place this very day. A slave is dispatched to the market to fetch a cook and to buy provisions. Invitations to the wedding are sent out. Demeas then enters his house to see to the preparations within.

Between the acts the audience is probably provided with entertainment by the chorus of wedding guests, who have begun to arrive. The second act is opened by the entrance of Demeas from his house. Apparently only the first few lines of his speech are lost.

ACT II

Sc. 1. DEMEAS alone

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ὁστ'ίς - - - - -

G¹, quat. γ, p. 1

ἢ μαίνομαι - - - - -

1 ff. Demeas comes from his house in a state of great perturbation, probably exclaiming that, unless he is out of his senses, he is the victim of gross outrage, and that too at the hands of one upon whom he has conferred a benefit, e.g. ὁστ'ίς . . . σχέτλια πέπονθ' ἐγώ, ἢ μαίνομαι, καὶ τοῦθ' ὑπ' ἐκείνης, ἣν ποτε λαβὼν ἐπ' ἀγαθῷ - - - - - ὥς γὰρ τάχιστ' εἰσηλθόν, ὑπερεσπουδακῶς 5 τὰ τοῦ γάμου πράττειν, φράσας τὸ πρᾶγμ' ἀπλῶς τοῖς ἔνδον ἐκέλευσ' εὐτρεπίζειν πάνθ' ἃ δεῖ, καθαρὰ ποεῖν, πέττειν, ἐνάρχεσθαι κανοῦν.

 ἐγίγνετ' ἀμέλει πάνθ' ἐτοίμως, τὸ δὲ τάχος τῶν πραττομένων ταραχήν τιν' αὐτοῖς ἐνεποίει, 10 ὅπερ εἰκός. ἐπὶ κλίνης μὲν ἔρριπτ' ἐκποδῶν τὸ παιδίον κεκραγός, αἱ δ' ἐβόων ἄμα.

λαβὼν ἐπ' ἀγαθῷ διατελῶ τιμῶν ἀέλ.' On ἐπ' ἀγαθῷ cf. v. 166.

4. ὑπερεσπουδακῶς: the reason for the father's excessive haste (cf. v. 8) is probably his desire to put a stop to Moschion's love-affair (see above, p. 224);
 cf. Ter. Heaut. 1056. But it is characteristic of comedy that arrangements which are proposed in the course of the action, esp. those which the poet intends shall have a bearing on the plot (e.g. dinners, weddings, intrigues), are immediately put into effect regardless of verisimilitude. Thus in Plaut. Aul. 261 Megadorus no sooner obtains Euclio's consent to his marriage with Phaedra than he asks: sed nuptias num quae causast quin faciamus hodie? and then says to his slave: heus, Strobile, sequere propere me ad macellum strenue.

5. ἀπλῶς: i.e. he simply, without explanations, gave the information that Moschion was to be married that day.

7. πέττειν: i.e. ἄρτους and πέμματα, bread and pastry of wheaten flour (ἀλευρα v. 12) for the wedding feast.
 For ordinary occasions the staple diet consisted chiefly of porridge (μάζα) and bread, generally made of barley, cf.

Plat. Rep. 372 B ἐκ μὲν τῶν κριθῶν ἀλφίτα σκευαζόμενοι, ἐκ δὲ τῶν πυρῶν ἀλευρα, τὰ μὲν (the latter) πέψαντες, τὰ δὲ (the former) μάζαντες. Cakes (πέμματα) played an important rôle in the wedding ceremony, esp. the bride's cake (πλακοῦς γαμικός) sprinkled with sesame, a symbol of fertility according to Me-nander apud schol. Aristoph. Pac. 869.
 The feast itself was important as a means of providing witnesses of the marriage, cf. Is. 8. 20. — ἐνάρχεσθαι κανοῦν: see on P. 878. The marriage sacrifice (τὰ προτέλεια or προγάμια) preceded the banquet.

8. Everything was of course going on well enough. — ἐτοίμως: lit. readily, modifies ἐγίγνετο = ἐπράττετο, just as τῶν πραττομένων below might have been τῶν γιγνομένων. Cf. [Plat.] Ep. 11 fin.
 ολομένους τι ἐτοίμως διαπράττασθαι.

10. ἔρριπτο: the effect of the act continues into the present, had been thrown and was still lying.

11. τὸ παιδίον: the only infant of whose presence in the house Demeas is aware, viz. his own son by Chrysis, whom Chrysis, however, has made him believe to be a foundling. — at 84: the maid servants. The context makes the reference clear, and also κατόπιν in v. 13.

- “ἄλευρ’, ὕδωρ, ἔλαιον ἀπόδος, ἄνθρακας.”
 καὶ τὸς διδοὺς τούτων τι καὶ συλλαμβάνων εἰς τὸ ταμειὸν ἔτυχον εἰσελθὼν, ὅθεν 15 πλείω προαιρῶν καὶ σκοπούμενος σὺν χῆλ’ οὐκ εὐθὺς ἐξῆλθον. καθ’ ὃν δ’ ἦν χρόνον ἐγὼ ἐνταῦθα, κατέβαιν’ ἀφ’ ὑπερώου τις γυνή ἄνωθεν εἰς τοῦμπροσθε τοῦ ταμειδίου οἴκημα· τυγχάνει γὰρ ἰστέων τις ὦν, 20 ὥσθ’ ἢ τ’ ἀνάβασίς ἐστι διὰ τούτου τὸ τε ταμειὸν ἡμῖν. τοῦ δὲ Μοσχίωνος ἦν τίτθη τις αὐτῇ πρεσβυτέρα, γεγονυῖ’ ἐμῇ θεράπαιν’, ἐλευθέρα δὲ νῦν. ἰδοῦσα δὲ τὸ παιδίον κεκραγὸς ἡμελημένον

13. συλλαμβάνων: cf. Aristoph. Eq. 229 κάγω μετ’ αὐτῶν χώ θεός ξυλλήψεται.

14. ταμειὸν: οἶκος ἐν ᾧ τὰ ἀναγκαῖα ἀπετίθεσαν, Herodian 1.375.26. In this storeroom the mistress of the house kept ἀλφίτον, ἔλαιον, οἶνον, Aristoph. Thesm. 420, and there Basileia in Av. 1539 is doubtless supposed to keep (ταμείνει) for Zeus his thunderbolt καὶ τὰλλ’ ἀπαξάπαντα. Cf. the conclave in Ter. Heaut. 902 est mihi ultimis conclave in aedibus quoddam retro.

15. πλείω: still other things (lit. more things than the servants had demanded). — προαιρῶν: selecting of his choicest stores, cf. Theoph. Char. 4.6 καὶ προαιρῶν δέ τι ἐκ τοῦ ταμείου δεινός (ἐστίν ὁ ἀγροίκος) φαγεῖν καὶ ζωρότερον πιεῖν.

18. ταμειδίου: καὶ ταμειδίου ὑποκοριστικῶς Suid. The MS. form ταμείου can hardly be correct.

19. ἰστέων: weaving-room. The usual form is ιστών, from ιστός “loom.” Phrynichus condemns ιστέων, as also σύσσημον in P. 670 and other words freely used by Menander and his contemporaries.

20. ἢ τ’ ἀνάβασις: i.e. eis τὸ ὑπερῶν. — τὸ τε ταμειὸν: i.e. ἢ τ’ εἰσόδος εἰς τὸ ταμειὸν, a peculiar form of zeugma, due to the freedom of familiar discourse. One could hardly say τὸ ταμειὸν ἐστι διὰ (“accessible through”) τοῦ οἴκηματος, but the idea of motion into is supplied by ἡ ἀνάβασις. The weaving-room, in which was the stairway to the upper floor, lay between the living-rooms and the storeroom. To reach either the upper floor or the storeroom one had to pass through it.

23. Though emancipated, she yet remained in the service of her former master; cf. H. 21.

24. The participles are both in the pred. after ἰδοῦσα, but hang closely together, forming a single idea, screaming neglected. It is not a case of zeugma; the old woman took in the situation at a glance.

25 ἐμέ τ' οὐδὲν εἰδυῖ' ἔνδον ὄντ', ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ εἶναι νομίσασα τοῦ λαλεῖν, προσέρχεται, καὶ ταῦτα δὴ τὰ κοινά "φίλτατον τέκνον," εἰποῦσα καὶ "μέγ' ἀγαθόν· ἡ μάμμη δὲ ποῦ;"
 ἐφίλησε, περιήνεγκεν· ὥς δ' ἐπαύσατο 30 κλᾶον, πρὸς αὐτήν φησιν· "ὦ τάλαιν' ἐγώ, πρῆξην τοιοῦτον ὄντα Μοσχίων' ἐγὼ αὐτὸν ἐτιθηνούμην ἀγαπῶσα, νῦν δ', ἐπεὶ παιδίον ἐκείνου γέγονεν, ἄλλη καὶ τόδε

35 -----

 ----- α καὶ
 ----- νέναι
 "καὶ θεραπαινιδίῳ τινὶ

G², quat. y, p. 2

[35]

40 ἔξωθεν εἰστρέχοντι· "λούσατ', ὦ τάλαν, τὸ παιδίον," φησὶν· "τί τοῦτ'; ἐν τοῖς γάμοις τοῖς τοῦ πατρὸς τὸν μικρὸν οὐ θεραπεύετε;"
 εὐθύς δ' ἐκείνη "δύσμορ', ἡλίκον λαλεῖς,"

[40]

25. ἔνδον: in there. — ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ, κτέ.: the personal const., ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ εἶμι τοῦ λαλεῖν safe in talking, instead of the impersonal, ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ (or ἀσφαλές) ἐστι λαλεῖν. The gen. defines the scope of the safety, in respect of talking.

27. ταῦτα δὴ τὰ κοινά: cf. E. 309.

28. μέγ' ἀγαθόν: blessed thing, also used in formal address to superiors, cf. Xen. Cyr. 5. 3. 20 ὦ μέγα ἀγαθὸν σὺ τοῖς φίλοις Κύρε.

31. πρῆξην: just the other day, cf. Theocr. 15. 15 τῆμος τὰ πρόαν, — λέγομεν δὲ πρόαν θην πάντα. — τοιοῦτον: it was in infancy, therefore, that Moschion was adopted (v. 134) by Demeas.

33 f. ἄλλη καὶ τόδε: the thought would be: "Another woman will in like manner nurse you and see you in time become a father."

39. One of the three examples in the Cairo MS. (E. 341, P. 5, the latter a proper name) of an anapaest in the fifth foot that overlaps the fourth, and of two consecutive anapaests elsewhere than in the first and second feet.

40. λούσατε: by using the pl. the old woman includes all the servants in the rebuke, though she addresses but one of them.

41. τί τοῦτο: what does this mean?

43. ἡλίκον: the quantitative adj. corresponding to μέγα and μικρόν, how loudly, cf. v. 351 and Philem. 5 K. οὐκ

- φησ', "ἐνδον ἐστὶν αὐτός." "οὐ δῆπου γε· ποῦ;" 45 "ἐν τῷ ταμειῷ"—καὶ παρεξήλλαξέ τι—
 "αὐτὴ καλεῖ, τίθη, σε," καὶ "βάδιζε καὶ σπεῦδ'. οὐκ ἀκήκο' οὐδέν, εὐτυχέστατα."
 εἰποῦσ' ἐκείνη δ' "ὦ τάλαινα τῆς ἐμῆς λαλιᾶς," ἀπῆλθεν ἐκποδῶν οὐκ οἶδ' ὅποι. [45] 50 κ' ἄγὼ προῆλθον τοῦτον ὄνπερ ἐνθάδε τρόπον ἀρτίως ἐξῆλθον, ἡσυχῇ πάνυ, ὡς οὔτ' ἀκούσας οὐδὲν οὔτ' ἡσθημένος.
 αὐτὴν δ' ἔχουσαν αὐτὸ τὴν Σαμίαν ὁρῶ [50]

ἀν λαλῇ τις μικρόν, ἐστὶ κόσμος, . . . ὁ δ' ἡλίκον μὲν ἢ φύσις φέρει λαλῶν.

44. αὐτός: the master, as αὐτή below is "mistress." The maid, who has been in the front part of the house, saw Demeas go into the storeroom while the old woman was upstairs. — οὐ δῆπου γε: you don't say so!

45. καὶ παρεξήλλαξέ τι: sc. τῇ φωνῇ and she raised her voice a little (lit. made a deviation)—a parenthetical explanation of Demeas. The vb. seems not to occur elsewhere in this sense. φησί is of course understood with each quotation where it is not expressed, so that the application of παρεξήλλαξε is clear.

46. αὐτή: Chrysis. The first words were spoken in a loud voice for the master's benefit, but from βάδιζε on in a low tone again.

49. οὐκ οἶδ' ὅποι: from his position Demeas could not see where the old nurse went with the baby, and consequently he falls (v. 53) into the error of assuming that she answered the (pretended) summons (v. 46) and gave the baby to her mistress. It is probable, however, that the nurse merely took the baby to another part of the house.

50 f. τοῦτον ὄνπερ . . . τρόπον: explained by ἡσυχῇ πάνυ, the whole equivalent to "as calmly as you saw me come out of the house (ἐξῆλθον) a moment ago." Demeas was probably then, as now, trembling with suppressed excitement.

53. αὐτό: τὸ παιδίον. Demeas assumes, as a matter of course, that the baby he sees in the arms of Chrysis is the same baby. Had he reflected he would have seen that this assumption was the weak link in his chain of evidence. We can hardly suppose that, in the brief interval which elapsed between the departure of the two persons from the weaving-room, the nurse has transferred her baby to Chrysis and disappeared, and Chrysis, in order to deceive Demeas, has arranged the scene which Demeas now goes on to describe. Furthermore, Demeas himself emphasizes the fact that he stole into the court quietly and presumably unobserved by Chrysis. For other reasons in support of the view that there are two babies in the house see above, p. 225. — τὴν Σαμίαν: Chrysis, cf. v. 142 and see note on P. 53.

ἔξω διδοῦσαν τιτθίον παριὼν ἄμα.

55 ὥσθ' ὅτι μὲν αὐτῆς ἔστι τοῦτο γινώριμον εἶναι, πατὴρ δ' ὅτου ποτ' ἔστιν, εἴτ' ἐμοῦ εἴτ' — οὐ λέγω δ', ἄνδρες, πρὸς ὑμᾶς τοῦτ' ἐγώ, οὔθ' ὑπονοῶ, τὸ πρᾶγμα δ' εἰς μέσον φέρω [55]
ἃ τ' ἀκήκο' αὐτός, οὐκ ἀγανακτῶν οὐδέπω.

60 σύνοιδα γὰρ τῷ μειρακίῳ, νῆ τοὺς θεοὺς, καὶ κοσμίῳ τὸν πρότερον ὄντι χρόνον αἰεὶ καὶ περὶ ἔμ' ὡς ἔνεστιν εὐσεβεστάτῳ.
πάλιν δ', ἐπειδὰν τὴν λέγουσαν καταμαθῶ [60]

54. ἔξω: still within the house, but outside of the storeroom, as ἔξωθεν v. 40. The house was built around an open-air court (αὐλή). — διδόουσαν τιτθίον: cf. E. 247. This was certainly an act that would naturally stir the old man's suspicions, for hitherto he has had no reason to think that Chrysis has borne a child. If he really saw what he reports, — and there is no occasion to doubt the correctness of his observation, — we are obliged to believe that Chrysis is indeed a mother. The same motive was used by Caecilius in his Titthe, which may have been based on Menander's play of the same name; in fr. 1 R. a person who had seen a woman give her breast to a baby observes: praesertim quae non peperit lacte non habet (Harmon). But the baby she held to her breast was not the neglected child that the old nurse had just carried from the weaving-room; see above, p. 224.

56. ἐμοῦ: Parmenon so assures him in v. 103.

57 f. The negatives with λέγω and ὑπονοῶ indicate the speaker's resistance to the suggestion which had come into his mind, I refuse to say it, I refuse to harbor the suspicion. This is about equivalent to the negated fut. but with a modal force that the fut. would lack. οὐδ' ὑπονοῶ (Mazon) would be rather more effective. — τὸ πρᾶγμα: the fact as opposed to the λόγος and ὑπόνοια lying back of the λόγος.

59. ἃ τ' ἀκήκοα: i.e. the talk of the servants that he has overheard. — οὐκ ἀγανακτῶν, κτέ.: like the preceding negations, not giving way to indignation — as yet. He means against Moschion, as the next verse shows. He is already entirely convinced as regards Chrysis.

61 f. The partic. ὄντι is in indirect discourse after σύνοιδα, GMT. § 908. The tenderness of Demeas toward his adopted son has a parallel in Micio's love for Aeschinus in Ter. Adelphi, cf. v. 48. — κοσμίῳ: in his relations with others, see v. 132. — ὡς ἔνεστιν: heightens the sup. somewhat more emphatically than ὡς alone. Cf. Xen. Mem. 4. 5. ὅ ἔως ἂν ταῦτα ὡς ἐνι ἡδιστα γένηται, more commonly ὡς δυνατόν or δύναται.

63 f. τὴν λέγουσαν: i.e. ταύτην ἣ ἔλεγε. — οὖσαν: in indirect discourse after καταμαθῶ, realize the fact that. As Moschion's former nurse the old τίτθην ἐκείνου πρῶτον οὔσαν, εἴτ' ἐμοῦ 65 λάθρα λέγουσάν, εἴτ' ἀποβλέψω πάλιν εἰς τὴν ἀγαπῶσαν αὐτὸ καὶ βεβιασμένην ἐμοῦ τρέφειν ἄκοντος, ἐξέστηχ' ὅλως.

Enter Parmenon and the Cook with his assistants, and slaves loaded with viands. Demeas sees them as they approach the door of his house.

ἀλλ' εἰς καλὸν γὰρ τοῦτον εἰσιόνθ' ὁρῶ [65] I³, quat. γ, p. 3
 τὸν Παρμένοντ' ἐκ τῆς ἀγορᾶς· ἐάτέον 70 αὐτὸν παραγαγεῖν ἔστι τοῦτον εἰς δόμον.

SC. 2. DEMEAS, PARMENON, COOK

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

μάγειρ', ἔπειγε, πρὸς θεῶν. οὐκ οἶδα σὺ woman would presumably know the young man's secrets.

65. ἐμοῦ λάθρα: cf. P. 209, Plaut. Merc. 43 clam abibat patris, in Lat. a borrowed const. — εἴτα: sc. ἐπειδὴν with ἀποβλέψω, when I have regard to.

66. ἀγαπῶσαν: v. 55. Impf. tense. — βεβιασμένην: insisted upon.

67. ἐμοῦ ἄκοντος: if Demeas had refused to rear it, the child would have had to be exposed. — ἐξέστηκα: am beside myself, cf. v. 418 and see on P. 418.

68 f. εἰς καλὸν = εὐκαιρως, cf. Plat. Symp. 174 E εἰς καλὸν ἦκεις, Soph. O.T. 78 ἀλλ' εἰς καλὸν σὺ τ' εἶπας, Plaut. Bacch. 667 sed quem quaero, optume eccum obviam mihi. — εἰσιόντα: in the dramatic poets εἰσεῖμι (ἐρχομαι) is always used of persons who go into the house, never of those who are approaching the scene of action through one of the parodoi; for the latter the prefixes προσ-, ἐκ-, and παρ- are regularly used. The action is therefore as follows: Demeas does not see Parmenon when he first appears, and Parmenon makes no move to speak to his master but goes straight to the door, as he naturally would, seeing that he and the rest are loaded with provisions. But Demeas turns around in time to see him before he enters. Of course it is Parmenon's arrival, implied in the partic., that strikes Demeas as "timely." Since Demeas desires to speak to Parmenon alone, he permits him to get the Cook into the house before he accosts him. But the Cook, true to the instincts of his tribe, insists upon talking. — ἐκ τῆς ἀγορᾶς: cooks who wished employment congregated in that part of the market where pottery was for sale, cf. Diph. 43. 29 K. ἐνέβαλεν εἰς τὸν κέραμον, Alex. 257 σπου γὰρ ἔστιν ὁ κέραμος μισθώσιμος, ὁ τοῖς μαγείροις (τόπος). Parmenon had been sent to the market to employ a cook and buy provisions; see on E. 166.

71. ἔπειγε: everybody is in a hurry. Cf. the Cook's words in Plaut. Cas. 766 properate, cenam iam esse coctam oportuit. — πρὸς θεῶν: a ἐφ' ὃ τι μαχαίρας περιφέρεις· ἱκανὸς γὰρ εἰ λαλῶν κατακόψαι πάντα. πᾶύσαι πρὸς θεῶν. [70]

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

ἰδιῶτ'.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ἐγώ;

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

δοκεῖς γ' ἐμοί. τί εἰ βαρὺς

75 εἰ πυνθάνομαι πόσα⁷ τραπέζας μέλλετε characteristic oath of Parmenon, cf. vv. 73, 91, 110, and the recurrent phrases in the language of Davus in E. 5, 20; 141, 144, 155.

72. ικανὸς εἰ, κτέ.: you butcher well enough with your talk, an ancient jest, depending upon the derived meaning of κόπτειν "bore," i.e. κόπτειν τὰ ὦτα (Poll. 6. 119). For this meaning cf. Hegis. 1. 2 K. ἡ λέγων φαίνεται διὰ καὶνὸν παρὰ τοὺς ἔμπροσθεν, ἢ μὴ κόπτε με, Sosip. 1. 20 K. ἄρα σύ με κόπτειν οἶος εἰ γε, φίλτατε; (both addressed to cooks), and Alciph. Ep. 2. 3. 7 = 4. 15 Sch. (Menander to Glycera) ἵνα μὴ κόπτω σε. The joke is variously turned, e.g. Alex. 173. 11 K. σὺ πρὸς θεῶν, . . . ἔθυσας τὸν ἔριφον, μὴ κόπτ' ἐμ', ἀλλὰ τὰ κρέα, Anaxipp. 1. 23 παπαῖ, ἐμὲ κατακόψεις, οὐχ ὃ θύειν μέλλομεν. The cook in comedy is traditionally a boresome talker, much given to expatiating on his art. His qualities are well summed up in Plaut. Pseud. 794 coquum . . . multilocum, gloriosum, insulsum, inutilem. See in general Rankin, The Role of the Μάγειροι, pp. 73 ff.—The tribrach in the first foot composed of three monosyllables occurs only twice in Menander, here and fr. 540. 6 K. White, p. 146.

74. ἰδιῶτα: ignoramus. The artist scorns the layman. The word almost always implies a contrast with the artist or specialist (τεχνίτης, δημιουργός). — βαρὺς: savage, ill-natured, cf. Eubul. 41. 7 (of Eros) βαρὺς δὲ κομιδῇ (ἐστὶ), Soph. Aj. 1017 ἀνὴρ δύσσοργος ἐν γήρᾳ βαρὺς, and the phrases βαρέως φέρειν, ἔχειν.

75. τραπέζας: before each κλίνη (for two persons, see on E. 217) was placed a small table. The number of tables gave the number of guests. The cook of comedy naturally insists upon knowing in advance all about the guests, e.g. Dionys. 2. 2 K. τὸν μάγειρον εἰδέναι πολὺν δεῖ γὰρ εἰ πρότερον οἷς μέλλει ποεῖν τὸ δεῖπνον ἢ τὸ δεῖπνον ἐγχειρεῖν ποεῖν, and in Euang. 1 K. the host tells him: τέτταρας . . . τραπέζας τῶν γυναικῶν εἰπά σοι, ἐξ δὲ τῶν ἀνδρῶν. In Diph. 17 the cook justifies his curiosity about the sex and quality of the guests: πόσοι τὸ πλῆθος εἰσιν οἱ κεκλημένοι εἰς τοὺς γάμους, βέλτιστε, καὶ πότερ' Ἀττικοὶ ἅπαντες, ἢ καὶ τοῦμπορίου τινές;—τί δαὶ τοῦτ' ἐστὶ πρὸς σε τὸν μάγειρον;—τῆς τέχνης ἡγεμονία τίς ἐστὶν αὐτῆς, ὦ πάτερ, τὸ τῶν ἐδομένων τὰ στόματα προειδέναι, κτέ.: Cf. id. 43. 4 ff. The host in Men. 518 K. resents such questions: μάγειρ', ἀηδὴς μοι δοκεῖς εἶναι σφόδρα· πόσας τραπέζας μέλλομεν ποεῖν τρίτον ἤδη μ' ἐρωτᾷς· χοιρίδιον ἐν θύομεν, ὅκτωι ποήσαντες τραπέζας δ' ἢ μίαν, τί σοι διαφέρει τοῦτο; ποιῶν, πόσαί γυναικές εἰσί, ἡ πηνίκα ἔσται τὸ δεῖπνον, εἰ δεήσει προσλαβεῖν τραπεζοποιόν, εἰ κέραμός ἐστ' ἐνδοθεν [75] ὑμῖν ἱκανός, εἰ τὰνπάνιον κατὰστεγον, 80 εἰ τὰλλ' ὑπάρχει πάντα;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

κατακόπτεις γέ με,
 εἰ λανθάνει σε, φίλτατ', εἰς περικόμματα, οὐχ ὥς ἔτυχεν.

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

οἴμωζε.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

καὶ σὺ τοῦτό γε
 παντὸς ἔνεκ'. ἀλλὰ παράγεται εἴσω.

The Cook and attendants enter the house. Demas comes forward.

76. The women of the families participating in a wedding attended the banquet and were placed at separate tables, see Euangelus, quoted above.

78. τραπεζοποιόν: τὸν τραπεζῶν ἐπιμελητὴν καὶ τῆς ἀλλης εὐκοσμίας, Athen. 170 E, cf. Poll. 3. 41, 6. 13; identified by Juba (Athen. l.c.) with the Roman structor. He had charge of the servants, Philem. 61 K., and of the utensils and entertainments (ἀκουσμάτων), Phot., Et. Mag., Hesych. A cook in Antiph. 152 K. hires such a manager and defines his duties: προσελαβὼν ἐλθὼν τουτοῖσι τραπεζοποιόν, ὅς πλυνεῖ σκεύη, λύχνους ἐτοιμάσει, σπονδὰς ποιήσει, τὰλλ' ὅσα τοῦτω προσήκει.—κέραμος: crockery washed, if necessary, cf. Alex. 257 δπου γὰρ ἐστὶν ὁ κέραμος μισθώσιμος.

79. κατὰστεγον: a covered kitchen rather than an open-air place for cooking, such as many houses evidently had.

A cook in Alex. 173. 13 K. insists on having such a kitchen: ὀπτάνιον ἔστιν; — ἔστι. — καὶ κάπνην ἔχει; — δηλονότι. — μή μοι "δήλον." ἀλλ' ἔχει κάπνην; — ἔχει. — κακόν, εἰ τύφουσιν. — ἀπολεῖ μ' οὐ τοσὶ. — A trisyllabic tribrach is found in Menander in the second foot only five times; four are in this play, viz. vv. 79, 82, 121, 153, the fifth in E. 705.

80 f. κατακόπτεις, κτέ.: a picturesque version of occidit fabulans, Plaut. Men. 922. — εἰ λανθάνει σε: parenthetical, in case you fail to notice it. — περικόμματα: cf. Aristoph. Eq. 372 περικόμματ' ἐκ σου σκενάσω.

82. οὐχ ὥς ἔτυχεν: not at haphazard, in first-class style. The cook is making an artistic job of it. On the phrase cf. on P. 218.

83. παντὸς ἔνεκα = πάντως, by all means, cf. Aristoph. Nub. 6 ἀπόλοιτο . . . πολλῶν οὐνεκα. — παράγεται: see on E. 194.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

Παρμένων. [80]

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (looking about)

ἐμέ τις καλεῖ;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (coming forward)

σεῖ ναίχι.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

χαῖρε, δέσποτα.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (sternly)

85 τὴν σπυρίδα καταθεὶς ἦκε δεῦρ'.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (disturbed)

ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ.

Slips into the house with the basket.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τούτου μὲν οὐδέν, ὥς ἐγῶμαι, λανθάνει τῷ φθαλμιδίῳ πραττόμενον ἔργον· ἔστι γὰρ περιέργος εἴ τις ἄλλος. ἀλλὰ τὴν θύραν προῖὼν πέπληχε.

[85]

Parmenon, coming from the house, calls back to Chrysis.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

δίαγε, Χρυσί, πάνθ' ὅσ' ἂν

90 ὁ μάγειρος αἰτῇ· τὴν δὲ γραῦν φυλάττετε

84. σὲ ναίχι: cf. Soph. El. 1445 σὲ κρίνω, ναί σέ.

85. σπυρίδα: a hamper of provisions. Demeas tells him to "put it down," with a gesture toward the house.—ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ: see on E. 6.

86. τούτου: Parmenon. Since he knows everything he may be able to throw light on the mystery.

87. τῷ φθαλμιδίῳ: the required word is uncertain, but this seems to give the thought. The dim., however, is less natural here than in Aristoph. Eq. 909 τῷ φθαλμιδίῳ περιψῆν.

88. περιέργος: cf. E. 45 and fr. 849, p. 117.

89. πέπληχε: see on E. 691.—δίαγε: carry out.

90. γραῦν: a jest of which the comic poets from Aristophanes on never grew weary, cf. Men. Perinthia 397 K. οὐδεμίαν ἢ γραῦς δλωσ κόλिका παρήκεν, ἀλλὰ ἀπὸ τῶν κεραμίων, πρὸς θεῶν. (To Demeas) τί δεῖ ποεῖν, δέσποτα;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (threateningly)

“τί δεῖ ποεῖν”; ἴθι δεῦρ’ ἀπὸ τῆς θύρας.

Parmenon hangs back.

ἔτι μικρόν.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ἦν.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ἄκουε δὴ νῦν, Παρμένων.

[90]

ἐγὼ σε μαστιγοῦν, μὰ τοὺς δώδεκα θεούς,

95 οὐ βούλομαι διὰ πολλά.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

μαστιγοῦν; τί γὰρ

πεπότηκα;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

συγκρύπτεις τι πρὸς μ’, ἥσθημ’ ἐγώ.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

μὰ τὸν Διόνυσον, μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω, γὰρ μὲν οὔ, μὰ τὸν Δία τὸν σωτήρα, μὰ τὸν Ἀσκληπιόν,— πίνει τὴν κύκλῳ, a trait which Terence transferred thence to the midwife in the Andria. Athenaeus 440E devotes a chapter to the theme φιλοῖνον τὸ τῶν γυναικῶν γένος, with abundant illustrations from comedy.

[95]

91. κεραμίων: sc. οἶνον, as we say “bottles”; cf. Men. 229 K. καὶ τὸ κεράμιον ἀνέφχας· δῖεις, λεπτοῦν, οἶνον πολὺ.

92. Cf. Eubul. 55 K. ἴθι δεῦρ’ (Leo).

93. ἔτι μικρόν: cf. Plaut. Men. 158 concede huc a foribus.—fiat.—etiam concede huc.—licet.—etiam nunc concede audacter ab leonino cavo, Aul. 55 abscede etiam nunc, etiam nunc.—etiamne?—ohe, istic adstato, Ter.

Eun. 706 concede istim huc paululum. audin? etiam paululum. sat est.—ἦν: there! see on E. 174, Men. 148 K. ἀλλ’ ἦν χιτῶν σοι (ἀντὶ τοῦ Ἰσοῦ Phot.), and cf. fiat in the above quotation.—ἄκουε δὴ νῦν: see on P. 203.

94. μὰ τοὺς δώδεκα θεούς: the same oath in Men. Col. 85 (Ox. Pap. V. 313), Aristoph. Eq. 235, Av. 95 (Hense).

97 f. The heaping up of the names of gods in protestation is characteristic of terrified slaves in comedy. Dionysus, Apollo, Zeus, and Asclepius are all θεοὶ σωτήρες.—μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω, γὰρ μὲν οὔ: a favorite formula in Aristophanes (eight times), used by Menander also in v. 394, P. 424.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

παῦ, μηδέν' ὄμνυ· οὐ γὰρ εἰκάζεις¹ καλῶς.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

100 ἦ μήποτ' ἄρ'—

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

οὗτος, βλέπε δεῦρ'.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ἀδόλως ἐρῶ.¹

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τὸ παιδίον τίνος ἐστίν;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (stammering)

ἦν — τὸ παιδίον —; I⁴, quat. γ, p. 4

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τίνος ἐστὶ μητρός;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

Χρῦσίδους.¹

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

πατρός δὲ τοῦ;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (smiling)

σοῦ, νῆ Δί'.

99. παῦ: this monosyllabic form of the impv. is attested by the grammarians (Phot. and Ael. Dion. apud Eust. 1408. 20); see Blaydes' note on Aristoph. Eq. 821. — μηδέν' ὄμνυ: lest he commit a perjury; for Demeas thinks he does not know the charge. For the constr. see on P. fr. 569, p. 151.

100. He was about to say ἀγαθὸν τι μοι γένοιτο. On ἄρα for ἄρα see on P. 381. — βλέπε δεῦρο: cf. Soph. Trach. 402 οὗτος, βλέψ' ὦδε· πρὸς τίν' ἐννέπειν δοκεῖς; Plaut. Capt. 570 sed quaeso hercle agedum, aspice ad me. — em. dic modo (Hense). — ἀδόλως: frankly, honestly (= ἀπλῶς καὶ ἀληθῶς, Phot. Berl.), cf. Plaut. Trin. 90 edepol haud dicam dolo, 480 rem fabulare. — non tibi dicam dolo, Men. 228 non dicam dolo, E. 275 οὐ γὰρ ψεύσομαι.

101. ἦν: look you, as if he were about to answer the question.

102 f. The humor of the situation seems to lie in the fact that Parmenon is really telling the strict truth, but is ἀπόλωλας· φενακίζεις μ'.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ἐγώ; [100]

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ἐγὼ δ' ἀκριβῶς πάντα καὶ πᾶν φράσθ' ἐμοὶ 105 ὅτι Μοσχίωνός ἐστιν, ὅτι σύνοισθα σύ, παῖδιόν ἐκείνον διὰ τί νῦν αὕτη τρέφει.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (bewildered)

τί δὲ φῆς;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ἔρωτάς; ἀλλ' ἀπόκριναι τοῦτό μοι· τῖνος ἐστίν;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ἔπα· δεῖ σ' εἰ τᾶλλα λανθάνειν. [105]

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τί "λανθάνειν"; (Shouting to his slaves within) ἱμάντα, παῖδες, τις δότα 110 ἐπὶ τουτονί μοι τὸν ἀσεβῆ.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

μή, πρὸς θεῶν.

speaking of the other child, not of the one about which Demeas had heard the old nurse talk.

104 ff. For the purpose of intimidating Parmenon, Demeas pretends to have a far greater knowledge of the facts than he actually possesses, cf. v. 479.

107. It is possible that Parmenon asks τίς ἐφη τὰδ'; and that Demeas answers οὐδείς, declining to tell who his informant was (Leo).

108. τίνος ἐστίν: Demeas expects to extract an admission that the child is Moschion's. — εἶπα, κτέ.: I told you;

the rest you're not to know. Parmenon will not betray Moschion's secret. For Parmenon's view of the situation see vv. 499 ff.

109. Menander makes extensive use of this trick of quotation in excited dialogue, esp. in this play. Cf. also Georg. 28 pap. Gen. χαρέτω. τί "χαρέτω"; It is common in the Latin comedy, e.g. Plaut. Trin. 1080 iam —. —quid "iam"? Ter. Heaut. 317 at enim —. —quid "enim"? — ἱμάντα: a strap, μᾶστιξ, cf. vv. 94, 461, and Antiph. 74. 7 K. ἔξω τις δότα ἱμάντα ταχέως.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

στίξω σε, νή τὸν Ἥλιον.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

στίξεις ἐμέ;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ἤδη γ'.

A slave appears with a lash.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ἀπόλωλα.

Parmenon takes to his heels, in the direction of the city.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ποῖ σύ, ποῖ, μαστιγία;

λάβ' αὐτόν.

Parmenon makes his escape.

ὦ πόλισμα Κεκροπίας χθονός, [110]

ὦ ταναὸς αἰθήρ, ὦ — (Checking himself)

τί, Δημέα, βοᾷς;

115 τί βοᾷς, ἀνόητε; κάτεχε σαντόν. καρτέρει.

οὐδὲν γὰρ ἀδικεῖ Μοσχίων σε· παράβολος

ὁ λόγος ἴσως ἔστ', ἄνδρες, ἀλλ' ἀληθινός.

εἰ μὲν γὰρ ἡ βουλόμενος ἡ κρατούμενος [115]

111. στίξω σε: I'll tattoo you! The vb. is used metaphorically, as in Aristoph. Vesp. 1296 ἐγὼ δ' ἀπόλωλα στίξομενος βακτηρία, and prob. in Herond. 5. 28 ἐπὴν αὐτίς ἔλῃς τι δρωῶντα τῶν σὺ μὴ θέλῃς, στίξον.

113 f. λαβέ: spoken to nobody in particular.—ὦ πόλισμα, κτέ.: a hodge-podge of Euripidean phrases that recall those in Aristophanes; cf. Med. 771 and I.T. 1014 πτόλισμα Παλλάδος, Hipp. 34 and Ion 1571 Κεκροπίαν χθόνα, Orest. 322 τὸν ταναὸν αἰθέρα. The aether is apostrophized in Soph. O.C. 1471 ὦ μέγας αἰθήρ, ὦ Ζεῦ, and Aesch. Prom. 1092 ὦ πάντων αἰθέρ κοινὸν φῶς εἰλίσσων. Aristophanes uses πόλισμα for grandiose effect in Av. 553, 1565, and αἰθήρ often as a favorite word of Euripides, e.g. Ran. 892 αἰθήρ, ἐμὸν βόσκημα.

115 f. Also mock-tragic in tone, cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 756 σπεῦδ', ὦ ψυχῆ. ποῦ μοι ψυχῆ;

116. παράβολος: bold, hazardous, because the facts seem to be against the assertion. Menander uses the adv. in the same sense fr. 643 K. τοὺς παραβόλως πλέοντας "daring navigators."

117. ἄνδρες: see on E. 672, P. 51.

118. Demeas gives three possible explanations of the act, any one of which would be consistent with the hypothesis ἀδικεῖ με Μοσχίων. But they would all imply a feeling of personal

- ἔρωτι τοῦτ' ἔπραξεν ἢ μισῶν ἐμέ,⁷ 120 ἦν ἄν ἐπὶ τῆς αὐτῆς διανοίας ἥς πρὸ τοῦ,⁷ ἐμοί τ' ἐπέθετ' ἄν ἄσμενος· νυνὶ δέ μοι ἀπολελόγηται τὸν φανέντ' αὐτῷ γάμον ἄσμενος ἀκούσας· οὐκ ἐρῶν γάρ, ὡς ἐγὼ [120] τότε φόβην, ἔσπευδεν, ἀλλὰ τὴν ἐμὴν 125 Ἑλένην φυγεῖν βουλόμενος ἔνδοθεν ποτε· αὐτῇ γάρ ἔστιν αἰτία τοῦ γεγονότος.
 κατέλαβεν αὐτόν που μεθύοντα δηλαδὴ, οὐκ ὄντ' ἐν ἑαυτοῦ· πολλὰ δ' ἔργ' ἐργάζεται [125] τοιαῦτ' ἄκρατος καὶ νεότης, ὅταν λάβῃ hostility that Demeas is convinced he is not justified in assuming. He employs the argument from probability to clear Moschion, as Glycera does to clear herself in P. 585 ff. With κρατούμενος ἔρωτι cf. Soph. fr. 846 N. πρὸς τοῦ παρόντος ἡμέρου νικωμένη.

120 ff. "Had he been actuated by any of these motives, he would be of the same disposition toward me as before and would have been glad to do me a wrong. But as it is, he has proved his innocence of this offense by willingly consenting to the marriage." It is clear from this that Demeas and Moschion have had a quarrel, but it must have been almost a year before the present time, if Demeas can mention it in connection with Moschion's assumed relations with Chrysis.—With the phrase in v. 120 cf. Dem. 4. 7 ἄν . . . καὶ ὑμεῖς ἐπὶ τῆς τοιαύτης ἐθέλησθε γενέσθαι γνώμης νῦν, ἐπειδὴ περ οὐ πρότερον, 8. 14 μενεῖν ἐπὶ τῆς ἀνοίας τῆς αὐτῆς ὥσπερ νῦν (Leeuwen). — ἐμοί ἐπέθετ' ἄν = ἐμέ ἡδίκησεν ἄν. — φανέντα: disclosed, implying that the news was not expected by Moschion, cf. Soph. Trach.

433 ὁ τῆσδ' ἔρωτος φανέλις (and Jebb's note). A sudden notice of marriage is served on Pamphilus in Ter. And. 238 ff. — γάμον: plan of marriage with Plangon.

123. οὐκ ἐρῶν: causal, not because he was in love with her. But that was just the case.

125. An allusion to Ἑλένης αἰσχρὸν κλέος (Eur. Hel. 136). Eupolis called Aspasia "Helen" in the Prospaltioi (schol. Plat. 391). The phrase may be a reminiscence of Eur. Tel. fr. 722 N. (Agamemnon to Menelaus) οὐκ ἀπολοῦμαι τῆς σῆς Ἑλένης εἵνεκεν. Cf. Martial 1. 62. 6 Penelope venit, abit Helene.

128. οὐκ ὄντ' ἐν ἑαυτοῦ: cf. v. 67 ἐξέστηκα, Aristoph. Vesp. 642 ἐστὶν οὐκ ἐν αὐτοῦ, Soph. Phil. 950 νῦν ἔτ' ἐν σαυτοῦ γενοῦ, Herod. 1. 119 οὔτε ἐξεπλάγη ἐντὸς τε ἑωυτοῦ γίνεσθαι, Plat. Charm. 155b οὐκέτ' ἐν ἑμᾶντοῦ. The gen. is due to an ellipsis of some such word as οἰκία.

129. Cf. Ter. Ad. 470 persuasit nox amor vinum adulescentia (Leeuwen). Aristophanes calls wine "the milk of Aphrodite" (596 K.). — ἄκρατος καὶ νεότης: hendiadys for

- 130 ῥαιρόν, ἐπιβουλεύσαντά τοι τοῖς πλησίον.
τοῦτ' οὐδέπω γὰρ πιθανὸν εἶναί μοι δοκεῖ, τὸν εἰς ἅπαντας κόσμον καὶ σώφρονα τοὺς ἄλλοτρίους εἰς ἐμὲ τοιοῦτον γεγονέναι, [130] οὐδ' εἰ δεκάκις ποητός ἐστι, μὴ γόνυ, 135 ἐμὸς υἱός. οὐ γὰρ τοῦτο, τὸν τρόπον δ' ὁρῶ. F¹, quat. y, p. 5 χαμαιτύπη δ' ἄνθρωπος, ὀλεθρος — ἀλλὰ τί;
οὐ γὰρ περίεσται, Δημέα. νῦν ἄνδρα χρῆ εἶναί σ'. ἐπιλαθοῦ τοῦ πόθου, πέπαυσ' ἐρῶν, [135]
καὶ τὰτύχημα μὲν τὸ γεγονὸς κρύφθ' ὅσον 140 ἔνεστι, διὰ τὸν υἱόν, ἐκ τῆς δ' οἰκίας ἐπὶ τὴν κεφαλὴν εἰς κόρακας ὥσον τὴν κακὴν Σαμίαν. ἔχεις δὲ πρόφασιν ὅτι τὸ παιδίον ἀνείλετ'. ἐμφανίσῃς γὰρ ἄλλο μὴδὲ ἓν, [140] δακῶν δ' ἀνάσχοι. καρτέρησον εὐγενῶς.

Enter the Cook from the house.

νέος τις μεθύσθεις, hence the singular verbs.

130. ἐπιβουλεύσαντα: opportunity plots against those who are near at hand. τοῖ marks the statement as one which all will accept without debate, and is appropriate to the gnomic form (aor.) in which the thought is cast. καιρός is personified as readily as τύχη. Menander elsewhere (541. 7 K.), speaking of falling in love, says: καιρός ἐστιν ἡ νόσος ψυχῆς, ὃ πλῆγεις δ' εἰσω ("to the heart") δὴ τιτρώσκειται.

131. γάρ: goes back to his assertion of Chrysis' guilt (Moschion's innocence) in v. 120.

132. κόσμον: cf. v. 61.

133. τοιοῦτον: ἀκοσμον καὶ ἀκρατῆ.

134. In the protasis two hypotheses are blended, a simple particular, εἰ ποητός ἐστι, and an unreal, εἰ δεκάκις ποητός ἦν. The blending is natural, since δεκάκις is in effect only a strong σφόδρα. — ποητός: cf. θεός P. 703.

135. τοῦτο: εἰ ποητός ἢ γόνυ ἐστὶν υἱὸς ἐμὸς. — τρόπον: see on E. 881.

136. ὀλεθρος: a pest, a —. Eupolis (376 K.) calls a person ἀνεμος καὶ ὀλεθρος. Cf. also Dem. 23. 202 ἀνθρώπους οὐδ' ἑλευθέρους, ἀλλ' ὀλέθρους, Ter. Ad. 188 leno sum, pernicies communis, fateor, adulescentium.

137. περίεσται: viz. ἐκ ταύτης τῆς ὀργῆς, you will get no good from it. Cf. Arist. Rhet. 1418 a 21 τούτω μὲν γὰρ περὶεστι τὸ κέρδος, ἐμοὶ δὲ τὸ δίκαιον, and P. 215 μὴν ὀνήσει.

141. The thought of Chrysis stirs him up again. — ἐπὶ τὴν κεφαλὴν: head foremost, cf. Plat. Rep. 653 b εὐθὺς ἐπὶ κεφαλὴν ὥθει ἐκ τοῦ θρόνου... φιλοτιμία.

142 ff. In order to protect Moschion he will not even tell Chrysis why he thrusts her out of his house, but will

SC. 3. DEMEAS, COOK

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ (to a slave standing near)

145 ἀλλ' ἄρα πρόσθεν τῶν θυρῶν ἐστ' ἐνθάδε, παῖ, Παρμένων; ἄνθρωπος ἀποδέδρακέ με
ἀλλ' οὐδὲ μικρὸν συλλαβών.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (to the Cook) ἐκ τοῦ μέσου

ἀναγε σεαυτόν.

Rushes into the house.

ΜΑΓΕΙΡΟΣ

Ἡράκλεις, τί τοῦτο, παῖ;

[145]

μαινόμενος εἰσδεδράμηκεν εἴσω τις γέρων, —

150 ἦ τί τὸ κακὸν ποτ' ἐστί; τί δέ μοι τοῦτο, παῖ;

Hears a clamor within the house.

νῇ τὸν Ποσειδῶ, μαίνεθ', ὥς ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ· κέκραγε γοῦν παμμέγεθες. ἀστεῖον πάννυ

εἰ τὰς λοπάδας ἐν τῷ μέσῳ μοῖ' κειμένας

[150]

ὄστρακα ποήσαι πάνθ' ὅμοια. — τὴν θύραν

155 πέπληχεν. ἐξώλης ἀπόλοιο, Παρμένων, allege as the reason her taking up the foundling against his protests (βεβιασμένην, v. 66). He finds it difficult to live up to this resolution, cf. v. 102.

144. δακῶν: cf. Hom. Od. 1. 381 ὁδὰξ ἐν χεῖλεσι φύντες, Tyrt. 8. 32 Cr. χεῖλος ὁδοῦσι δακῶν, Soph. Trach. 976 ἀλλ' ἔσχε δακῶν στόμα σόν, Aristoph. Nub. 1369 τὸν θυμὸν δακῶν, Ter. Ad. 207 accipiunda et mussitanda iniuria adulescentiumst, and note on P. 224.

145. Demeas stands for a moment, bracing himself for the interview with Chrysis. The Cook does not see him until he rushes past. The short scene that follows (vv. 148–157) provides Demeas with the time he needs to bundle Chrysis out of the house.

147. ἀλλά: the adversative force is implied in a slight ellipsis "that was bad enough," but he has done so without even helping me a little. In prose we should have καὶ τοῦτο.

151. Cf. E. 663f.

152. γοῦν: his roar, at any rate, was that of a madman. — παμμέγεθες: see on H. 2 and cf. Aeschin. 2. 106 ἀναβοᾷ παμμέγεθες Δημοσθένης. — ἀστεῖον: a nice state of affairs! cf. v. 455 and Luc. Icarom. 4 οὐ γὰρ ἀστεῖον γε τὸ θέαμα. The serious equivalent is δεινόν.

154. πάνθ' ὅμοια: one and all, cf. πάντας ὁμοίως Aristoph. Pac. 1323.

155. πέπληχεν: see on E. 660, 691.

κομίσας με δεῦρο. μικρὸν ὑπαποστήσομαι.

Withdraws to one side. Demeas, Chrysis, and a nurse with the child come from the house.

Sc. 4. DEMEAS, CHRYSIS

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

οὐκ οὐν ἀκούεις; ἄπιθι.

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

ποῖ γῆς, ὦ τάλαν;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

εἰς κόρακας ἤδη.

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ (weeping)

δύσμορος —

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ναί, "δύσμορος." [155]

ἐλεεινὸν ἀμέλει τὸ δάκρυον. παύσω σ' ἐγώ,

160 ὥς οἶμαι —

156. μικρὸν ὑπαποστήσομαι: when a person in comedy "withdraws a little to one side," it is generally, if not always, with the intention of listening, without being seen, to the conversation of those who are entering the scene. The place to which they withdraw is the alley-way between the houses, λαύρα or angiportus, cf. Ter. Phor. 891 sed hinc concedam in angiportum hoc proximum, inde hisce ostendam me, ubi erunt egressi foras. Examples of this maneuver are numerous in Plautus and Terence, e.g. Trin. 625 huc aliquantum apscessero; est libido orationem audire, Pseud. 414 nunc huc concedam, unde horum sermonem legam, Men. 570 huc concedamus: ex insidiis aucupa. Even when this motive is not expressed it is implied: in Bacch. 610,

Capt. 213, Mil. 985, Trin. 1007, Ad. 635, the persons who retire from view overhear the speakers on the scene. It is probable that the Cook remains within earshot for a time, and no doubt the poet later makes use of him and the knowledge he has thus acquired 158. δύσμορος, κτέ.: unhappy man! — Yes, 'unhappy.' It is possible, however, that Chrysis refers to herself, "Unhappy that I am," in which case ἐλεεινὸν in v. 159 would mean "to excite my pity," as in Aristoph. Ran. 1063 ράκι' ἀμπισχών, ἔν' ἐλεινοὶ τοῖς ἀνθρώποις φαίνοντ' εἶναι.

159. ἐλεεινὸν ἀμέλει, κτέ.: the tears are tears of pity for me, no doubt! Cf. Hom. Od. 8. 531 ἐλεεινὸν ὑπ' ὀφρύσι δάκρυον εἶβεν. — παύσω σε: the unexpressed thought of Demeas is διαφθερουσαν τὸν υἱόν μου. Since he has already told her that the reason for his anger

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ

τί ποοῦσαν;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (checks himself)

οὐδέν. ἀλλ' ἔχεις

τὸ παιδίον, τὴν γραῦν· ἀποφθείρου τάχυν.

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ

ὅτι τοῦτ' ἀνελόμην;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

διὰ τοῦτο (hesitating) καὶ —

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ

τί "καί;"

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (checking himself again)

διὰ τοῦτο· τοιοῦτ' ἦν τὸ κακόν.

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ

οὐ' μανθάνω.

[160]

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τρυφᾶν γὰρ οὐκ ἠπίστας'.

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ (perplexed)

οὐκ ἠπιστάμην;

165 τί δ' ἔσθ' ὃ λέγεις;

is the fact that she has taken the child to rear (cf. v. 142), Chrysis may well wonder at this threat, which would mean to her τρέφουσιν τὸ παιδίον.

160. οὐδέν: oh, nothing!

161. τὴν γραῦν: the old nurse of Moschion, probably; for she too had offended by concealing the truth from Demeas. It may be that she is carrying the two babies under her palla, cf. Caecilius fr. 4 R. (see on v. 54 above) atque hercle, utrasque te, cum ad nos venis, subfarcinatam vidi and Ter. And. 769, where Davus says verum; vidi Cantharam suffarcinatam (Harmon). On this view Demeas is aware that the bundle under one arm is the "foundling," but does not suspect that the other bundle is also a baby. If the nurse had a leading part in the intrigue of this play, as Harmon assumes, Τίτῃ would be a natural title or subtitle.

163. τοιοῦτο: modifies a little the definite τοῦτο: the trouble was something of the kind.

164. Pressed to explain τοιοῦτο he gives another vague reason. — τρυφᾶν: to live like a lady, lit. to live in luxury. Demeas has already implied (v. 136)

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

καίτοι πρὸς ἔμ' ἦλθες ἐνθάδε ἐν σινδονίῃ, Χρυσί, — μανθάνεις; — πάννυ λιτῶ.

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

τί οὖν;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τότ' ἦν ἐγὼ σοι πάνθ', ὅτε φάυλως ἔπραττες.

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

νῦν δὲ τίς;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (impatiently)

μή μοι λάλει.

[165]

ἔχεις τὰ σαυτῆς πάντα· προστίθημί σοι, 170 ἰδοῦ, θεραπαίνας, χρυσί· ἐκ τῆς οἰκίας ἄπιθι.

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ (aside)

τὸ πρᾶγμ' ὀργή τίς ἐστι· προσιτέον. F², quat. y, p. 6
(To Demeas, pleadingly)

βέλτιστ', ὄρα —

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τί μοι διαλέγεις;

that she came from the gutter, — unjustly assuming, of course, that she had shown herself depraved.

165. καίτοι, κτέ.: Demeas goes right on with the theme of τρυφή, reminding her of his kindness in rescuing her. — For the anapaest contained in three words see on E. 46. In the fourth foot it occurs only here and in v. 196.

166. σινδονίῃ: sc. χιτῶν, linen tunic, cf. Photius σινδονίτης· χιτῶν λινοῦς. She was then too poor to have a himation to wear over the tunic.

167. λιτῶ: cheap, lit. plain, cf. Men. 442 K. Στρατοφάνη, λιτὸν ποτ' εἶχες χλαμύδιον. — τί οὖν: what then, pray? — ἰγώ: the pron. comes dangerously near betraying the speaker's jealousy.

170. θεραπαίνας: apparently another case of comic exaggeration, for only the old nurse accompanied her (v. 161); cf. P. 53, 183, E. 904. — χρυσία: Demeas hands her some money (ἰδοῦ). The reading Χρυσί would give a bad hiatus.

171. ὀργή: Chrysis sees that Demeas is disingenuous with her. — προσιτέον: I must address myself to him, make up to him. The vb. is often so used, with the implication that the person μὴ δακῆς.

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ἐτέρα γὰρ ἀγαπήσει τὰ παρ' ἐμοί, Χρυσί, νῦν, [170]
καὶ τοῖς θεοῖς θύσει.

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ (bewildered)

τί ἐστίν;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ἀλλὰ σὺ

175 υἱὸν πεπόηκας· πάντ' ἔχεις.

ΧΡΤΣΙΣ

οὐπω· δάκνει.

(Once more appealing to him)

ὅμως —

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (with a threatening gesture)

κατάξω τὴν κεφαλὴν, ἄνθρωπέ, σου, ἂν μοι διαλέγῃ.

approaches with a petition or with a desire to please, as Men. 134 K. σιωπῇ φασὶ τῷ θεῷ (Pan) οὐ δεῖν προσιέναι, Xen. Symp. 4. 38 αἱς ἂν προσέλθω ὑπερασπάζονται με διὰ τὸ μηδένα ἄλλον αὐταῖς ἐθέλειν προσιέναι, and with τῷ δήμῳ, τῇ βουλῇ, etc., of a speaker who has a cause to plead.

172. μὴ δακῆς: be not vexed with me. The form is a second aor. pass. ἐδάκην, hitherto found only in late writers. The vb. may be used of any emotion that may be said to "sting," but is more frequently applied to vexation or grief. Cf. Soph. Phil. 378 καί περ οὐ δύσσοργος ὢν, δηχθεὶς πρὸς ἀξήκουσεν, Aristoph. Ach. 1 δέδηγμαι τὴν ἑμαντοῦ καρδίαν. δηχθεὶς = tristis, cf. Plaut. Men. 607 (Menaechmus to his wife) quid tu mihi tristis es?

173. ἀγαπήσει: will be glad enough to have, cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 684 σοὶ δ' ἦν τις δῶ τοὺς τρεῖς ὀβόλους, ἀγαπᾷς.

174. θύσει: will offer up thanks-giving besides. θύειν = χάριν εἰδέναι also in Herond. 6. 10 θύέ μοι ταύτη.

175. υἱὸν πεπόηκας: you have got a son, intentionally vague. The mid. would be necessary for the meanings "begotten" or "adopted"; the act. is non-committal and insinuates "without my intervention." Cf. Plut. Mor. 145D παῖδιον μὲν γὰρ οὐδεμία ποτὲ γυνὴ λέγεται ποιῆσαι δίχα κοινωνίας ἀνδρός, where the act. is intentionally employed. The same use of ποιεῖν is found (Leeuwen) in connection with χρήματα or produce of any kind, e.g. Aristoph. Pac. 1322 κριθάς τε ποιεῖν ἡμᾶς πολλάς, . . . οἶόν τε πολύν. — οὐπω· δάκνει: not yet (sc. πάντ' ἔχω); you are hurt.

176. κατάξω: cf. E. 850.

ΣΤΙΧΙΣ

καὶ δικαίως· ἀλλ' ἰδοῦ—

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (abruptly turning away)

εἰσέρχομ' ἤδη.

He turns upon her scornfully.

τὸ μέγα πρᾶγμ'. ἐν τῇ πόλει [175]

ὄψει σεαυτὴν νῦν ἀκριβῶς ἥτις εἶ.

180 αἱ κατὰ σε, Χρυσί, πραττόμεναι δραχμὰς δέκα

μόνας ἐταῖραι διατρέχουσ' ἐπὶ δεῖπνα καὶ πίνουσ' ἄκρατον ἄχρις ἂν ἀποθάνωσιν,— ἡ πεινώσιν ἂν μὴ τοῦθ' ἐτοίμως καὶ ταχὺ [180]

ποῶσιν. εἴσει δ' οὐδενὸς τοῦτ', οἷδ' ὅτι,

177. καὶ δικαίως: she thinks to soothe him by the admission.

178. τὸ μέγα πρᾶγμα: the great lady!, the important personage! Cf. Eubul. 117.9 K. εἰ δ' ἐγένετο κακὴ γυνὴ Μήδεια, Πηνελόπη δέ γε μέγα πρᾶγμα ("a treasure"), Dem. 35.15 οὐτοσί δὲ Λάκριτος Φασηλίτης, μέγα πρᾶγμα ("a great man"), 'Ισοκράτους μαθητῆς, Herod. 3.182 ἦν μέγιστον πρῆγμα Δημοκίδης τῷ βασιλεῖ.—ἐν τῇ πόλει: as mistress of the household of a prosperous citizen she might play the grande dame, but "on the town" she will sink to her true level. The contrast would be indicated in prose by ἀλλ' ἐν τῇ πόλει; here the speaker's voice suffices.

180. αἱ κατὰ σε: the women of your sort, explained by ἐταῖραι, which is reserved for rhetorical effect, as hetaerae. For κατὰ σε cf. H. 19, P. 587.—πραττόμεναι: at a wage of.—δραχμὰς δέκα: he insultingly implies that Chrysis would not be a μεγαλόμισθος ἐταῖρα.—The anapaest in the fourth foot contained in a word that overlaps the preceding foot is common in Menan-

der. But the shift of ἐταῖραι adopted by some editors (αἱ κατὰ σ' ἐταῖραι) produces such an anapaest in the fifth foot, where the poet avoids it. See on v. 36 and White, p. 152.

181. διατρέχουσι: run about, cf. Aristoph. Pac. 536 γυναικῶν διατρεχουσῶν εἰς ἀγρόν, Plut. Vit. Mar. 30.3 νῦν μὲν ὡς τοῦτους, νῦν δὲ ὡς ἐκείνους . . . ἀνὰ μέρος διατρέχων, and see note on E. 245.

182. ἄχρις: the Atticists (Phryn.) prescribe ἄχρι (μέχρι) as Attic, condemning the form in ς as "Hellenic." The Attic inscriptions show only ἄχρι (μέχρι). The diction of Menander was noticeably influenced by the κοινὴ.

183. τοῦτο: ἀποθανεῖν. Death is certain in any event, he means; it will either come soon, as the result of excesses, or will be a slow death by starvation, according as the woman is popular or otherwise.

184 f. οὐδενὸς ἥττον: as well as (meaning better than) any one.—γνώσει, κτέ.: you will find out who you are that wronged me. In this crushing way Demeas predicts for her a death 185 ἤττον σύ, καὶ γνώσει τίς οὖς' ἡμάρτανες.

As he approaches the door Chrysis makes a move as if to detain him.

ἔσταθι.

Demeas enters the house. Chrysis, leaning against the portico, weeps.

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

τάλαιν' ἔγωγε τῆς ἐμῆς τύχης.

Enter Niceratus from the city. A slave accompanying him carries a sheep.

SC. 5. CHRYSIS, NICERATUS

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

τουτὶ τὸ πρόβατον τοῖς θεοῖς μὲν τὰ νόμιμα ἅπαντα ποιήσει θυθὲν καὶ ταῖς θεαῖς.

[185]

αἷμα γὰρ ἔχει, χολὴν ἱκανήν, ὅστ' αὖ καλά, 190 σπλῆνα μέγαν, ὦν χρεία 'στὶ τοῖς Ὀλυμπίοις.
πέμψω δὲ γεύσασθαι κατακόψας τοῖς φίλοις by starvation. She is not attractive enough to hope for a death brought on by riotous living.

187 ff. The father of the bride as well as the father of the bridegroom offered a sacrifice preliminary to the wedding; see Plaut. Aul. 329 ff., where both families give a banquet also (v. 282). Niceratus, as a poor man, does his own marketing (cf. Euclio in Aul. 371 ff.), and cannot lay out much on the victim. His humor is that of a man soured by poverty.—τὰ νόμιμα ἅπαντα: all that custom requires.

188. θυθὲν: for the Attic τυθέν, a spelling attested by inscriptions, e.g. θυθέντος B. C. H. VII, p. 65 (Delos, 250 B. C.), ibid. VII, p. 99 (Magnesia, 2d cent.), ἀπεθύθη Rev. Ét. Gr. XIV, p. 300 (Herwerden).

189 f. It is a perfect victim (τέλειον), as it should be, with blood and organs complete, but skinny withal. Peithetaerus in Aristoph. Av. 901 suggests that only one god be invited to partake of his sacrifice, τὰ γὰρ παρόντα θύματ' οὐδὲν ἄλλο πλὴν γένειόν τ' ἐστὶ καὶ κέρατα, Euclio in Plaut. Aul. 564 characterizes the sacrificial lamb as ossa ac pellis totus. It is a scandal, says Menander elsewhere (129 K.), that men offer to the gods τὴν ὀσφὺν ἀκραν καὶ τὴν χολὴν ὅστ' αὖ τ' ἀβρωτα, and consume all the rest themselves, and again (319. 11 K.) ἐγὼ μὲν οὖν ὦν γ' ὁ θεὸς οὐκ εἶασα τὴν ὀσφὺν ἂν ἐπὶ τὸν βωμὸν ἐπιθεῖναι ποτε, εἰ μὴ καθήκειν τις ἅμα τὴν ἐγχελυν. An unknown tragic poet (so Leeuwen), com. adesp. 1205 K., wonders how a man can hope for divine favor when he offers the gods only the fleshless bones and scorched liver.

191. δὲ . . . τοῖς φίλοις: as opposed to τοῖς θεοῖς μὲν.

τὸ κῶδιον· λοιπὸν γάρ ἐστι τοῦτό μοι.

The slave takes the sheep into the house of Niceratus. Niceratus sees Chrysis before the house of his neighbor.

ἀλλ', Ἡράκλεις, τί τοῦτο; πρόσθε τῶν θυρῶν [190]

He approaches her.

ἔστηκε Χρυσὶς ἥδε κλάουσ'; οὐ μὲν οὖν

195 ἄλλη. (Accosting her)

τί ποτε τὸ γεγονός;

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

ἐκβέβληκέ με

ὁ φίλος ὁ χρηστός σου· τί γὰρ ἄλλ';

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

ᾧ Ἡράκλεις, τίς; Δημέας;

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

ναί.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

διὰ τί;

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

διὰ τὸ παιδίον.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

ἤκουσα καὐτὸς τῶν γυναικῶν ὅτι τρέφεις

[196] ἀνελομένη παιδάριον. ἐμβροντησία.

200 ἀλλ' ἔστ' ἐκεῖνος ἡδύς.

193. πρόσθε τῶν θυρῶν: by the πρόθυρον, see on E. 226.

195. The MS. reading τί ποτ' ἐστι gives the forbidden metrical sequence ∪ ∪ ∪ ∪ _ in the third and fourth feet.

196. ὁ χρηστός, κτέ.: that precious friend of yours, cf. E. 854.—τί γὰρ ἄλλο: implying "Is that not enough?"

— Note the anapaest in the fourth foot and see on v. 165.

198. τῶν γυναικῶν: the women of his own family, viz. his wife and daughter, see v. 356.

199. ἐμβροντησία = μανία, φρενοβλάβεια (Hesych.); cf. P. 400.

200. ἐστ' ἡδύς: he is a sweet (innocent) fellow, he is! ἡδύς is frequently

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

οὐκ ὠργίζετο

εὐθύς, διαλιπὼν δ', ἀρτίως. ὃς καὶ φράσας εἰς τοὺς γάμους μοι τᾶνδον εὐτρεπῇ πῶεϊν¹ μεταξύ μ' ὥσπερ ἐμμανῆς ἐπεισπεσῶν¹ ἔξωθεν ἐκκέκλεικε.

[200]

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

Δημέας χολᾷ¹;[Lacuna of ca. 140 verses to F³]

At the end of the preceding scene Niceratus offered Chrysis the shelter of his house, into which they retired, with her child and nurse. At this point the unfounded suspicions which Demeas harbors against Moschion and Chrysis were cleared up (vv. 412 f.). Probably Moschion has heard of them from Parmenon, whom he has met in the city. In an interview with his father Moschion disclosed the parentage of the child whom Demeas had seen with the old nurse. We must assume, further, that after Demeas retired into his house to resume the interrupted arrangements for the wedding, Moschion and Niceratus held a conversation, in which the latter, curious concerning the quarrel between Demeas and Chrysis, questioned the young man about the baby which Chrysis had taken to rear, and that Moschion explained that it was a foundling of unknown parentage. The scene between Demeas and Niceratus, into which we are introduced in F³, then ensues. When Demeas found that his suspicions were unfounded as regards his son, in his joy he apparently forgot the incident (v. 54) which originally led him to suspect Chrysis, and he is now eager to receive her back into his home (v. 367). It does not occur to him that her "foundling" may not be the child that Moschion has acknowledged. As to his quarrel with Chrysis, he cannot divulge to Niceratus the real reason for it. But in answer to the latter's inquiries concerning it he probably refers to the "foundling" as the cause of the trouble and then informs Niceratus that it is a bastard child of Plangon, without, however, saying who the father is. Each father knows of but one child and naturally thinks it is the infant which Chrysis has taken with her.

used ironically, esp. by Plato, as about the equivalent of εὐθύς, e.g. Gorg. 491E ὡς ἡδὺς εἶ, Plut. Mor. 925F. — ὠργίζετο: for the impf. see on P. 869.

201. διαλιπών: the interval can hardly have been a long one, a week or two perhaps. — καὶ φράσας: when he had just told me, the καὶ being explained by μεταξύ με (sc. εὐτρεπῇ ποιούσαν) below.

DEMEAS, NICERATUS

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

345 ἀλλὰ πάλιν ἐλθὼν —

F², quat. y, p. 11

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

τὸ δεῖνα "μικρόν;" ὦ τᾶν, οἷχεται πᾶν, τὰ πράγματ' ἀνατέτραπται, τέλος ἔχει.

Niceratus rushes into his house.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

νῆ τὸν Δία.

οὔτοσὶ τὸ πρᾶγμ' ἀκούσας χαλεπανεῖ, κεκραῖζεται.

345 ff. The excitement under which the actors labor in the following scenes finds fitting expression in the trochaic rhythm; see on P. 147.

After telling Niceratus that Plangon is the mother of an illegitimate child, which has been kept in his house as a foundling, Demeas has apparently been trying to comfort him by explaining that it is after all a trivial matter (μικρόν). He is about to request Niceratus to go back into the house (πάλιν ἐλθὼν) to complete the arrangements for the wedding. But Niceratus, greatly distressed by the disquieting information which he has just received concerning Plangon, and believing that the marriage cannot take place, interrupts Demeas before the sentence is finished and asks, "Is this — this — thing that you speak of (meaning τὸ νόθον τεκεῖν τὴν θυγατέρα μου) a trivial matter, as you say? Why, sir, it's all over, the business is upset, it's at an end" (meaning the proposed marriage of Plangon to Moschion). — τὸ δεῖνα: on the use of τὸ δεῖνα to avoid the utterance of an unpleasant or objectionable word see on P. 215.

346. νῆ τὸν Δία: yes, by Jove, it is at an end! Demeas says this to himself as Niceratus disappears into his house. He is thinking of his own plan to keep Moschion's relation to the child from the other's knowledge. The hot-headed Niceratus has rushed off without waiting for the assurance, which Demeas was on the point of giving him, that Moschion would marry Plangon in spite of the child.

347. τὸ πρᾶγμ' ἀκούσας: Niceratus has yet to learn that Moschion is the father of Plangon's child. Demeas evidently expects him to ascertain the truth from Plangon and her mother; and he would naturally have done so had he not at the outset assumed that the child in the arms of Chrysis was Plangon's. Demeas is certain that Niceratus will be angry, because of the deception which everybody has practiced upon him; besides, he is now in an ugly mood (cf. μελαγχολᾷ v. 361), and is an utterly unreasonable sort of τραχὺς ἄνθρωπος, σκατοφάγος, αὐθέκαστος τῷ τρόπῳ. — ἐμέ γὰρ ὑπονοεῖν τοιαῦτα τὸν μιαρὸν ἐχρῆν, ἐμέ; [206] 350 νῆ τὸν Ἡφαιστον, δικαίως ἀποθάνοιμ' ἄν.

Hears an outcry in Niceratus' house.

Ἡράκλεις,

ἡλίκον κέκραγε. τούτ' ἦν· πῦρ βοᾷ. τὸ παιδίον φησὶ θύσῃν, εἴτα πρήσειν. ὑἱδοὺν ὀπτώμενον ὄψοιμ'. — Ἡράκλεις, πέπληχε τὴν θύραν. — στρόβιλος ἡ σκηπτός, οὐκ ἄνθρωπος ἐστι. Niceratus rushes out of his house.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

Δημέα, συνίσταται [211]

355 ἐπ' ἐμέ καὶ πάνδεια ποιῇ πράγμαθ' ἡ Χρυσίς.

man. He ought, of course, to be glad to discover that Moschion is the child's father, for then his present difficulty would be solved.

348. σκατοφάγος: cf. P. 274. — αὐθέκαστος: a door, lit. downright, blunt, τὴν σκάφην σκάφην λέγων (adesp. 227 K.), cf. Philem. 89. 6 K. ἡ μὲν εἰρων τῇ φύσει, ἡ δ' αὐθέκαστος and Arist. Eth. Nic. 1127^a 28 ὁ δὲ εἰρων ἀνάπαλιν ἀρνεῖσθαι τὰ ὑπάρχοντα ἢ ἐλάττω ποιεῖν, ὁ δὲ μέσος αὐθέκαστος τις ὢν ἀληθευτικὸς καὶ τῷ βίῳ καὶ τῷ λόγῳ. Menander uses the word again in the derived meaning (843 K.) πικροῦ γέροντος, αὐθεκάστου τὸν τρόπον.

349. τοιαῦτα: that Moschion would misbehave himself with Chrysis.

351. ἡλίκον: cf. v. 43. — τούτ' ἦν: cf. Aristoph. Ach. 41 τούτ' ἐκεῖν' οὐγὼ λέγον. ἦν is the impf. of sudden realization, cf. P. 170. — πῦρ βοᾷ: he shouts for fire. For the const. cf. Pind. P. 6. 36 βάσσε παῖδα ὄν, Soph. Trach. 772 ἐβόησε τὸν δυσδαίμονα Αἰχάν, Xen. Cyr. 7. 2. 5 Κύρον ἐβόα. Demeas explains for the benefit of the spectators what he pretends to hear at the door. The same device in Eur. Hipp. 581 (Phaedra) ὁ τῆς φιλιππου καὶς Ἀμαθῆνος βοᾷ Ἰππόλυτος, αὐδῶν δεινὰ πρόσπολον κακά.

352 f. ὑἱδοὺν: for the omission of the art. see on P. 142. — ὀπτώμενον ὄψομαι: cf. Aristoph. Ach. 1011 ἐπειδὴν τὰς κίχλας ὀπτωμένας ἴδῃτε. "Roast grandson" (supplying e.g. ἀρτύσειν in v. 353) would be ὑἱδοὺν ὀπτόν. — στρόβιλος: cyclone.

354. σκηπτός: thunderbolt. Niceratus, he means, is uncontrollable when he is enraged. Locutions like this are common, e.g. Men. 363. 6 K. Κτήσιππος, οὐκ ἄνθρωπος, Crob. 8. 4 K. (of a gourmand) κάμνος, οὐκ ἄνθρωπος, Herond. 6. 4 λίθος τις, οὐ δούλη, Petron. Cen. 38 phantasia, non homo. — συνίσταται: is raising a revolt.

We can imagine the scene that is supposed to have taken place within the house. Niceratus has definitely charged his daughter with being the mother of the child which Chrysis holds in her arms. The women with one accord have denied the charge (or, as Niceratus put it, "have refused to confess"), and truthfully. In order

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τί φής;

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

τὴν γυναῖκά μου πέπεικε μηδὲν ὁμολογεῖν ὅλως μηδὲ τὴν κόρην· ἔχει δὲ πρὸς βίαν τὸ παιδίον οὐ προήσεσθαί τέ φησιν. ὥστε μὴ θαύμαζ' ἔαν [215] αὐτόχειρ αὐτῆς γένωμαι.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τῆς γυναικὸς αὐτόχειρ;

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

360 πάντα γὰρ σύνοιδεν αὐτῇ.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

μηδαμῶς, Νικήρατε.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

σοὶ δ' ἐβουλόμην προειπεῖν.

Rushes back into his house.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

οὔτοσὶ μελαγχολᾷ.

εἰσπεπήδηκεν. τί τούτοις τοῖς κακοῖς τις χρήσεται;

to force an admission from them Niceratus has then tried to take the child away from Chrysis, and Chrysis has fiercely resisted him. The bearing of Chrysis has convinced Niceratus that she is the instigator among the women of a plot to deceive him, and he now proposes to deal summarily with her.

357. πρὸς βίαν: by main strength, forcibly, i.e. resisting his efforts to take it away from her, cf. Aristoph. Vesp. 443 τούτῳ τὸν παλαιὸν δεσπότην πρὸς βίαν χειροῦσιν. The meaning "in spite of" is closely akin to this.

359. αὐτόχειρ: murderer, lit. per- petrator. The full expression is found e.g. in Soph. O.T. 206 τὸν αὐτόχειρα τοῦ φόνου λαβεῖν.—τῆς γυναικός: Chrysis, the woman just mentioned. In this context "your wife" would have to be τῆς γυναικὸς σου. The reference to Chrysis is made perfectly clear by αὐτῇ in the next line and by the assault of Niceratus upon Chrysis that follows.

360. μηδαμῶς: sc. αὐτόχειρ γένης.

361. μελαγχολᾷ: Demeas returns his friend's compliment, v. 204.

362. χρήσεται: deliberative fut., cf. Aristoph. Ach. 312 εἴτ' ἐγὼ σου φέλομαι; οὐδεπώποτ' εἰς τοιαύτην ἐμπεσών, μὰ τοὺς θεούς, [220]

οἶδα ταραχήν. ἔστι μέντοι τὸ γεγονός φράσαι σαφῶς 365 πολὺν κράτιστον. — ἀλλ', *Απολλων, ἡ θύρα πάλιν ψοφεῖ.
Chrysis flees from the house of Niceratus, the baby in her arms. Niceratus is in close pursuit, a staff in his hands.

DEMEAS, CHRYSIS, NICERATUS

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

ὦ τάλαιν' ἐγώ, τί δράσω; ποῖ φύγω; τὸ παιδίον λήψεταιί μου.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

Χρυσί, δεῦρο.

ΧΡΥΣΙΣ

τίς καλεῖ μ';

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (pointing to his own house)

εἴσω τρέχε.

Niceratus sees Chrysis running toward the other house.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

ποῖ σύ, ποῖ φεύγεις;

He blocks her way to the door, but Demeas steps between them,

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (aside)

*Απολλων, μονομαχήσω τήμερον, [225]

ὡς ἔοικ', ἐγώ. (To Niceratus)

τί βούλεις; τίνα διώκεις;

364. μέντοι: after all. Demeas is beginning to be afraid of the consequences of not having told Niceratus the whole truth about the child. But he does not carry out his intention of acknowledging that Moschion is its father.

365. ψοφεῖ: see on E. 660.

367. Χρυσί, δεῦρο: this way, Chrysis. Supposing that her former home was still closed to her, Chrysis had not looked that way for refuge.

369. τίνα διώκεις = τίνα δοκεῖς διώκειν, cf. P. 267, Soph. Trach. 402 πρὸς τίν' ἐννέπειν δοκεῖς; and Eur. Alc. 675 τίν' αὐχεῖς, πότρεα Λυδὸν ἢ Φρύγα, κακοῖς ἐλαύνειν;

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

Δημέα,

370 ἐκποδὼν ἄπελθ'. ἔα με γενόμενον τοῦ παιδίου ἐγκρατῇ τὸ πρᾶγμ' ἀκούσαι τῶν γυναικῶν.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (aside)

μαίνεται.

(To Niceratus, who shows fight)

ἀλλὰ τυπτήσεις μ' ;

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ (striking him)

ἔγωγε.

Demeas holds his ground.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (aside to Chrysis)

(To Niceratus)

θᾶπτον εἰσφθάρηθι σύ.

ἀλλὰ μὴν κᾷγωγ' ἔ.

Returning the blow, he grapples with Niceratus while he calls to Chrysis.

φεύγε, Χρυσί· κρείττων ἐστί μου. [230]

Chrysis makes her escape into the house of Demeas. The men then separate.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

πρότερος ἄπτει μου σὺ νυνί, τοῦτ' ἐγὼ μαρτύρομαι.

370 f. By getting possession of the child Niceratus expects to force the women to tell him the truth, threatening to kill him if they refuse.—τὸ πρᾶγμα: i.e. the facts in the case, the truth of the matter, as in v. 347.

372. ἀλλὰ, κτέ.: what, will you strike me? In such questions of surprise or remonstrance ἀλλ' ἢ is generally used, e.g. Aesch. Cho. 220 ἀλλ' ἢ δόλον τιν', ὦ ξέν', ἀμφί μοι πλέκεis; A similarsituation is found in Aristoph. Ran. 607, where Aeacus says to Xanthias-Dionysus εἰς, καὶ μαχεῖ;—εἰσφθάρηθι: in with you, plague take you! The impatient command seems to be due to the fact that Chrysis has lingered a moment at the door instead of seizing the opportunity to go inside. The simple vb. is merely a strong θῆι, off with you, and the prep. has its usual force with verbs of motion, viz. εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν. See on P. 403 and cf. ἀποφθαρεῖς v. 425.

373. ἀλλὰ μὴν, κτέ.: well then, so will I, sc. τυπτήσω (σε).—κρείττων, κτέ.: he's too strong for me, cf. our colloquial "he's a better man than I."

374. This time you attack me first, referring to the fact that Demeas now lays hold of him. The other time, when blows were exchanged, Niceratus himself was the aggressor.—ἄπτει: cf. Aristoph. Lys. 365 ἄψαι μόνον Στρα-τυλλίδος τῷ δακτύλῳ.—μαρτύρομαι: the usual formula of one who is assaulted, frequently addressed to nobody in particular, I protest; cf. Aristoph. Ran. 528 ταῦτ' ἐγὼ μαρτύρομαι καὶ τοῖς θεοῖσιν

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

375 σὺ δ' ἔπ' ἔλευθέραν γυναῖκα λαμβάνεις βακτῆριον καὶ διώκεις;

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

συκοφαντεῖς.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

καὶ σὺ γάρ.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

τὸ παιδίον

οὐ δίδως ἐμοί;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

γέλοιον· τοῦμόν;

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

ἀλλ' οὐκ ἔστι σόν.

Pushes him violently aside.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

πέισομ', ὦνθρωποι,—

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

κέκραχθι· τὴν γυναῖκ' ἀποκτενῶ [235]

εἰσιών.

Starts towards the house of Demeas.

ἐπιτρέπω, Plut. 932 ὁρᾷς ἃ ποιεῖς; ταῦτ' ἐγὼ μαρτύρομαι.

375. ἔλευθέραν: cf. P. 255. The charge of Demeas, like that of Niceratus in πρότερος ἀπτεῖ, is in effect a threat of prosecution under a δίκη αἰκίας or a γραφή ὕβρεως, on which see Meier-Schömann-Lipsius, Att. Proc., pp. 398 ff., 646 ff., and cf. Hyper. fr. 120 Bl. ἔθεσαν οὐ μόνον ὑπὲρ τῶν ἐλευθέρων, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐάν τις εἰς δούλου σῶμα ὕβριση, γραφὰς εἶναι κατὰ τοῦ ὕβρισαντος, Arist. Rhet. 1402a 1 ἢ εἰ τις φαίη τὸ τύπτειν τοὺς ἐλευθέρους ὕβριν εἶναι· οὐ γὰρ πάντως, ἀλλ' ὅταν ἀρχὴ χειρῶν ἀδίκων (Leo).

376. συκοφαντεῖς: blackmail! cf. E. 1, P. 268. Niceratus accuses De-meas of trumping up a charge against him.—καὶ σὺ γάρ: referring to the accusation in v. 374.

377. οὐ δίδως: you refuse to give? The neg. gives a modal force to the pres. tense, as it regularly does to the impf.—τοῦμόν: a case of "irony," i.e. true in a literal sense, though the speaker does not know it. Demeas means that the child is his grandson. Niceratus might have guessed that its father was Moschion, but he understands Demeas to assert only that it is legally his as παῖς ἀνηρημένος. Both men consider it the child of Plangon.

378. πείσομαι: he is about to say "It will be an outrage if he lays hold of

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ (aside)

τί γὰρ ποιήσω; τοῦτο μοχθηρὸν πάνυ. F⁴, quat. y, p. 12 380 οὐκ ἔάσω. (To Niceratus, threateningly, again blocking his way) ποῖ σύ; μένε δή.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

μὴ πρόσαγε τὴν χεῖρά μοι.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

κάτεχε δὲ σῆαυτόν.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

ἀδικεῖς, Δημέα, με, δῆλος εἶ, καὶ τὸ πρᾶγμα πᾶν σύνοισθα.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τοιγαροῦν ἐμοῦ πυθοῦ, τῇ γυναικὶ μὴ ᾽νοχλήσας μηδέν.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ (suspiciously)

ἄρ' ὁ σὸς με παῖς [240]

ἐντεθρίωκεν;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

φλυαρεῖς. λήψεται μὲν τὴν κόρην. Hesych.

that which is mine," πείσομαι δεινότατα, εί—, cf. Aristoph. Av. 1225 δεινότατα γάρ τοι πεισόμεσθ', ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ, εἰ τῶν μὲν ἄλλων ἄρχομεν, ὑμεῖς δέ, κτέ. For the appeal to the spectators see on E. 672.

379. ποιήσω: deliberative fut., cf.
 v. 362.—μοχθηρὸν πάνυ: a miserable business, decidedly.

381. κάτεχε: cf. P. 702.—ἀδικεῖς:
 the indic. for the partic. shows that the speaker is excited.

382. τοιγαροῦν: the superior air which Demeas assumes, as cognizant of all the facts in the case, is the more amusing in that, as the spectators are well aware, he is the most deluded person in the drama.

384. ἐντεθρίωκεν: has he hoodwinked me? The vb. is not elsewhere found in this meaning, but its use here in conjunction with ἐσκεύακεν in v. 397 has cleared up a hitherto obscure gloss in Hesychius: ἐντεθρίωκεν· ἐνείληκεν ἢ ἐσκεύακεν. ἐνείληκεν gives the lit. meaning, "wrap up in fig leaves" (θρία),
 "envelope," used once by Aristophanes in Lys. 683; the opposite is ἀποθριάζειν in Ran. 134 (Leeuwen). The word in its derived meaning was doubtless current slang, "bamboozle."

Niceratus has no suspicion that Moschion is the father of the child.
 The "deception" of which he imagines himself the victim at the hands of 385 ἔστι δ' οὐ τοιοῦτον. ἀλλὰ περιπάτησον ἔνθαδὶ μικρὰ μετ' ἐμοῦ.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ (surprised)

περιπατήσω;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

καὶ σεαυτὸν κατάλαβε.

The two men stroll up and down as they talk.

οὐκ ἀκήκοας λεγόντων, εἰπέ μοι, Νικήρατε, τῶν τραγῳδῶν ὡς γενόμενος χρυσὸς ὁ Ζεὺς ἑρρῦν [245]
διὰ τέγους, κατειργμένην δὲ παῖδ' ἐμοίχενσέν ποτε;

Moschion is, we must suppose (see note in text before v. 345), the latter's statement that the child (meaning Chrysis' child) is a foundling of unknown antecedents. Niceratus raises the question now because he half suspects that it is Demeas who is deceiving him by trying to make him believe that the child is Plangon's.

385. περιπάτησον: the lit. meaning "stroll" carries with it the subordinate idea "discourse." Engage with me in a brief discourse as we take a stroll. Cf. Alex. 203 K. τρεῖς ἐν Κεραμειῷ περιπατήσας ἡμέρας διδασκάλους ἐξεύρον . . . ἴσως τριάκοντα, and περίπατος in Aristoph. Ran. 942, 953.

386. μικρά: for μικρόν (see Crit. App.), a use apparently unexampled in classical Greek, since Sosp. 1. 22 K. (cited by Leo) is not quite a parallel. But by the time of Plutarch the pl. has become established, cf. Mor. 150 D ἐπιφθεγξαμένη μικρά, Vit. Mar. 35. 6 μικρά δ' ἀντιστάς, Vit. Sul. 11. 2 μικρά προσκρούσας, Vit. Luc. 31. 10 μικρά διαπληκτισάμενοι, etc. — κατάλαβε: cf. Herod. 3. 36 ἀλλ' ἴσχε καὶ καταλάμβανε σεωντόν. — The Cairo MS. furnishes five certain instances in tetrameters of a tribrach in the seventh foot (P. 206, 221, 225, S. 400, 405) and in a number of other lines the extent of the lacuna favors, as here, the restoration of a tribrach. Aristophanes has only five such tribrachs in 741 tetrameter lines.

388. τραγῳδῶν: the regular word in the period of Menander for tragic actors of the first rank, those who were entitled in Athens to compete for the actor's prize, and outside of Athens to be leaders of tragic companies. In E. 108 we have the older meaning of the pl., "tragic exhibitions." Similar allusions to classical tragedies are found in E. 108 ff., 913. Both Sophocles and Euripides wrote plays on the subject of Danaë. That of Euripides, which was the more extensively quoted in antiquity, may have been in the poet's mind. Cf. the similar reference to the myth in Luc. Somn. s. Gall. 13 ἀκούεις δήπου ὡς χρυσὸν ἐγένετο καὶ βυεὶς διὰ τοῦ τέγους συνῆν τῇ ἀγαπωμένῃ, and Dial. mar. 1.

389. διὰ τέγους: cf. Ter. Eun. 588 deum . . . in alienas tegulas venisse.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

390 εἶτα δὴ τί τοῦτ' ;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ἴσως δεῖ πάντα προσδοκᾶν· σκόπει τοῦ τέγους εἴ σοι μέρος τι ρεῖ.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

τὸ πλεῖστον. ἀλλὰ τί
τοῦτο πρὸς ἐκεῖν' ἐστί ;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

τοτὲ μὲν γίγνεθ' ὁ Ζεὺς χρυσίον, τοτὲ δ' ὕδωρ. ὁράς ; ἐκείνου τοῦργόν ἐστιν. ὥς ταχὺ [250] εὐρομεν.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

καὶ βουκολεῖς με ;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω, γὰρ μὲν οὐ.
395 ἀλλὰ χείρων οὐδὲ μικρὸν Ἀκρισίου δῆπουθεν εἶ.
εἰ δ' ἐκείνην ἠξίωσε, τήν γε σὴν —

390. Cf. Men. 51 K. τὰ προσπεσόντα προσδοκᾶν ἅπαντα δεῖ ἀνθρώπων δοῖν.

391. ρεῖ: leaks, cf. Arist. fr. 1562
A 8 τὰ πλοῖα ρεῖ, Plut. Mor. 782E ὅταν ἐγγέης (into a cracked vessel) φαίνεται τὸ ρέον ("the leak"), Paus. 8.50.7 τριή-ρους ἔλαθεν ἐπιβάς ρεούσης.

392 ff. τοτὲ μὲν . . . τοτὲ δέ, κτέ.: i.e. παντοῖος γίγνεται ὁ Ζεὺς ὥστε τὰς γυναῖκας μοιχεύειν, cf. H. fr. 209, p. 18.
Similar jests at the wantonness of Zeus are common, cf. Aristoph. Av. 558 ff., Luc. Deor. conc. 6. — ἐκείνου τοῦργον:
it's his doing. — ὥς . . . εὐρομεν: cf.
Plat. Phaedr. 236E ὥς εὖ ἀνέυρες.

394. βουκολεῖς: delude, lit. treat as a sheep (πρόβατον, cf. Aristoph. Vesp.
34). This meaning is as early as Aristophanes, cf. Eccl. 81 βουκολεῖν τὸ δῆμον.

Cf. also Aristaen. Ep. 1. 5 ἀμφοτέραι βου-κολήσουσιν τὸν πρεσβύτερον. This meaning was easily developed from the earlier figurative meaning "beguile," used e.g. in Aesch. Ag. 669 ἐβουκολοῦμεν φρον-τίσιν νέον πάθος. Cf. the meanings of ποιμαίνειν, e.g. in Theocr. 11. 80 Πολύφαμος ἐποίμανεν τὸν ἔρωτα μουσίδων, and in Eur. Hipp. 151 ἢ πῶσιν . . . ποιμαίνει τις ἐν οἴκοις, where the scholiast renders the vb. by ἀπατᾶ.

396. ἠξίωσε: deigned, sc. μοιχεύειν, or thought worthy, sc. τοῦ λέχους.

397. ἐσκέυακε: tricked, see on v.
384, a new meaning, derived from the meaning "trick out," of dressing up a person to represent somebody else.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

οἷμοι τάλας,

Μοσχίων ἐσκέυάκέν με.

Hesych.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

λήψεται μέν· μὴ φοβοῦ

τοῦτο. θεῖον δ' ἔστ', ἀκριβῶς οἶδα, τὸ γεγενῆσθαι. [255]

μυρίους εἰπεῖν ἔχω σοι περιπατοῦντας ἐν μέσῳ

400 ὄντας ἐκ θεῶν, σὺ δ' οἶε δεινὸν εἶναι τὸ γεγονός.

Χαιρεφῶν πρότιστος οὗτος, ὃν τρέφουσ' ἀσύμβολον, οὐ θεός σοι φαίνεται εἶναι;

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ (impatiently)

φαίνεται· τί γὰρ πάθω;

οὐ μαχοῦμαί σοι διὰ κενῆς.

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

νοῦν ἔχεις, Νικήρατε. [260]

'Ανδροκλῆς ἔτη τοσαῦτα ζῆ, τρέχει, παῖδας πολὺ

Niceratus cannot get over his surprise that Moschion should have deceived him by telling him that the child's parents are unknown. Demeas of course again misunderstands him.

398. τὸ γεγενῆσθαι: the child.

Since θεῖον is equated with ὄντας ἐκ θεῶν v. 400, this partic. is to be preferred to γεγενῆσθαι (MS.).

401. Alexis also alludes to the fact that parasites never die, 159 K. δέδοιχ' ὁ θάνατος τὸ γένος, ὡς φασιν, μόνον· ὁ γοῦν Τιθύμαλλος ἀθάνατος περιέρχεται. — Χαιρεφῶν: a famous parasite of the generation before Menander, a favorite object of ridicule to the comic poets of the early New Comedy. He is represented as a genius at inventing ways of getting a dinner without contributing (ἀσύμβολος), e.g. Alex. 257 K., Apoll.

Car. 24, and as an inevitable guest, Apoll. Car. 26. Menander in one of his earliest plays (Orge, 364 K.) tells how an eager parasite, "just like Chaerephon," once arrived at a dinner a half day ahead of time, having mistaken the moon's shadow on the dial for the sun's. For other allusions see above, pp. 231 ff.

404. Androcles, known only from this passage, was apparently also a parasite, a member of the long-lived race (cf. Alex. 159 K. quoted above). Sophilus' comedy Androcles may have been named for him; in it somebody demands the election of ὀφονόμοι. — τρέχει: gads about, cf. Men. 364 K., περιέρχεται Alex. 159 K. (both of parasites), διατρέχουσι v. 180. Alexis in Athen. 242 D calls parasites τρεχεδίπλους. — παῖδας πολὺ πρᾶττεται: the unusual character

405 πράττεται, μέλας περιπατεῖ λευκός· οὐκ ἂν ἀποθάνοι, οὐδ' ἂν εἰ σφάττοι τις αὐτόν. οὗτός ἐστιν οὐ θεός;
ἀλλὰ ταῦτ' εὖχου γενέσθαι συμφέροντα· θυμία.
ῥσοὶ δὲ κηδεῦσ' εἰκὸς ἦν μοί, χροῦμός υἱὸς αὐτίκα [265]
ἐξ ἀνάγκης ἐστίασει τοὺς γάμους μοί.

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

νῶν ἔχεις.

410 εἰ δ' ἐλήφθη τότε —

of the locution suggests an equivocation. πολὺ πράττειν might be used for πολλὰ πράττειν, πολυπραγμονεῖν, but the mid. is unparalleled in this sense. πράττεσθαι τι with the acc. of the person regularly means "to make (or exact) something for one's self from." If the text is sound the phrase probably has a similar meaning here. We might freely translate "he makes a good deal of boys" — a sign of youthful vigor.

405. μέλας περιπατεῖ λευκός (ὦν): he goes about swart, though really white. The first and obvious meaning of these words is that Androcles dyes his hair to maintain a youthful appearance, like Lysicrates in Aristoph. Eccl. 736, where a woman says to a pot νῆ Δία, μέλαινά γ', οὐδ' ἂν εἰ τὸ φάρμακον (dye) ἔψουσ' ἔτυχες ᾧ Λυσικράτης μελαινεται. But in λευκός there is also a covert allusion to Androcles as γυναικίζων, παθικός, cf. Aristoph. Thesm. 191 ff. (to Agathon) σὺ δ' εὐπρόσωπος, λευκός, ἐξυρήμενος, γυναικώφωτος, ἀπαλός, εὐπρεπὴς ἰδεῖν, and 200 f. ὦ κατὰ πνυγον, εὐρύπρωκτος εἰ, οὐ τοῖς λόγοισιν ἀλλὰ τοῖς παθήμασιν. Cf. also the play on μέλας and λευκός in Call. 11 K. τοὺς Μελαγχόλου τῷ γνώσομαι; — οὓς ἂν μάλιστα λευκοπρόκτους εἰσίδῃς, and the epithet λευκόπνυγος in Alex. 321 and Herond. 7.12. μελάμπυγος, on the other hand, indicated manliness and strength, as in Aristoph. Lys. 801 Μυρωνίδης γὰρ ἦν τραχὺς ἐντεῦθεν μελάμπυγος τε τοῖς ἐχθροῖς, Eubul. 61 K. Vice and pallor are associated in Hor. Serm. 2.2.21 pinguem vitiis albumque. An old proverb (schol. Aristoph. Pac. 1310) says that οὐδὲν ἔργον ἐστὶν λευκῶν ἀνδρῶν, cf. οἱ μέλανες τῶν λευκῶν λυσιτελέστεροι, Eust. 455. 37. A parasite in Alex. 116 K. divides his tribe into two classes, ἐν μὲν τὸ κοινὸν καὶ κεκοιμημένον, οἱ μέλανες ἡμεῖς ("we sturdy men"), the other the high and mighty fellows who assume the airs of satraps and generals. The passage in the text is not to be interpreted in the light of Poll. 4. 119, where we are told that parasites in comedy dressed in μελαίνῃ ἢ φαίῃ.

407. θυμία: offer incense, i.e. go on with the preparations for the wedding, cf. v. 472. In fr. 437, p. 280, below, Niceratus is engaged in making the offering.

408 f. It was a reasonable thing, after all, for me to enter into a marriage alliance with you. ἦν is impf. of sudden realization, cf. v. 351. Before the pretended discovery of the honor which Zeus has conferred upon Niceratus the match seemed unequal, for Demeas is rich, Niceratus very poor. — ἐστίασει τοὺς γάμους: the technical expression, cf. Aristoph. Av. 132 μέλλω βαβαῖ᾽ ἄξ· μὴ παροξύνθεις βόα· τᾶνδον εὐτρεπῇ;

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

πόημα τὰ παρ' ἐμοὶ δὴ Δαιδάλου·

ΔΗΜΕΑΣ

κομψὸς εἶ.

Exit Niceratus into his house.

χάριν δὲ πολλὴν πᾶσι τοῖς θεοῖς ἔχω, οὐδὲν εὐρηκὼς ἀληθὲς ὧν τότ' ᾤμην πραγμάτων. [270]

Exit Demeas into his house.

A band of revelers enters and gives a performance.

ΧΟΡΟΙ

I, quat. y, p. 13

ACT III

Enter Moschion from the house of Demeas.

SC. 1. MOSCHION alone

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ἐγὼ τότε μὲν ἥς εἶχον αἰτίας μόλις

415 ἐλεύθερος γενόμενος ἡγάπησα δῆ, τοῦθ' ἱκανὸν εὐτύχημ' ἐμαυτῷ νενομικῶς ὑπόμαργος· ὥς δὲ μάλλον ἐννοῦς γίγνομαι γὰρ ἐστὶν γάμου, Eur. H.F. 483 ἐστὶ γάμου δε.

410. The mention of Moschion revives the indignation of Niceratus against him for what he is now convinced was a piece of mischievous deception; cf. vv. 384, 394. The meaning is "If at the time I had caught Moschion playing this trick on me, etc."

411. πόημα . . . Δαιδάλου: a proverbial expression for a perfect work of art, ἐπὶ τῶν ἀκριβοῦντων τὰς τέχνας, Paroem. Gr. I. 59, II. 23, Hesych., Suid., Athen. 301 A τὰ γὰρ καλὰ πάντα Δαιδάλου καλοῦσιν ἔργα (Leo). Cf. also Plat. Meno 97 D, E. Niceratus, at length restored to good humor, suggests that no great artist is required to make such a feast as he can provide.

412. κομψὸς εἶ: an acknowledgment, in a patronizing tone, of the joke of Niceratus. See on P. 178.

415. ἡγάπησα: cf. v. 173.

416. Cf. Thuc. 7. 77. 3 ἱκανὰ γὰρ τοῖς τε πολεμίοις ἡτύχεται.

417. ὑπόμαργος: sc. ὢν, half-crazed as I was, cf. Herod. 6. 75 αὐτὸν αὐτίκα ὑπέλαβε μανίῃ νοῦσος, ξοῖτα καὶ πρότερον ὑπομαργότερον. The adj., which seems to occur elsewhere only in comp., looks forward to μάλλον ἐννοῦς. — ἐννοῦς: cf. Eur. Bacch. 1270 γίγνομαι δὲ πῶς ἐννοῦς.

- καὶ λαμβάνω λογισμόν, ἐξέστηκα ἔνυν [275]
 τελέως ἐμαντοῦ καὶ παρώξυνμαι σφῶδρα 420 ἐφ' οἷς μ' ὁ πατήρ ὑπέλαβεν ἡμαρτηκέναι.
 εἰ μὲν καλῶς οὖν εἶχε τὰ περὶ τὴν κόρην, καὶ μὴ τοσαῦτ' ἦν ἐμποδῶν — ὄρκος, πόθος, χρόνος, συνήθει', οἷς ἐδουλούμην ἐγώ — [280]
 οὐκ ἂν παρόντα γ' αὖθις ἠτιάσατο 425 αὐτόν με τοιοῦτ' οὐδέν, ἀλλ' ἀποφθαρεῖς ἐκ τῆς πόλεως ἂν ἐκποδῶν εἰς Βάκτρα ποι ἦ Καρίαν διέτριβον αἰχμάζων ἐκεῖ.
 νῦν δ' οὐ ποήσω διὰ σε, Πλαγγὼν φιλάττη, [285]
 ἀνδρεῖον οὐδέν· οὐ γὰρ ἔξεστ', οὐδ' ἔα 430 ὁ τῆς ἐμῆς νῦν κύριος γνώμης Ἔρωσ.
 οὐ μὲν ταπεινῶς οὐδ' ἀγεννῶς παντελῶς περιόψομαι τοῦτ', ἀλλὰ τῷ λόγῳ μόνον, εἰ μὴδὲν ἄλλ', αὐτὸν φοβῆσαι βούλομαι, [290]
 φάσκων ἀπαίρειν· μᾶλλον εἰς τὰ λοιπὰ γὰρ 435 φυλάσσειτ' αὖθις μὴδὲν εἰς μ' ἀγνωμονεῖν, ὅταν φέροντα μὴ παρέργως τοῦτ' ἴδῃ.

418. ἐξέστηκα: cf. v. 67.

423. συνήθεια: cf. Men. 726 ἔργον ἐστὶ, Φανία, μακρὰν συνήθειαν βραχεὶ λῦσαι χρόνῳ, Ter. Hec. 404 amor me graviter consuetudoque eius tenet.

424. παρόντα γε: reinforced by αὐτόν, to my very face, at least. — ἠτιάσατο: i.e. he would not have had the chance to accuse.

425. ἀποφθαρεῖς: spoken impatiently for ἀπελθών. See on v. 372.

427. αἰχμάζων: another lofty word, as a warrior. He thinks of winning gloriam armis (Ter. Heaut. 112). The plot of the Heauton, one of the earliest, if not the earliest, of Menander's plays, is based upon the departure of Clinia to the wars in Asia on account of his father's harsh treatment.

430. A mock-tragic line. Cf. Eur. fr. 136 N. ὦ θεῶν τύραννε ἀνθρώπων Ἔρωσ, Plaut. Pseud. 15 sub Veneris regno vapulo.

433. εἰ μὴδὲν ἄλλο: sc. ποεῖν δύναμαι ἢ λόγῳ φοβῆσαι αὐτόν.

434. ἀπαίρειν: properly a nautical term (sc. ναῦς), set sail; then abs. depart, cf. Aristoph. Eccl. 818.

435. ἀγνωμονεῖν: cf. E. 703 and Apoll. 7. 6 (p. 290 K.).

436. παρέργως: ὡς πάρεργον δὲ, in-differently.

ἀλλ' οὐτοσὶ γὰρ εἰς δέοντά μοι πάντῃ καὶρὸν πάρεστιν ὃν μάλιστ' ἐβουλόμην.

[295]

Enter Parmenon from the city.

SC. 2. MOSCHION, PARMENON

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (to himself)

- νῆ τὸν Δία τὸν μέγιστον, ἀνόητόν τε καὶ 440 εὐκαταφρόνητον ἔργον εἴμ' εἰργασμένος· οὐδὲν ἀδικῶν ἔδεια καὶ τὸν δεσπότην ἔφυγον. τί δ' ἦν τούτου πεπονηκὼς ἄξιον;
καθ' ἐν γὰρ οὕτως σαφῶς σκεψώμεθα· [300]
ὁ τρόφιμος ἐξήμαρτεν εἰς ἐλευθέραν 445 κόρην· ἀδικεῖ δὴ πούθεν οὐδὲν Παρμένων.
ἐκήρυσεν αὐτὴν· Παρμένων οὐκ αἴτιος.
τὸ παιδάριον εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν τῇν ἡμετέραν· ἦνεγκ' ἐκεῖνος, οὐκ ἐγώ· [305]
τῶν ἔνδον ὠμολόγηκε τοῦτό τις· πάλιν 450 τί Παρμένων ἐνταῦθα πεπόνηκεν κακόν;
οὐδέν. τί οὖν ἔφυγες σὺ; πῶς, ἀβέλτερε;
ἔδεδύττετ' ἐμέ. γέλοιοι. ἡπείλυσέ μοι

I², quat. y, p. 14

440. An exception to the rule that a dactyl which overlaps the following foot is contained in a quadrisyllabic word of which the accent corresponds with the ictus. See on H. 71, and White, p. 148.

442. ἔφυγον: v. 113.—ἦν πεπονηκὼς: was I guilty of. The partic. is practically an adj. On the periphrastic perf. see Gildersleeve Syn. § 286.

449. ὠμολόγηκε: as Parmenon assumes, not knowing how else Demeas learned the secret. Demeas told him in v. 104 πέφραστ' ἐμοὶ ὅτι Μοσχίωνός ἐστιν.—πάλιν: again, I say, cf. E. Pet. fr., v. 7, p. 95.

451. τί οὖν ἔφυγες: now that he has proved his innocence Parmenon reverts to the original question: "Why, then, did you act like a guilty man and run away?"—The MS. reading ἔφυγες οὕτως is unmetrical, for Menander excludes the trisyllabic tribrach from the second and fourth feet. The transposition οὕτως ἔφυγες, which is generally adopted, introduces this tribrach into the fourth foot, where it is avoided, occurring there but twice in the new text. White, p. 148.

452. ἔδεδύττετο: he tried to frighten me, cf. Plat. Phaedr. 245B μηδέ τις ἡμᾶς λόγος θορυβεῖτω δεδιττόμενος, Luc. Bis acc. 7 οὗτοί με . . . δεδίττονται. ἐδεδίσκετο, a rare form of this causal

᾽στίζειν. τί μεμαθηκώς; διαφέρει δ' οὐδὲ γρὺν [310] ἀδίκως παθεῖν τοῦτ' ἢ δικαίως. ἔστι δὲ 455 ἅπαντα τρόπον οὐκ ἀστεῖον.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ (suddenly showing himself)

οὗτος.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (startled)

χαῖρε σύ.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ἄφες ἃ φλυαρεῖς ταῦτα. θᾶπτον εἰσιθι εἴσω.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

τί ποήσων;

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

χλαμύδα καὶ σπάθην τινὰ ἔνεγκέ μοι.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

σπάθην ἐγώ σοι;

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

καὶ ταχύ. [315]

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ἐπὶ τί;

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

βάδιζε καὶ σιωπῇ τοῦθ' ὃ σοι

460 εἶρηκα ποίει.

of δειδω, used by Aristophanes in Lys. 564, might also be restored here.

453 f. στίζειν: v. 111. — τί μεμαθηκώς: for what possible reason? — διαφέρει δέ, κτέ.: Parmenon concludes this debate with himself by justifying his conduct in running away: "But it makes not a particle of difference whether he tattooed me justly or unjustly; in any case it is not a nice thing." — οὐδὲ γρὺ: cf. Men. 364 K. διαφέρει Χαιρεφώντος οὐδὲ γρὺ, 521 μηδὲ γρὺ, τίτθη, λέγε.

455. οὐκ ἀστεῖον: i.e. στιχθῆναι, cf. Aristoph. Nub. 1064 ἀστεῖον γε κέρδος ἔλαβεν ὁ κακοδαίμων and see on v. 152.

456. ἄφες ἃ: for the word-division
 ∪ ∪, ∪ cf. v. 459 and see on E. 8.

457. Cloak and sword, the soldier's uniform, as in P. 234. At the mention of "sword" Parmenon seems to fear another attempt to punish him.

459. σιωπῇ: by cautioning the slave to secrecy Moschion hopes to insure his telling.

460. ποίει: see on H. 2.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

τί δὲ τὸ πρᾶγμ' ;

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

εἰ λήψομαι

ἱμάντα —

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

μηδαμῶς· βαδίζω γάρ.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

τί οὖν

μέλλεις ;

Exit Parmenon into the house.

πρόσεισι νῦν ὁ πατήρ. δειῆσεται¹οὗτος καταμένειν μούνθαδι.¹ δειῆσεται

[320]

ἄλλως — μέχρι τινός· δεῖ γάρ. εἴθ', ὅταν δοκῇ,

465 πείσθήσομ' αὐτῷ. πιθανὸν εἶναι δεῖ¹ μόνον —ὁ, μὰ τὸν Διόνυσον, οὐ δύναμαι ποῖν¹ ἐγώ.

τοῦτ' ἔστιν· ἐψόφηκε προῖων τὴν θύραν.

Parmenon, not Demeas, comes out of the house, and without the cloak and sword.

Sc. 3. MOSCHION, PARMENON

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ὕστερίζειν μοι δοκεῖς σὺ παντελῶς τῶν εἰνθάδε

[325]

461. ἱμάντα: see on v. 109.

462. πρόσσεισι: Moschion is confident that Demeas, on hearing of his demand for cloak and sword, will guess his intention to go to the wars and will hasten from the house in order to beg him to stay.

463. μούνθαδι: the comic poets are bold in the use of crasis. The diphthong ou suffers crasis before e most frequently in οὐ and θου.

465 f. πείσθήσομαι: I'll yield to his entreaties. — πιθανόν: cf. P. 879. He must play his part plausibly, like Dicaeopolis in Aristoph. Ach. 416.

"I've only got to be convincing — the very thing, by George, that I can't do!" Moschion's lack of confidence in his ability to carry out his program foreshadows the outcome. — The initial anapaest (ὁ, μὰ τὸν) contained in three words is unusual, in that the two short syllables are separated by a grammatical pause. Three anapaests in an iambic line occur only here in Menander.

467. τοῦτ' ἔστιν: see on τοῦτ' ἦν v. 381. — ἐψόφηκε: see on E. 600.

468 f. While in the house Parmenon sees that the preparations for the wedding are going on as if nothing had πραγμάτων, εἰδὼς δ' ἀκριβῶς οὐδὲν οὐδ' ἀκηκοῦς 470 διὰ κενῆς σταντὸν ταραττεῖς, εἰ πιέζων τοῦτ' ἔχεις.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

οὐ φέρεις — ;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

ποῦ οὐσί γάρ σοι τοὺς γάμους· κεράννυται, ᾠμιᾶτ', ἀνάπτεται· τε θύμαθ' Ἡφαίστου βία.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

οὗτος, οὐ φέρεις — ;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

σέ γάρ τοι περιμένουσ' οὗτοι πάλοι. [330]

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ἐμέ; τί ἐμέ;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

τὴν παῖδα —

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

μέλλεις ;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

εὐτυχεῖς· οὐδὲν κακόν

475 ἐστὶ σοι· θάρρει. τί βούλει ;

happened. Thinking that the storm has blown over and that Moschion, unaware of this fact, is intending to go to the wars on account of his father's displeasure, he tries to induce his young master to change his purpose. — ὑστερίζειν: cf. Isoc. 3. 19 ὑστερίζουσι τῶν πραγμάτων. — The change to trochaic rhythms gives intimation of an emotional scene; see on P. 147.

470. διὰ κενῆς: cf. v. 403. — εἰ πιέζων τοῦτ' ἔχεις: if you keep insisting on this. For this use of the vb. cf. Plat. Legg. 965D τοῦτο . . . οἷόν περ σφόδρα πείσαντες μὴ ἀνῶμεν, πρὶν ἂν ἱκανῶς ἐπώμεν, Plut. Mor. 31E βέλτιον δὲ ταῦτα τοῖς γραμματικοῖς παρέντες ἐκεῖνα μᾶλλον πιέζειν.

471 f. κεράννυται: sc. οἶνος (see Crit. App.). — θυμιᾶται: sc. ἡ λιβανωτός. But the vb. is used abs., cf. v. 397. The mock-tragic tone of this verse, in imitation of messenger-speeches in tragedy (see ἐξάγγελλε below), is obvious, cf. Aristoph. Plut. 661 καθωσιώθη πέλαος Ἡφαίστου φλογί with Eur. I.A. 1602 κατηνθρακώθη θυμὸν ἐν Ἡφαίστου φλογί, Plaut. Men. 330 dum ergo haec appono ad Volcani violentiam (Leo).

474. τὴν παῖδα: he was about to say κομίζουσιν ἥδη ἐκ τῆς πατρῴας οἰκίας, ιερóσυλε παῖ; νουθετήσεις μ', εἰπέ μοι, Strikes him.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

τί ποιεῖς, Μοσχίων;

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ῥῥᾱττον ἐξοίσεις ᾗ φημι; οὐκ εἰσδραμὼν Strikes him.

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

διακέκομμαι τὸ στόμα.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

ῥῥτι λαλεῖς, οὗτος;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ

βαδίζω, νῆ Δί', ἐξεύρηκά τε [335] ῥῥμέγα κακόν.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

μέλλεις;

ΠΑΡΜΕΝΩΝ (opening the door and pointing within) ᾗγουσι τοὺς γάμους ὄντως, ἰδού.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ

480 ῥῥσπεύσον, ἐξάγγελλέ μοί τι.

Exit Parmenon into the house of Demeas.

νῦν πρόσεισιν. ᾗν δέ μου ῥῥμῆ δέητ', ᾗνδρες, καταμένειν, ᾗλλ' ἀποργισθεῖς ἐᾗ cf. Plaut. Cas. 798 illam educunt huc novam nuptam.

476. ἱερóσυλε παῖ: cf. for the adj.
E. 852, P. 246.

477. διακέκομμαι: my lip is cut in two.

478. ἐξεύρηκα: gained, i.e. for my pains. Cf. Soph. Trach. 25 μῆ μοι τὸ κάλλος ᾗλγος ἐξεύροι ποτέ, Phil. 288.

479. So in Plaut. Bacch. 723 Mnesil-ochus takes Chrysalus to the door and says intro inspicere; see also ibid. 833.

480. σπεύσον, κτέ.: hurry, give me news about it. The reading ὑστερον, favored by the MS. and otherwise acceptable, gives a dactyl, for which see on P. 166. — πρόσεισιν: sc. ὁ πατήρ. The sight of Parmenon with his swollen lips and the story he will tell will not fail, he thinks, to bring Demeas out.

481. ἀποργισθεῖς: flying off into a rage, a rare compound, hitherto known ἄπιέναι, — τουτὶ γὰρ ἄρτι παρέλιπον, — τί δέῃ ποεῖν; εἰκότως οὐκ ἂν ποιῆσαι τοῦτ', ἐὰν δέ — πάντα γὰρ [340]

 γίγνεται — γέλοιος ἔσομαι, νῆ Δί', ἀνακάμπτων πάλιν.
 * * * * *

From one of the last scenes in the play we have the quoted trimeter :

ΝΙΚΗΡΑΤΟΣ

φέρει τὴν λιβανωτόν· σὺ δ' ἔπιθες τὸ πῦρ, Τρύφη. 437 K.
 * * * * *

In the end Moschion is of course completely reconciled with his adoptive father. It is probable that Chrysis the Samian girl is discovered to be an Athenian woman of good family; and that the play closes with a double wedding—Demeas and Chrysis, Moschion and Plangon.

only from the Septuagint 2 Macc. 5. 17, but cf. ἀποσκυδαίνειν Hom. Il. 24. 65, ἀποσκήζειν, ἀποστυγείν, and the like.

482. παρέλιπον: left out of my calculations. Moschion begins to realize that his scheme is ill advised: he himself is not a good actor (v. 465) and Demeas' good nature is not to be counted upon. It probably turns out in the sequel that Demeas laughs at Moschion's weak attempt to play the hero and leads him into the house to be married.

FR. 437. See on v. 407. The offering of incense was burnt at the hearth before the wedding, cf. Plaut. Aul. 385 nunc tusculum emi hoc et coronas floreas. haec imponentur in foco nostro Lari, ut fortunatas faciat gnatae nuptias.

CRITICAL APPENDIX AND BIBLIOGRAPHY

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The editor has attempted in this Appendix to report every deviation from the MS. which he has adopted in the text; in passages that are corrupt or imperfectly preserved, to indicate what basis we have for the reconstruction of the text (i.e. the letters reported by the first editor or by Körte, and the extent of the lacunae); to assign credit to editors and critics for their decipherment of the text, or for such supplements of lost portions as have been adopted in this edition or as seem worthy of record; to report such indications of the speakers as are written in the MS. and to record all deviations from the MS. in assuming a change of speaker (i.e. the disregarding of the presence or absence of double-point and paragraphus); and to record errors and peculiarities of the MS. in matters of orthography, elision, and the like.

A general reference is here made to the Bibliography for the articles and editions in which have appeared the contributions of the scholars here mentioned. In crediting conjectures to their authors no attempt has been made to pass upon the claims to priority of members of the group of scholars whose contributions appeared in the months immediately following the publication of the Principes. To the first editor, M. Lefebvre, all subsequent editors are indebted for the correction of many small errors and the filling of innumerable small gaps in the text which it is not practicable to mention separately, as well as for the many corrections and supplements of greater importance which are specifically accredited to him.

The lemma, when not printed, is the portion of the text that is inclosed in half-brackets []; when printed it is followed by the square bracket], and when given with accents and breathings is the reading adopted in the text; when given without these it is the reported reading of the MS. which furnishes the basis for restoration or correction. Letters in the lemma inclosed in parentheses () are alternative readings of the preceding dotted (i.e. obscure) letters. Parentheses are used outside the lemma for suggestions of the scholar named which have been incorporated in a supplement proposed by a subsequent editor, for alternative suggestions of an editor, and for such indications of a change of speaker as are ignored by the editor or editors previously mentioned. The dash — before a reading or supplement indicates that the latter is incomplete at the beginning; in the middle, that a change of speaker is assumed; at the end it is a mark of punctuation. The several notes on a verse are separated by //.

CRITICAL APPENDIX

HERO

TITLE: Between the remains of the first letter of the title (which Körte thinks may have been H, Ricci P) and E, the first preserved letter of the author's name, there is space for nine ordinary letters. ΗΡΩΣ may be supplied on the supposition that the initial letters of each word occupied the space of two ordinary letters and that the words were separated by a double space.

HYPOTHESIS: 1 αρρεντεκουσαπαρθενο σθηλυθ'αμα] corr. Wil.

2 επιτροφω] corr. Kör., Leo, Weil, Wil.

TEXT: 1 In l. marg. ΓΕΤ]

6 οιμμοι] corr. Lef. // σό. Kör., σό; Lef., σό, Rob. // In r. marg. ΓΕΤ]

8 12 lett. τ. ντ' Lef., 9 lett. ειτιτ. ντ'] suppl. Kör., νυν σ' έκφοβεί τι Sud.

9 15 lett.] suppl. E.C., σφζειν γε μηδ' έχειν (—μηδ' έχειν Leo) Rob., σφζειν υπέρ σου, μη Rich., έως αν εδ θής τὰ κατὰ σαντων Leeu., εν' ἀπολάβης, τὰ κατὰ Wil., μοχθηρέ, πριν γε σχείν Sud.

10 15 lett.] suppl. E.C., καλώς γάρ οϊσθας ως Leeu., δταν καλώς θής; ως Wil.

11 15 lett. ρ. .:] suppl. E.C., νυν μοι σεαυτον δός Leeu., δρων σε γ' ωδ' οικτρὸν Rob. // In r. marg. ΔΑ]

12 10 lett. επλεγμαι] ληρεῖς Crois., Leeu., Leo, κακῶ γάρ E.C., ἐμπέπλεγμαι Crois., ἀέλπτω δ' ἐμπέπλεγμαι Crois., ἀμάχω γε συμπέπλεγμαι Leo, βαρυτάτω δ' ἐμπέπλεγμαι Leeu., ἐτέρω γε συμπ- (w. ληρεῖς) Wil.

13 16 lett.] suppl. E.C., ἀρ' οὐ φίλω λέγοις αν; Δα. ἐφθαρμαι Leo, so (w. εἰτ' for ἀρ') Rob., νόσω γὰρ οἷα πάνυ διέφθαρμαι Crois.

14 14 lett.] suppl. E.C., νοσοῦντι μέντοι Crois., μὴ δῆτα· σαντῶ Leo, giving the whole v. to Geta, σὺ δ' οὖν τὸ κατ' ἐμὲ Leeu., Γε. πῶς γάρ, κατάρατε; Kör. // τῶν add. Hense, Leo, καταρῶ μοι Rich.

15 16 lett.] Δα. (continuing) βέλτιστ', ἐρῶντι. Γε. τί Leeu., Δα. (continuing) ἔρωις μ' ἐβλαψε. Γε. τί Crois. (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker within the v.), Δα. ἐρῶ. Γε. κακόδαιμον, τί Leo (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after θεῶν) // In r. marg. ΔΑ]

16 Suppl. Lef. from fr. adesp. 444

17 παρέχει. Lef., παρέχει; Leeu.

18 In l. marg. ΔΑ]

20 In l. marg. ΓΕΤ]

23 Punct. Leo

25 In r. marg. ΔΑ]

27 ἡμῖν] ὑμῖν Leo // In r. marg. ΔΑ]

30 Punct. Wil. // In r. marg. ΓΕΤ]

31 ουκαπ] οὐκ ἀπ- Lef., οὐκέτ' Wil.

36 In r. marg. ΓΕΤ]

37 In l. marg. ΔΑ] .

38 θρια Lef., ερια Kör.] ἔρια Ell., Head., Wil., confirmed by Kör. // Wil. gives the whole v. to Davus (τε: παιδίσκη: MS.) // In r. marg. Δ.]

39 In r. marg. Δ.]

43 Crois.

44 τὸν ἀδελφὸν Lef. // Γε. πῶς ἀρ' εἰ E.C., Γε. λαμπρὸς εἰ Wil., αὐτίκα Lef., νῦν, Γέτα Sud., Γοργίαν Rob., ἀλλὰ νῦν Leeu., all continuing to Dav. A change of speaker in or at end of v. indicated in MS. by paragraphus

45 τελεμερος Lef., τεलगρος (for τη-λourós) Kör., τελαμπρος Ric.] πενθηρός E.C., Δα. τί λαμπρός; Ric., Δα. τί, λέμ-φος; Sud., Γε. τί; χαλεπός; Rob. // Δα. ἀποδημεί E.C., Γε. (continuing) ἀποδημεί Lef. (no indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.) // τρίμηνος ἐπὶ τινα Sud., τρίμηνον ἐπὶ τινα Sud., Wil., τριταῖος ἐπὶ τινα Crön., Leo 46 ἰδίαν εἰς Ἀἴμον Crön., Leeu., Leo // ἤκοι γ' ἀσφαλῶς E.C., οὐμὸς δεσπότης Rob., ἀποπλεύσας Λάχης Kör., Wil.

47 E.C., — — — ἐλπίδος Leo, ἔτ' ἐλ-πίδος· μόνον Wil.

48 χρηστον Lef., χρηστος Kör.] suppl. E.C., χρηστον δεσπότην ἔχω — — Lef., this and πάνυ οὐ χρηστός δεσπότης οὐμὸς πάνυ Rob., χρηστός εἰς σὺ. Δα. τῆς τ' ἀποδημίας Wil.

49 E.C., καλῶς Lef.

50 φρονεῖς· ἐγωγαρκῶ] suppl. E.C.

51 αἰσνητογ·σ. Lef., αἰσνητογπο Kör.] ἄλῃς νῆ τὸν Crön., Leo, Wil., confirmed by Kör. // Ἥσσειδῶ Crön., Leo, Wil. // τοῖς θεοῖς E.C.

FR. 345 Assigned to Hero by Legr., Leo

52, 53 Suppl. E.C. to show the probable connection with this context of fr. 345

ZEN. 5.60 Assigned to Hero by E.C., adding κακῶν

FR. 209 τῶν add. Grotius

FR. 210 δεδει] δει del. Bentley

FR. 211 τατοῖαντα] τα del. Hirschig

FR. 213 πεφαρμάκευσαι and ἐπεφαρμάκευσον MSS. of Phot. and Suid.

FR. O Assigned to Hero by Lef.

O1 1 τη·ην Lef., τη··ιν Kör.] ετη·στῖν Kör. // μὲν οὖν σαφῶς E.C., μέμνημί' ἐγὼ Wil.

2, 3 E.C., τὸ πράγμα τοῦτ' Kör.

4 ὦν οὐ πως Kör., σὼν σ' ὅπως Rob.

O2 1 ἔχει | ταύτης E.C., ἔπειω' Rob., ἔπεισεν Crois. // διαω] corr. Lef. // μ' ἔτι E.C., με· τί Lef.

2 E.C., οὕτως σὺ γ' οὖν Crois., σιγῶσα γοῦν Rob.

3 E.C., ναί· τοῦτο δὴ πράξει Crois., σοὶ ταῦθ' ὁμολογήσαι Rob.

4 13 lett., the last being ι] suppl. E.C., χρὴ ταῦτ' ἐνεγκεῖν Rob.

5 ἐλέησον (Crois.) ἄγε τὸν Rob.

FR. 215 δὲ add. Mein.

EPITREPONTES

FR. 600 Assigned to Epitr. by Crois., Leeu., Leo, Wil., formerly incorporated in M² by E.C. (see Crit. Ap. on v. 306) // τὴν add. Leo, Wil., ἀρ' Sud.

1, 2 Distribution of speakers Crois., Δα. φεύγεις... Συρ. συκοφαντεῖς... Δα. οὐ δεῖ... Συρ. ἐπιτρεπτέον... Lef. Arn., Bod.-Maz., Kör., Leo make the same distribution in v. 1, but Arn., Bod.-Maz. continue οὐ δεῖ... σ' to Davus (δυστυχῆς: MS.), and Kör., Leo continue ἐπιτρεπτέον... τούτων to Syrisus (μὴ σ': MS.)

3 κρινώμεθα given to Davus by Crois., βούλομαι MS.

5 πάσχω; E.C.

6 In r. marg. ΔΑ]

10 εἶδε] corr. Crön., Ell., Head., Herw., Wil.

13 εστ] corr. Arn., Ell., Leeu., Nic.

15 Lef.

18 πρόνοιαν Arn.

19 In r. marg. ΔΑΟ]

- 21 ΣΤΡ over πάντως]
- 22 κωλουνμε] με del. Lef., με κωλύν Eitr.
- 23 In l. marg. . A]
- 24 πραχθεντ']
- 29, 30, 31, 33, 34, 35 Initial letters (one or two) suppl. Lef.
- 30 In r. marg. ΔΑΟ]
- 32 Arn., Crön., Head., Herw., Wil.
- 35 βουλῆν δ'] βουλὰς in MSS. fr. 733 // γινεται]
- 39 ἦν.] ὦν Leeu.
- 41 εκπρισσων] corr. Arn., Head., Leeu., Maz., Nic. So Lef., p. 97
- 44 Punct. Lef., "τί γὰρ ἐγὼ περιεργός εἰμι" Leeu., "τί γὰρ," ἐγὼ, "περιεργός εἰμι" Rob.
- 47 εδειτ'] corr. Lef.
- 52 Lef.
- 53 In l. marg. ΣΜΙΚ] // συρισκ': ο λην] σὺ ταῦτ'; — εἰς ἰσθ'. E.C., Σύρισκ'; — ἐγὼν' Hense., Leeu., Σύρισκ'; — ἐπδουν Goldschmidt, Σύρισχ'; — οὕτως Crois., σύγ'; — ἐδεόμην Bod.-Maz., Δα. (continuing) ἐδέου, Σύρισκ'; Stef. (παίδιον: MS.)
- 57 f. ἀπηλλάγη. μετὰ Arn., Bod.
- 67 Crois., ἔλαβεν ἂν Head., Leo, Maz., Rich., Wil.
- 68 σύ γε Maz., γε σὺ Lef., τότε Leeu., Leo, ὅμως Ell., Wil.
- 70 Lef., ἐγὼ Ell.
- 72 Lef.
- 76 In r. marg. ΣΤΡ] // Συρ. εἰρηκεν; Σμ. οὐκ . . . εἰρηκεν Legr., Wil., Σμ. εἰρηκεν. οὐκ . . . εἰρηκεν Lef. (λόγον: and εἰρηκεν: οὐκ MS.)
- 82 ποιμήν] ποιμὴν δὲ Crois., Rob.
- 85 . . . ἰλ . . . ον Lef., . . πα . . . ον Kör.] Arn., Bod., Eitr., Kör., Sud., νυνὶ λόγον Lef.
- 85-86 Punct. Bod., Wil.
- 92 ατι] corr. Crois., Rich., ἄττα Leeu., ἄ τι Lef., Bod.-Maz., Rob.
- 94 εκτριφη] corr. Lef.
- 98 τουτ'] corr. Hense, Leo, Wil. // λεγων] corr. Hense, Kör., Leo, Maz., Wil., τουτ' ἦν. and λέγων ἦκω Arn., Rich.
- 99 οὐχ] // σ' add. Sud., γ' Lef.
- 101, 103, 105, 107, 108, 110 Initial letters (one to three) suppl. Lef.
- 100 f. Punct. Lef., κοινός 'Ερμῆς; μηδὲ ἐν. εὐρισχ'; σπου . . . ἀδικούμενον οὐχ Leo
- 102 οὐχ suppl. Lef. after Hephaestion (fr. 180 K.)
- 103 οὐτοσι Lef.
- 104 . . . ἡσ Lef., . . . ως Kör.] suppl. Head., ὄντως Sud.
- 106 . . . σ Lef., . . ας Kör.] suppl. Heidel., ἐμβάς Kör., ἄξας Leo // ποεῖν] πονεῖν MSS. schol. Hom. Od. 2. 10 (fr. 722 K.)
- 107 λέοντας] λέγοντας MSS. fr. 722, corr. Buttman // τρέχειν ἐν Legr., Leo, τρέχειν, ἐν Crois.
- 108 Punct. Leeu., Legr., Leo, Maz.
- 109 . . ν Lef., . αι Kör.] suppl. Arn., Kör., νῦν Lef.
- 115 καταντους] corr. Lef.
- 116 οἱ τότ'] οἱ πρίν MSS. Cass. Dio 60. 29 (fr. 488 K.)
- 117 εἶδεκε] corr. Bod.-Maz., εἰ δὲ γε Lef. // ἐκεῖν', ἃ Δᾶος, Herw.
- 118 αυτω] corr. Crön., Hense, Herw., Wil., αὐτῷ γ' Leo
- 120 η] οἱ Lef. after MSS. fr. 181 K.
- 121 Lef.
- 122 τὴν αὐτοῦ δὲ E.C., Sud., τὴν δὲ τοῦδε Arn., νῦν, αὐτοῦ δὲ Lef. (so Wil., changing τῆς το τὴν, τοῦ βλου δὲ Rich.
- 128 Punct. Lef., τηρεῖν πρὸ πολλοῦ, Bod.
- 129 φησιν] corr. Crön., Head., Leo
- 131 ἔστι δίκαιον] ἐς τὸ δίκαιον Leo, ἔστι δ' ἱκανόν Sud.
- 131-134 Punct. Schmidt, δίκαιον, εἰ τι . . . λαβεῖν, ἔν' . . . πάλιν, εἰ . . . τυχῇ.

Nic., Wil., so (but w. δίκαιον) Lef., Crois.

132 πρὸς ζητείς Bod., Wil., προσζητείς Lef., προσζητεῖν Nic., πρὸς ζητεῖν (?) Leeu., E.C.

137 Δα. καλῶς. τὸ παιδίον δ'; Crois., Συ. καλῶς. τὸ παιδίον δ'; Eitr., καλῶς. (continuing to Smicrines) Δα. τὸ παιδίον δ'; Wil. (γινώσκω: MS.)

138 Δί', ἐγὼ Maz., Δία, σοῦ Lef.

139 δὲ καὶ Arn., Crön., Ell., Head., Hense, Herw., Leo, Maz., Wil., δέ οὐ Crois.

140 ταδικοῦν] = τῷ ἀδικεῖν Arn., Head., Hense, Wil., τάδ' ἀδικεῖν Bod.-Maz.

141 γενοῖτ] corr. Lef., "fort. excidit interiectio" Sud. // κρίσις Lef.

142 σωτήρ. ἄπανθ' Arn., σωτήρα πάνθ' Lef. // μόνος Arn., ἐγὼ Lef.

143 α Lef., ε Kör.] ἔχει Head., Wil., ἀγει Head., Leo

144 Lef.

145 ταχύ Bod.-Maz., Leeu., Leo, τοδί Lef. // Συ. φέρε ταχύ Rob., Σμ. φέρε τοδί Lef.

146 λ Lef., χ Ric.] χάλα Kör., ἀνες Arn., λαβέ Lef.

146-154 Distribution of speakers: Συ. τὴν πῆραν . . . ἀποδῶ. Δα. τί . . . τούτῳ Leeu. followed by Rob., Crois., Kör., Sud. (περιφέρεις γάρ: MS.), Σμ. τὴν πῆραν . . . Δα. βραχὺ . . . τούτῳ Lef. followed by Bod.-Maz. (ἀποδῶ: MS.), Συ. τὴν πῆραν . . . Δα. βραχὺ . . . τούτῳ Wil., Σμ. τὴν πῆραν . . . Συ. βραχὺ . . . ἀποδῶ. Δα. τί . . . τούτῳ; Leo // 149 f. Σμ. δὸς ποτ', ἐργαστήριον. Δα. αἰσχρά γ' ἂ πέπονθα Leo, Maz. (ἐργαστήριον MS.), Συ. δὸς . . . κέκραγ' "ἂ πέπονθα" Lef., Συ. δὸς ποτ', . . . Δα. αἰσχρά γ' ἂ πέπονθα Kör., Wil. (w. γε for γ' ἂ), followed by Leeu., Rob., Crois., Sud. // 150 ff. Σμ. πάντ' ἔχεις; Kör., Wil.

followed by Leeu., Rob., Crois., Sud., Δα. πάντ' ἔχεις Lef., Συ. πάντ' ἔχεις; Leo, Maz. // Συ. οἶμαι γε δὴ. Σμ. ἀγε μὴ τι . . . ἡλίσκετ' Rob. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after δὴ), Σμ. οἶμαι . . . ἡλίσκετ' Lef. followed by Leo, Bod.-Maz., Συ. οἶμαι . . . ἡλίσκετ' Wil. followed by Crois., Kör., Sud., Συ. οἶμαι . . . πάντας Kör., Leeu. (ἡλίσκετ': paragraphus below, Συρ. in marg., MS.) // 152 ff. Συ. οὐκ ἂν . . . πάντας Lef. followed by Leo, Rob. (w. πάντα), Bod.-Maz., Δα. οὐκ ἂν . . . Συ. ἀλλ' εὐτύχει . . . πάντας Wil. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after εὐτύχει), Σμ. οὐκ ἂν . . . Συ. ἀλλ' εὐτύχει . . . πάντας Crois.

147 Lef.

148 ἀποδῶ Leo, ἀποδῶ Lef.

149 ποτε]

150 . . . χαρὰ Δ Lef., . . . σχαρὰ Δ Kör.] suppl. Arn., Bod., Crön., Ell., Head., Kör., Leo, αἰσχρά γε Wil., κέ(κ)ραγ' "ἂ πέπονθα" Lef.

151 Lef., ἀγε, μὴ Rob.

152 Punct. Lef., ὡς ἡλίσκετ' Leeu., ἡλίσκετ'; Rob. // In r. marg. ΣΤΡ]

153 Arn., Herw., Kör., τοιούτων γ' Lef.

154 πάντας] πάντα Rob. // ἀδικοῦ πράγματος, Lef., οὐκ ἀδικώτατος; Crois., ἀδικώτερον πάθος, Wil.

155 Ἡράκλεις. E.C., γέγορε Wil. // δεινὴ γ' ἢ κρίσις Lef.

156 In l. marg. ΣΤΡ] // ἦσθας. Arn., Bod.-Maz., Head., Hense, Leo, Leeu., ἦσθα σ' Crois. // Δα. ὦ ποτήρ Hense, Leeu., Leo. No indication in MS. of change of speaker after ἦσθας, but paragraphus below the line // . . . υ γυν Lef., ἠγ . . . μυν Kör.] ὅπως σὺ νῦν Crois.

157 E.C., αὐτὸς ἀσφαλῶς ἂ δεῖ Hense, αὐτὰ Ell., Leo, Nic., Wil., αὐτὰ καὶ γὰρ οὖν ἐγὼ Crois., αὐτὸ, ἕως ἀν ἐκτραφῆ Arn., αὐτὰ πάντ' (Wil.) ἀκήρατα. Kōr.

158 Lef.

159 γυνη] γύναι Lef., γυνή Arn.

160, 161 Punct. Lef., εἰσφέρει Χαίρε-στρατον. νῦν Arn., Hous., Legr.

164 ἀπαριθμῆσαι (but w. δέει for μοι in 163) Leeu., ἀπαρίθμησαι Lef.//καθεν']

165 Γυν. βάλλ'. . . προκόλπιον Byington (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after τινά)

170 In l. marg. ON] // ταυτ']

173 ἐστίν Lef. // ποιησας]

174 ἀγε Kōr., φέρε Wil. // αὐτὸς Lef., οὗτος Head., Wil.

175 Lef. // ὁ ποῖος; Head., Leeu., ὁποῖος Lef.

176-179 Lef.

178 'Ον. τὸν . . . ἔχεις Lef. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after ἀθλιε)

180 . . . π. σῶσαι Lef., . . . τρῶσαι
Kōr.] suppl. Kōr., οἶον ἀποσῶσαι Lef.

181 . . . λος Lef., . . . δος Kōr.] παιδὸς
Wil.

182 Suppl. Lef. // προσπαῖζεις ἐμοί:
Rich., continuing to Syrisceus (φημί: MS.), 'Ον. προσπαῖζεις ἐμοί; Arn., 'Ον. προσπαῖζεις ἐμοί. Lef.

185 . . . θυφείμην Lef., . . . θυμειμην Kōr.] τι καθυφείμην Arn., Ell., confirmed by Kōr., ποθ' ὑφείμην Lef.

186 κ. θεναπ. . . διου] suppl. Lef.

187 Punct. Leeu.

188 Lef.

190 Lef.

192 δ. ρι. . . παρεχω Lef., δ. σ. . .
ωι. . . παρεχω Kōr.] suppl. punct. Leeu.
(αὐτῶ?: σῶν:, and paragraphus MS.), δὸς αὐτὸν ἵνα παρέχω σῶν Crois., δὸς αὐτῶ ἵν' εὖ παρέχω σῶν Head., δὸς αὐτῶ ἵνα παρέχω σῶν Kōr., δὸς αὐτόν, ὡς (or καὶ) παρέχω σῶν Wil., δὸς πάλιν, ἵνα παρέχω σῶν Leo, δὸς ἵνα σῶν αὐτὸν παρέχω White

193 Crois.

197 f. καταμενῶ, αὔριον E.C., καταμενῶ. αὔριον Leo, καταμενῶ αἴριον. Lef.

201 τουτὶ] τούτου Crois.

202 In l. marg. ON]

204, 207 Lef.

208 μελ(δ)η] με δὴ Arn., Hense, Leeu., Leo, μ' ἐλη Lef.//διαλλαγείς Arn., Head.,
Hense, Leeu., Leo, Wil., διαλλαγὴν Lef.

209 Lef., τ' αὐτὰ καὶ Wil.

210 δ' ἔχει E.C. (ἔχει Eitr.), δὲ πρὶν
Crois., δ' ἔχοι. Leo, δέ τοι Leeu., ποῶν Wil., νοῶ Arn.

211 κυκᾶν. καίτοι γ' ἐμοί E.C., κυκᾶν πειράσσομαι Crois., οὐ βούλομαι Leo, φυλάξομαι Wil. (Kōr. declares φ impossible), ἀφέξομαι Hense, δέδοικ', ἐπεὶ Sud.

212 μ. . . Kōr.] μέγα Wil., γ' ἐμοί
Crois., πολὺ Arn., Ell., Leo

213 In l. marg. ABP] // εαγεμ' Lef., εατεμ' Kōr.] ἐὰτέ μ' Wil., confirmed by
Kōr. // μοι is written above μηκακα]

214 ἀθλ. . .] ἀθλία Leeu., ἀθλιαν Lef.

215 . ρας. Lef., ερασθα Kōr.] ἐρᾶσθαι
Arn., confirmed by Kōr. // προσεδόκων
E.C., γὰρ ἐδόκουν Arn., μὲν ἐδόκουν Sud.
B³ joins B² without a break, as was seen by Arn., Legr., Leeu.

216 μ' εἰ] μέ τι Lef.

218 αὐτὸν Herw., αὐτὸν Lef.

219 ἀρτίως; ἀτοπον Ell., Leeu., Lef.
(in trans.)//Lef. gives τάλας . . . κάθημαι
v. 224 to Habrotonon (:τάλας: MS.). //
In r. marg. ABP]

223 Crois.

225 Arn., Leo, Wil.

226 Suppl. punct. Arn., Wil., ἐνδον ἐστίν, ὦγαθέ; Lef.

227 ἡ Arn., Leo, Wil., ἡ Lef. // ποτέ.] ποτ' ἡ Sud.

228 τουτονι, οι written above]

234 ταυροπωλίσ]]

239 ανδεικνυ. . . αἰντι] corr. Crois.,
Wil.

242, 243, 244, 247, 248, 250 Two initial letters in each v. suppl. Lef.

244 ταυταδη Kör.] ταῦτα Lef., δὴ Kör. // Lef. assumes: at end of v. // In r. marg. ABP Ric., Ο Kör.]

245, 246 ..ω and ...; Kör.] suppl. Wil.

249 ...] ὡς Rob., ναί, Lef. // 'Ον. καὶ ... δεσπότην. Lef. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after τάλαν)

251 αὶ E.C., αὶ Lef., ἃ Wil. // εἰτ'] εἰτ' Lef., εἰτ', (?) E.C.

252 μέρει; E.C., μέρει Lef.

253 Arn., Leo, Wil. give περ ... οἶδεν. to Onesimus, Lef. to Syrisus

254 Leeu. gives τὴν ... οἶδεν; to Habrotonon (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after λέγω)

256 δηλαδὴ εἰς Leeu., δηλαδὴ. εἰς Lef. // In r. marg. ABP]

258 ενε. α. . . ν Kör.] ἐνέπεσε Ell., Leeu., Leo, Nic., κάμου Arn., Ell., Head., Leo, Wil., ἐνέδραμ' οὐποτ' ἐμοῦ Lef., ἐνέπεσεν οὐποτ' ἐμοῦ (del. γὰρ) Kör.

259 τουουτον]

260 ταυροπο. αἰσιν Kör.] Ταυπολίοις· αἰσιν E.C., Kör., Schmidt

261 αὐτηθ' νεπαιζον Kör.] αὐτὴ θ' ὁμοῦ συνέπαιζον Head., Leeu., αὐτὴ and συνέπαιζεν E.C.

262 Punct. Head., Leo, (οὐπω γὰρ) Lef. // Wil. gives καὶ μάλα to Onesimus (· καὶ μάλα MS.)

263 παιδ' ἡτῶν] corr. Arn., Kör., Leo, παιδὰ γ' ἦτις Head., Hense, Wil., παιδα δὴ τίς Crois., Rich.

268 αὐτὴ E.C., αὐτὴ Lef., Crois., Rob., αὐτὴ Arn. // In r. marg. ON] 273 απολωλεκ. ῥ' Kör.] απολωλεκν' Ell., Head., Wil., confirmed by Kör.

276 νυνεχῆς] corr. Lef.

278 Head., Leeu., Leo, Nic., ἐλευθερά, παιδὸς Lef.

279 τοσυμ... w. γε written above

(i.e. τὸ συμβάν corrected to τὸ γεγονός)] suppl. Head., Hense, Leeu., Leo 280 εστ'] corr. Arn., Ell., Head., Leo, Nic., Wil.

281 εμοιουνν. ελ Lef., εμου(ι)συνν. ρ. α Kör.] suppl. Leo, ἐμοῦ and κράτεις Kör., ἐμοὶ and δρα Rob., ἐμοὶ σύμπραττε νῦν Wil., μοι — Ἀβ. σὺ νῦν δρα· Sud.

282 Lef.

283 Kör.

284, 285 Lef.

287 Punct. Crois., ἀπέβαλεν ἕτερος; Leeu., ἀπέβαλεν; ἕτερος Lef., ἀπέβαλεν; ἐτέρω Rob. // ἴσως εἰς] ἴσως ἢ εἰς Leeu.

292 ἐκείνην· (or ἐκείνην:) and ἐγώ·]

293 Lef. // In r. marg. ON]

294 In r. marg. ABP]

295, 296, 297 Lef.

298 Priscian (fr. 182 K.) gives εἰσείμι πρὸς ἐκείνην λέγεις, ἄρτι γὰρ τοῦ

300 ταυροπωλίοις]

301 ουσαστο' Lef.] οὔσα, τὰ τ' Arn., Wil., confirmed by Kör., οὔσα, τὰκείνη Head., οὐσ', ἃ τὸτ' ἐκείνη γέγονεν Crois.

304 πραγμ' ευθυσηζει] corr. E.C., εὐθὺς μάλ' Leeu., εὐθὺς μὲν Crois., εὐθὺς τὸθ' Ell., πραγμὰ γ' Lef., οἰδ' εὐθὺς Rich.

310 ωσθ'] ὡς Arn., Nic., Wil., ὡς δ' Head.

311 καῦταμοσ] και del. Lef. // σφοδραν] corr. Lef.

312-320 Initt. suppl. Lef.

315 In r. marg. ON]

317 ..η] ἤδη Lef., ἐστὶ Head.

322 γινῆ]

326, 327 εμαντησ—τουτωνσ'] Head., Jensen, Leeu., Nic. del. second σ'

330 ἐρεκεν; Arn.

332 λάβοιμι μισθὸν Lef. // Above λάβοις ON]

333 συμ...ε...μοι: Lef., συν...ε...εἰ σοι: Kör.] Arn., Leeu.

339 ε. εἰ Lef., π. εἰ Kör.] πῶς Kör., cf. Aristaen. Ep. 2. 1

340 Punct. Crois., τόδ' ἀστικὸν Arn., τοπαστικὸν Herw., Nic., Rich., Wil. // ἡσθεθ' Kör.] corr. Leeu.

350 ἔστι] ἔσται Leeu.

351 κεκτημένην | ταχέως Leeu., κεκτημένην ταχέως Lef. // κόρη] ἡ κόρη Wright, perhaps correctly

352 Kör.

353 ταυτην Lef., ταυτησ Kör.] ταύτης πατήρ (or βία) E.C., ταύτην δέ τοι Leeu., ἀφελς. Arn., ἐὼν, Crois.

354 οἰσεῦγν....α.ν Lef., επευχο. α(σ).τ(ι)ε(σ)να.ν (vague) Kör.] suppl. E.C., οἰ' ἐστίν αὐτῇ νῦν Crois., ἐπεύχομαι τε ναῦν (οἶδς τ' ἐγὼ τὴν ναῦν Arn.) Kör., εὐθὺς κελεύσει νῦν Rob., εἴτ' εὐκόλως δεῖ ναῦν Wil. // At end τ; Lef., τη(ι) Kör.] suppl. E.C., τάνθαδε Crois., τὴν σαθράν Arn.

355 μ Lef., ὃ Kor.] δοκῶ Leeu.

356 Lef.

357 ταβαλλα Lef., τομαλλα Kör.] τὸ μ' ἄλλα Kör., τὸ πολλά Arn., Wil. // μ' ἔτι Lef., μέ τι Crois.

358 N joined to T by Arn., Wil., and placed here. // εκτεμεισ] corr. Wil.

359 ἀλλ' οὐτοσι] ἀλλ' οἶ Byington, Wil., ἀλλ' del. Arn., Wil., ἐμαντοῦ del. Rob. inserting οὐν after ἀλλ'

360 Lef.

361 Herw., confirmed by Kör.

362 πέπυσται Wil. // αλ 9 lett. ισ] ἀληθεὶς αἰτίας Leeu., ἀληθινὰς — Kör., δαπάνας Χαρισίου (?) E.C.

363 Arn., Wil.

364 ἐμαντόν Wil. // τυχὸν ἴσως E.C., ἐμοὶ δοκεῖν Kör., οὐδ' ἰδεῖν αὐτὸν δοκεῖν Wil.

365 προ(ε) — ιμεδει] suppl. E.C., πρότερον Ἀβρότονον τί δρᾷ γυνῶναί με δεῖ Wil.

366 ff. M assigned to Epitr. by Wil., to act I by Leo, placed after NT¹ by Rob., confirmed by Ricci, who finds that M joins NT, ρ in v. 1 of M¹ belonging to the same v. as ν in the last v. of NT¹

367 ἐξηπατήθην E.C.

368 E.C., Rob.

374 αὐτὸν Rob., αὐτοὺς Lef.

375 E.C.

376 διαλῦσαι E.C., διαλλαγήναι Rob.

377 οἰμαιταλ] οἰμοι Rob., τάλας Lef.

378 Lef.

381 Rob.

392 E.C.

393 οὐδεῖσ.ν... Kör.] suppl. E.C., Schm., οὐδεῖς, σάφ' ἴσθι γ', Rob., γένοιτ' ἂν Wil.

394 αρι.τ...ν Kör.] suppl. Leeu., Leo, ἀριστῶσιν Kör.

395 καταπα Lef., καταπολλ... Kör.] κατὰ πολλά (κατὰ πολλά γε Kör.) Rob., καταπόλλυς Leo

396 δ.σκελον—.κ.ος Lef., δ...σκε δαν....κ.ος Kör., δ...σκεδαν....υκ ρος Ric.] διασκεδᾶν σ' ἀπρακτος (διασκεδάσμ' ἀπρακτος Crois.) E.C., διασκεδάννυσ' ὁ δκνος Kör., διασκεδάννυσ' δκνος Leo 397 π 12 lett. μαγείρου...στυχη Kör.] suppl. E.C., μαγείρου...τύχη Lef., μαγείρου τις τύχη (τύχη Wil.) Kör., περιδεξιου χρεῖα μαγείρου τις τύχη Crois.

398 14 lett. ἐκαλειτ'] σώσει σ'. Μαγ. ἀπειλεῖς ἐμέ; E.C., βαλεῖτ' εἰς μακαρίαν Wil., ὕμιν, ἕτερον μὲν, μή με καλεῖτ' Crois.

401 ff. α.αξ] ἀπαξ Kör.

405 νο...σ Lef., ενοδισ Kör.] -εν ὁ δὲς Kör.

406 Rob.

408 αραγε Lef., αρατε Kör.] μίαρὰ γε E.C., ἄρα γε Rob.

409 Kör.

410 Rob., ἀποπέμπειν E.C.

413 Rob.

414 Lef.

415 .μμιασ Lef., σιμμιασ Kör., Ric.]

416 Lef.

418 Kör.

Pet. fr., recto (= Jernstedt's 2a) attributed to Menander by Cobet; assigned to this play and to this position by E.C., recognizing as the speakers Smicrines, Onesimus, and Chaerestratus. The MS. has punctuation and indications of change of speakers in vv. 5 (ἐαυτὸν: and paragraphus), 7 (ἔρωτα: and paragraphus), 11 (δίδωσι:), 12 (πράγματα:), 14 (-ισται. and ἡμέρας:), 17 (γλυκύτατε: and -ατήρ:). In disregarding these signs in vv. 1-15, I have assumed that they were used to mark the speaker's questions and answers to himself, as, in the Cairo MS., in the monologues E. 850 ff., 875 ff., P. 278 ff. Robert, who admits this fragment to the Epitrepontes, regards all punctuation as indicating a change of speaker, the interlocutors of Smicrines being ξῆται α' and β': Σμ. ἄνθρωπος . . . ἐαυτὸν. Α'. τοῦτ' . . . ἔρωτα. Σμ. τί . . . δίδωσι. Α'. δώδεκα; . . . πράγματα. Σμ. ὅσον εἰς . . . λελόγισται. Α'. δύο . . . ἡμέρας. Σμ. κατάρτα' (?). Α'. ἐγὼ πεινῶντι . . . Β'. — γλυκύταθ'; Α'. ὁ τῆς . . . Σμ. vv. 19 ff. Earlier editors, Leeuwen distribute the parts variously, A. ἄνθρωπος . . . Β. τοῦτ' ἐγὼ . . . Α. προῖκα . . . δίδωσι. Β. δώδεκα . . . Α. ἀλλ' εἰς διατροφήν . . . Β. Χαρίσιος σε προσμένει. Γ. χαῖρ' . . . Β. ὁ τῆς νύμφης . . . Γ. τί οὖν παθὼν ὡς . . . Β. ψάλτριαν . . . Kör.

1 πίνει δὲ τιμωτάτον | ἄνθρωπος (ἄνθρωπος Cob.) E.C. // ἐκπλήττομαι Cob.

2 ἐγὼ γευμένον | ἐγὼ γ' ὑπὲρ δὲ τοῦ Wil., ἐγὼ περὶ δὲ τοῦ μὴ Cob., ἐγὼ γ' ὑπὲρ τοῦ μὴ Gomp. // μεθυσκεθ' corr. Tisch.

3 ἀπιστία | ἀπιστία Cob., ἀπληστία Wil.

4 τοῦ ὀβολοῦ suppl. Wil.

5 f. τοῦτ' ἐγὼ Cob., τοῦτ' ἐτι Leeu. // τοῦτ' ἐγὼ προσέμενον (τοῦτο referring forward) Hiller // διασι] διασκεδᾷ Cob., διασπαθᾷ E.C.

7 τὸν ἔρωτα | τὰ πατρῶα (?) E.C. // "τί . . . τοῦτο;" White, τί . . . πάλιν; Wil., Rob. // οἰμώζεται Wil., οἰμώξομαι Cob., οἰμώξέτω Kör.

8, 9 Cob.

11 δίδωσι, δώδεκα (continuing to Smic.) E.C., B. δώδεκα; Wil.

12 τακ. βωσ] ἐπίστατ' Cob., πεινστ' Leeu., λελόγιστ' Wil., ἀκριβῶς Cob.

13 σιδι. ροφήν] τί δ' Jern., εἰς διατροφήν Cob., ὅσον εἰς διατροφήν Rob., εἰ πρὸς (καὶ πρὸς Hiller) Gomp., ἀλλ' εἰς διατροφήν Kör. // ἡμερῶν Tisch., ἡμερῶν E.C. photog.] ἡμέρων E.C., ἡμερῶν Jern., ἡμέρας Gomp., ἡμέραν Leeu.

14 λελ. ισται] ἀρκεῖν λελόγισται (λελόγισται Cob.) E.C., ἐκατὸν λελόγισται Rob., πόνον λελόγισται Gomp., μίαν λελόγισται Leeu., χρεῖας νενόμισται Kock, πᾶς τις λελόγισται Wil.

15 π. γω Tisch., ν. E.C. photog., ν. τ. Wil.] τελεῖν πλέω (τελεῖν; τί ἐγὼ Gomp.) E.C., κατάρτα' (?) — ἐγὼ Rob., ἱκανόν τι τῷ Wil., ἀρκεῖν Kock // τιτιτ. ποτε Jern., τιτιτ. σποτε E.C., τιτιτ. σποτε Kör.] πεινῶντι Gomp., τίς (del. τι) E.C., λόγος Gildersleeve, νόμος E.C.

16 ο. σ.] Ὀν. ὁρῶ τιν' ὅς σε E.C., τί, ἱερδύλε; Leeu., Χαρίσιος σε Kör. // χαῖρω Tisch., χαῖρε (or ο, certainly not ω) (.) E.C. photog.] Χαίρεστρατε E.C., πρόσμεν' εἰ χαίρεις ὁρῶν Leeu., χαῖρ', ἀλλά τίς Wil.

17 τ. δ.] suppl. Jern., δδ' ἐστὶ δὴ Wil. // γλυκύτατε] // νύμφης πατήρ Kock // Assignment of speakers E.C., B'. γλυκύταθ'; Α'. ὁ πατήρ Rob.

18 Ca. 10 lett. ων] suppl. E.C., μάτην πόνων Leeu., τί δὴ (τί οὖν Kör.) παθὼν Wil. // τῆς τύχης E.C., ἐργάτης Leeu., φιλόσοφος Wil.

19 Ca. 13 lett.] suppl. E.C., ἐπιτρέβει', εἰθ' Leeu., βλέπει σκυθρόφ' Wil. // ὁ τρισκακοδαίμων, ψάλτριαν Jern. // vv. 19 ff. given to Smicrines by E.C.

20 Ca. 13 lett. σαν Jern., 11 lett. σαῖα Kör.] suppl. E.C.

Pet. fr., verso (= Jern. 2b) attributed to Menander by Jern., cf. fr. 581 K.; assigned to this play, but to end of first act, by Leeu., to this position by E.C., Crois. (Onesimus, Smicrines, Cook). Punctuation preserved in MS. (to indicate change of speakers): vv. 23 (γένοιτο), 29 (-μεν'), 30 (-τον'), 31 (σ' μίαν and ἐφεξῆς). Leeu. recognized the speaker of μὴ λέγε . . . προσβαλῶ as Smicrines; parts are given to Chae-restratus and Onesimus by E.C. Rob. gives μὴ λέγε . . . βουλευέσσομαι to Smicrines, the other parts (to v. 35) to ἑταῖροι Χαρισίου A' and B'.

23 οὕτως Kock // ἀγαθὸν Jern.

24 μηδὲν σύ γ' Leeu., ταῦτ', ὦ φίλ', Jern., μηδενὶ τὰδ' Wil., continuing to B'

25 Jern.

26 ὅπως ἔχει Kör., τὰ πράγματ' εὖ Jern., ἥδη τὸ πᾶν μετὰ Leeu.

27 τοπον Jern., ιονον E.C. photog.] ὄντινα τρόπον (ποῖον τρόπον Kock) Leeu., continuing to Smicrines, Γ. φέρε, ποῦ τόπον Jern., τίνα δὴ τρόπον E.C., Crois.

28 εν] suppl. E.C., Ἰν' ἐκείθεν Jern., continuing to Γ., φράσωμεν Kör., εἰπωμεν Leeu.

29 μεν] suppl. Jern.

30 τον] suppl. Kock, Διὸς ἄβα-τον Jern., ἀπρόσβατον (?) Leeu.

31 σ] suppl. E.C., πολλάς; Jern., ἔχειν Rob.

32, 33 Jern.

34 ν] suppl. Jern. // ερχετ' // υποβε..εγμ] suppl. Jern.

35 . . . μ. ενοχλεῖν] suppl. Kock //

ειν..μο] suppl. Jern. // χοροῦ suppl. Blass, Kör., Leo 36 ἐπισφαλῇ μέν Jern. // τάνθρώπων. ἐμοὶ Jern., τάνθρώπει· C. W. E. Miller, ἐπίσταμαι μέν πάντα τᾶνδον πάνν καλῶς Leeu. // vv. 36 ff. given to Onesimus by E.C.

37-39 Suppl. Jern. from Stobaeus (Men. 581 K.), who gives ἐμοὶ (from v. 36, om. οἶμαι) πόλις . . . ἐμέ // οἶμα.] corr. Jern.

40 E.C.

41 Suppl. E.C. from Men. 836 K., quoted with ἡμῶν and ὑμῶν and with ἔχων, ἔχω, and ἔχει.

Fr. 175 διπλάσια γούν ἐσθλεί μάτην MSS. Stob.] corr. E.C., cf. Auson. Epigr. 117 potat duplum dapes-que duplices devorat, μάτην γούν ἐσθλεί | διπλάσια Wil.

Fr. 178 ἐπέπασα MSS. Athen.] ἐπι-πάσω Herm. // ἀν] ἐάν Elmsley

Fr. 176 μέν add. Heringa // αἰσχίων ἐστι MSS. Stob.] corr. Heringa

R assigned to this play by the identification of fr. 177 by Arn., placed in this position in fourth act (pp. 1, 2 of the quaternion) by E.C. Arn. places R¹ after NT¹ and R² after NT²; Kör., following Arn., places it (R¹ following R²) on pp. 15, 16 of the quaternion which contains NT; Crois., Leo, Rob., place it in first act.

524 οὐδ' ἄρα Kör.

527 κεκη Lef., κεκηδ Kör.] τί | κεκήδευκας (κεκήδευκε Leo) E.C., κεκη-δευκῶς τοσοῦτον ἐνυβρίει Wil., φαίνεται Rob.

528 οὗτος Arn., νῆ Δί' Leo

529 καταφθαρεῖς τ'] τ' om. MSS. Harp., Suid.

530 E.C., μεθῶν ἐαυτοῦ ψάλτριας Arn., πίνων τ' αἰ λαικάστριας Rob., με-θῶν δὲ λαικάστριας Crois.

531 ἡμα Lef., ἡμασθ Kör.] ἡμᾶς Arn., δ' οὐκέτι κτέ. E.C.

558, 559 E.C.

560, 561 Kör.

562 Lef.

564 ἐγὼ τε E.C. // τῶνεμῶν πρᾶττω] πρᾶττω τῶν ἐμῶν Leo, τῶν ἐμῶν κρατῶ E.C., τῶν ἐμῶν | πρᾶττω Rob.

565 E.C.

566 σω Lef., εἰσω Kör.] εἰσω Kör.

Fr. 566 assigned to this play by Leeu., Rob., to this position in the fourth act by Rob., Crois.; given to Sophrona and interpreted as a quotation from Smicrines by E.C. // λέγει . . . ταῦτα E.C. // πλείονα οἶδεν πλείονα κακουργεῖ MSS. Pallad.] transp. Doobree 638 τὸ παιδίον | Crois. // τάλαν. Crois., Leeu., τάλαν, Lef., Rob.

639 πάλαι γὰρ οὐκ Crois., Leeu., Pres., πάλαι γὰρ οὐκ Lef., Rob., Kör., Sud.

640 ταλαιναεπ. . . εἴησει Lef., ταλαινα ρελησει Kör.] suppl. Leeu., confirmed by Kör.

641 In l. marg. .BP // ωφιλτατοι 9 lett. ειμ. . . . ρα Lef., — ειμισ. . . ρα Kör.] ὦ φιλτατ', οἰκτιροῦσά σ' ἔξειμι E.C., σφόδρα Arn., Leo, ὦ φιλτατοι θεοί Arn., Leo, πρόσκειμι νῦν ἄρα Crois., ὦ φιλτατον, σίγα, τάχ' ὄψει μητέρα Sud.

642 καὶ 12 lett. πρε. . . . Lef., καὶ. σ(ε)ρ 9 lett. ησε. . . . Kör.] suppl. E.C., καιροῦ τυχοῦσα· πλῆσιν Rob., καὶ πεύσομαι τί με δεῖ ποῖν Crois.

643 δ 9 lett. π. σμεινεν. με Lef., επ. . . π. εορπροσμενονημε Kör.] suppl. (πρόσμενον Kör.) E.C. (or ἔπεχε, γύναι?), ἀλλ' ὡς ὁρῶ, προσέμεινεν ἐμέ Crois., ἐπ' αὐτ'. ὀλίγον πρόσμενον ἐμέ Wil. // καλωσσεπαι Lef., καλωσσεγω Ric.] καλῶς σ' ἐγὼ Wil., καλῶς σε, παῖ Lef., καλῶς· ἐπεὶ Crois.

644 οὔ — Lef., οὔ. . . . σ. . . . τουσ. . .

Kör.] suppl. E.C., οὐκ ἤλθον ἄλλως. — προσμένειν τι Crois. // . . . κεισ. υμοι: Lef., . οκεισ. . . ραι Kör., . . κε. . . γυναι Ric.] δοκεῖς, γύναι (δοκεῖς Leo, Sud.) E.C., ἐκεῖ σύ μοι Lef., δοκεῖς σύ, ναί (or -ε κείσομαι) Kör., οὐκοῦν προσεπείν γυναικὴν δοκεῖς, γύναι; Sud. // 644 b is given to Sophrona by E.C., Kör. (no indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.), Lef. and others continue to Habrotonon.

645 ω. . . ηστιν. . . ω. . . λω Lef., αὐτη στιν. . . . ωθα Kör.] αὐτὴ 'στι (αὐτὴ 'στιν Kör.), νῦν ἐγὼδα (ἦν ἐγὼδα Kör.) E.C. // vv. 645, 646 given to Habrotonon by Leo, to Sophrona by Lef., γύναι: and paragraphus MS.

646 γ. . . . εὔ. . . . Lef., γ. . . . λ(δ). . . . Kör.] γύναι Lef., βλέψ' ὦδε E.C., γύναι, φέρεῖς σὺ Rob., γύναι, πρόσψιν Wil. // δ. . . ρομοιτηνε. δ. . . Lef., δ. . . ρομοιτηνε Kör., δ. . . ρομοιτηνησθιδου Ric.] δεῦρό μοι Arn., τὸν νοῦν ἔχε E.C., τὴν σὴν Arn., χεῖρά μοι τὴν σὴν δίδου Sud.

647 εμοιαλεγισ Lef., εμοιγ. λεγεισ Kör.] ἐμοί, τί λέγεις; White, ἐμοί γ' ὁ λέγεισ Crön., ποῖ βλέπεις Wil. // περυσιν. . . εσθ. . . εμ. . . i Kör.] πέρυσι (Lef.) διεγνώσθης ἐμοί (ἐμοί Kör.) E.C., πέρυσιν γενέσθ'. 'Αβ. ἄκουε δὴ· Sud., πέρυσι συνηλίσθης ἐμοί Wil., πέρυσι παρεγένεσθ', εἰπέ μοι, Crois. // Σω. λέγ'. . . λέγεις; 'Αβ. πέρυσι to middle of v. 648 E.C., whole of v. 647 to Habrotonon Leeu., Rob., Crois. A change of speaker in or at end of verse indicated by paragraphus

648 ταυροπωλοισ] // επι Lef., ειπ. . . ελ. . . . η Kör.] εἰπερ εὖ μένημι ἐγὼ Wil., εἰπέ, μέλλεις; Σω. ἦν· σὺ γε, E.C., ἐπὶ χορεύαν; Σω. ναί· σὺ δέ, Crois., εἰπ' ἄρ' ἐλθεῖν — Σω. 'Ηράκλεις, Sud. Lef., Leeu., Rob., Wil. continue to Habrotonon. A change of speaker in or at end of verse indicated in MS. by paragraphus 649 .αι.. Kör.] παῖδα Arn., Herw., Leo, σὺ Arn., Herw., Leo, νῦν E.C., δὴ Crois.

650 Lef.

651 ...] πῶς Sud., δ γε Kör., ὦν Lef.

652 Lef.

654 νυνδ' ευρηκασουν Lef., νυνδ' ευρη κασε Kör.] νῦν δ' εὑρηκά σε continuing to Habrotonon Kör.¹, εὑρηκα· σὲ Kör.², νῦν δ' — Σω. εὑρηκας οὖν; Lef.

657 15 lett. 'ου Lef., ... δ(α) 9 lett. θ(φ)'ου Kör.] suppl. E.C., τόνδ' αὐτὸν οἶδ' ὄνθ' οὐ Crois., οἶδ', εἰ γε σή' στ' ἀφ' οὐ Leo, οὐ γαμβρός ἐστ' δδ' οὐ Rob., ἐγφδα, τούτου 'σθ' οὐ Kör., οἶδ' ἀσφαλῶς, ἀφ' οὐ Sud., Χαρσιλου τοῦδ'; (continuing to Sophrona) 'Αβ. οὐ Leeu. (φιλάττη; MS.)

658 Distribution of speakers that of Lef., Crois. (with ναίχι;), Rob., Σω. τὴν ἔνδον οὖσαν; 'Αβ. ναίχι. Σω. μακαρία κτέ. Leeu., so, but continuing ναίχι ... σαφῶς to Habrotonon, Sud. (No change of speaker indicated in MS. after ὁρῶ.) Hous., Kör. continue τὴν ἔνδον ... ἐλέησε to Habrotonon (:ναίχι; MS.)

659 ff. 'Αβ. (continuing) τὴν θύραν ... σαφῶς Lef., Crois., Σω. τὴν θύραν ... ἐξιόν. 'Αβ. εἰσω ... σαφῶς Leo, Rob., Kör., Σω. τὴν θύραν' ... σαφῶς Crön. (No change of speaker indicated in MS.)

663 In l. marg. QN]

664 επεμανη Lef., εμανη preceded by a critical sign (ετ? = ἐτέρως) Kör.] ἐμάνη Lef. Diels del. v. 664

666 τοιουτορ.] τοιουτό τι Rich., Rob., τοιουτονι Lef., τοιουτον, ἡ Leo

667 τισαγαντις.....ερ Lef., η(γ,π) .χραντισ.....σ....γ Kör.] τί γὰρ ἂν τις (τί γὰρ ἂν τις Rich.) εἰκάσειεν (but as parenthesis and εἰκάσειεν;) Crois., νομίσειεν Rich., τίς, ἀγ', ἂν τι βοηθήσειεν;

Rob., ὡχράν τις ἀνασέσειεν Leo, πικρόν τι συμβέβηκεν Sud. // ἄλλο Lef., ἀλλ' ὁ Leo // γεγονέναι; E.C., Sud., τὸ γεγονός; Rich., γέγον' ἐρῶ Leo 668 Leeu., Leo, ἀρτι πολλὸν ἐγὼ Wil., ἀρτι μακρόν ἦν Crois.

669 εν Lef., ενε Kör.] ἐνθεν ἤκουεν σαφῶς E.C., ἐνδιέτριψεν ἄθλιος Rob.

670 περιγ(κ, ν, ι, π, hardly τ) Kör.] περι Lef., 'πολείψως Arn., E.C., κακώσεως Arn., τοῦ πράγματος Crois., τοῦ δεσπότης Rob.

671 Wil., ὅποσα δὴ Arn.

674 τ' ανεπαταξε] τ' ανεπάταξε Leo, Wil., τ' ἂν ἐπάταξε Lef., θ' ἂμ' ἐπάταξε Head., Leeu.

679 ἀλιτήριος Arn., Crön., Leo, Wil., ἔγωγ' add. Lef. before ἀλιτήριος

682 συγγν...η] συγγνώμης Lef., μέρος Leeu., ποτέ Lef., ἐγὼ Eitr., συγγνώμην κόρη Leo 683 ταῦτ' Arn., Eitr., Maz., Rich., Wil.

684 τ'· ελοιδορεῖτ'] τε. λοιδορεῖτ' Arn., Bod.-Maz., Herw., Leo, Rich., τε· λοιδορεῖ τ' Nic., Wil., τ'· ελοιδορεῖ τ' Lef.

685 ..σω Lef., ..τω Kör.] αὐτῷ Arn., Wil.

690 γ'εσ] γ'; ἐς Lef., γῆς Herw.

693 In l. marg. XAP]

697 ff. "ὦ τρισκακῶδαιμον... σφόδρα" Crois., "ἀνθρωπος... σφόδρα" Arn., Kör.

698 καιμεγαλα] και μέγα Leeu., Leo, μεγάλη (και del.) Lef.

704 Arn., Crois., Ell., Leo, Rich.

705 Lef.

706 9 lett. ου] suppl. E.C., κοινωνὸν οὐ Lef., νῦν κοινωνὸν οὐ Crois., οὐκ ἄρά σου Bod.-Maz., παρ' ἀνδρα κοῦ Hous., τοῦ δ' ἀνδρός οὐ Leeu., και νῦν μὲν οὐ Eitr.

707 Arn., confirmed by Kör.

Q assigned to this play and to this position by Lef., Q² placed before Q¹ by Legr., confirmed by Kör.

734 Ὀν. (continuing) ἀπαντα δ' ἐκμαθεῖν E.C., Ἀβ. (continuing) σοῦ δ' εἰ τὸ πρῶτον ἄρ' Crois., ἐπεφάθης Kör. // ἐγὼ Crois.

735 Ca. 9 lett. σε] ὥς εὖ ποῶν σε E.C., μή μοι χαλέπαινε Crois. // καὶ θεοὺς Crois., τουτοῖ E.C.

736 τί δέ με Lef., ἔτι με οὐ τί σὺ με Sud. // ιεροσυλεῖ μοι] corr. Lef., μή Kör., Leeu.

737 μτε: Lef., στε: Kör., ... τατε: Ric.] suppl. Legr., giving the foll. also to Habrotonon, Xa. κατάρτατε. Ἀβ. τῆς, κτέ. Leeu., ἀλόγιστε Wil., ἀχάριστε Sud. // ἐστὶ σου: E.C.

738 γ.ρ Kör.] αὐτῆς γάρ (γάρ Kör.) E.C., τέκνον γάρ Kör., τουτὶ γάρ Wil.

739 φ.την Lef., φιλην Kör.] suppl. Head., Hense, confirmed by Kör.

740 Hense, δντως Leeu., δντως γ' Kör., πάντως Rob., ὄν οἷδ' Crois., τάλαιαν: Ἀβ. ἀληθῆ Sud.

741 ιν:καὶ] δντως (or σαφῶς) ἄρ' ἦν; Ἀβ. καὶ Leeu., τὸδ' ἔστι; (τοῦτ' ἔστι; Arn.) Ἀβ. ναί, καὶ Kör., τοδὶ σ' ἔχειν; Sud. // ὅν γ' ὁμοίως Kör., ὅν γ' ὁμοίως Lef.

742 Lef.

769-777 Given to Onesimus (down to Χαιρέστραθ') and Chaerestratus by E.C., Kör., Rob., Sud., to Pamphila by Crois. Kör. gives v. 775 to Onesimus. The MS. indicates no alternation of speakers, but πιστός: v. 772 and πάξ: v. 775

769 οὐ μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω (ὦ, νῆ τὸν Ἀπόλλω Rob.) E.C. // καὶ . . . πρόσχε μοι E.C.

770 χ.....ατ' Lef., χ.....ατ' Kör.] suppl. E.C., Sud. // ἦδε] ἦδε (and -αθ') Lef., ἡ δὲ Arn., ἦδη Sud. // ταῦτα Leo, ταῦτ' Arn. // δεῖ σ', ἔφη, E.C., φρόντισον Sud.¹, φροντιεῖ (w. ἦδε) Sud.², αὐτῷ λέγει Arn.

771 οψ... μενισ Lef., οψ... μεν eis Kör.] ὅπως Leo., διαμενεῖς Ell., Sud. // τὸ πᾶν Leo, τρόπον Crois., φίλος Arn., Ell., Sud., πάνν Kör., σύ γε Sud.

772 οιο.π.... οισθα Lef., οιοσπ.ροισθα Kör.] οἷσπερ Arn., οἷσθα Lef., οἷονπερ οἷσθα Lef., ἦσθα Arn., Sud. // ἐστὶ τοι E.C., ἐστι δὴ Crois., ἐστ' ἔτι Sud., ἐστ' ἄφρον Kör.

773 τυχὸν Arn., Head., Herw., Leeu., Leo, Sud., confirmed by Kör. // ὅτι ποεῖ: (or δ' γ' ἐπεί) E.C., ταῦτ' ἄρ' ἦν Crois., κορίδιον Rob., παιδίον Herw., ἐπλάσατο Kör., ἦν πάλαι Sud.

774 πισουδῆδε Lef., σπουδῆδε Kör.] σπουδῆ δὲ Kör. // παιδάριον] τὸ παιδάριον Rob. // σ(ε)κμ(ω) Kör.] ἐξέυρεν. Xa. γενοῦ (no indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.) or ἐξεύρηκε σοι E.C., ἐκθρέψει μάλα Crois., ἐκθρέψεται Rob., ἐκσέσωκε νῦν Sud.

775 ἐλευθερος] ἐλευθέρως Rob., Sud., ἐλευθεροῦ E.C. (formerly) // πάξ Arn., Head., Herw., Leo, Leeu., Legr., confirmed by Kör. // βλέπ' eis τὴν γῆν ἔχων E.C., βλέπε θαυμ', Ὀνήσιμε Rob., βλέποιμ', εἰ προσεδόκων Kör., βλέποις τοῖνον κάτω Sud. // E.C. continues vv. 775 ff. to Chaerestratus, Kör. gives v. 775 to Onesimus, Ὀν. ἐλευθερος, πάξ. Xa. μή... Sud.

776 αὐτ. γ Lef., αὐτῇ(?) Kör.] αὐτὸν Lef., αὐτὴν Crois. // μόνας Arn., Crön., Head., Herw. // Χαρίσιον E.C., σκοπεῖν (βλέπειν Crön., ὁρᾶν Kör.) θέλω Rob., λαβοῦσ' ἐγὼ Crois., πρόσειπε καὶ (w. αὐτὴν) Sud.

777 παῖδά μου or δεσπότην (formerly παῖδά σου) E.C., παῖδ' ἐμὸν Crois., Χαρίσιον (del. τὸν before γλυκύτατον) Rob., ἰδιοῦν Wil., παῖδα νῦν Sud., οὐχ ὀρεῖ Herw.

Fr. 849, 850 assigned to this play by Leeu. (849 only), Legr., Rob., Wil., to this position by E.C., to the first act by Crois., Rob. // Χαί. φιλω . . . εἰ. 'Ον. οὐδέν . . . εἰδέναι E.C., Μαγ. φιλω σ', 'Ονήσιμε. 'Ον. ἀλλὰ σὺ περίεργος εἶ. Μαγ. οὐδέν . . . εἰδέναι Rob., Μαγ. φιλω . . . εἰ. ['Ον. ---]. Μαγ. οὐδέν . . . εἰδέναι Crois.

Fr. 849 'Ονήσιμε, καὶ σὺ MS. Cram. Anec.] corr. E.C., 'Ονήσιμ'. ἀλλὰ σὺ Rob., 'Ονήσιμ', εἶτα καὶ σὺ Leeu., 'Ονήσιμ', ὥς σὺ καὶ Crois., 'Ονήσιμε, καὶ σὺ γὰρ Mein., φιλω σ', 'Ονήσιμε, | καὶ σὺ περίεργος εἶ Wil.

Fr. 850 οὐδέν γλυκύτερον Cic. ad Att. 4. 11, οὐδέν γὰρ γλυκύτερον Cram. Anec.] ἐστίν add. Cob.

848 f. Rob., Kör. give to Chaerestratus, Crois., Sud. to Charisius

850 In l. marg. ΣΜΙ] // The interpretation of vv. 850-863 as an imaginary conversation of Smicrines with Sophrona, the latter not being present, is due to S. T. Byington

852 Punct. Leo

853 ἀλλὰ] ἀλλ' ἢ Kör., Wil. // περιμενω] corr. Crön., Head., Herw., περιμένω Kör., Wil., περιμενω Lef.

854 Punct. Rob.

855 Punct. Head., Kör., Leeu., Wil.

856 κρείττον; Arn., Bod., Ell., Legr., Leo, Rob., 'οὐκ . . . κρείττον;' Rob.

857 αν...ιαλησ Lef., αν...ιαλησ Kör.] αν...ετι λαλησ Arn., Leo, αν...περιλαλησ Lef. // τί; Rob., τι constr. w. preceding Lef., Crois., τί w. following Leeu., Maz. // κρίνομαι πρὸς Σωφρόνην; Head.

858 Punct. Bod.-Maz., Rob.

859, 860 Punct. Bod.-Maz. // ιδεσ] corr. Lef.

862 κ. γωσοι] κἀγὼ Lef., χοῦτω Wil., σε Arn., Ell., Keil, Kör., Legr., Leo, Maz., Nic., Pres., Wil. // ταῦτ' Arn., Ell., Head., Kör., Legr., Leo, Maz., Nic., Pres., Rob., Wil.

866 In r. marg. ON]

868 ἦκων; E.C.

870 f. Distribution of speakers Leeu. (in MS. σπουδή; no indication of change of speaker after οἶον or δαιμόνων, no paragraphus below either v.), Σμ. τὸ δ' (for τοῦ MS.) . . . οἶον . . . δαιμόνων — Bod., Leo, Wil. followed by Rob., Kör., Sud.

874 Σμικρίνη] confirming Meineke's correction of σμικρὸν ἦν in David (Men. 174 K.).

878 f. πῶς . . . βλον Rich. continues to Onesimus (σφύζουσι: and paragraphus below v. 879 MS.), Σμ. πῶς . . . βλον Lef. followed by Rob., Bod.-Maz., Crois., Kör., Sud. // βλον Lef.

880 ἡμῶν οἱ θεοί; Arn., Rich., ἡμῶν; and τίς γὰρ οὖν Lef., τόδε μὲν οὐ Wil., ἀλλὰ τίς; Maz. // Leo refers to this passage the quotation of Theophilus (Men. 752 K.) οὐκ ἄρα φροντίζει τις ἡμῶν ἢ μόνος θεός.

881 Crois., συνψέκισαν Sud.

882 ἕτερον μὲν Lef., κακῶς Arn., Head., Wil.

883 αὐτῷ Lef., αὐτῷ Crois. // χρήσθηθ' Wil., ἀπαξ Bod., ἄγαν Wil., ἐκὼν Leeu., ὅλως Crois., χρήσθαι θέλη Head., Kör.

889 Σμ. τῆς παρησχίας Arn., Kör., Leeu., Leo, Maz., Nic., confirmed by Kör., σε: MS.

890 ἀνδρὸς αὐτοῦ] corr. Ell., Leo, αὐτοῦ Nic.

892 'Ον. θεῆ; Leo, Maz., confirmed by Kör., ἀναγκαῖον: MS., 'Ον. θεά! Arn., θεοί! Rich., θεῶ Rob.

897 Lef.

900 ἀφῆεσο corr. to ἀφῆεσο Kör.] corr. Lef., ἀφῆεσο Leeu., Rob.

908 'Ον. (continuing) αἰσθάνει γε; Σμ. καὶ Legr. (ἀποσπασθεῖσαν: αἰσθάνει γε: MS.) // νη] corr. Lef.

909 νυν] corr. Crön., Ell., Head., Leo, Maz., Wil.

910 απανταταγαθα] corr. Arn., Head., Kör., Wil., τὰ πάντ' ἀγαθὰ Ell., Leo

911 Σω. ἡ φύσις . . . ἔφν Lef., Leeu. gives to Onesimus

912 Σμ. τί μῶρος εἶ; E.C., Σμ. τί; μῶρος εἶ; Lef., Σμ. τί; Σω. μῶρος εἶ; Leo (: τί μῶρος εἶ: MS.)

916 τέρας E.C., οὔτος (with δ τι) Arn., Ell., Head., Leo, Leeu., Maz., Nic. // οἶδε. . . Kör.] suppl. Leeu., Leo, οἶδά γ', ἀλλ' Head.

917 . . . σαρ. στερα Lef., . . . α(ο, σ) τρεστερα Kör.] suppl. E.C., οὔτος τὸ τέρας Rob., κὰν μωροτέρα Leeu.

918 Wil.

919 Head., Wil., ἡ τοῦτ' Arn., Leeu.

PERICEIROMENE

Fr. 569 assigned to this play by Leeu., Rob., to this position in first act by E.C., distribution of speakers E.C., Rob. gives the whole to Moschion (?)

1 τούτων . . . τέκνον | αὐτὴ E.C., αὐτὴ τρέφειν | τὸ μὲν Crois., παιδὶον τρέφειν | αὐτὴ Sud., τρέφειν βρέφος | μόνον Wil. Four letters lacking

2, 3 Crois.

4 . . . (.)δετα(ο) μενων] ποιεῖ δὲ Wil., ἐπδεῖ δὲ Leo, συνέβη δὲ Crois., τοῦτ' ἐγγενομένων Leo, τοῦτο Wil., ταῦτ' Kör., γενομένων Crois., ἔσπευδε τότε παροικομένων Sud.

5 Leo, Rich., Wil., δεινοῦ Leeu.

6 . . . ανομενων] suppl. Crois., οἰδανομένων Schmidt

15 δίδωσ'] διδοῦς Crön., Herw.

23 Lef.

24 θ' ουθεν] corr. Head., Leeu., τ' οὐθὲν Lef.

25 αὐτῇ Leeu., αὐτὴ Lef.

26 μεμενηκεν] corr. Arn., Diels, Herw., Kör., Leo, Rich., Sud.

31 ὑποτου] ὑπ' αὐτοῦ Crön., Leeu., ὑπὸ τούτου Ell., Head., Leo, Rich., Wil.

33 Lef.

34 π. μοισα] corr. suppl. Lef.

35 αὐτὴν Leeu. // ευθυ] corr. Herw.

36 Lef.

37 δ' ἀτερος Wil., δ' ὁ Πολέμων Crois., δ' ὁ ξένος Sud.

38 ουτος Lef., αυτος Kör.] αὐτὸς Rich., confirmed by Kör. // οὔτ' Lef., ε. ρηκ' αντι Kör.] εὔροισ' E.C., ελρηκ' Leo, αν τις εἰ E.C., αντικρυς Kör., ἀρτίως Leo, ὑπολάβοι τις αν Rich.

39 . (ε?) Lef., ἱ(υ) Kör., ιθ Ricci] κρινεῖ E.C., ἐρεῖ Lef., ἔδοι Rein., ιδεῖν Sud., μενεῖ Schmidt 40 αὐτὴν] αὐτῇ Herw. // ἡ δ' Lef.

44 ἀφικετ'] ἀφίκοιτ' (generally w. λάβοι below) Arn., Crön., Ell., Head., Legr., Leo, Pres., Wil., ἀφίκτη' (and λάβη) Head., Kör., Legr., Pres.

45 λαβη] λάβοι Arn., Leeu., Leo, Nic.

46 θ' εαντων] corr. Crön., Head., Leeu., Leo

47 εὔροισιν] εὔρωσιν Sud. // ἐδυσχέραινε] ἐδυσχέρανε Wil.

49 θεοῦ] θεοὺς Eitr.

50 γινομενον] // τε γενόμενοι Wil., confirmed by Kör.

52 ff. The speaker recognized as So-sias by Legr., Rob., Sud. gives to a second servant of Polemon

58 ἀκούσῃ Lef. // γινομεν']

59, 61 Lef.

60 ἀλλ' ἡ E.C., ἀλλ' ἡ Lef.

62 ff. Punct. (reading οἷα, τιν', αὐται) Head., Leo, Nic., Rich., Wil.

66 f. παράνομοι ἅπαντες Kör., confirmed by MS.

68 Δω. (continuing) εὐφρανθήσεται . . . μοι Leeu., Leo, Rob., Sud. (παῖδες: and αὐτός: MS.), Δούλος. εὐφρανθήσεται . . . αὐτός Lef., Σω. εὐφρανθήσεται . . . αὐτός Leo (later), Schmidt

J was recognized as belonging to this play and not to the Samia by Legr., Leeu., Wil., Leeu. and Wil. identifying the quotation in v. 243. Leeu., Leo assigned it to this position

141-146 Leo, Leeu. recognized the speakers as Doris and Davus. The distribution of parts here adopted is that first proposed by Leo, except that the speech of Doris is made to include ἐνθάδε in v. 145. Leo now gives v. 145 a (ἐλε οὗτος . . . ταχίστην) to a third person, ἐνθάδε . . . δοκεῖ to Davus, Δω. παῖδες . . . μείρακα. Δα. τοῦτ' . . . ζητητέος. Δω. πρόσαγε αὐτὸς . . . δοκεῖ Leeu. The only indication of change of speakers in MS. is ταχίστην: in v. 145. Kör. gives παῖδες . . . δοκεῖ to "Donax" (see on v. 252), porter of Myrrhina, Sud. to Davus 142 παμπολλὰ Leeu., confirmed by Kör.

143 προσυμᾶς Lef., προσυμᾶς Kor.] προθύμως Legr., πρὸς ὑμᾶς Lef., πρὸς ἡμᾶς Leo // τρόφιμος Lef.

145 . . . ε . . . τοσ Lef., . . . (ε)ργυτοσ, the letter before ε being α, κ, λ, δ, or χ, Kör.] ἔλκ' (written ἐλκε) Leeu., αὐτὸς E.C., ἐλε οὗτος Leo, τρέχε σὺ πρὸς Legr., Δά' (written Δαε) Wil. // τὴν ταχίστην Lef.

146 συ . . . ἀραν Lef., εὐκαιρον Kör.] suppl. Leo, confirmed by Kör.

147 πολλάκις Lef. // . . . αὐτ' Lef., . . . ἀδὲ Kör.] τάλας E.C., τάλαν Sud., τοιάδε (for τάδε) Kör., πάλαι Wil.

149 . ἦδε Lef., εἶδε Kör.] εἰ δὲ Kör. // καὶ νυνὶ Lef. // πλανῶ Kör., Leo, πάλιν Sud., δοκεῖ Crois., Crön., θέλεις Herw.

150 δίκην Herw., τρόπον Crois., Crön., Kör.

151 . . . δακσε. η Lef., . . . ξ(λ)αξ(λ)ησ (θ)ε. η Kör., . νδαληθε. η Ricci] ἄν (Leeu., Sud.) λάθη σε, μὴ (σε, μὴ Sud.) E.C., ἄν δάκη σε, μὴ Kör., ἄν δακῆς ἢ μὴ Sud., ἄν δ' ἀληθὲς ἢ Rein., Schm. (reading δίκην., the apodosis being τίς ἔσομαι; v. 155) // καταλάβης τ' ἔνδον αὐτὴν ἐνθάδε Leo, confirmed by Kör., καταλάβης γ' ἔνδον αὐτὴν γενομένην Sud., καταλάβης τ' Leeu.

152 ἀδ' ἐδίωκε.] ἃ δ' ἐδίωκες Leo, confirmed by Kör., ἃ δεδίωκας Wil. // νῦν ἔχεις σὺ] Kör., νῦν ἔχεις σὺ Schm., ἦν λάβης σὺ Arn. // πάντα Leeu., Leo, Sud., confirmed by Kör.

153 πεπεικε . . . Lef., πεπεικ' . . . τ . . . Kör.] πέπεικ' αὐτὴν Kör., πεπείκω τὴν μὲν Schm. // λόγους Leo, Sud., confirmed by Kör.

154 τημε . . . σαιτεθ Lef., τηνηση. δ. μ ητερ' Kör.] τὴν σὴν (σὴν Sud.) δὲ μητέρ' Kör. // ὑποδέχεσθαι (or ἀπο-) Kör., δέχεσθαι Leo, Sud.

155 ἀπανθ'] corr. Crön., Kör., Leeu., Leo // τισεσομ . . . βιος] τίς ἔσομαι; τίς βίος; (βίος Lef.) Leo, τίς ἔσομαι; σύμβιος Rob. // ὄρα E.C., Wil., ὄρᾳς Rob., ὅ τι Leo // Μο. τίς βίος μάλισθ', ὄρα E.C., Rob. (w. σύμβιος and ὄρᾳς), Μο. τίς ἔσομαι, τίς βίος; μάλισθ' ὄρᾳς, Kör. No indication of change of speaker in the line is preserved in MS., but paragraphus below.

156 ἀρέσκει; E.C., ἀρέσκει Arn., Leo, ἀρέσκει. Rob., ἀρέσκει, Schm. // κ . . . ε . . . βλεφο Lef., σ . . . επιβλεφ. υ Kör.] σκέψ', ἐπιβλεφ' οὐ δέει (οὐ οὐ σε δέει) E.C., σοι; φέρ' ἐπιβλεφώμεθα Arn., σοί γ', ἐπιβλεφ', ὑπέφυγεν Leo, νῦν γ' ἐπιβλεφ', οὐ τοσί Rob., σοί γ' ἐπιβλεφθήσεται Schm., σοί γ'. Δα. ἐπιβλεφθήσεται Sud., σ', εὐ δ' ἐπιβλεφ' οὐ δέη Wil. // Kōr. gives the whole of v. 156 to Davus (no indication of change of speaker in the line is preserved in the MS., but paragraphus below). Rob. gives νῦν γ' . . . κράτιστον to Davus.

157 μυλωθρεῖν Hous., Kōr., confirmed by MS. // σε . . . ν Lef., εἰς . . . λ Kōr.] suppl. E.C., εἰς τὸ ληρεῖν φαίνεται Leo, εἰσελεύσομαι γε νῦν Rob. // Δα. εἰς . . . end of v. 158 Kōr.¹, κράτιστον: MS.

158 οὐτοσί Crōn., Leeu., confirmed by Kōr. // ησχ . . . μηδεν . . . ξυν Lef., ημ . . . μηδεν . . . ξυν Kōr.] ἡμῶν μὴ δέη τιν' ἐν ξύλῳ E.C., ἡμῶν μηδεν οὐδὲν δξυντέος Leo, Μοσ. μηδεν οὐδὲν δξυντέον Kōr.²

159 πραγμάτων ἐμῶν Eitr., Legr., Sud., confirmed by Kōr. // λ(π) Kōr.] λαβεῖν Eitr., ποεῖν Legr., Sud. // Μο. βούλομαι . . . end of v. 160 Kōr.¹ Change of speaker indicated in MS. by paragraphus below v. 158

160 καὶ διοικητὴν στρατηγόν (στρατηγός Sud.) Kōr. // Δᾶε (Δᾶ' Sud.) Kōr. // . . . ετξ Lef., . . . εγ Kōr.] μὴ με νῦν προδῶς E.C., ἐπίσκοπόν τ' ἐμὸν Rob., Δα. νῦν σ' ἐναντίοι Schm., Μοσ. (continuing) τῶνδ' ἐναντίον Sud.² // No indication of change of speaker in the line preserved in MS., but paragraphus below

161 ρ ρα . . . τουσιμ Lef., ρ πο(ε)φρα. τ(γ)ουσιν Kōr.] οὐ μὲν E.C., οὐκέτ' Schm., ἀποφράττουσιν E.C., Schm. // α . . . χη. δρ Lef., αλ. (μ)εχειδραμεῖν Kōr.] ἀλλ' ἔχεις δραμεῖν Kōr., εἰσω add. Schm., at end ξτι (or χρόνον) add. E.C.

162 ἀλλαμαί εκαοισησεκλ. σ Lef., αλλο (:?) εκδοισησεκλ. . . σ. αν. λ(μ) ως Kōr.] suppl. E.C., ἄλλο μάλλον ἐκδοίσης. Μοσ. ἐκδίδωμι πάνθ' ὅλως Sud., at end πᾶν δμως (?) Kōr. // Μοσ. ἀλλὰ . . . Δα. ἐάν . . . τάλαντα E.C., paragraphus below v. 161

163 ε . . . α νταλанта Lef., ε. π (τ)α . . . σ . . . νταλанта: Kōr.] ἐπὶ τὰ χρυσίου τάλαντα (τάλαντα Lef.) E.C., Wil. // . . . α. τ. λωλειησ Lef., παργοι(ω)λωλειησ(ρ). ε Kōr., παντοπωλεινο' Ric.] παντοπωλεῖν σ' Ric. (παντοπωλεῖ Arn., cf. v. 170), ολομ' ἂν (ολομαι Kōr.) E.C. // E.C. gives 163 b to Moschion, Kōr. 163 b to end of 167 to Davus, so Sud. (to γρανοσ v. 168). No indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.

164 ειν . . . Lef., οσ λ(δ)εινε . . . Kōr.] ὦρα φρονεῖν ἐστ' E.C., ἡ μᾶς ἐκείνην Sud. // . ορακασιμ Lef., ηγορακασημε Kōr.] ἡγόρακα E.C., ἡγόρακας Kōr., σῖτον πολὺν (or συχρόν) E.C., ἡμῶν Kōr., ἡ μελόνος Sud. // Δα. Μοσχίων . . . φρονεῖ E.C. (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker after v. 163)

165 νῆ τὴν Ἀθηνᾶν (or τὸν Ποσειδῶ) Kōr., νῆ τὸν Δί' αὐτὴν Sud. // ωι καθε Lef., μωικαθεσ Kōr.] ἐν πολέμῳ καθέσταμεν E.C., ἐν σταθμῷ καθέσταναι Sud.

166 . . τεμετα. τ 16 lett. αλλον:αι Lef., ε(σ,ο)(υ)τ'εμεταυτ'ε 13 lett. μαλλοναν Kōr.] εἴτ' (σύ τ', οὐτ') ἐμὲ ταῦτ' Kōr., ξα διοικεῖν. δεῖ δὲ E.C. cf. v. 160, ἔλεγχ', ἀρέσκον δ' ἄλλο Sud., μάλλον ἀντικρυς (μάλλον ἂν Kōr.) E.C., μάλλον ἂν λέγοις Sud.

167 . . . εκ ηγεμ . . . μελ λισεν Lef., . . . δεκ ηγενο . . . μελ ρ(ρ)λ(α)ι σεν Kōr.] suppl. E.C., at end μόλις εὐ Kōr.

168 γρανοσ: Lef., . . . ανσ: Kōr.] γρανοσι E.C., Schm. // τοιαστρ. εσθαρεσκε . . . ε Lef., τοιαστρ(ι)εσθαρεσκε . . . εσ Kōr.] τοῖα στρώξε, μαρέ. Δα. σκεπτέον γ' εἰ σπεῖσομαι E.C. (no indication of change of speaker after -αρε preserved in MS.), τὸ γαστρίζεσθ' Arn., Kōr., Schm., ἀρέσκειν ἐς τρίς ἐμὲ καθ' ἡμέραν Arn., ἀρέσκει Schm., ἀρέσκει, δέσποτ' εἶναι δ' ἄξιος Sud.

169 ...εφαισειρηγηττουσις:μα Lef., . .
μ'εφαισειρηγηττουσις:μα Kōr.] φημ', ἐφ' οἷς (τῇδ' ἐφ' οἷς Leo) Kōr., οἱμ' ἐφ' οἷς Sud., εἰρηκα Arn., Kōr., εἰρηκε Leo, τοῖτοις Lef. // Mo. μὰ Δία σὺ στρατηγὸς οὐκ E.C.
cf. v. 160, μὰ Δία — οὐκ Kōr., μὰ Δία, Δᾶ', οὐκ ἐμπόρῳ Sud. // τοῖτοις: and pa-ragraphus below, MS.

170 ἤσθας Kōr.] // τυροπῶλει Rob., τυροπῶλει (= η) Sud., τυροπῶλει Lef. // καίτ. λει Lef., καίτολοι Kōr.] καὶ Lef., τὸ λοιπὸν (or τὰ λοιπὰ) Kōr., τελῶναι
Sud. // ἐν πέδαις E.C., προσφερῆς Sud.

171 .αυταμεν.. Lef., ταυταμεντροι Kōr.] suppl. Kōr. // φ. σινευχ.ωσδ Lef.,
φ. σινευχθω.δ Kōr.] φῆς ἴν' E.C., φησιν
Lef., φασίν, Arn., εὐδρῶ σ'; E.C., εὐχθω Arn., ἀλλὰ, κτέ. E.C., φησίν· εὐχθω τάδε γενέσθαι σύμφορα Leo cf. S. 407, φασίν, εὐχθω· διὰ σ' ἐκείνη δηλᾶδῃ Sud.

172 ..εἰαγονα..αι Lef., .ικιαναπε...
Kōr.] suppl. Kōr., οἰκίαν ἀπέλιπε Sud.
// τροφιμε:..εἰμα Lef., τροφιμε:θειμ Kōr.]
τρόφιμε Lef., δεῖ μάλιστα μ' ἐπιτρέπειν E.C., μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλων τῇδε γ' οὐκ Leo, δειματουμένην πρέπει Sud.

173 .ε...π.ραμυθ 9 lett. v Lef., ε.....παρामυθει Kōr.] σοί γε E.C., ἐμέ γε Sud., παρामυθεῖσθ' E.C., Sud., ἐκέ-λους E.C., ἐκέλην Sud., εἰ δὲ μή, τότε' ἐπιεἶναι E.C., ὅσα πέπονθεν οὐδ' ἔτι Sud.

174 πτεροφορα] corr. Herw., Leo, Sud., χιλιάρχῳ; E.C.

176 Lef.

178 φράσαι Lef. // κομψὸς εἰ. Δα.
πορεύομαι Wil. (so Leeu. with πορεύο-μαι), confirmed by Kōr., εἰ: MS.

179 προσμενῶ Lef. // πρόσθε τῶν θυ-ρῶν Arn., Leeu., Legr., confirmed by Kōr. // ἐγὼ Arn., confirmed by Kōr.

180 προσηλ...σ...ερασ Lef., προσηλ
θ. γε...ερασ Kōr.] προσῆλθον Lef., ἐσπέ-ρας Head., Hense, Herw., Kōr., Leo

181 ε.....ε Lef., ε...ρ(τ)ασε Kōr.]

ἐπέσπασε Leo, ἐπέρασσε Kōr., ἐβάστασε
Wil.

182 ἀηδῆς Arn., Crön., Head., Leeu., Legr., Leo, confirmed by Kōr. // ἔοικεν
Lef. // εντ Lef., εντ...ρ Kōr.] εντυχεῖν Arn., Head., Leeu.

183 εταιρ Lef., εταιρ.ισ.....λ.σ.
Kōr.] ἐταίραις Hense, Leeu., confirmed by Kōr., ἐταίρα Sud., προσφίλης Leeu., Sud.

184 αρ.....η Lef., αρ.....
κν(ν)...ν Kōr.] ἀρ' Kōr., ὦρα E.C., ἐστι Kōr., ἀρέσκει Sud., ἀνήκει or ἀραρε Wil., ἀρα με δᾶ Leeu., προσκυνεῖν Head.,
Leeu., Sud., Wil., ἀρ' ἐξίλαστον Sud.²

187 εστ'] corr. Crön., Head., Kōr., Legr.

188 μ...κκ.π.λου Lef., μοι:ε:καίπο
(α)λο(α)ι(ν)μσ(ε)ρ Kōr.] μοι Lef., σε Leeu., Legr., Leo, καὶ πάλαι Kōr., μέ-νουσ' ἐμέ. E.C., μένουσιν· οὐκ Kōr., μένων ἐγὼ Wil., καὶ ποθοῦμεθ' ἡ γὰρ οὐκ (οὐκ from next v.) Leo, κάπολοιμην αὐτίκ', εἰ Sud. Rob. also transfers οὐκ to end of this v. // Mo. καὶ...ε.λθῶν Leo, Rob., E.C., σε: MS.; no paragraphus is recorded below v. 188

189 ουκειμ'αηδης] οὐκ del., εἰμ' ἀηδῆς;
E.C., οὐκ|εἰμ' ἀηδῆς· Leo, Rob., οὐκ ἀηδῆς εἰμ' Crön., Herw., Sud., οὐκ ἀρ' εἰμ' αὐ-ταῖς ἀηδῆς. Leeu. //...παισαν.ισ...ν.
νταμ' Lef., .ικαισαν.αισ...αρ.νταμ'
Kōr.] εἰπας αὐταῖς Leo, καὶ Leo, ἀρα Sud., οὖν Kōr., παῖ Leeu., παρόντα μ' Leeu., Sud. // ἐνθάδε] ἐνθάδ'; Δα. οὐκ. (οὐκ from beg. of v.) Sud., Wil.

190 ..εδενυγτοι.υτολεγ'ελ.ων: Kōr.]
ἀγε δὲ Kōr., νῦν Lef., τουτί Kōr. (correcting τοιοῦτο of MS.), τοῦτο νῦν Wil., λέγ' Sud., λέγ' ἐλθῶν Leeu., confirmed by Kōr. // Kōr., Rob. continue to Moschion. Lef. records paragraphus below
v. 189 //...ορασαναστρεφ Lef., ωσoras αναστρεφω Kōr.] Δα. ὡς ὀρεῖς (ὀρεῖς Lef.), ἀναστρέφω Kōr.

191 ημεναι εἰδ Lef., εἰμεναι συ. πειν Kör.] suppl. E.C.// . . . ωμεν Lef., κ. νιωμεν Kör.] βασανιῶ μὲν E.C., ἰῶμεν Kör.// Μοσ. εἰ μὲν . . . Kör. (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker after v. 190)

192 ἰδιον μαρτ.ν Lef., παρα καλλ (second λstricken out) ω. μαρ τυν Kör.] παρακαλῶ Kör., Δᾶν τε E.C., Ἐρωτα Kör., μάρτυν Kör.// — lacking at end, σφόδρα E.C.

195 οἰκειωσ] corr. Sud.

197 προσέρχει Lef., confirmed by Kör.

199 μηκετι, then written above ετι, Kör.] μηθὲν ἔτι Kör.// φησ. κηκοεν Lef., φησ. κηκοεν Kör.] φησί(ν) Crois., Leeu., Leo, Sud., πῶς E.C., πῶς δ' Sud., ὡς Kör., ἥδ' Leo, οὐκ Herw., Rob., ἀκήκοεν; E.C., Sud., ἀκήκοεν Lef.

200 ηκαισν] και del. Crön., Ell., Head., Kör., Leo, Rob., Sud., σὺ del. Lef., η del. Leeu., ἡ οὐ σὺ Sud., Wil., ἡ Lef., ἡ Crön., Kör., Leo, Rob.// αὐτὸν Lef.// Kör. continues to Davus (ἀκήκοεν; MS., but no paragraphus)

201 καταπέφενγ' (-γα Lef.) Sud.// α. . . ηπρ.] αὐτὴ Hous., Sud., αὐτὴ Kör., πρὸς ἡμᾶς Hous., Sud.// . . . γε] φεύγε E.C., πάνν (or μάλα) γε Hous., φημί γε Kör., εἴγε Sud.// μῆωρας] μὴ ὥρας Head., Sud., Wil., μὴ εἰς ὥρας Leeu.

202 . . . σ'] φησ' Head., Sud.// ἰκοιο]// αλη 10 lett. βα. ζε Lef., ἀλλ' 10 lett. ἰβα. ζε Kör.] ἀλλ' (Kör.) ἐς φθόρον σὺ νῦν E.C., ἀλλ' ὡς τάχιστα νῦν Kör., ἀλλ' ἐκφθάρθῃ και Sud., Mo. ἀληθές; Head., Sud., βᾶδιζε Lef., ἐκβάδιζε Sud. No indication of change of speaker is preserved in MS.

203 ἐκποδῶν Rob., confirmed by Kör.// Lef., χ. Kör.] ἀκουε δὴ νῦν E.C., ὦν ἔθιγες ἀρτι Sud., ἀληθές; ἥδη Leo// ρπαστ' ἐκμ. αυ Lef., γαντ' α. ηρπαστ' ἐκμεσου Kör.] πάντ' Leo, ἀνήρπαστ' ἐκ μέσου Kör.// E.C., Sud. continue after ἐκποδῶν to Davus, Kör., Leo give to Moschion. No indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.

204 δρ. ν Lef., φ. δρρ(α) . σ. ν Kör.] ὡς ἐφεδρεύειν E.C., ὡς ἐφεδρον σὺν Sud., οὐκ ἐμ' ἀρ' οὐθὲν Leo, ἡ σφόδρ' (σφόδρα or σφοδρὸς Kör.) ἐκ τοῦ νῦν Rob.// παροντοσηδε. Lef., παρον τασ' ἡδὲ. Kör.] παρόντα σ' Kör., παρόντος Rob., ἦδεσαν E.C., ἡδίκει Leo, ἡδέως Rob.// Δα. (continuing) ὡς . . . ἦδεσαν. Mo. μαστιγία, E.C., Δα. (continuing) ὡς . . . ἡδίκει. Mo. μαστιγία Sud. Leo, Rob., Schm. continue to Moschion. No indication of change of speaker is preserved in MS.

205 σαι] ἀρα γελάσαι E.C., σέ γ' ἐπιπαῖσαι Rob., τοῦτο φῆσαι Leo, οὐ πέπεισαι Kör., ἀπολόγησαι Sud.// μοι — E.C., μοι; Leo// γέλοιον; E.C., γέλοιον. Kör.// Mo. (continuing) -σαι μοι (μαστιγία: MS.). Δα. γέλοιον . . . μῆτηρ Kör., μοι: MS., Mo. (continuing) τοῦτο φῆσαι . . . γέλοιον. Δα. ἡ . . . μῆτηρ Leo 206 κουσαναυτ. σι(σι very uncertain Kör.)πραγμ'] εἰσάγειν ἀκουσαν αὐτὴν (ἀκουσαν αὐτὴν Leo) και τὸ πρᾶγμ' (πρᾶγμ' Lef.) E.C., τότε ποῆσ' ἀκουσαν αὐτὴν φησι πρᾶγμ' Leo, οὐ ποεῖν (or εἰ τι δρᾶν) ἀκουσαν αὐτὴν, φησι, πρᾶγμ' Sud., ἄλλο τι διοικῶσαν αὐτὴν φησι πρᾶγμ' Wil., ἐκοῦσαν Kör.

207 σ Lef., σ Kör.] εἶπας ὡς Kör., σὺ δὲ τῶθ', ὡς Leo, τί σὺ λέγεις; (or πῶς, ὃ φῆς,) Sud., σὺ, μᾶρ', ὡς Wil.// ἐλθεῖν Leo, confirmed by Kör.// ἐγὼ δ'] ἔγωγ' Kör.// Kör., Leo, Rob. continue to Moschion, Δα. τί σὺ λέγεις; Mo. πέπεικας, κτέ. Sud. (no indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.)

208κ'] ὡς πέπεικ Kōr., ὅτι πέπεικ' Sud., σοῦ τόθ' (σοῦ μὲν Leo) ἔνεκ' Leeu. // εκ...ν Lef., εκεί.ην Kōr.] ἐκέλην Sud. confirmed by Kōr. // γ' ὡ μὲν οὐ Head., Leo, confirmed by Kōr.

209υδο...οφ..... Lef., ... υδο...οφ.εμον Kōr.] μηδαμοῦ δόκει λάθρα μου E.C., πολλαχοῦ δοκεῖς σοφῶς μου Leo, so w. δοκῶν σαφῶς Sud., πολὺ κατὰ ψεύδος σοφὸς σύ Rob., πρὶν ἐδόκεις μὲν πολλὰ κίς ἐμοῦ Sud. // καταψευδοσ Lef., κατα(ε)ψευδο(ε)σ Kōr.] καταψεύδεσθ' Leo, Sud., κατὰ ψεύδος Lef. // ἐμοί E.C., ἄγαν Leo, λέγειν (with κατὰ ψεύδος) Rob., Δα. ἐγώ; Sud. No indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.

210 Ca. 17 lett. σ Lef.] ὅς γε (οὐ σὺ Kōr.) καὶ τὴν μητέρ' αὐτὸς (οὐ μὲν οὖν τὴν μητέρ' αὐτὸς Sud.) Leo, νῦν γε μὴν τὴν μητέρ' αὐτὸς Sud., πῶς με νῦν δὴ σοι νομίζεις Rob. // συμπε.....αι Lef., συμπετ....ραι Kōr.] συμπεπεικέναι Leeu., Sud., συμπεποιθέναι Rob.

211 In r. marg. ΔΑ]

213 In r. marg. ΜΟΞ Kōr.]

214 Over εἰεν ΜΟΞX] // ποῖ] παῖ (continuing to Moschion) Sud. (βάδιζε: MS.) // In r. marg. ΔΑ]

215 μ..(.)μιαρνεῖσει: Lef., Kōr., μ...μακρὰν Ric.] μῶν (Leeu.), μᾶρ', ὀνήσει E.C., μέγα, μᾶρ', ὀνήσει Sud., ἄγε Rob., μᾶλα Leo, both with μᾶρὸν εἰσει Lef., μὴ μακράν, εἰσει Kōr., μένε, μᾶρὸν εἰσει Sud.

216 μ..ρ.σε.μεγνον Lef., μ.αρ.σει μεγνον Kōr., μ.κρανετιμεγνον Ric.] μᾶρὸς εἰμ', ἔγνων Ell., Hous., Leeu., Leo, Sud., μᾶρὸς, εἰ μὴ γνων Wil. // Δα. μὰ τὸν Ἀσκληπίων, κτέ., Ell., Head., Leeu., πρὸς με: MS. Kōr.

217 ου...μ...αν Lef., ου...ωγ'.αν Kōr.] οὐκ ἔγωγ', ἐάν (ἐάν Arn., Leo) Kōr., οὐδαμῶς, ἐάν Arn., οὐ, τὰ πάντα γ' ἂν Head., οὐκ ἔγωγ', ἐάν γ' Sud.

218 μ....α...ισ Lef., μ....α.αισ Kōr.] διατελεῖν σ' E.C., μοι φράσαι σ' Leo, μηχανᾶσθ' Rob., μέγα φρονεῖν σ' or μεταλαβεῖν Sud., βαστάσαι σ' Kōr. // ἐξ...πιανομης Lef.] ἐξ ἐπιδρομῆς Head., Leo, confirmed by Kōr.

219 π.....] πρότερον Sud., πρότερον ἢ Head., πρὶν τὰδ' Wil. // σουγ.] σοῦ γε Lef., σοῦ τε Leo 220 13 lett. εἰς Lef., 10 lett. ητρισ Kōr.] οὐ γὰρ ὡς αὐλητρὶς Sud.

221 11 lett. θαις Lef., ισ Kōr.] ἤλθε. Mo. νῦν δοκεῖς Leo, Mo. ἀπίθανον δοκεῖς (δοκεῖς Leo, Sud.) Schm., δέξεται. (Sud.) Mo. θέλεις Kōr., σοῦ γ' ἐρᾷ. Mo. δοκεῖς Rob. No indication of change of speaker at end of v. 220 or at beg. of v. 221 is preserved in MS. // τι πάλιν. Leo, τί πάλιν; Lef., Kōr., τι πάλιν; Leeu., Rob., Sud. // δρ Lef., δοκί(ν) Kōr.] δοκίμασον Leo, ἀσμένως Rob. // πάλιν: MS.

222οι.....ν Lef., — ιν Kōr.] ἦδε σοι πάρεστιν (or γὰρ ἐστιν) E.C., ὥδ' ὁποῖόν ἐστιν Leo, πᾶν ἐτοιμὸν ἐστιν Sud., οἷσθ' ὁποῖόν ἐστιν Wil.

223ναρ.... Lef., οφφλναρ..... Kōr.] οὐ φλυάρφ Leo, οὐ φλυαῶ Kōr., Rob., τὸν τ' Kōr., πρὸς γ' Rob. // εἰ σὺ Lef., εἰ σὺ Sud.

224ρασθε...λει Lef., ..ερασ β(θ)ρ(a).λει Kōr.] ἡμέρας (Leo) σ' ἔδει E.C., ἡμέρας βούλει or βάλλει Kōr., βούλει, i.e. καταλείπειν τὴν οἰκίαν Leo, στελεῖ Sud. (formerly), ἡμέρας βραχεῖ Sud. (now), σκελεῖ Schm., μενεῖς Leeu.

225 ..ντ'] ταῦτ' E.C., τοῦτ' Lef., πάντ' Byington // παρε...ει Lef., γαρ...ει Kōr.] γὰρ Kōr., ὅλα δεῖ E.C., σε δεῖ Leo, ἐμὲ δεῖ Kōr., ἔτ' ἔδει or ἐθέλει Sud. // ποῦ] ποῖ Kōr. // πεδήσας σε δήσας Schm. πεδήσας Lef. // κατα Lef., κατα.ιπ Kōr.] καταλίπω Leo, καταλιπὼν Kōr.

226 .με Lef., .αε Kōr.] Δᾶε Sud., confirmed by Kōr. // περιπατεῖν...εἰσμε Kör.] περιπατεῖν Lef., ποεῖς με Leeu., Leo, Sud.

227 ου... ηθεσ Lef., ουκ(ν)... ηθεσ Kör.] οὐκ ἀληθὲς Leeu., Sud., confirmed by Kör.//.... δ. λ. ασ Lef., δε(ο)λεα... κασ Kör.] πρὸς με λελάληκας Kör., ἀληθὲς — Δα. πῶς δέ; Mo. λελάληκας Sud. A change of speaker in or at end of v. is indicated in MS. by paragraphus below

228 ορυ..... λην Lef., .. θορυ..... λω(ου) Kör.] μ' ἀθορύβως Sud., με θορυβῶν Leeu., Legr., μεταβαλοῦ Wil., παρακαλῶ Kör., ἀναβαλοῦ Sud.// Lef. assumed the change of speaker at the beginning of the v., πάλιν MS.

229 παρ. λθε:] πάρελθε Leeu., Legr., Leo // ρασε. Lef., ρασει: Kör.] σὶτ' ἀγοράσει; E.C., τοῦτο δράσω (without change of speaker) Rob., Πυθαγόρας ef. Sud., σὺ δ' ἐνεχυράσει; Schm.

230 εχοντα Lef., εχειντο Kör.] ἔχοντα Lef., ἔχειν τὸ Kör.// π..... α... και. ο (παισκαί?) Kör.] πλήρες ὅν τε τοῦτ'; ἐμοὶ δ' E.C., παράγ' ἐγὼ (οὐ παράγε δὴ) τὴν μητέρα Sud.// δ' transferred from next v. by Leeu.

231 δ' εἰσιων] // κ... τι Lef., κλ(α) ... τι Kör.] κλίθητι E.C., καλῶ (οὐ καλεῖ) τί Sud., κάμοι τι Wil., καλὸν τι Schm., καλῶς τι Leeu., Leo (space insufficient, Kör.)/ ουνδ. ορθωσ Lef., ουν διορθωσ... σ Kör.] συνδιορθώσεις Sud., οὖν διορθώσεις Kör., διορθωσ- Leo, διόρθωσον Leeu.// ταχὺ Leeu., Leo, μέγα Sud., παρὼν Wil.

232 καιν Lef., καινυ Kör.] καὶ νῦν τρέμων Leeu., καὶ νῦν δέει (δέει Sud.) Schm., καινῶ δέει Sud. (formerly), καὶ νῦν ἔτι Sud. (later), καὶ νῦν λαλῶν Leo // The changes of speaker are indicated in MS. by paragraphus below v. 231 and σε:

233 ευκρε Lef., ευκρε(ο)μη Kör.] εὐκρεμή Rob., Schm., Sud., εὐτρεπῇ Leeu., εὐχερῇ Sud. (formerly), εὐκρινῇ Wil.

234 ff. The speaker of vv. 234-240 was recognized as Sosias by Arn., Leeu., Legr., Rob. Sud. gives the passage to a second servant of Polemon. A change of speaker at end of v. 233 is indicated in MS. by the paragraphus

235 ἱνα]

236 ακαρησ] ἀκαροῦς Leeu.

239 κακοδαιμον' οντωδ... ογγεν Lef., κακοδαιμον' οντωδε(ι, η)... οτην Kör.] κακοδαιμον' οὔτω. (so Head. w. οὔτω, Leeu. w. οὔτω) δῆλος ἦν E.C., δεσπότην Head., διέφυγ', Leeu.// ἐνύπνιον Crois.

240 οιδ' ωτησπ... σ Lef.] οιδ' Lef., ἐκ τῆς προτέρας Leeu., ὦ τῆς προτέρας Crois., ὦ τῆς πίκρας Crön., Head., Sud., all continuing to Sosias, Rob. gives ὦ ... παραφάνεις v. 245 to Habrotonon, Kör. to "Donax" (see on v. 252), Wil. to Doris (no indication of change of speaker within the line preserved in MS.)

241 Δα. ὁ ξένος... παραφάνεις Leeu. (no indication of change of speaker at end of v. 240 preserved in MS.)// παντελῶς Lef.

242 ταυτο Lef., τα(ο)ντο... Kör.] τουτονί Head., Leo

243 καὶ τὸ] τὸ δὲ as quoted (to δεσπότην) in schol. Aristoph. Plut. 35

244 . ν] ἄν Herw., Leo// πάλιν Head., Herw., Leeu., Leo, ποτε Sud.

245 παρ Lef., . ιαν Kör.] οἶαν Head., Leo, confirmed by Kör.// γαραφ Lef., γαραφ Kör.] παραφάνεις Leeu., Leo, confirmed by Kör.

246 ff. Given to Polemon (to μεγάλη v. 251) by Leeu.¹, Kör., to Sosias by Leeu.², Rob., Schm., Sud. A change of speaker at end of v. 245 is indicated in MS. by paragraphus. In l.

marg. a flourish (coronis) marking end of scene Kör., ζ Lef. = ΣΣΣ Sud.

247 κατ' Lef., ... κατ' Kör.] ἀφήκατ' Herw., Leeu. // ε. ῥτησθν. σ Lef., εἰωτσησθν. σ Kör.] ἔξω τῆς θύρας Herw.,
Leeu., Sud., confirmed by Kör. // ... ας
Lef., ..!(ν, π) ας...! Kör.] τὴν ἀθλίαν Leeu., τὸν ἀθλιον Sud.

248 τισαργ... μ... σθ..... γα
Lef., ... ρικι(τ)τ(ι)σσεργ. ζομ... σσ..... γα
Kör.] ἡ περικερεῖς ὀργιζόμενος ἄλλην κόραν;
E.C., ἐργαζόμενος Kör., ἐπικρινος ὀργιζόμενος αὐτὸς γίνεται Schm., ὁ μὲν ἀρτίως ἀφικόμενος θαλφθῆσεται Sud., ἀναίτιος βαβδιζόμενος ταχὺ κλαύσεται Rob. // Vv.
248—μεγάλα v. 251 given to Sosias by E.C., others continue to the preceding speaker. No indication of change of speaker is preserved in MS.

249 οἰχεθ' ὧχεθ' E.C., οἰχεθ' Lef.

250 φράσας ἡμῖν μακρὰ Leo, confirmed by Kör.

251 μάντιν ὁ στρατιώτης Leo, confirmed by Kör. // At end λ (not κ) Kör.] λαμβάνει E.C., ἀρα τρέφει Sud., λήφεται Schm., Wil., ἔλαθ' ἔχων Sud.
// Leeu., Sud. give μάντιν . . . τι to Davus, Kör. to "Donax," Rob. to Ha-brotonon. μεγάλα: and paragraphus MS.

252 τοῦτον Rob., τοῦτον; Leeu. //
In r. marg. ΠΟ Kör., not reported by Lef., ΔΕ Zucker, only traces of letters
.. Ric. // Leeu.¹, Kör.¹ give κόψω τὴν θύραν to Polemon, Leeu.², Rob., Sud. to Sosias, Kör. now to "Donax." τι: and paragraphus MS.

253 ff. Leeu.², Sud. give the parts to Davus and Sosias, Leeu.¹ (also Mn.
XXXVII, p. 120) and Kör.¹ to Davus and Polemon, Kör. now to "Donax" and Sosias.

253 ..ρε Lef., γαρε..ῖσ Kör.] γὰρ ἔχεις; Sud., confirmed by Kör. // Σω.

τί γὰρ ἔχεις Sud. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after βούλει) 254 τι..... Lef., τι... ολ' (?) ῥρ(ρι, ρη). ῥρ Kör.] τίς με λαιδορεῖ; E.C., τί σπό-λον αἵρετε Leo // A change of speaker at end of v. 253 indicated by paragraphus; double-point after ἔχεις not preserved. Leeu. gives both vv. to Davus

255 προγε..... ρ Lef., προσθε..
...εμεβ(ρ)...ι Kör.] πρὸς θεῶν Leeu., Sud., ελευθέραν Wil., φέρετε (or φέρεῖς) βίαν; E.C., πρότερον ὄντες ἐμφρονες Rob., πρὸς θεῶν. ἡ ἑλληβοριῶς; Leo, πρὸς θεῶν καὶ δαιμόνων Leeu. // ἀπονεύθησε; E.C., πρὸς θεῶν Wil., Σω. (continuing) ἀπονενύθησε... κατακλείσαντες E.C. (a change of speaker in or at end of v. 254 indicated in MS. by paragraphus), Σω. ἀπονεύθησε... κατακλείσαντες Kör., Sud. gives 254 a to Sosias, 254 b to Davus

256 γε...εβ...τ Lef., προσβ...ντ.. κ(β)υρ... Kör.] πρὸς βίαν (Kör.) τοῦ κυρίου Leo // Σω. ἔχειν... κατακλείσαντες Sud. (no indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.), others continue to preceding speaker

257 τολμᾶτε κατακλείσαντες Leo, confirmed by Kör. // ...σπ Lef., ὡς τι Kör.] ὡς τηρούμεθα E.C., ὡς τί (Kör.)
τεχνώμενοι Leo, ὡς τι παιδίον Leeu., ὡς τί δὴ τάδε; Wil., ὡς τί, δύστυχες Sud. // Δα. ὡς τί to end of v. 258 Kör., κατα-κλείσαντες: and paragraphus MS.

258 οστ... Lef., οστ...σ. ἰσπρ(ε) Kör.] ὅστις εἰ σύ Leo, confirmed by Kör., περιφανῶς Leo, σὺ πώποτε; Sud.

259 ἐκεῖνη Lef., Kör., ἐχέειν Ric.] ἔχειν ἡμᾶς χολήν Wil., ἡμᾶς ὀρᾶν Leo, ἡμᾶς ἰδεῖν Sud., Kör., ἡμῖν μέλειν Leeu.
// Change of speaker indicated in MS.
by paragraphus below v. 258

260 το Lef., τρ...βρ(ε) Kör.] τετρω-βόλους E.C., Sud., τῶσον (or τοῖσιν) βόα Kör. // εἶναι: and paragraphus MS.

261 στανδε] σταν δ' ο E.C., σταν δε Lef. // τουου.... λθ Lef., τουου.... λα Kör.] τοιούτους λαμβάνη Schm., τοιούτους παραλάβη Sud.

262 η E.C., η Lef. // μαχόμεθ' ὑμῖν Kör., μοιχὸς μεθ' ὑμῶν Lef. // η... ε Lef., ηδ... π Kör.] Σωσ. ἀνοσίῳ E.C., (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker after ὑμῖν but paragraphus below) // In r. marg. a cross by a later hand, Kör.

263 πραγματας. σ' ελεον 9 lett. τεδν. τε Lef., πραγματα(ι, ο)σ. σελεου... ρστρ. τεδ' ηπεσ Kör.] suppl. E.C., πράγματά γε σ' ἐλέου τ' ἄξια κακά τε διέπειν Rob. // Δα. ἐς δλεθρον... αὐτήν v. 265 E.C., Schm. gives vv. 263 ff. to Sosias 264 8 lett. ελθ' Lef., σ... πρσ... ελθ' Kör.] ἐς δλεθρον ἐλθ' E.C., ἀπελθ' Rob. // αν... αριων: Lef., αν... π(σ)α(ε) αριων Kör.] ἀνδρῶν γελοίων E.C., ἀνθρωπε παριῶν Rob., Sud., παιδαρίων Kör., πελταρίων Leeu. // οἰκέτα E.C., οἰκέτα Sud.

265 αρ... τουτ' εχειν Lef., ... σι... αρ... ρλογειτ' εχειν: Kör.] οὐ λήψεται αὐτήν. ἄρὰ γ' E.C., ὁμολογεῖτ' ἔχειν Kör. // Δα. (continuing) οὐ... αὐτήν. Σω. ἄρὰ... ἔχειν; E.C. (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker within the line)

266 ουκ 10 lett. εν... ματινας Lef., ουκ(κ) 9 lett. τ(γ)εν... ηγματινας Kör.] οὐκ ἴσθ' δτ' ἐπόησ'—εὐ γε μέμνημαί—τινας E.C., -ἦγμαί τινας Kör. // Δα. οὐκ... ὑμῶν Kör., ἔχειν; τινας (:? Kör.), and paragraphus below v. 265, MS.

267 ὑμων... ασ Lef., ὑμων... μασ Kör.] ὑμῶν; πόθεν "ἡμᾶς"; (ὑμῶν Lef., ἡμᾶς Kör.) E.C. // Kör. introduces change of speaker after ὑμων (ὑμῶν?: and no paragraphus reported below the line in MS.)

268 ξ. ρσ Lef., λυ(η)ρσ

Kör.] παραληρεῖς E.C., τίς ὁ λῆρος; Leo, παρ' ἀκαρὲς Sud.

269 Lef.

270 πονη... ν Lef., πονηρον Kör.] πονηρόν Leeu., Leo, confirmed by Kör. // μοιχόν: and paragraphus MS.

271 ε... ρεισ Lef., εικ... ρεισ Kör.] εἰ θρηνεῖς E.C., εἰ κρίνεις Leo, ἔτι δάκνεις Rob., ἐπιμένεις Hous., εἰ χαλνεις Sud.

272 ταπελτραν... Lef., ταπελτι(ε) χ. ψ... Kör.] τὰ πέλτ' ἔχοντες Head., τὰ πέλτ' (Head.) ἔχουσιν (written ἔχουσιν) Kör., πελτάρι' ἔχοντες Leo, τὰ πελτάρια δὴ Leeu. // Change of speaker indicated in MS. by paragraphus below v. 271

273 κα. Lef., καν Kör.] κᾶν Arn., Crön., Legr., confirmed by Kör. // τετρωβόλους Arn., Crön., Head.

274 καλ. ις: Lef., καλεισ: Kör.] καλῆς Arn., Crön., Legr. // σκατοφαγοσει: πολιν Kör. (πάλιν Lef.)] εἰ σκατοφάγος. οἱ πόλιν (πόλιν Kör.) E.C., ὡς σκατοφάγος εἰ Head., Leo, σκατοφάγος τις εἰ Leeu. // Change of speaker indicated in MS. by εἰ: and paragraphus 275 .. χουκ... ομε... οι Lef., ωχ' ου καλωσμε... σοι Kör.] οὐ καλῶς περιττοῖ (or μεγαρτοῖ) E.C. (οὐ a scribal correction of ωχ = ουχ), Ἦχου καιομένην σου Sud., οἰκοῦντος ὠχροῦ, καθά με δεῖ, σοῦ Schm.

276 σαρκαλλ' σάρκ', ἀλλ' Lef., σάρισσαν Wil. // .. (.) σ Kör.] τέως Leeu., ὡς Kör., Wil. // Δα. ἀλλ' to end of v. 277 Leeu. Change of speaker after σάρκ' not indicated in MS., but paragraphus below

277 εοικασχ... μντ... ε. ωσιασ Lef., εοικωσαι(ν)... σ(μ)αγτ... σ. ωσιασ Kör.] ἔοικεν ἀνδροφαγεῖν ὁ E.C., Σωσίας Sud., ἔοικ' ὦσαι πτάκας αὐτοῦς Σωσίας Schm., ἔοικ' ὀπλίσαι ποτ' (or ὦσαι ποτὶν) αὐτοῦς Σωσίας Sud. // Arn. gives to Doris (no indication in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 276)

278 ff. Kōr. recognized the speaker as Polemon and interpreted the passage as an imaginary conversation. Arn. and Leeu. assign parts to Sosias and Doris (so also Kōr. in ed.), Rob. to Habrotonon and Sosias, Sud. to Pataecus and Doris 278 .ε. μενειπρο . . . σοιδωρηνκτισοι Lef., .ε. μενειπρο . . . (.)σοιδωρην. ιεκτισοι Kōr.] σὲ (i.e. σοι corrected to σέ) μένει Rob., προερῶ σοι E.C., προλέγω σοι Arn., Δωρί Leo, μέγ' ἐκτεῖσαι E.C., σὺ μὲν εἰ πρόσει μοι, Δωρί, μέγα τί σοι (formerly Δωρί, κεκτήσει) Sud., μένει, προλέγω σοι, Δωρί, μέγα τί σοι Schm. // κακόν. E.C., Schm., κακὸν δῶσω Kōr., Sud.

279 . . σω Lef., . . ο(οr. ω)σω Kōr.] φήσω E.C., πρόσω Schm., δῶσω Kōr. // τούτων and αἰτιωτάτη Lef.

280 . . τῆσομαι Lef., . . τῶσσομαι Kōr.] οὕτως δναιο Hous., confirmed by Kōr. // λεγ' οτι] λέγε, τί E.C., λέγ' ὅτι Lef. // Kōr. continues to Polemon (αἰτιωτάτη: MS.), Leeu. gives vv. 280 and 281a to Doris 281 δείσασα Hous., Leeu., Sud. // καταπέφυγε; Legr. // Kōr. continues to Polemon (καταπέφυγε: and -σασα: MS.), Σω. πρὸς . . δείσασα; Leeu., Rob., Sud., πρὸς γυναῖκά ποι; δείσασα; Schm.

282 δείσασα Leeu., Sud. // μυρρηνη]

283 τὴν Leo // οὕτως μοι γένοιθ' Leo, confirmed by Kōr.

284 . . . εἰς. Lef., . . . (.)π Kōr.] ἔμ' ἔλιπεν (written ἔλιπ') Leo, ἀπέλιπεν Schm., ὅπερ εἶπον Kōr., after ὡς εἶπον Rob. // ἐνθάδε Kōr.

285 . . ν . . . οἱ. νῦν. Lef., . . μ . . οἱ . . ν . . ν Kōr.] τί μὴν ἔμ' αἰσχύειν E.C., πάντων οὖν καὶ νῦν Rob. // παντελῶς Rob.

286 απ . . επε . . ναι ευδη Lef., απ . . ερ(θ)ε . . ναι(γ) . . λ ευδηλ Kōr.] ἀποφθερεῖ, γύναι; δολοῦσ' E.C., εὐδῆλος εἰ Kōr., εἰπεῖν πεφηνγέμαι γ' ἐκεῖσ' εὐδῆλον οὖν Rob.

344-362 Alternation of speakers indicated in MS. as follows: paragraphus under 345 (end of v. broken); μεθύεις γάρ: 348; μέλλον: 350; πείσθητί μοι: 351; paragraphus under 352; ἐπισήμενον: and paragraphus 353; κράτος [:] 356; ἐξόλλυσιν: (C.) and ἡγεμών: (C. and L.) 357; ἀπελθ': and ἀπέρχομαι: (C.; in L. the v. is broken) 358; σοι: and paragraphus (C.; v. broken in L.) 362

Distribution of speakers: 344: Σωσ. ἐκείθεν . . στρατόπεδον Kōr., to Habrotonon Schm.; 346: Πατ. κάθευδ' . . γάρ Kōr., Arn., Leeu., Schm., Sud., to Polemon Rob.; 348: Σωσ. ἤττον . . μέλλον Rob., Sud., to Polemon Kōr., Arn., Leeu., Schm.; 350: Πολ. εἰ . . μοι E.C., to Pataecus Kōr., Arn., Rob., Sud., to Habrotonon Leeu., Schm.; 351: Σωσ. τί . . ἐμοί E.C., to Polemon Kōr., Arn., Leeu., Rob., Schm., Sud.; 352: Πολ. ὁρθῶς . . ἐπισήμενον E.C., to Pataecus Kōr.¹ (no change of speaker indicated in MS. at end of v. 351; change of speaker in or at end of v. 352 indicated in MS. by paragraphus below), Πατ. ὁρθῶς . . ἐρῶ. Σωσ. Ἀβρότονον, ἐπισήμενον Arn., Rob., Sud., Ἀβρ. ὁρθῶς . . ἐρῶ. Πολ. (Πατ. Schm.) Ἀβρότονον, ἐπισήμενον Leeu.; 353: Πατ. εἰσω . . ἀγει Arn., Rob., Sud., Kōr.², to Habrotonon Kōr.¹, Leeu., Schm.; 355: Σωσ. κακῶς . . κράτος Kōr.², to Habrotonon Arn. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 354), Πολ. κακῶς . . ἐξόλλυσιν Kōr.¹, Leeu., Schm. (κράτος[:] MS.), Σωσ. κακῶς . . ἡγεμών Rob., Sud. (κράτος[:]) and ἐξόλλυσιν: (MS.); 356: Πολ. οὐτοσὶ . . ἐξόλλυσιν (as question) E.C., to Habrotonon

Kör.², to Sosias Arn.; 357: Σωσ. οὐκ ἔσθ' ἡγεμών Kör.², to Habrotonon Kör.¹, Leeu., Schm.; 358: Ἀβρ. πρὸς... ἀπελθ' E.C., to Polemon Kör., alii; Σωσ. ἀπέρχομαι Rob., Sud., to Habrotonon Kör., Arn., Schm.; 359: Πολ. φῆμην... σοι Kör.¹, to Sosias (continuing) Rob., Sud., Kör.² (ἀπέρχομαι: MS.)

344, 345, 347 Kör.

348 .ἦτον] νῆ τόν Kör., ἦττον Sud. // ἦττον Kör., ἦττον; Sud. // ὡς corrected to ὅς] // πεπωκαῖσως]

349 κοτύλην] κοτύλης Kör., πέπωκ', ἴσως κοτύλην Arn.

350 μέλλον; Rob., μέλλον. Kör.

351 πείσθητι Kör. // ἐμοί] ἐμέ Kör.¹

352 νῦν ἐγὼ Kör.¹, νῦν ἐγὼ Arn.

354 ἀγει] ἀγεις Kör.¹

355 σφετ (δεί? Wilcken) πολεμεισ written by corrector over διοικεῖσ] διοικεῖς Kör., πολεμείσ σὺν Rob. // διαλυεται, corrected first to διαλυσεται, then to διαλυετε or διαλυσετε] διαλύεται Rob., Schm., διαλύσεται Kör., Arn.

356 δέον (or ἔξον) Kör. // κρατος. ου- τοσι] κράτος[:] οὐτοσί Kör.

357σαμ' C. Lef.,κοσμ' C. Kör., ο. αταικος L. Wilc.] ὁ Wilcken, Πάταικος Kör. // ἐξόλλυσιν: C., : om. L.]

358ων C., .ροστων L.] πρὸς τῶν Lef. // ανθρω. α. .λ L.]

359ε C., ωμηνσε L.] // τι C., τι L.] // καιγα 8 lett. ον L.]

360 C., .χεις L.] ἔχεις Legr., Wil. // χ....μον L.]

361δυγ' C. Lef.,αιτ' C. Kör., δυνασαιτ' L.] δύνασαι τ' Kör. // ποις L.]

362 ...καστρι' C.] // ησχυνθησ' C.] // τισο L.]

363 ..θεν C. Lef., ..μεν C. Kör.] εἰ μέν Kör. // τοιουτ' C., τρ....τ' L.] // ηνω C., ην (om. ω) L.] ὦ del. White, confirmed by L. // Paragraphus below in C.

364 γ...ροσ L.]

365 f. λεγ... L.] // παταικε: C. Lef., παταικε C. Kör., πατα... L.] Πολ. (continuing) διαφέρει... ταύτην Kör., to Pataecus Lef., Πατ. διαφέρει... ββα Rob. (ταύτην: C., L.), Πατ. διαφέρει δέ τι. Πολ. ἐγὼ... ταύτην Sud. (no indication in MSS. of change of speaker after τι)

367 οδα..... C. Lef., οδο.....μ.: C. Kör.] ὁ δούς Wil., ἐμοί Kör., confirmed by L. // τίς; αὐτῇ. Lef., τίς αὐτῇ; Rob., continuing to Polemon (δούς: L.)

368 ηρε.....υτη L.] // ταχα....σ C., ταχα...ωσ L.] τάχα Lef., τέως Head., Rich., Wil.

369 απεληλυθ' ου C., απεληλυθε.... L.] ἀπελήλυθεν δ' οὐ Leeu., ἀπελήλυθ' οὐν οὐ Head., Kör., Leo, Rich., Wil., ἀπελήλυθ' οὐχι Crön., Head.

370 αὐτῇ Lef., αὐτῇ Wil. // τιφ.... L.]

371 λ...πηκας L.] // ερεισ C. Lef., L., εραισ C. Kör.] ἐρείς Lef., ἐρᾶς Leeu.

372 .ρ...οι.....σ L.] // ωσθ' C., L.] ὡς Head., Wil. // π...εισ L.]

373ληκτο..... L.] // : πουφerei γαρ: C. Lef., . πουφerei γαρ C. Kör., ποιφerei γαρ L.]

376 ερων...τ' L.]

377 απο...οσ L.] // εγκα L.]

378 ποτ...θησ L.]

380 ταδικημ.....μαδε: C., ταδικημε γκλημαδε: L.] τὰ δίκημ' ἔγκλημα δέ Crois. (who, however, gives ἔγκλημα δέ as question to Polemon), punct. Kör., Πολ. ἔγκλημα δέ Wil.

381 Punct. Kör. // In L. paragraphus, om. C.

383 καταλε...πεμε L.]

384 παταικε L.] // ουτ....δοκε L.]

385 πολλ.... L.]

386 αὐτῇ, πρότερον Leeu., αὐτῇ πρότερον, Kör. // διαλ.... L.]

387 πρε. βευσ . . L.] // μοιδοκεισ C., μο L.] μοι δοκει Crois., Herw., μοι δοκεις Lef., μοι δοκῶ Wil. // In r. marg. ΠΑΤ C.]

388 ορα . . L.] // λεγ . . . L.] // In r. marg. ΠΟΑ C.]

389 πατ 10 lett. σ: L.] // παταικε . . . L.] // Πατ. μετρίως Lef., Rich. continues to Polemon (: μετρίως: C., — ίως: L.) // In L. paragraphus, om. C.

390 σ ωτηρια L.]

393 θεωρησαισ C., εωρησαισ: κα λωσ L.] θεωρήσαις. ΠΑΤ. καλῶς Wil., confirmed by L.

394 πρ C.] πρὸς θεῶν Ell., Kōr., Rich., Sud., confirmed by L.

395 : ωπαρ. C. Lef., : ωποσιδ C. Kōr., : ωποσιδο . . . εὐρ' ἰθι L.] ὦ Πόσειδον. Πολ. δεῦρ' ἰθι Kōr.

396 ενδυματαοια corr. to ενδυμαθ' οια L.] // οιαδ' ε C., οιαδε L.] οια δὲ Ell., Leeu., Nic., Wil., confirmed by L. // ημ' α. C.] ήνικ' ἄν Crōn., Ell., Head., Hous., Kōr., Leeu., Leo, Nic., confirmed by L.

397 εωρακενεπ C. Lef., εωρακενιγα C. Kōr., εωρακεισίσωσ:; ω written above ο, L.] έδρακεις Leeu., ίως Kōr.

398 In l. marg. ΠΑΤ C.] // εγωσ: corr. to εγωγ': C. Kōr., ε. ωγε: L.] έγωγε Leeu., confirmed by L. // ε. C. Lef., η. C. Kōr., τ L.] ήν Crois., Rich., Wil., confirmed by L.

399 τ. φε . . . νυνει L.]

400 λαλῶ: C. Kōr., L.] λαλῶν Head.

401 ονδ' ἐν C.] // αλλαδειπαταικεσε C., αλ . . . δειγεσε L.] άλλά δει σε νῦν Crois. (del. Πάταικε, confirmed by L.)

402 παρασ' εισ C. Lef., παραγ' εισ C. Kōr., παρα L.] πάραγ', εισ- Kōr., Sud.

403 εισφθερείσθε] έκφθερείσθε Eitr., Head., Herw. // βαττ . . . μεισ L.]

404 εκπε . . . ηκασι.ο. L.]

405 ανδύναιτοδ' αν] αν δύναιτο δ' (del. second αν) Crōn., Head., Kōr., Leo, Wil., αν δύναι' αν Rob., νεοτιάν δ' οὐκ αν δύναιντ' αν εξελειν Head.

406 ολοι πάρεισ'] ολοιπέρ εισ' Kōr.

409 εωνων Lef., Kōr., αθλων Ric.] αθλων Hous., confirmed by Ric.

417 οικοντιν] οικον (del. τιν) Lef.

421 αυτοσ Lef., οντοσ Kōr.] οὔτος Leeu., Leo

425 μητηραγγελουσα] μήτηρ απαγ- γελουσά Crōn., Sud., επαγγελουσά Lef.

427 εμελεγων] εμελέτων Head.

Fr. K assigned to this play by Lef., K² placed before K¹ by Kōr., who reports that K is from the bottom of the page, though the lower margin is no longer preserved 585 Ca. 15 lett. ητερ'] λαθειν τον πα- τέρα και (or τι οδν λαθειν) την μητέρ' E.C., τί νοειν γάρ ως την μητέρ' Sud., κερδαινειν δὲ νῦν] οὔτως τί πρὸς την μητέρ' Leeu., so Schm. but w. δὲ τί] οὔτως αν // φ . . . ε. Lef., φ . . . ον(σ, ν) Kōr.] φρά- ζε μοι E.C., φερομένη or φρόντισον Sud.

586 ενταυθα E.C., Kōr., και δευρο (or Πάταικε) Sud. // καταφυγούσ' Leo // εδυνάμην; Sud. // οὐ, σκοπεῖς Arn., Rob., οὐ σκοπεῖς; Sud.

587 Suppl. Sud. // γυναῖκα, E.C., γυναῖκα — Rob., γυναῖκα; Sud.

588 . . ορον . . . αου Lef., . γορον . . . (.) αου Kōr.] μονομένην οὐ E.C., γέγον' οὔ- τοσ, — άλλ' (άλλ' Leeu.) Sud., Wil., φο- νοῦσιν. άλλ' Leeu. // τουτ'] // έχη; Leo, Sud., έχη. Rob.

589 εσπευδον] εσπευδεν Sud., reading αὐτόν γ' in v. 590

590 τ' suppl. Leo, Sud. (w. εσπευ- δον), δ' Lef., γ' Rob. // έκεινος; Leo, έκεινος Lef.

591 κατέστησ',] κατέστησ'; Sud.

592 εχθραν] έχθρόν E.C. // πρατ(γ) Kōr.] πράττειν Schm., Wil., πράγμα μοι

E.C., ἡξάμην (or ἡξίουν) Sud. (both w. ἔχθραν τε πράττειν), πρᾶξιν ἐκτελεῖν Crön.

593 αἰσχροὶν ἐμοῦ Leo, πανουργίας Crön., ἀκοσμίας Kör., ἐδεξάμην (or οἶαν πάλιν) Sud.¹, ἐνοῦσαν ἀν Sud.²

594 ἡγεῖα . εἰψαίς | ἦν ἐξαλείψας Wil., ἦν ἐξαλείψαις Crön., Leo, Sud.¹, ἦν ἐξαλείψης Rob., ἦν ἐξαλείψαιτ' Sud.² // αἰσχροὶ φανέ E.C., αἰσχύνομαι Leo, αἰσχύνομαι Sud., αἰσχύος ποτ' ἄν Crön., αἰσχροῦ δίκη Rob. // E.C. gives v. to Pataecus (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 593), others continue to Glycera

595 Suppl. Leeu., Sud. // E.C. gives v. to Glycera (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 594), others continue to Glycera 596 με γεγονέναι Kör., με γενομένην (or δεῖν καταγαγεῖν) Sud.¹, κού καταφρονεῖς Sud.², πονηρίαν Crön., μ' εἶναι κόρην Leeu.

597 πολυτίμητ' Lef., ἄδικα δὲ Wil., εἰθ' ἂ φῆς Herw., ἄνδρα δὲ Leeu., ἄνδρα με (or ἀνδρῶν) Sud., Πολέμωνα δ' αἵτιον Gerh.

598 μὲν πείθομαι Wil., γὰρ οὐ κρίνω E.C., ἐγὼ δ' οὔτι σ' ἡδίκη Kör., δ' ἀπέρχομαι Herw., ἔγωγε πείθομαι (πείθομαι Wil.) Gerh.

599 εἰς ἄλλας κόρας E.C. after εἰς ἑτέραν τινὰ Sud. and εἰς ἄλλας κόμας Kör., who give 599b to Glycera (no indication of change of speaker preserved in MS.), μή σέ γ' οὖν Gerh. continuing to Pataecus 600 οὐχ ὑβριστικῶς E.C., οὐ προαίρετον Kör. who gives to Pataecus, οὐ μείζον λόγου E.C., οὐχ ὑπὲρ λόγον Gerh., both giving to Glycera, λοιπόν: without paragraphus MS.

601 ἀνδρῶν δ' ἔπραξέ με (or ἀνδρῶν γ' . . σε if by Pataecus) E.C., ἀνοσίως ἐκάκωσέ με Kör. who gives to Glycera, ἀνοσιώτατον μὲν οὖν Sud., ἀνδρῶν γ' ἐφαίνετο Gerh. giving to Pataecus, δεινόν: and paragraphus MS.

602 οὐκ ἔσθ' ὁρᾶν Sud., ὁ σοβαρός . ἄν Kör., οἷον τάχ' ἄν Sud., δμως δ' οὐκ ἄν Gerh. // ἀθλιωτέραν | Sud.¹, οἷηθῇ μ' ἔχειν Kör., ἐργάσαιτό τις Sud.², εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν | πέμψαις Gerh. // After v. 602 Kör. conjectures that the thought was ἴστω γεγονῆσαν μ' ἐξ ἐλευθέρου | πατρός

603 ἐμοῦ E.C.

Fr. 392 Kock recognized the fact that the quotation from this play may have been lost from the gloss on ἀποδεῖξαι in Bekk. Anec. 427. 33

619-630 Alternation of speakers indicated in MS.: paragraphus under 621; βούλει: and possibly space for : after ταῦτ' 622; paragraphus under 623; -σ': and ἄρισθ': 626; σοι: 627; οἶδε: 628; -s: 629

Distribution of speakers: Πατ. τί οὖν . . . φιλάττη E.C., Πατ. τί οὖν βούλει; Kör. (below 621 paragraphus, but no room in MS. for : after τηρεῖν; after βούλει double-point), Γλ. (continuing) τί οὖν βούλει Lef., Rob., Sud., Γλ. (continuing) τί . . . τί βούλει Leeu. (βούλει: and ταῦτ' [:?] MS.), Γλ. κομίσασθαι . . . ἀνθρωπον Kör. (ταῦτ' [:?] MS.), Πατ. κομίσασθαι ταῦτ'. Γλ. -γνωκας . . . ἀνθρωπον Lef., Πατ. κομίσασθαι ταῦτ'. Γλ. -γνωκας . . . βούλει Sud., Πατ. κομίσασθαι ταῦτ'. Μοσ. -γνωκας . . . ἀνθρωπον Rob., Γλ. κομίσασθαι ταῦτ'. Πατ. -γνωκας . . . φιλάττη Wil., Γλ. τί βούλει Rob., Πατ. τί . . . φιλάττη Kör. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after ἀνθρωπον, but paragraphus below), Πατ. φιλάττη . . . μοι Lef., Leeu., Sud. // Γλ. διὰ . . . πραχθήσεται E.C., Γλ. διὰ . . . μοι Kör. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after φιλάττη, but paragraphus below), Γλ.

πραχθήσεται . . . γέλοιον Lef., Γλ. πραχθήσεται Sud., Γλ. πραχθήσεται . . . σ' Leeu., Πατ. πραχθήσεται . . . σ' Kör. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after μοι) // Πατ. τοῦτο . . . σ' Sud. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after πραχθήσεται), Γλ. τοῦτο . . . γέλοιον Rob.¹, to Moschion Rob.², Πατ. ἀλλ' . . . σ' Lef., Rob. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after γέλοιον) // Γλ. ἐγὼ δα τὰμ' ἀριστ' Lef., Kör., Rob., Sud., to Pataecus Leeu. // Πατ. οὕτως . . . οἶδε Lef., Πατ. οὕτως . . . σοι; Γλ. ἡ Δωρίς οἶδε Kör., Rob., Sud. (σοι MS.), Γλ. οὕτως ἔχεις. Πατ. τῶν τις . . . σοι; Γλ. ναί, Δωρίς . . . τις Leeu. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after ἔχεις, but οἶδε:) // Γλ. καλεσάτω . . . τις Lef., Πατ. καλεσάτω . . . λέγω Kör., Rob., Sud. (τις MS.) // Πατ. ἀλλ' ὁμως . . . λέγω Lef., Leeu.

619 At end ἐδωκέ μοι Sud.

620 ἐκέλευσεν δ' Leeu., εἰωθ' οὖν Leo, εἰωθυ' Sud., ἐβουλόμην Crois. // ἔχειν Crois.

621 Crois.

622 ταυτ' . . . ῥωκασσ(θ,ε) Kör.] ἀπέγνωκας σὺ γὰρ E.C., ἐπέγνωκας σαφῶς Crön., ἐπέγνωκας (Crön.) and σὺ γ' οὖν Rob., θρασὺν or σφοδρὸν Wil., ἔθ', ἐγνωκας σὺ γε Sud., ἐγὼ γ'. ἔγνωκας εἰδ' Head.

623 ἀνθρωπον; E.C., ἀνθρωπον. al.

624 μ . . . ραχρ . . . σεται Lef., μ . . . ραχρ. σεται Kör.] μοι Crois., μῶν Sud.¹, πραχθήσεται Eitr., Rich., Sud. // πραχθήσεται; E.C., Sud.¹, πραχθήσεται. Sud.² Leeu., Kör., Rich. const. w. foll.

625 τουτογελοιον] γε add. Head., Leo, τὸ Rich., Sud.¹, τουτι Crön., Leeu.

626 . . . σ' Lef., . . . ρσ' Kör.] εἰζαίσ' E.C., ἡκειν σ' Kör., ποεῖν σ' Ell., Leo, ὁρᾶν σ' Ell., Head., μ' εἶν σ' Sud.¹, ἡμῶν σ' Sud.², τιμᾶν σ' Leeu., σιγᾶν σ'

Rich. // γαμ' Lef., ταμ' Kör.] τὰμ' Ell., Leeu., Leo, confirmed by Kör. // αριστ' // ἔχεις; Herw., ἔχεις. Lef., ἔχει Leeu. // In r. marg. ΠΑΤ]

627 τίς τῶν Leo, Sud., τῶν τις Leeu., ἡ τις Crois.

628 . . . σ] ἡ E.C., ἡ Leo, Sud., ναί, Δωρίς Crois.

629 . . . σ] ἐξω Leo, ἰών Rob., νυνί Crois., ἐμοί Sud. // τις Crois.

630 9 lett. ' Lef., 8-9 lett. ρ(β)εστ' Kör.] διαλλάγηθ' Kör., ἀπιθι' πάρεστ' Sud., ὑπάκου' Leo // νυνιλογοσγ(δ)εγῶλε γω] λόγοις νυνί λέγω E.C., λόγοις ἐγὼ λέγω (or λέγω δ' ἐγὼ) Leeu., λέγω νυνί λόγοις Sud., λόγος νυνί λέγω Schm.

631 Suppl. E.C., τί δή με δεῦρ' ἐκάλεσας Rob., πάρεμ', ἰδοῦ. τί ἐστιν Leeu., — τί δ' ἐστιν Sud. // In r. marg. ΔΩΡ]

632 8-9 lett. οἶον] τάχα δ' εἰσορ' οἶον E.C., οὐκ οἰσθας οἶον Leeu., τί ἐστι; ποῖον Rob., τί δ' ἐστιν; οἶον Sud., τί δ' ἐστι; ποῖον Kör., σαφῶς λέγ', οἶον Schm. // E.C. gives to Moschion, to Pataecus Crois., Leeu., Sud., to Doris (continuing) Rob., Kör. (κεκτημένη: MS.), to Glycera Schm.

633 9 lett. '] τὴν κωτιδ' Crois., τὴν κωτιδ' Leeu.

634 11 lett. ἡδ' Lef., εἰδ' Kör.] ἔχουσιν Ell., Leo, συνεχουσιν Crois., οἰσθας Rob., οἰσθα Crois., αὐτὴ Ell., νῆ Δι' Crois., Ell., ἱματιδ' Leeu., ἀργυριδ' Sud.

635 11 lett. θυεῖσ Lef., 9 lett. λυεῖσ Kör.] τηρεῖν Leeu., τί παθοῦν' Sud., τί γὰρ οὖν Kör., Schm., τί ἀλβεῖς Kör. // Lef. continues 635 a to Glycera, Πατ. 635 a Schm., Sud. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 634), Πατ. τί ἀλβεῖς, ἀθλία E.C.? Μοσ. πένονθα κτέ. Sud., to Pataecus Lef., Kör., Rob., to Glycera Leeu. // ἀθλία: // In r. marg. ΠΑΤ] 636 τὴ τὸν Δία τὸν Crois. // σωτήρ, ἐγὼ E.C., σωτήρα, νῦν Rob., Schm., καὶνὸν Rob., δεινὸν Schm., θαυμάσιον Sud., καὶ τρέμω Kör.

637 καὶ ποικίλον E.C., ἀτοπώτερον Sud. // ἡκ Lef., ἡκε Kör.] ἡ κόρη δοκεῖ E.C., ἡ κωμωδία | εὐρηκεν Sud.

646 ff. Kör. recognized the speakers as Pataecus, Glycera, and Moschion 646 ὁν Kör., ὅτι (or ὡς) Rob. // Πατ. ὁν . . . ἔσθηκεν Arn., to Moschion Kör., Rob., Schm.

647 Kör.

648 ἔσθηκεν; Kör. // ἡτραγος, οὐ written above ἡ // τράγος:]

649 . . . γ' Kör., . . . γ' Wilc.] κέρα γ' Kör., κέρατ' Leeu., τὰ δύο γ' Arn., πῶς δῆτ' Sud., ἥδι τ' Rob., οὕτως ἔχει τοῦτ', οἶδα? E.C. // Πατ. — ἔχει . . . οἶδα Leeu. (τοῦτ': MS.), Γλ. καὶ . . . τρίτον; Πατ. πετεινὸς . . . ἀθλίας E.C. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 649), Γλ. καὶ . . . ἵππος. Πατ. τῆς . . . ἀθλίας Leeu. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after οἶδα or ἵππος), Πατ. — ἔχει τοῦτ'. Γλ. οἶδα. Πατ. καὶ . . . ἀθλίας Arn., Πατ. — ἔχει . . . ἀθλίας Kör.², Mos. — ἔχει τοῦτ'. Πατ. οἶδα . . . ἀθλίας Kör.¹, Rob., Sud.

650, 651 Kör.

652 οὐ Kör., ἐν Wil., πῶς; Leeu., τῶν ἀδυνάτων Kör. // τοῦτ' μοι | τοῦτ', ἐμοὶ Kör., τοῦτ'; ἐμοὶ E.C., τοῦτ' μοι Rob. // δοκεῖ | δοκεῖν Kör.

653 7 lett. τι | ἀτοπὸν τι E.C., ἀλογόν τι Kör.², ἐθελοντι Kör.¹, σχεδόν τι Wil., ζητοῦντι Rob., σκοποῦντι Sud.

654 9–10 lett. εἶσθαι | αἰσχροῦς E.C., μετ' ἐμοῦ (or μετὰ τῶνδε) Kör., λάβρα Rob., δίδυμα (or διδύμους) Sud., τῷδι Arn., προέσθαι (or θέσθαι) Kör., ἀφέσθαι Sud., παρὰθέσθαι Arn.

655 13 let. ν | εἰ δ' ἄρα τι πιστὸν E.C., ἀλλ' εἰ τετύχηκεν Kör., εἰ δ' ἔστ' ἀδύνατον

Arn., οἷμ' εἰ δὲ γέγονεν Wil., εἰ δ' οὖν δέδρακεν Leeu.

656 12 lett. ρμ' Wilc., ρημ' Kör.] οἷας E.C., οἷων Wil., ἀπεστέρημ' Wil., ἥδη κάκιστ' | ἐφθαρμ' Kör., οὐδ' αὐτὸς αὐτῆς εἰμ' Arn., οἷω κακῶ πέφυρμ' Schm.

657 . . . ντινηδὴ Kör., . . . ντιχηδὴ E.C. photog.] ἡ δυστυχῆ δὴ E.C., δῆλου, τὴν ἥδὴ Kör., ὦ Ζεῦ, τὴν ἥδὴ Sud., καὶ ποῦ στὶν ἥδὴ Rob., τάδ' ἔστιν ἥδὴ Schm. // Kör. gives to Pataecus, Schm. to Glycera

658 σῆμαιν' ὁ Rob., σῆμαινε Kör. // τ' ἐμοῦ | γ' ἐμοῦ Schm.

659, 660 Kör.

661 ἐπάναγε Wil. // ροθ] ῥέθος βλέπω E.C., ῥοθλου συχνοῦ (or ῥοθίω στρεφεῖς) Kör., ῥοθίω τινι Wil., ῥοθίως ἀγαν (or ῥόθιον σθένει, ῥόθιον βίη, ῥόθιον δραμῶν) Sud., ῥόθω πανῶν Arn., ῥόθιός τις εἰ (or οὖν) Rob. // Kör.¹ gives to Pataecus, Arn., Leeu., Sud. give vv. 661 f. to Moschion

662 ἡ.ω] ἦκω Kör., ἦλω Sud. // ἐγὼ Kör., ἐμῆς Rob., στενόν Sud. // Kör.¹ gives to Moschion (no indication preserved in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 661), Arn., Leeu., Sud. continue to Moschion

664 Kör.

665 τω . . . οἱ] τῶν ἐμοὶ Kör. (who proposed to correct to τῶν ἐτι), τῶν ἐπιζητουμένων Arn.

666, 667 Kör.

668 ταμαδ'] τὰ δ' ἐμά μ' E.C., τάμα δέ μ' Rob., τάμα δέ γ' Arn., τὰ δ' ἀλλ' (or τάμα σύ γ') Kör., τάμα δ' ἐπ' Sud.

670, 672 Kör.

671 μητρί Kör. // ποῦ Wil.

673 εἴθε . . . τοτ', καὶ written over τοτ'] ἔθρεψ', ἥπερ τότ' Kör., ἔθρεψ', ἡ καὶ τότ' Sud. // εἰδεκεμένην] εἰδ' ἐκκεμένην E.C., εἶδε κειμένην Kör.

674 Kör.

675 κρη...τιν'ε....αι] κρήνην τιν'
Kör., εἴπ' εἶναι E.C., εἶπε καὶ Kör. // τ'
add. E.C., γ' Kör.

676 κοιθεις, αι written over κο] χῶ τιθεις Kör.

679, 681 Kör.

680 κλῦ... Kör., τυχ.. Sud. photo-tog.] κλύειν Kör., τύχης Sud.

682 ἐπροσθεν, μ written above π] // ν... Kör., νεον Sud. photog.] νοεῖς; E.C., νέον — Herw.

683 Wilc.

684 εἰθισμένος Wil., δοκῶν τέως Sud.

685 πρ....] πάθους E.C., πότμου (or πόνου) Kör.

686 Kör.

687 ...ιον] ἀγριον Sud., Wil., δεινὸν
Wilc.

688 ἐφολκιο. Kör., ἐφολκία: Wilc.]
ἐφόλκία Wilc., ἐφόλκιον Kör., Πατ. ἐφόλκία | ἡγήσάμην Sud. (no indication in
MS. of change of speaker after τύχης, but ἐφόλκία: (: doubtful) and paragra-phus), τῆς τύχης ἐφόλκιον. Kör.

689 Kör.

690 τρέφειν ἀβούλου Kör. // τρόπους
E.C., τρέπον Kör.

691 Ca. 13 lett. ἀβεγματονπαντωρξε
... Kör. ("sed litteris στα vix duarum litterarum spatium relinquitur" Sud.), φ(ρ).λτ(π)ατ'ων.(γ,ε,κ,ν,π,σ)αντ(γ,π) α(λ)λλ(α,χ)επ(τ)ο E.C. photog., the φ being now below the line, torn from its place] δηλοῖς (or δειξαις) ἀληθής, φιλτατ', ὦν πάντ'· ἀλλ' ἐκόν E.C., τῶν πάντων τέλος (τέλος Rob.) Kör., τὸ δ' ἄρρεν οὐκ ἔλαβέ τι τῶν πάντων; Γλ. πάνν Sud. // E.C. gives to Glycera, Kör. continues to Pataecus, Sud. continues 691 a to Pataecus, giving 691 b to Glycera // Wilc. reports paragraphus
below; doubtful

692 τοπου... παρελ. βεμνηθῆσεται
Kör. (Wilc. doubts παρελ, ε(σ,γ)φ(ρ)

η(π).....σ(γ,π)αρ...ξ(β)εμνηθῆ(σ)ε(γ, σ)παν E.C. photog.] ἔφη τι παῖς (or τι νῶν); ἀρ' οὐκ ἐμνηθῆ γε πᾶν; E.C., τόπον and μνηθῆσεται Kör., τὰ ποῖα δὲ παρέλαβε; Πατ. μνηθῆσεται Sud. // E.C., Sud. continue to Glycera. // Paragraphus
below

693 β...χυσισχ Kör. (Wilc. doubts χ), β...ζυγασ(κ)μ... E.C. photog.]
βαθὺ ζυγάστριον E.C., βραχύς τις χρυσίου Kör., βραχύς τις ἀργυροῦς Sud. // Arn.,
Rob. give to Pataecus

694 π.(γα Wilc.)...ρι...τοισ...ιμε ροῖς Kör., σ...κροῖσθαι...εἰμνοῖς E.C. photog.] συμκρὸς δὲ τοῖς ἐκκειμένοις E.C., (τοῖς) παιδαρίοις τοῖς κειμένοις (assuming that γάρ was written after προσῶν)]
Kör., παρευρέθη τοῖς κειμένοις Sud. // Paragraphus below

695 ἐκεῖ...αναθεω...κι...τι.ευστ...
Kör., ε.ε...ανδρ(ε)ε...ε.κ...τ(γ).ευστ οχ...σ: E.C. photog.] ἔκειπὲ (or ἔτ'εἰπὲ) τάδον. ἐν δὲ τούτῳ γ' εὐστοχεῖς E.C., ἐκείνον Kör., ἀναθεώμεθ', εἰ Wil., ἀναθεω-μέτη Sud. // E.C., Kör. give to Glycera, Rob., Sud. to Moschion // At end of
v. :, paragraphus below

696 τισ.νωπ.....με.....ααδη
Kör., τι...νωπῆς.....ε...ιτα...λαδη
E.C. photog.] τί οὐν ποτε; ζῶν γε κεῖται
E.C., δηλαδὴ Kör., τίς ἦν ὁ ποήσας; οἰσθα γράμμα δηλαδὴ Sud. // E.C., Kör., Rob., Sud. give to Pataecus // Paragraphus
below

697 εἰχε...ουτ.....ιαμο.πατερ
Kör., εας...ληντ.....μο.πατερ
E.C. photog.] ἔα· σὺ τοῦτ' ἄρστα. δεῖ σέ μοι, πάτερ E.C., εἰχε and μοι, πάτερ Kör., εἶχεν τοιοῦτο. "...ἰάμου," πάτερ Sud. //
E.C., Kör., Rob., Schm., Sud. give to Glycera // Kör. reports paragraphus
below; doubtful

698 ε.ρ.σανειπειν.....εζωνητισῇ
Kör., .ρουσανειπεινε.....εζωνητισῇ E.C.

photog.] ἐνούσαν εἰπεῖν εἰκόν' ἐν ζώνῃ τίς ἦν E.C., ἔχεις ἂν εἰπεῖν μοι πότερα (πό-τερα Crois.) ζώνῃ τις (ζώνῃ τις Crois., Rob., Schöne, Sud., Wil.) ἦν Kōr., εἰ παρὰ ζώνῃ Rob. // E.C. continues to Glycera, Kōr., Rob., Sud. give to Pataecus, Schm. to Moschion // Paragraphus below

699 Suppl. Kōr., ἦν γὰρ Kōr.¹, ἦν γὰρ. Sud. // E.C., Rob., Schm. give to Pataecus, Kōr., Sud. to Glycera // Paragraphus below

700 οὐκοῦν συνηκασα εἴπω Kōr., βαδ. συνηκακα εἴπω E.C. photog.] βάδην συνηκα' καὶ τόδ' εἶπες τῶν ἐμῶν E.C., οὐκοῦν συνηκας Kōr., δόστυχες, τῶν σῶν κακῶν Sud. // E.C. gives to Glycera, Kōr. to Pataecus, Rob., Schm., Sud. to Moschion // Paragraphus below

701 χ. σπητεμίτρα Kōr.] χρυσῇ τε μίτρᾳ Schöne, after χρυσῇ τε μίτρᾳ Kōr., μίτρα τε χρυσῇ Herw. // παντα ρεῖ . . . α Kōr., πανταδ νειν' ἐρασ E.C. photog.] πάντα Kōr., δ' ἐκφαίνειν μ' ἐρᾶς; E.C., γοῦν εἰρηκά σοι Sud. // E.C., Rob., Schm. give to Pataecus, Kōr., Sud. to Glycera

702 οὐκέτι καθέξω Kōr. // ταγα εἰδεγ . . . οσ Kōr., . ιλταταδ εἰδεγω E.C. photog.] φίλτατ', ἀδικος εἰ δ' ἐγώ — E.C., τὰς - - - Kōr. // E.C. gives to Glycera, Kōr., Rob., Schm., Sud. to Moschion

703 τιπροσ . . εσθεμ α. ν ο. (α written above ν) Kōr., εἰσ(γ)οδου οσθετοσ φ. E.C. photog.] ἀδικεῖ σ' δδ' ὅς θετός ἐμός γ', ὡς φαίνεται E.C., — τί προσέχεσθε Kōr. // E.C. gives to Pataecus, Kōr., Schm. to Glycera 704 πάρεμι τοῦτον Kōr. // . μα α . . εγω Kōr., μια (.) κα. ψεγω E.C. photog.] μαρὸν ὡς νῦν καὶ ψέγω E.C., ἵνα πύθωμαι πάντ' ἐγώ Sud. // E.C.

continues to Pataecus, Kōr., Sud. give to Moschion // Paragraphus below

705 ὦ θεοί, τίς Kōr. // εστὶναυτοσ ροστ Kōr., εστορησις (.) ροστ E.C. photog.] ἐστ' ὁρησις, εἰ μὲν ὅσπερ ἂν E.C., ἐστιν οὗτος ὁ προσιών Kōr., ἐστιν οὗτος; ἐρρ' ὅστις ποτ' εἰ Wil., ἐστιν αὐθις ὁ προσιών ποτε Sud., ἐστιν αὐθρύβος, τίς Rob. // E.C. gives to Moschion, Kōr., Sud. to Glycera, Rob. to Pataecus. // Paragraphus below

806 ff. Ox. Pap. II, no. 211, assigned to the Periceiomene by Grenfell and Hunt. Grenfell and Hunt give general credit for the greater part of their restorations to Blass; "G.-H." in the following is to be interpreted accordingly 857 τοῦτό γε Weil, φληνάφα G.-H., πρὸς θεῶν Sud.

858 G.-H.

859 ὦν. Δωρ. ὡς φησι νῦν E.C., ὦν. Δωρ. θάρρει πάλιν Leeu., ὦν τῆς φιλάτης G.-H., ὦν Γλυκέρης; Δωρ. πάλιν Kōr.

860 G.-H.

861 προθυμηθεῖς] προθυμηθῆς G.-H. // ἀκάκως τούνηθένδ' ἔχειν Wil., ἀκάκως, γενήσεται Weil, ἀκείσθ' ὅσ' ἡδίκεις Maix, ἀκαρώς πορεύσεται Sud.

862 ἐνλιπομ' ἐνλιπομ' G.-H. // εἰ τοῦτ' ἴσθ' G.-H., ἐγώ E.C., Δωρ. ἰδοῦ G.-H., ὅτι Wil., ἐπεὶ Leeu., οὐ τοῦτ', ὦ φλη Weil, Δωρ. εἰ τοῦτ' ἀποτελῶ Dz.

863 ἐγώσ' ἐλ, γ written above ε] ἐγὼ δ' (δ' for σ' Blass) ἐλευθέραν G.-H.

864 σ' add. Blass // δεῖ λέγειν G.-H.

865 μάρ' E.C., σχετλί' (or δειν') Kōr., φθονέρ' Wil., Ἔρως Wil., θυμέ, θύμ' Weil, μοι, τύχη Sud., παρακοπή Rob., Γλυκέριον G.-H.

866 ἐφίλησεν τότε Rob., ἐφίλει δ' ἡ κόρη Kret., ἐφίλει δ' ἡ γυνὴ Crois., εἰσεδέξατο Wil., ἐδέχεθ' ἡ κόρη Weil

867 G.-H. from fr. 862 K.

868 ἀνακρίναι δέον Polak, ἀδικεῖσθαι δοκῶν Wil., αὐτὴν ὑπονοῶν Herw., ἀλογίστως πάνν Weil

869 ἀπηγχόμην Wil., ἀπωλόμην G.-H.

870 G.-H.

871 κατέγελα G.-H., δ' ἐμοῦ. E.C., γ' ἐμοῦ; Crois., γέ σου; G.-H., καταγελάς ἐμοῦ. Sud.

872 Kret.

873 ἐπεξήταξ' G.-H. // π(τ)α(δ, λ) G.-H. (very doubtful, only the upper tips of the letters remaining over a break)] θύειν E.C., πάλαι (?) G.-H., πάνν Rob., ταχὺ Herw., τάλαν Kōr., τελείν Weil

874 ευαγγελία] // ποθ G.-H., ασε E.C. photog.] ἀσεβές πάνν E.C., ποθουμένων G.-H., ποθουμένους Weil, ποθ' ὡς τάχος Rob., ποθ' ὡς ὀρᾶς Crois., Πόθω τε καὶ Sud., ἡσθημένον Polak 875εκ G.-H.,ειρεκ E.C. photog.] στένειν (or θρηνεῖν) E.C., θύειν G.-H., θεοῖς Sud., φίλους Weil // τόδε G.-H., ποτέ Weil, τελείν Sud.

876 δ δαῖ ποεῖν Leeu., δ δ' ἀπ' ἀγορᾶς Wil., δ δ' ἀπὸ τύχης Herw., δ δὴ πάρα Weil, δ δ' εἰς καλὸν Sud.

877 μαγειροσ, ο written above μ] // θυέτω G.-H.

878 In l. marg. ΔΩ] // κανοῦν μέν οὖν G.-H.

879 G.-H.

880 βωμοῦ G.-H., ποθεν G.-H., τινα Rob., θεοῦ Weil.

881 G.-H.

882 πολλαφανειγουν corrected to πολωνφανεισ] // ...ξ] νῦν Γλυκέραν ταχὺ Leeu., νῦν ἔξεισί τις Sud., δὴ τί δ' ἡ γόνη; Crois.

883 δὴ χῶ πατήρ G.-H., δεῦρ' δ τε πατήρ Wil., δευρί πατήρ Sud.

884 τὰν, ἀποδραμεῖ (or ἀποτρέχεις) E.C., τὰν, οὐ μενεῖς White, τάλαν, τί δρᾶς Herw., τάλαιν' ἐγὼ G.-H., τάλας ἐγὼ Dz., τάλαιν', ἔβη Sud.

885 ε(σ). η(ν)ξ(θ, ο, σ)ν(μ)γ(τ, ι)ακοντ ρσε. ι? ηνθ. ραρ.] οὐ τοι δράκοντός ἐστι E.C., σοῦ γ' οὐχ ἐκόντος ἐστὶ; Rob., σοῦ γε ἄκοντος εἰσι (for ἄκοντος εἰσι σοῦ γε) Kōr., εἰσω· κακὸν τοσοῦτον Sud., ἔξεισ', ἀκουσον, Δωρί Kret. // τὴν θύραν Kret., ἦν θύραν Sud. // ψοφεῖν; (ψοφεῖ Kret.) Sud.

886 εἰ τι δεῖ G.-H., οἷς με δεῖ Sud.

887 G.-H.

888 δέχεσθαι Dz., δέ λῶσαι Weil, δεδέχθαι G.-H. // τὴν δίκην G.-H.

889 G.-H.

890 ἀλλ' ἐκκαλείτω G.-H. // δραμών Weil, Πολέμων' Wil. // αὐτὸν ταχὺ Herw., αὐτίκα μάλα Leeu., Πολ. αὐτὸς μέν οὖν Wil.

891 In l. marg. .. ΔΕΜ] // ἐξέρχομ' Leeu., ἐκάλεσας Sud. // εὐπραξίας G.-H.

892 Γλυκέραν G.-H., ὕπαρ G.-H., γὰρ Kōr., ἀθ' Wil. // ἐβούλετο Leeu., ἐπόθει φίλους Wil., ἐπόθει πάλαι Crois., οὐδ' εἰδ' ὄναρ G.-H.

893 πυθόμενος G.-H. // ᾧ δ' οὖν ἐγὼ G.-H., νῦν δ' ὦν λέγω Sud., ὀρθῶς ἐγὼ Weil, ὀρθῶς δ' ἐγὼ Kret.

894 G.-H. from fr. 720 K.

895 G.-H.

896 τόδε Weil, γ' ἔχει G.-H., σὺ γε Sud., λέγεις? E.C.

897 ὦν, ὅπως G.-H., γενόμενος Sud.

898 προπετωσ, ε written above ω] τοὺς σοὺς φίλους Weil, τὰ φίλτατα Wil., τὴν παιδὰ μου Vitelli, Γλυκέραν πάλιν Kret., ποθ' ὕστερον Herw., θυμούμενος Sud.

899 In l. marg. ΠΟΛΕ] // παρ' ὀλίγον G.-H.

900 οὐδὲ μὴν ὄναρ Weil, οὐδὲ μέψομαι Wil., οὐδαμῶς ἐγὼ Kōr., οὐδὲ μήποτε G.-H., οὐδεπώποτε Leeu.

901 γλυκεραι·] Γλυκέρα G.-H., Γλυκέρα Wil. // φιλτατη] φιλτάτη G.-H. // μόνον G.-H.

902 In l. marg. ... KE] // πραγμάτων G.-H.

903 ὦ φῶλη Weil, πῆ Δία G.-H., γὰρ λέγεις Sud.

904 ἐξ ἐμοῦ G.-H., ἴσθ' ὅτι Sud.

905 παταικε:] // ζητητέον G.-H.

906 G.-H.

907 φιλεῖν] // καὶ θεοὶ G.-H., φιλτάτη Dz. // Μοσ. ὦ . . . θεοὶ E.C., after Kauer (Wien. Stud. XXVI, 1904, p. 206), who gives to a fourth speaker. G.-H. give to Glycera, Wil. to Polemon

SAMIA

Rob. assigns papyrus fr. LP to this play, placing it in the first act.

1 Lef.

2 μαίνομαι (or μαίνεται) Kör.

3 Leeu., Wil. // A context for vv. 1-3 suggested by E.C. in note

8 ἐγγίγνεται]

10 ἐρριπτ' εὐθυς] εὐθὺς del. Lef.

11 αὶ Kör., αὶ Lef.

14 Lef.

15 σκοπούμενος Crois., confirmed by Kör. // ἐσω Lef., ἐ(ο,σ,θ).χ(μ) Kör.] συχρὰ Hense, ἔσω Lef., θ' ἅμα Crön., σφόδρα Maz.

18 ταμειῦν] ταμειδίου Crön., ταμειδίου Herw.

25 f. Punct. Bod., Head., Kör., Leo, Wil. // εἶναι written in marg.]

28 "μέγ' . . . ποῦ;" Crön., Eitr., Kör., Leo, Nic., Wil.

31 Μοσχίων' Eitr., Herw., Maz., Nic., Pres., Wil., Μοσχίων Lef.

32 ἐπεὶ Lef., ἰδοὺ? E.C.

33 γέγονεν (γέγονε Lef.) Hense, Wil., ἄλλους Lef. (p. 207), τότε Herw., Rich.

38 ρε(υ)ναὶ Kör.] γεγονέναι or δεκνόναι Kör.

45 Punct. Legr., Maz., Wil., παρεξήλλαξε· "τί; Lef., παρεξήλλαξέ τι αὐτή· (αὐτῇ· Leo) Leeu., Leo

46 "αὐτὴ . . . σε," καὶ "βάδιζε . . . εὐτυχέστατα." E.C. after Legr., Maz., Wil., who include καὶ in the quotation, and Lef., who construes τίτῃ as nom. Leeu. gives οὐκ . . . οὐδέν, Crön. οὐκ . . . εὐτυχέστατα, to the nurse.

48 ἡ Lef., ἡ or φ Kör.] ὦ Kör., ἡ Lef.

49 Lef.

50 κωγῶ] κἀγὼ Lef.

51 ἐξῆλθον] ἐσῆλθον Lef.

55 ἐστιτουνταυτησ] αὐτῆς ἐστι τοῦτο Crön., Head., Leo, Maz., Nic., Wil., ἐστι τοῦτο ταύτης Ell., Kör.

56 ἐμοὶ Lef., Ric., ἐμον Kör.] ἐμοῦ Lef.

58 οὐθ'] οὐθ' Lef., δ γ' or οὐθ' (= δ ἐτι) Wil., οὐδ' Maz.

64 πρῶτον] πρότερον Eitr.

65 Lef.

68 ἐξιόνθ' Lef., εἰ.ιονθ' Kör.] εἰσιόνθ' Leeu., Sud., ἐξιόνθ' Lef.

69 ἀγορᾶς Legr., Leo, Maz. // ἐατέον Leeu., Sud., πειρατέον Crois., Ell., Legr., Leo, Maz., Nic., Rich.

70 τοῦτον Leeu., Sud., εἰς δόμον Rob., τοῦτον οἴκαδε Leeu., τοῦτον ἐνθάδε Sud., τοῦτους θ' οὖς ἀγει Sud., cf. P. 364, τοὺς ἄλλους ἔσω Wil., τοῦθ' ὅπως ἐρεῖ Leo, τοῦ μαθεῖν ἂν δεῖ Rich.

71 ἐτ 8 lett. ε . . . ρυ Lef., ἐγ . . . (τ) φ(ο).σ(ο)ε(θ) . . . ου Kör.] ἐπειγε E.C., πρὸς θεῶν Hense, Rob., ἐλέησον, πρὸς θεῶν Rob., (μάγειρ)ε, τί λαλεῖς, πρὸς θεῶν Hense, ἐγὼ σκοπῶν σε δῆτ' Kör., ἐπισκοπῶν σε δῆτ' Crois., ἐγὼ, μὰ τοὺς θεοὺς Wil., ἐπισφάζεις μ', ἐγὼγ' Eitr.

72 Lef.

73 π.....εθ.. Lef., π.....σ(ε) θ... Kör.] παῦσαι or παύου (παυε Leeu.) Hense, πρὸς θεῶν Leeu., πάντα πάντως (πάντως Crois.), πρὸς θεῶν Kör., παντά-πασιν. Μαγ. σέ γε θέλων Maz.

74 γεμ 10 lett. υσ] γ' ἐμοί (or γέ μοι) Crön., Head., τί εἰ βαρὺς E.C., νῆ τοὺς θεοῦς Crois., Crön., Head., γε· μάτην λέγω λόγους Herw., Maz., so but w. δὲ ποῶ Crois., μὴν λέγω λόγους Eitr., γέ μ' ἐκτείνειν λόγους Hous., γέ μοι· ποιῶ λόγους Kör. // Μαγ. ἰδιῶτ'. Παρ. ἐγώ; Μαγ. δοκεῖς, κτέ. Lef., Μαγ. ἰδιῶτ'! ἐγώ; Παρ. δοκεῖς, κτέ. Leeu. (ἰδιῶτ' and ἐγώ; MS.)

75 Lef.

76 πόσαι γυναῖκες Lef. // εἰσι, πηνίκα Keil, εἰσ', σπηνίκα Lef.

81 εἰ] ἡ Rob. // φίλτατ' Lef.

83 παράγετ' παράγε μ' Eitr.

84 :ναίχι:] σὲ ναίχι Wil., ναί, ναίχι Head., Leeu., νῦν; ναίχι Ell.

85 σπυρίδα Leo, Maz.

86 του 8(9) lett. δεν Kör.] τούτου μὲν οὐδὲν E.C. after τούτον μὲν οὐδὲν Head., Kör., Leo, Wil., τούτων σε μὲν οὐδὲν Crois. // Παρ. (continuing) τούτον . . . δέσποτα v. 92 Leeu. (τύχη: and paragraphus, λανθάνει:, πέπληχε: and paragraphus below v. 89 MS.)

87 το 8 lett. ραττομενον Lef., το(ε,ω)τ(γ)α(ω)...ραττομενον Kör.] τώφθαλμίδιω E.C., πραττόμενον Lef., τό γ' ἐνθαδὶ Rich., τῶν ἐνθαδὶ Leeu., τούτου τὸ νῦν Crois., τὸν ἀνδρ' ἔγω or τούτου δὲ πᾶν Wil., τοιουτοῖ Leo, τολμηρότατα Hense, τὸ πᾶν γ' ὁρᾷ Head., τὸ τῇ Σαμία Kör., τῶν κρυπαδίων Schm., τηρεῖ τὸ πᾶν Maz., τηρεῖ δὲ πᾶν Rob. // Leo, Maz., Rob., Wil. continue to Demeas (λανθάνει: MS.)

88 Lef.

89 Kör., Legr., Leo, give διαγε . . .

δέσποτα to Parmenon, Lef. to Demeas. πέπληχε: and paragraphus MS.

91 πρὸς θεῶν. Leo, κεραμίων. πρὸς θεῶν, Lef. // Maz. and Leo continue πρὸς θεῶν . . . δέσποτα to Parmenon, Παρ. πρὸς . . . δέσποτα Lef., Wil. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after κεραμίων)

92 ποιεῖνδευρ'] ποεῖν; ἐθι δεῦρ' Leo, Maz., ἀγε add. Lef., σε Ell., Wil., ἔτι Sud. // τῆς θύρας Lef. // θύρας | ἔτι Wil., θύρας | ἔτι Lef.

93 δεινυνκ.ρ] δὴ νῦν, Παρμένων Lef., δεῖ νῦν, Παρμένων — Kör.

94 Lef.

95 τί γὰρ Lef., τί οὖν (or με· τί) Eitr., τί δὲ Hense

96 μ', ἦσθημ' ἐγώ (ἐγώ from v. 97) Wil., μ' ἦδη πάλαι Hense, με, Παρμένων Leo, τὸν δεσπότην Bod., Eitr., Leeu., με, νῆ Δία Rich., τῆς Ἑστίας Ell., Kör., ἐμὲ νῦν. Παρ. ἐγώ; (ἐγώ from v. 97) Sud.

97 ἐγώ, written at beg. of v., transferred to end of v. 96 by Head., Sud., Wil., deleted by Leeu. // Ἀπόλλω Lef. // γώ μὲν οὐ Crois., Ell., Head. (or τουτοῖ), Leo, ἐγώ; μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω, μὰ τὸν Διόνυσον, οὐ Nic.

98 Lef.

99 μηδέν' Nic., μηδέν Lef. // καλῶς Leeu., Leo, Nic. // Παρ. οὐ . . . καλῶς Leeu. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after δμνυ')

100 ἡ Head., Nic., Wil., ἡ Lef. // ἀφε Lef., ἀφᾶ Kör.] ἀδόλως Kör., ἐρῶ E.C., ἀδόλως βλέπω (or γ' ὁρῶ) Hense, ἀδόλως λέγω Schm., ἀδεῶς λέγε Wil. // Lef. gives the end of the v. to Parmenon; so Hense, Schm. Wil. continues to Demeas (δεῦρ': MS.)

101 τίνος ἐστίν; Wil., confirmed by Kör., πρόσσεντιν Lef. // Δημ. τὸ . . . ἐστίν; Παρ. ἦν, τὸ παιδίον — Wil., Παρ. τὸ . . . πρόσσεντιν; Δημ. ἦν. τὸ . . . μητρός; Lef.

102 τινοσε 8 lett. σ: χρ...δ.σ:] τίνος ἐστὶ μητρός; Παρ. Χρυσίδος Lef., :Χρυσίδος MS., Παρ. τίνος ἐστ' ἐρωτᾷς; Χρυσίδος Hous., Παρ. (continuing) τίνος ἐστι; μητρός Χρυσίδος (or Παρ. τὸ παιδίον; Δημ. τίνος ἐστὶ μητρός; Παρ. Χρυσίδος) Wil.

103 σο 10 lett. ωλασ] σου, ῥή Δί'. Δημ. ἀπόλλωλας Lef., σου, δέσποτ' Hense

104 ...ἰδιακριβ...ται. μ Lef., ε. ωι δακριβω...τακαιτ(η)ε(σ) Kōr.] ἐγὼ δ' Kōr., Leeu., Leo, κάτοιδ' Maz., ἀλλ' οἷδ' Herw., σύ, ῥή Δί' (or εὖ οἷδ') Head., ἀκριβῶς Lef., πάντα Leeu., Leo, καὶ πέφραστ' ἐμοὶ Leo, καὶ ᾗσθημαι πάλαι Leeu., κῆσθημαι καλῶς Kōr., καὶ πιστώσομαι Hense, καὶ πέπεισμ', ὁρᾷς Rob.

105 Lef.

106 π.....ετ.....ταῖ Lef., π...α (δ)ισ(ε)κ(ν).....τ. : Kōr.] παιδίον Kōr., ἐκεῖνον E.C., διὰ τί Leo, πῶς διεκομίσθη, διὰ τί Leo, παῖδ' οὐκ ἐκέλετο ἢ ταυτὶν αὐτῇ Ell., τὸ παιδίον τίνος ἐστ' ὅτι νῦν Sud.

107 ..εφη 10 lett. λλ' Lef., ...εφη 8(9) lett. λλ' Kōr.] τί δὲ φῆς; Maz., ἐρωτᾷς; Hense, ἀλλ' Lef., τίς ἐφη; Δημ. σύ γ' ἄφες τοῦτ' Eitr., τίς ἐφη δὲ — Δημ. μὴ κρύπτ' Leeu., τίς ἐφη τὰδ'; Δημ. οὐδεὶς Leo, τίς ἐφη δ'; Δημ. ἐρωτᾷς; Hense, οὐ φησι τούτου γ' Rob.

108 τισθεστιν Lef., τισσεστιν Kōr.] τίνος ἐστίν; Kōr., τίς δ' ἐστίν; Lef., τούτου 'στιν; Leeu. // :ε..... Lef., :ε.... ...ο(α, ε) Kōr.] εἶπα Kōr., δεῖ σε E.C., εἰπά σοι με (or εἶπα πάντα) Kōr., εἶπε πάντα Rob., εἰκός σ' οὐδὲ Wil., ἐν τόδ' οἶδα Leo, ἐμὲ δ' εὖ ἴσθι Maz., ἐφην δὲ πάντα Lef., ἔα σὺ πάντα Hous., ἐμὲ γέ φημι Rich., ἐστι· χρῆ δὲ Leeu.

112 ἡληγ' :] ᾗδ' γ' Leo, Rich., ᾗ λῆγ' Lef., ᾗ λέγ' Kōr., Wil. // ἀπόλλωλα. Lef., ἀπόλλωλα; Wil.

113 χρονοσ] χθονός Lef.

114 Δημ. (continuing) ὦ Lef. (αἰθῆρ: MS.) // ὦ — τί Head., Leo, ὦ τί Lef.

118 η 8 lett. ροσ Kōr.] ἡ Crois., Crōn., Eitr., Ell., Hense, Herw., Kōr., Leo, κρατούμενος Kōr., Leeu., πεπληγμένος Hense, Herw., κατεχόμενος Leo, 'ναγκασμένος (or βεβιασμένος) Head., παρηγμένος Crois., Crōn.

119 Lef.

120 ἀν Herw., Kōr., Legr., Leo, Maz., Nic., Rich., Wil. // διανοίας Crois. // ἡς Ell., Herw., πρὸ τοῦ Leeu., ἡς τὸ πρὶν Herw., ἡς πάλαι Ell., ὡς τὸ πρὶν Crois., ὡς πρὸ τοῦ Leeu., κατὰ νῦν Maz., καὶ τὰ νῦν Kōr., νῦν ἔτι Rich., Sud., Wil.

121 τεπ.θ...ε. Lef., τεπεθετ' α. Kōr.] τ' ἐπέθετ' Leeu., Leo (-ετο), Sud., confirmed by Kōr., ἀν Leeu.

122 φανεταδ' αὐτῶ] φανέντ' (αδ' del. Lef.) αὐτῶ Bod., Crōn., Kōr., Leeu., Leo, Nic., Wil., φανένθ' αὐτῶ Lef.

123 εραν Lef., ερων Kōr.] ἐρών Leo, Wil., confirmed by Kōr.

126 Lef.

127 Ell., Leo, Maz., Rich., Wil.

128 οὐκ οὐτ' Ell., Head., Leo, Wil., οὐκ οὐτα γ' (ἐν om.) Crois., οὐκ οὐτ' Head. // δ' ἐργάζεται] δ' ἐργ' ἐργάζεται Leeu., Leo, δέιν' ἐργάζεται Wil., δῆτ' ἐργάζεται Maz., δ' ἐξεργάζεται Head., Rich.

129 τοιαῦτ' Head., ἀνόητ' Leo, σάφ' οἷδ' Herw., εὖ οἷδ' Wil., καὶ δέιν' Leeu., Maz., πολὺς τ' Ell., Keil.

130κ Kōr.] καιρόν Herw., Leeu., τρίτον Leo, τὸν οὐκ Crois., τιν' οὐκ Kōr., τὸν μὴδ' Rich., παῖδ' οὐκ Wil. // τοι] πω Ell., Nic., Rich., Wil., πον Leeu., ποτε Nic., Rich.

131 τοῦτ' Crois., ἀλλ' Leo, οἷδ' Leeu. // οὐδέπω Crois.

132, 133 Crois.

134 οὐδ' εἰ Leeu., Leo, εἰ καὶ Arn., Kōr., Legr., εἰ μὴ Crois.

136 ἀνθρωπος Leeu., ἀνθρωπος Lef. // δλεθρος — Leeu.

139 ταυτημεν] τάτ' ἡμεῖς μὲν Rich., Sud.

147 Δημ. ἐκ . . . σεαυτὸν Kōr., Leeu., Legr., Leo, Maz., Nic., to Parmenon Lef.

149 τις Leo, Wil., τίς Lef.

150 ποι Lef., παῖ Kōr.] παῖ Leo, Nic., confirmed by Kōr.

151 ποσιδω]

153 μου] μοι Kōr.

154 παντ']

155 Δημ. εἰς . . . ἡδῃ. Χρυ. δὲσμορος. Δημ. ναί . . . οἴομαι Ell., Leo, Nic., Wil. (no indication of change of speaker at end of v. 156, δάκρυον: without paragraphus MS.), Χρυ. (continuing) εἰς . . . ἡδῃ; Δημ. δὲσμορος. Χρυ. ναί . . . δάκρυον; Δημ. παύσω . . . οἴομαι Lef.

160 ποιουσας]

162 καρτε Lef., καί: τι Kōr.] καί—. τί "καί;" Eitr., confirmed by Kōr.// Δημ. διὰ τοῦτο καί—Χρυ. τί "καί;" E.C. after Leo (Δημ. διὰ τοῦτο. Χρυ. καί—Δημ. τί "καί;"), Sud. (Δημ. διὰ τοῦτο to end of v.), and Eitr. (Χρυ. ὅτι . . . καί—Δημ. τί "καί;") (no indication of change of speaker after ἀνελδόμεν or after τοῦτο in MS.; καί: τί καί: MS.). Lef. gives the whole v. to Chrysis

163 κακομανθάνω] οὐ add. Ell., Sud., Wil., νῦν Keil, Leo, Nic.// Δημ. (continuing) διὰ . . . κακόν. Χρυ. οὐ μανθάνω Ell., Wil. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after κακόν). Leeu., Sud. give the whole v. to Chrysis, Lef. to Demeas, Leo, Kōr., Rob. continue the whole v. to Demeas (τί καί: MS.)

164 Δημ. τρυφᾶν . . . ἡπίστασ' Lef. (μανθάνω without paragraphus MS.)

166 Punct. Leo, Wil., Χρυσί· μανθάνεις πάν; Lef.

167 αἰτω: Lef., λῑτω: Kōr.] λῑτῶ Kōr., Leo, Wil.

168 δετω. Lef., δετω. (i.e. space for :) Kōr.] δέ τίς; Leeu., Leo, δέ τί σε; Wil., δ' ἔτι σε—Lef.// Δημ. μή μοι λάλει Lef., δέ τίς:] MS.

169 ἔχεις and πάντα· Sud., ὁρᾷ· and πάντα προστίθῃμι Lef.

170 5 lett. missing before θ]εραπαίνας Lef., 3 (or 4) Kōr.] ἰδοὺ Rob., ἰδὼν (or ἔτι) Kōr., ταδί· Leo, κόσμον Lef.// θεραπαίνας Lef., θεράπαιναν Sud.// χρυσι] χρυσί Lef., Χρυσί Rob.

171 τίς ἐστὶ· Kōr., Legr., Leo, Wil., τίς· ἐς τί Lef.

172 Χρυ. (continuing) βέλτιστ', ὅρα Lef. (προσιτόν: MS.)/ μὴ δακῆς Leo, μὴ δάκνης Lef., μάδικῆς Hous.

175 οὐπω· Leeu., οὐτω Crois., τοῦτω Wil.// δάκνει. E.C., δάκνει | ὁμως. Leeu., δάκνει; Wil.

177 Χρυ. καί . . . ἰδοὺ E.C., Χρυ. καί . . . ἡδῃ Lef., Δημ. (continuing) καί δικαίως. Χρυ. ἀλλ' ἰδοὺ. Rob., Δημ. (continuing) καί δικαίως. Χρυ. ἀλλ' . . . ἡδῃ. Leo, Nic. (διαλέγη: and paragraphus MS.)

178 εἰσέρχομ'] ἀπέρχομ' Kōr., Leo, ἐξέρχομ' Crois., Nic.// Δημ. εἰσέρχομ' ἡδῃ Rob., Sud. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after ἰδοὺ), Δημ. (continuing) τὸ μέγα . . . ἡμάρτανες v. 185 E.C. (ἡδῃ: MS. without paragraphus), Χρυ. (continuing) εἰσέρχομ' ἡδῃ. Δημ. τὸ μέγα . . . ἡμάρτανες Lef., Χρυ. τὸ μέγα πρᾶγμ'. Δημ. ἐν τῇ . . . ἡμάρτανες Rob., Sud. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after πρᾶγμ')

180 σε, Χρυσί] σ' ἐταῖραι, Χρυσί Leeu., Leo, transferring ἐταῖραι from v. 181// δραχμὰς δέκα] δέκα Leeu., Leo, transferring δραχμὰς to v. 181

181 μόνας ἐταῖραι] δραχμὰς μόνας Leeu., Leo // ἐταῖραι] ἑτεραι Head., Rich., del (or πολλὰν) Maz., κόραι Nic. Kōr. proposes to leave v. unchanged (ἐταῖραι ∪ ∪, cf. Men. 727 K. There, however, read ἡ γ' ἐταίρα, διαφανές) // διατρέχουσ' E.C., δὴ τρέχουσ' Crois. // ταδεῖπνα] δεῖπνα (del. τὰ) Crois.

182 και, η written above] ἡ Crois., Ell., Head., Leeu., Leo, Maz., Nic., καὶ Lef.

186 ἐγώγωγε] ἔγωγε τῆς Leo, Maz., Wil., τάλαινα τῆς ἐμῆς τύχης ἐγώ Head.

193 προσ, θε written above] πρόσθε Lef.

194 κλαῖουσ'] κλάουσ'; Head., Leeu., κλαίουσ'. Lef.

195 ποτ' ἐστι] ποτε τὸ (del. ἔστι) Head., Leeu., Leo, ποτ' ἔστι (del. τὸ) Ell.

199 ἐμβροντησία] ἐμβροντησίας Rich., ἐμβροντησία (construed w. preceding) Leeu.

200 ff. Χρν. οὐκ . . . ἐκκέκλεικε Nic., Wil. (ἡδύς· or ἡδύς:, without paragraphus, ἀρτίως: and paragraphus MS.), Νικ. (continuing) οὐκ . . . ἀρτίως. Χρν. ὁς . . . ἐκκέκλεικε Lef.

202, 203 Lef.

204 χολᾶ Arn., Crön., Eitr., Herw., Kör., Maz. // Δημέας χολᾶ; E.C., Δημέας; χολᾶ; Crön., Δημέας χολᾶ. Arn., Eitr., Herw., Kör., Maz.

345 ἀλλὰ Lef., ἀλλὰ Kör. // ἐλθὼν — Leeu., ἐλθών; Kör., Rob. // "μικρόν;" E.C., μικρόν, ὦ τᾶν! Head. // οἴχεται Lef., οἴχομαι Wil. // Δημ. ἀλλὰ . . . ἐλθών Lef., Δημ. ἀλλὰ . . . τᾶν — Νικ. οἴχεται — Leeu., (ἐλθών: without paragraphus MS., no indication of change of speaker after τᾶν). Leeu. recognized Niceratus as the second speaker 346 πανταταπραγματ'] πᾶν, τὰ πράγματ' Crön., Leo, πάντα πράγματ' Herw., Wil., πάντα τέλος ἔχει τὰ πράγματ' ἀνατέτραπται Crois., Head. // νηδία] νῆ τὸν Δία Crön., Herw., Leo (or νῶν. — νῆ Δία), Wil.

348 ἀνθρωπος Lef., ἀνθρωπος Wil.

351 Lef.

352 θύσειν Leo // . . . ἐμπρήσειν] εἶτα πρήσειν (written εἶτ' ἐμπρήσειν) Leo, φησὶ πρήσειν Wil. // υἱοῦν] ὑἱοῦν Rich., Sud., εἶτα δοῦν' Leo 353 οἶον(μ) . (.) ρ (.) ἐπληχε] ὀνομ' Wil., Ἡράκλεις Kör., ὀφον Lef., ὀφον ἀρτύσειν Rich., Sud., ὀφον' Ἀτρειδῶν Keil, ὀφον ἐσπέρας Rob. // ἡ add. Lef.

354 σκη νθρωπος] σκηπτός, οὐκ ἀνθρωπος (οὐκ omitted in MS.) Crois.

359 Δημ. τῆς . . . αὐτόχειρ Lef., Νικ. (continuing) τῆς γυναικός. Δημ. αὐτόχειρ; Leeu. (γένωμαί: MS.), so Leo, reading however γυναικός τ'.

360 αὐτῇ Leeu., αὐτὴ Lef., αὐτῇ Leeu., Leo, Nic.

361 Νικ. σοὶ δ' . . . προεπιπείν Wil., Lef. continues to Demeas (Νικῆρατε: MS.)

368 μονομαχῆσω Ell., Crön., Kör., Leeu., Leo, μονομάχης ὦ Lef.

372 ἐγώσε Lef., ἐγώσε Kör.] ἔγωγε Eitr., Leeu. // Νικ. ἐγώ σε. Δημ. θάττον . . . μου Lef., Νικ. ἔγωγε! θάττον . . . σὺ Leeu. (: ἔγωγε: MS.)

373 κ . . . τ Lef., κ . . . γ. Kör.] κᾶγωγε Leeu., κέκραγε Kör. // Lef. continues to Demeas, Νικ. ἀλλὰ μὴν . . . Δημ. φεῦγε, Χρυσί. Νικ. κρείττων ἐστὶ μου Rob. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after κᾶγωγε and Χρυσί)

374 απ. θ. Lef., απτεῖ Kör.] ἀπτεῖ Kör., ἀπιθι Lef. // Νικ. πρότερος . . . μαρτύρομαι Leo (νυνί: MS.), Δημ. (continuing) πρότερος . . . νυνί. Νικ. τοῦτ' ἐγὼ μαρτύρομαι Lef., so Rob., who however begins Demeas' speech w. πρότερος, Νικ. πρότερος . . . νυνί. Δημ. τοῦτ' ἐγὼ μαρτύρομαι Leeu.

375 οὐδ' ε 11 lett. Lef., σνδ' ε. ε . . . θε ρ . . . Kör.] suppl. Leo

376 6 (7) lett. κεισ] καὶ διώκεις; Rob., οἶον ἀδικεῖς Leeu., οὐ τόδ' ἀδικεῖς; Wil., ἡ γὰρ ἀδικεῖς Leo 377 οὐ δίδως Kör., ἀποδίδως Wil. // τοῦμόν; Leo, τοῦμόν. Lef.

378 μ(ν, λ) Kör.] πείσομ' E.C., τύπτομ' Wil., ἴδετέ μ' Kör., καὶ μάλ' Leo // Δημ. . . . ὠνθρωποι. Νικ. κέκραχθι . . . εἰσιών Lef., Δημ. . . . Νικ. ὠνθρωποι. Δημ. κέκραχθι. Νικ. τὴν . . . εἰσιών Leo, ὠνθρωποι: and κέκραχθι. MS.

379 Δημ. τί . . . δῆ Leeu., Leo (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after εἰσιών but paragraphus below), Lef. gives τί γὰρ ποῆσω; to Niceratus, τοῦτο . . . to Demeas (after ποῆσω a slight lacuna)

381 σαυτον] σεαυτὸν Crön., Head., Leo, Nic., Wil. // Δημ. κάτεχε δῆ σεαυτὸν Leeu., Leo, Wil. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after μοι), Lef. continues to Niceratus

385 δευ]//περικάτησον Crois., Crön., Ell., Legr., Leo, Wil. // εὐθαδιμκρῶ] ἐνθαδι, transferring μικρᾶ to beg. of v. 416, Crön., Head., Legr., Leo, Wil., μικρὸν del. Crois., Leeu.

386 μικρᾶ (from v. 385) Crön., Head., Legr., Leo, Wil., βαῖα Crois., βραχύ τι Leeu., μετ' ἐμοῦ μικρόν Nic. // περιπατήσω; Leeu., Leo // σεα 10 lett. λαβε Lef., σεα 7 (8) lett. λαβε Kör.] σεαυτὸν Crön., Ell., Head., Legr., Leo, Wil., κατάλαβε Leo, σύλλαβε Ell., Wil., ἀνάλαβε Crön., Head., Legr.

387 εἰπεμοιλεγον 9 lett. τε] λεγόντων Lef., λεγόντων, εἰπέ μοι Ell., Head., Legr., Leo, Nic., Rich., Wil., Νικήρατε Wil., σὺ πώποτε Head., συχρόν ποτε Leo, ὦ φίλτατε Legr.

388 οἱ 8 lett. σερρυη] χρυσὸς ὁ Ζεὺς (written ὁ Ζεὺς χρυσὸς) Crön., Ell., Head., Kör., Legr., Leo, Nic., Wil.

389 διατου] διὰ (τοῦ del.) Crois. // At end . . . Lef., τ. ν. Kör.] ποτε Legr., Wil., πᾶνν Kör., λάθρα Crön., Crois., λαβών Ell., Leo (or ἐνδον ὦν), θεός Eitr.

391f. το... ξευσ Lef., το... ξεουσ Kör.] τοῦ τέγους Wil., confirmed by Kör. // Νικ. τὸ πλείστον . . . ἐστὶ Wil. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after βεῖ), Δημ. (continuing) — εἰ . . . τὸ πλείστον; Νικ. ἀλλὰ . . . ἐστὶ Lef., πλείστον: MS. Lef., πλείστον. MS. Kör. // τοτὲ . . . τοτὲ White, τότε . . . τότε alii 393 ὕδωρ. ὄρας; Rob., ὕδωρ, ὄρας Lef. // ἐστίν. Leeu., Leo, Nic., ἐστίν ὡς Lef.

394 Δημ. μὰ . . . σὴν—Crön., Head., Leo, Wil. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after με), Νικ. (continuing) μὰ τὸν Ἀπόλλω. Δημ. γὰρ μὲν οὐ . . . σὴν Lef. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after Ἀπόλλω) 397 ἐσκευάκέν] ἐχλεύακέν Nic.

398 ἐστινακριβωστογεγεννημένον] ἔστ', ἀκριβῶς οἶδα, Ell., Leo, Wil., οἶδ' ἀκριβῶς, ἔστι Leeu., ἔστ', ἀκριβῶς ἴσθι (or ἴσθ' ἀκριβῶς, ἔστι Head., τὸ γεγεννημένον Leeu., τὸ γεγεννημένον Lef.

400 γεγονός. Kör., γεγονός; Lef.

403 σοι διὰ κενῆς] διὰ κενῆς σοι Rich.

404 παῖδα.] παῖδας (const. w. foll.) Leo, παῖδας (w. τρέφει for τρέχει Lef.) Crois., Ell., Head., Kör., Legr., Nic., Rich., πηδᾶ Crön., Leo, Wil., παίζει Eitr., Sud., χλιδᾶ Leeu.

405 περιπατεῖ λευκός Crön., Schm., περιπατεῖ, λευκός Lef., μέλας περιπατεῖ λευκός Leo

406 σὺ δ' ἀξείσφα. ται Lef., οὐδ' ἀνείσφαττοι Kör.] οὐδ' ἂν εἰ σφάττοι Crois., Crön., Herw., Legr., Leo, Rich., confirmed by Kör., who had proposed οὐδ' ἂν εἰ σφάξαι 408 13 lett. κοσηνμε . . . οἰμοσ Lef., 13 lett. κερσηνμο . . . οἰμοσ Kör.] σοι δὲ κηδεῦσ' E.C., εἰκὸς ἦν Rich., μοι, καὶ οὐμὸς Wil., καὶ θυγατέρα πέμπε σὴν μοι, καὶ οὐμὸς Wil.

409 εσ . . . ον . . . πολλ . . . μ . εν . υνεχε Lef., εσπεο. απολλ(μ) . . . μ . ι . ν . υνεχε . .

Kör., who states that everything between εσ and πο is very uncertain] ἐστιάσει τοὺς γάμους μοι E.C., νοῦν Lef., ἔχεις Kör., Νικ. νοῦν ἔχεις E.C., Νικ. (continuing) ἐστὶν εὐκτὰ (written εστ'ευκτὰ) πολλὰ νῦν μοι. Δημ. νοῦν ἔχεις Kör. (μοι MS. without παράγραφος), ἐστὶ τοῦτο· πόλλ' ὀφείλει Rob., ἐστὶ πᾶσι πολλὰ· νῦν δὲ νοῦν ἔχε Leeu., at end ἐμβαθε νοῦν ἔχειν Sud.

410 . . . ὁ . . . παροξ Lef., β δ(α) . . . παρ(ε, ω) ξυ(ι) . . . Kör.] βαβαιάξ· μὴ (μὴ Leeu.) παροξυνθεὶς (παροξυνθεὶς Sud.) βόα E.C., παροινῶν, νῦν παροξυνθεὶς βοᾶς; Sud., τεκούσα μὴ παροξύνου μάτην Leeu., βραδύνας, νῦν παρέξω πάντ' ἐγὼ Wil. // Νικ. (continuing) εἰ δ' ἐλήφθη τότε — Δημ. βαβαιάξ . . . εὐτρεπῇ E.C., τότε: ("hinter τοτε wohl Doppelpunkt" Kör.) and παράγραφος MS. Lef., Rob., Sud. continue the whole v. to Demeas

411 ποιήματα παρ' ἐμοὶ . . . Νικ. πρόημα τὰ παρ' ἐμοὶ δὴ Δαυδάλου Leo, Δημ. (continuing) πῶσον, τὰ παρ' ἐμοὶ δ' ἐτοιμάσω (or ἐτοιμ' ἔχω if 441 b belongs to Demeas) Leeu. (εὐτρεπῇ: MS.), Νικ. ποιήματα τὰ παρ' ἐμοὶ Διδὸς χάριν (or δοκεῖ σχεδόν) or ποιήματ' ἐστὶ τὰ παρ' ἐμοὶ Διδὸς Wil., Νικ. τάνδον εὐτρεπῇ; πῶματα κτέ. Rob., Sud. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker at end of v. 440)

412 θεοὶς ἔχω Lef., θεοὶς ἄγω Wil. // Δημ. κομψὸς εἰ . . . end of v. 443 Leeu. (εἰ: MS. without παράγραφος), Νικ. κομψὸς εἰ. Δημ. χάριν . . . Lef., Δημ. κομψὸς εἰ. Νικ. χάριν . . . Wil.

413 πραγματῶν Leeu., δὴ κακῶν Crois., τῶν κακῶν Leo, εἰδέναι Wil., ὑπονοεῖν Sud., γεγονέναι Hense, συμπεσεῖν Rich., δυσχερῶν or δυσκόλων Eitr., φύμην (for φύμην) ἐγὼ Kör., φύμην κακῶν Leeu.

414 In l. marg. ΜΟΣ] // . . . Lef., μο . . . Kör.] μόλις (or μόνον) Kör., πάλιν Sud.

415 Lef.

416 ἐμαντῶ Lef. // ῥα(ω) Kör.] πενομικῶς Hous., γενόμενον Sud., λαμβάνων Kör.

417 ν 9 lett. σδε Lef., νπ. λ(δ). ρ (not β) (.) ωσδε Kör.¹, νπ. λ. ρ . . . ωσδε Kör.²] ὑπὸ μαργος E.C., ὑπέλαβον Sud., ὡς δὲ Sud. // ενν ρμαι Lef., μα λλ. νεννο ρμαι Kör.] μᾶλλον Kör., ἐννοῦς γίγνομαι Nic., Rich.

418 Crois.

419 παρῶξνυμαι Lef. // . . . σαρα Lef., . . . οδρα Kör.] σφόδρα Arn., Crön., Herw., Kör., Legr., Leo, Rich.

424 αυτισ]

431 Crois.

432 πορ8 lett. τουτ'] περιψομαι Maz., περιοπτέον Head., Rich., πορευτέον Crois., παροπτέον (or παρόψομαι) Hense, φέρειν θέλω Leeu., φορεῖν θέλω (or φορητέον) Kör., φέρειν με δεῖ Wil., πορίζομαι Crön. // μόνον] μέν οὖν Rob.

435 αυτ. σ δεν] αἰτις (αἰθις) Hous., αὐτὸς Lef., μηδὲν Lef.

437 Kör., Rich.

438 Lef.

445 Lef.

446 αὐτῃ Leo, Wil., αὐτῇ Crois. // αἰτιος Crois.

447, 448 Lef.

449 τιστο Lef., τισπα . . . Kör.] τις Lef., τις. πάλιν Wil., παρῶν Leo, πατρὶ Rob., τότε Lef., τὸ πᾶν Rich.

450 τι ενων] τί Παρμένων Kör., τί δὲ Παρμένων Lef. // πεποικηκεν

451 οὐδέν. τί οὖν Lef. // εφυγесουτωσ] εφυγес σύ; πῶς E.C., εφυγес σύ γ' ὦδ White, οὕτως εφυγес Head., Leo, Rich.

452 . . . δ ε Lef., . . . δ (.) ε Kör.] ἐδεδιττε' ἐμέ. E.C., καὶ δειλότατε; Arn., ὠνείδισέ με Rob., ἐπέδησαν ἐμέ Sud., ὅτι Δημέας Leeu.

453 . . . ῥη . . . μαθη . . . Lef., . . . ῖζειν . . . (.) μαθη . . . Kör.] στίζειν Kör., στίζειν

Leeu., τί μεμαθηκώς; E.C. after μεμαθηκώς τί; Leeu., με· μεμαθηκώς Leo, ἐμ' ὡς μάθη τι Kōr., ἵνα μάθῃ πᾶν Wil.//διαφέρει Eitr., Leeu.//.....τρεῖ Lef.,ρυ(ι) Kōr.] δ' οὐδὲ γὰρ Wiebe 454 παθεῖν Arn., Leeu., ποεῖς Rob., ποεῖν Eitr.

455 πάντα τρόπον Sud., παντάτοπον Kōr., πᾶν ταισχρόν Leeu., πᾶν αἰσχρόν Wil.

457 ποιῶν]

460 ποεῖ]//εἰ] ἦ . . . ἱμάντα. Leeu., ἦ . . . ἱμάντα; Kōr., εἰ; λήψομαι Wil.

461 Crois.

462 Lef.

463 μ ξαῖ Lef., μουλ(δ)ε(ι)ο(θ) φλ(δ)ι(η) Kōr.¹, μουλιθαδῖ Kōr.²] μούνθαδῖ Head., Leeu.

464 αλλ' ὡς] ἄλλως Arn., Eitr., Head., Kōr., Leeu., Nic., Sud.//τίνος· Leeu., τίνος; Lef., δεῖ γὰρ· Kōr., δεῖ γὰρ εἰθ' Lef., τίνος δ'; εἰ γὰρ εἰθ' Rob.

465 ... σθησομ' Lef., πε. σθησομ' Kōr.] πεισθήσομ' Eitr., Head., Kōr., Leeu., Nic., Sud., προσθήσομ' Head.//μόνον Arn., Head., δεῖ μ' ὄλον Rob.

466 Crois.

467 πρ 8 lett. γραν Kōr.] προῖων Leo, Sud., προσιών Lef., τὴν θύραν Lef.

468 ff. Kōr. recognized the speakers as Parmenon and Moschion, not Demeas and Moschion (Lef.)//.....δε Lef., τῶνε . . . δε Kōr.] τῶν ἐνθάδε Arn., Head., Kōr., Sud., Wil.

470 κενῆς Crōn., Head., Kōr., Wil., confirmed by Kōr.//εμε . . . ετ' . . . οισ: Lef., ετῆξ' . . . ιπ(τ') ητῆξ: Kōr.] εἰ πειξῶν τοῦτ' ἔχεις E.C., ἐξιών· τι δῆτ' ἔχεις; Herw.

471 ·ε . . . Lef., ·π. ον. ι Kōr.] ποῦσι Kōr., ἀγουνσι Rich.//α . . . ρσκ . . . αν(νυν written above) Lef., οινοσκεραν(νυται written above) Kōr.] κεράννυται (del. οἶνος) Kōr.

472 ουμια. γ Lef., θυμιαματι

....ατ' Kōr.] θυμιάτ' (i.e. θυμιαματι corrected to θυμιατ') E.C.//τε add. E.C.//θυματ'] θύμαθ' Herw., Rob., θυμία μ' ἀνάπτεται τι θύμα θ' (written θυμιάμα τι θύμα τ' ἀνάπτεται θύμα τ') Leo, θυμία· γαμῶν ἀναπτε θύμαθ' Rob., θυμιάται τ' ἡδ' ἀνάπτε θύμαθ' Herw.//...η· Lef., βῖαι Kōr.] βῖα Kōr., Leo 473 τοι add. Leo, παῖ Hous., Sud., δὴ Kōr., Wil., νῦν Ell., καὶ γὰρ σε Legr.

474 εμε. την. . . ἰδα] ἐμὲ τὴν Lef., παῖδα Arn., Leeu., Leo, Sud., χλαμύδα Kōr., Nic., Wil., Παρ. τὴν παῖδα — Μοσ. μέλλεις; Leeu. (space for : after ἐμέ, but no indication in MS. of change of speaker after μέλλεις). Those who read χλαμύδα, for which Kōr. says the space does not suffice, give ἐμέ, τί . . . μέλλεις to Moschion

475 f. εστ. σω Lef., εστ. σο. Kōr.] ἐστὶ σοι Kōr., Sud.//Μοσ. νουθετήσεις . . . παῖ Kōr., Sud., Wil. (βούλει·, ἱερόσυλε: παῖ MS.), Μοσ. τί βούλει . . . ἱερόσυλε; — παῖ Lef. (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after θάρρει)

477 Crois.//Παρ. διακέκομαι τὸ στόμα Kōr., Nic., so Wil. but to Demeas (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after φῆμι). Lef. continues to Moschion

478 ἔτι Crois., λαλεῖς Kōr., Wil.//ἐξεύρηκά τε Lef., ἐξεύρηκα δὲ Wil., ἐξευρήκατε Leeu., Leo

479 μέγα Kōr., Wil., τί τὸ Crois., κακόν Crois., φάρμακον Rob.//ορτωσι] δντως Lef., ἰδοὺ Kōr., Leo, Nic., Sud., δντως; ἴθι Head.//Those who supply ἰδοὺ continue to Parmenon, Μοσ. ἴθι Kōr.² (no indication in MS. of change of speaker after δντως). Head. (reading ἴθι) continues to Moschion 480 .....ον Lef., ....ρ(σ)ον Kōr.] σπεῦσον Arn., Ell., Rich., ὑστερον Kōr., αἰσχρόν. Rob., δολερὸν Schm., βλέψον Lef.

481 Head., Kör., Leeu., Legr., Leo, Nic., Rich., Sud.

482 ἀπιέναι Leeu., Nic., Rich., Sud., μ' ἀπιέναι Kör. // Punct. Leo

483 εἰκότως Eitr., Sud., ῥαδίως Leeu., Rob., ἀλλ' ἴσως Legr., Nic., ἀλλ' ὅπως

Sud. // ἐὰν δέ — E.C., ἐὰν δέ; Kör., ἐὰν δέ; Lef.

484 γίγνεται Nic., οἴχεται Kör., οἴχετ', ei Head.

FR. 437 Τρύφη Scaliger, τρυφή MS.
Phrynichus

BIBLIOGRAPHY¹

EDITIO PRINCEPS

Fragments d'un manuscrit de Ménandre découverts et publiés par GUSTAVE LEFEBVRE. Le Caire 1907.

ARTICLES, PAMPHLETS, BOOKS, AND CRITICAL REVIEWS

- H. VON ARNIM, "Neue Reste von Komödien Menanders," Zeitschr. f. österr. Gymn. LVIII (1907), pp. 1057 ff. Critical text of the Epitrepontes.
- "Zu den neuen Bruchstücken Menanders," Hermes XLIII (1908), p. 168.
- "Zu Menanders Perikeiromene," Zeitschr. f. österr. Gymn. LX (1910), pp. 1 ff.
- "Kunst und Weisheit in den Komödien Menanders," N. Jahrb. f. d. klass. Alt. XXV (1910), pp. 241 ff.
- E. BETHE, "Der Chor bei Menander," Ber. d. sächs. Gesell. d. Wiss. 1908, pp. 209 ff.
- L. BODIN, "Notes sur l'Arbitrage de Ménandre," Rev. de philol. XXXII (1908), pp. 73 ff.
- L. BODIN et P. MAZON, Extraits d'Aristophane et de Ménandre. Texte grec publié avec une introduction et des notes. Paris 1908. The extracts from Menander are E. 1-201, 663-707, 850-919, S. 2-204, of this edition.
- EDWARD CAPPS, "Notes on Menander's Epitrepontes," Berl. phil. Woch. 1908, cols. 1198 ff.
- "Notes on the New Menander," ibid. 1908, cols. 1230 ff.
- "The Plot of Menander's Epitrepontes," Am. Jour. Phil. XXIX (1908), pp. 410 ff.
- "On the Text of Menander's Epitrepontes, with Notes on the Heros," ibid. XXX (1909), pp. 22 ff.
- C. G. COBET, "Menandri fragmenta inedita," Mnem. IV (1876), pp. 285 ff. First publication of the St. Petersburg fr. 2a, pp. 94 ff. of this edition.

¹ Items marked with the asterisk have not been accessible to the present editor.

- M. CROISET, "Nouveaux fragments de Ménandre," Jour. des sav. 1907, pp. 513 ff., 633 ff.
- Ménandre: L'Arbitrage. Paris 1908. Critical edition, with translation and notes, first published in Rev. des ét. grec. XXI (1908), pp. 233 ff.
- "Le Dernier des Attiques Ménandre," Rev. de deux mondes 1909, pp. 5 ff.
- W. CRÖNERT, Rev. of Lefebvre's edition, Lit. Centralbl. 1907, cols. 1541 ff. Rev. of Bodin-Mazon, Extraits, ibid. 1908, col. 689.
- K. DZIATZKO, "Das neue Fragment der Περικειρομένη des Menanders," Fleck. Jahrb., Suppl. XXVII (1902), pp. 123 ff. On P. 855 ff. of this edition.
- S. EITREM, "Zur Samia des Menander," Berl. phil. Woch. 1908, cols. 381 f.
- "Zu Menanders Epitrepontes," ibid. 1908, cols. 415 f.
- "Zu Menanders Perikeiromene," Woch. f. klass. phil. 1908, col. 365.
- "Varia," Nord. Tidskr. f. Filol. XVIII (1909), p. 50.
- R. ELLIS, "Notes and Suggestions on Lefebvre's Comedies of Menander," Am. Jour. Phil. XXIX (1908), pp. 179 ff.
- F. FISCHER, "Zu Menanders 'Επιτρέποντες," Hermes XLIII (1908), pp. 311 f.
- G. A. GERHARD, "Zu Menanders Perikeiromene," Philol. LXIX (1910), pp. 10 ff.
- TH. GOMPERZ, "Zu Menander," Hermes XI (1876), pp. 507 ff. On the St. Petersburg fr. 2 a, pp. 94 ff. of this edition.
- B. G. GRENFELL and A. S. HUNT, The Oxyrhynchus Papyri, Vol. II. London 1899. No. 211 is P. 855 ff. of this edition.
- LORD HARBURTON ("Unus Multorum"). The Lately-Discovered Fragments of Menander, edited with English Version, Revised Text, and Critical and Explanatory Notes. Oxford 1909.
- A. M. HARMON, "Samia an Titthe?," Berl. phil. Woch. 1910, No. 21.
- WALTER HEADLAM, "Menander," The Academy LXXIV (1908), pp. 416 ff.
- Restorations of Menander. Cambridge 1908.
- W. A. HEIDEL, "Note on Menander, Epitrepontes 103 ff.," Berl. phil. Woch. 1909, col. 509.
- O. HENSE, "Zum Menanderfund," Berl. phil. Woch. 1908, col. 156.
- "Zu den Epitrepontes des Menander," ibid. 1908, cols. 253 f., 319 f.
- "Zum neuen Menander," ibid. 1908, cols. 414 f.
- Rev. of van Leeuwen's first edition, Headlam's Restorations, and Bodin-Mazon's Extraits, ibid. 1908, cols. 737 ff.

- Rev. of van Leeuwen's second edition and Robert's Szenen and Der neue Menander, ibid. 1909, cols. 353 ff.
- Rev. of Croiset's L'Arbitrage, Capps' Plot of Epitrepontes and Text of Epitrepontes, Körte's Zwei neue Blätter, and Robert's Sex fabularum reliquiae, ibid. 1909, cols. 1489 ff.
- H. VAN HERWERDEN, "Ad papyros Graecos," Mnem. XXVIII (1900), pp. 118 ff. On P. 855 ff. of this edition.
- "Kritische Bemerkungen zu den Lefebvreschen Menanderfragmenten," Berl. phil. Woch. 1908, cols. 93 ff.
- "Nachtrag zu Menander," ibid. 1908, col. 188.
- "Novae coniecturae in fragmenta Menandrea reperta a Lefeburio," Mnem. XXXVI (1908), pp. 342 ff.
- "Notulae ad alteram Leeuwenii editionem fragmentorum Menandrorum recens detectorum," ibid. XXXVI (1908), pp. 415 ff.
- E. HILLER, "Zu Menandros," Fleck. Jahrb. CXV (1877), pp. 339 ff. On the St. Petersburg fr. 2a, pp. 94 ff. of this edition.
- A. E. HOUSMAN, "On the New Fragments of Menander," Class. Quart. II (1908), p. 114.
- A. HUMPHERS, Rev. of Croiset's L'Arbitrage, Mus. Belge XIV (1910), Bull. bibliogr., pp. 21 ff.
- V. JERNSTEDT, "The Porphyrius Fragments of Attic Comedy" (in Russian), Acta Univ. Petrop., hist.-phil., 1891.* The first publication of the St. Petersburg fr. 2b, pp. 97 ff. of this edition.
- O. JIRÁNI, "V nově objevených komoedických Menandrových," Listy filol. 1909, pp. 1 ff.*
- R. KAUFER, "Zu den neuen Menanderfragmenten," Berl. phil. Woch. 1907, col. 1663.
- TH. KOCK, "Menander und der Pseudo-Pessimist," Rh. Mus. XXXII (1877), pp. 101 ff. On the St. Petersburg fr. 2a, pp. 94 ff. of this edition.
- "Zu den Fragmenten der attischen Komiker," ibid. XLVIII (1893), pp. 234 f. On the St. Petersburg fr. 2b, pp. 97 ff. of this edition.
- A. KÖRTE, "Menander," Arch. f. Papyrusforschung IV (1908), pp. 502 ff.
- "XOPOY," Hermes XLIII (1908), pp. 299 ff.
- "Ein neuer Klassiker," Deutsche Rundschau 1908, pp. 25 ff.
- "Zu dem neuen Menander-Papyrus in Kairo," Ber. d. sächs. Gesell. d. Wiss. 1908, pp. 87 ff.
- "Zwei neue Blätter der Perikeiromene," ibid. 1908, pp. 145 ff. First publication of P. 344-357 and 646-705 of this edition.
- Rev. of Robert's Szenen, Deutsche Literaturztg. 1908, cols. 1706 ff.

- Rev. of van Leeuwen's second edition, ibid. 1908, cols. 2398 ff.
 Rev. of Robert's Der neue Menander, ibid. 1908, cols. 2714 ff.
 Rev. of White's Iambic Trimeter in Menander, ibid. 1909, col. 2071.
Menandrea ex papyris et membranis vetustissimis. Editio maior, Lipsiae MCMX (editio minor, Lipsiae MCMX), containing the Hero, Epitrepontes, Samia, Periceiomene, the fifth Cairo comedy, Georgus, (Citharistes), Colax, Coneiazomenae, Phasma, and the St. Petersburg fr. 2, pp. 94 ff. of this edition.
- A. KRETSCHMAR, De Menandri reliquiis nuper repertis. Lipsiae 1906. On pp. 80 ff., P. 855 ff. of this edition, with critical apparatus; on pp. 118 ff. the St. Petersburg fr. 2b, pp. 97 ff. of this edition.
- A. G. LAIRD, "Notes on the Epitrepontes of Menander," Class. Phil. III (1908), pp. 335 ff.
- J. VAN LEEUWEN J.f., Menandri quatuor fabularum Herois Disceptantium Circumtonsae Samiae fragmenta nuper reperta post Gustavum Lefeburium edidit. Lugduni Batavorum MCMVIII.
Iterum edidit cum prolegomenis et commentariis. ibid. MCMVIII.
 "Ad Menandrum," Mnem. XXXVII (1909), pp. 113 ff.
 "Ad Menandri fragmenta nova," ibid. XXXVII (1909), pp. 231 ff.
 "Conversus in pretium deus," Sertum Nabericum, pp. 223 ff. On S. 392.
- PH.-E. LEGRAND, "Les nouveaux fragments de Ménandre," Rev. des ét. anc. IX (1907), pp. 312 ff., X (1908), pp. 1 ff.
Daos: Tableau de la comédie grecque pendant la période dite nouvelle. Lyon 1910.
- FR. LEO, "Bemerkungen zu den neuen Bruchstücken Menanders," Nachr. d. gött. Gesell. d. Wiss. 1907, pp. 315 ff.
 "Der neue Menander," Hermes XLIII (1908), pp. 120 ff.
 "XOPOY," ibid. XLIII (1908), pp. 308 ff.
 "Die Entdeckung Menanders," Preuss. Jahrb. CXXXI (1908), pp. 414 ff.
 "Weitere Bemerkungen zu Menander," Nachr. d. gött. Gesell. d. Wiss. 1908, pp. 430 ff.
 "Der Monolog im Drama," Abh. d. gött. Gesell. d. Wiss. 1908, pp. 79 ff.
- L. MACCARI, "[HPOΣ M]ENANΔPOY?" Berl. phil. Woch. 1909, col. 1131.
La Perikeiromene di Menandro. Trani 1909.*
- P. MAZON, Extraits etc. See under Bodin.
 "Notes sur Ménandre," Rev. de philol. XXXII (1908), pp. 68 ff.
- E. MENOZZI, Sull' "Hpoς di Menandro". Firenze 1908.*
- A. NAUCK, "Bemerkungen zu Kock Comicorum Atticorum fragmenta," Mélanges gréco-romains VI (1892), pp. 154 ff. On the St. Petersburg fr. 2, pp. 94 ff. of this edition.

- J. NICOLE, "Notes critiques sur les nouveaux fragments de Ménandre," Rev. de philol. XXXI (1907), pp. 298 ff.
- H. W. PRESCOTT, "The new Fragments of Menander," Class. Phil. III (1908), pp. 199 ff.
- KELLEY REES, "The Three Actor Rule in Menander," Class. Phil. V (1910), pp. 291 ff.
- A. J. REINACH, "Nouvelles découvertes papyrologiques," Rev. des idées 1908, pp. 16 ff.*
- TH. REINACH, "Zur Perikeiromene von Menander," Hermes XLIV (1909),
pp. 63 ff.
- HERBERT RICHARDS, "Emendation of the new Menander Fragments," Class. Rev. XXII (1908), p. 48.
Rev. of van Leeuwen's first edition and of Headlam's Restorations, ibid.
XXII (1908), pp. 127 ff.
Rev. of Lefebvre's edition, Class. Quart. II (1908), pp. 132 ff.
- C. ROBERT, Szenen aus Menanders Komödien. Berlin 1908.
Der neue Menander. Bemerkungen zur Rekonstruktion der Stücke nebst dem Text in der Seitenverteilungen der Handschrift. Berlin 1908.
Menandri sex fabularum Herois Samiae Disceptantium Circumtonsae Agricolae Adulatoris reliquiae in usum scholarum suarum recensuit.
Halis Saxonum MDCCCVIII.
"Bemerkungen zur Perikeiromene des Menanders," Hermes XLIV (1909), pp. 260 ff.
- K. FR. W. SCHMIDT, Rev. of van Leeuwen's second edition, Woch. f. klass.
Phil. 1909, cols. 449 ff.
Rev. of Robert's Szenen and Der neue Menander, ibid. 1909, cols. 799 ff.
Rev. of Bodin-Mazon's Extraits and Menozzi's Sull' Ἡρώς, ibid. 1909, cols. 827 ff.
Rev. of Körte's Zu dem neuen Menander-Papyrus and Zwei neue Blätter, ibid. 1909, cols. 1049 ff.
"Menanders Perikeiromene," Hermes LX (1909), pp. 403 ff.
"Zu Menander," ibid. LXIV (1909), pp. 477 ff.
- P. E. SONNEBURG, "Menandros im Licht der neuen Funde," Humanisti- sches Gymnasium 1908.
- E. L. DE STEFANI, "Zu Menanders Epitrepontes," Berl. phil. Woch. 1910, col. 476.
- S. SUDHAUS, Rev. of Lefebvre's edition, Berl. phil. Woch. 1908, cols. 321 ff.
"Die Perikeiromene," Rh. Mus. LXIII (1908), pp. 283 ff.
"Die Kampf um die Perikeiromene," ibid. LXIV (1909), pp. 412 ff.
"Menandreum," Berl. phil. Woch. 1909, col. 863.

- Menandri reliquiae nuper repertae. Bonn 1909. Contains the four Cairo plays, the Georgus, and the Colax.
- N. TERZAGHI, "I nuovi frammenti di Menandro," Atene e Roma XI (1908), cols. 100 ff.
- B. WARNECKE, "Menandrea," Zeitschr. d. russ. Ministerium d. Volksaufklärung 1909, pp. 61 ff.*
- "Heros Menandri," Hermes (Russian) 1909, pp. 124 ff.*
- "New Comedies of Menander" (in Russian). Kazan 1909.*
- H. WEIL, Rev. of Grenfell-Hunt, Oxyrhynchus Papyri II, Jour. des sav. 1900, p. 48 ff. On P. 855 ff. of this edition.
- "Deux comédies de Ménandre," in Études sur l'antiquité grecque, pp. 276 ff. On P. 855 ff. of this edition.
- "Remarques sur les nouveaux fragments de Ménandre," Jour. des sav. 1908, pp. 80 ff.
- JOHN WILLIAMS WHITE, "The Iambic Trimeter in Menander," Class. Phil. IV (1909), pp. 139 ff.
- U. VON WILAMOWITZ-MÖLLENDORFF, "Der Pessimist des Menandros," Hermes XI (1876), pp. 498 ff. On the St. Petersburg fr. 2 a, pp. 94 ff. of this edition.
- Rev. of Grenfell-Hunt, Oxyrhynchus Papyri II, Gött. gel. Anz. 1900, pp. 30 ff. On P. 855 ff. of this edition.
- "Neue Menanderfunde," Deutsche Literaturztg. 1907, cols. 314 ff. Review of Lefebvre's edition.
- Rev. of van Leeuwen's first edition, ibid. 1908, cols. 863 f.
- "Zum Menander von Kairo," Ber. d. preuss. Akad. d. Wiss. 1907, pp. 860 ff.
- "Der Menander von Kairo," N. Jahrb. f. d. klass. Alt. XXI (1908), pp. 34 ff.
- F. W. WRIGHT, Studies in Menander. Princeton 1910.
- G. ZERETELI, Menander's Samia (in Russian). St. Petersburg 1909.*

ADDENDA

P. 32, note: On the curiosity of the cook about domestic matters see now Legrand, Daos, p. 127, and cf. his reference to Themistius Or. 21. 272 c.

P. 34, ll. 4 ff.: A more exact account of the history of the St. Petersburg fragments, based on a letter of Jernstedt to Kaibel, is given by Körte on p. xlviii of his edition. The parchment strips, the verso still glued to the binding, were first discovered by Tischendorf in 1844 in the monastery of St. Catharine on Mt. Sinai. The copies of 1 a and 2 a which Cobet published were made by Tischendorf at this time. In 1855 Uspenski rediscovered the fragments, removed them from the binding, and took them to Russia.

P. 36, ll. 8 ff.: Ricci has since discovered that M joins NT; see the statement in the Preface and cf. Critical Appendix, p. 289. The hypothesis here presented regarding the relation of fr. 600 to M is therefore untenable.

P. 38, ll. 4 ff.: Although M in its present position (see pp. 90 ff.) cannot be used as evidence for the lost initial scenes, the view here expressed seems none the less probable.

P. 40, ll. 13 ff.: The course of the action in the fifth and sixth scenes of the fourth act is somewhat more definitely conceived in the notes, pp. 103 ff., owing, it is hoped, to a truer understanding of the technique of the recognition scene, vv. 638 ff.

urned

f

882.6 .JC249

C.1

Four plays of Menander:AJB2175

Stanford University Libraries

3 6105 045 015 711

82.6

C 249

SPRING 1979

Stanford University Library
Stanford, California

In order that others may use this book, please return it as soon as possible, but not later than the date due.

